Inventor Seeks Advice and Courage for Idea

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have a brain child which I want to have manufactured, but I do not have the materials or equipment. This means I cannot make a prototype.

Must I have a prototype before I can apply for a patent? If so, how do I protect my interests while getting someone to make me one? The idea is simple but unique, with infinite market appeal because it meets a basic need.

If you will provide me with a jumping-off place I will ask God for the courage to jump. — Brain Child.

Dear Brain Child: You can't patent an idea, so you need something concrete. You protect your invention by getting the working model made by someone you can trust. A school of technology might find you someone; or a Chamber of Commerce might point you in the right direction.

Once you have a working model, you can take it to a patent attorney, who will search the files to discover whether anything identical with your product has already been patented in Canada, before applying for a patent.

Only then do you start manufacturing; or you can sell your rights to a manufacturing company and collect royalties.

Dear Doris: At the time of our engagement my husband was working as a store clerk in a small town so the ring was inexpensive and the band soon became broken. Once when settings were on special I asked if he would have it reset but instead he mended it with his soldering iron.

Today (15 years later) my husband is manager of the largest retail business in this community, but it never seems to cross his mind how embarrassing it is for me to be the only one in a crowed without a diamond, especially when some of them are employees who work for my husband. My husband says he loves me but he seems to have very little understanding of other people's needs and after the experience of the soldering iron I can't bring myself to mention it again. — No Diamond

Dear No Diamond: It's diamonds to soldier he has no idea of just how much this means to you. Some fine men just aren't sentimental.

Better do a little Christmas hinting. Say the only thing you really want is a diamond engagement ring, and if this seems extravagant you'll consider that it takes care of next year's birthday, Valentine's Day, Mother's Day and any other time when the spirit might move him to bring you a gift.

Dear Doris: My husband passed away two months ago. Please tell me what is generally accepted regarding the sending of Christmas cards this year. Do I send only to close relatives, to anyone I choose, or none at all? — Bereaved.

Dear Bereaved: Yes, send them. Not the Jolly Santa or happy-happy kind. But a card which expresses thoughtful friendliness to people you care about.

Your personal message right now will be reassuring to those who are concerned for you; especially distant friends who are not seeing you from time to time.

There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Record Letter Brings Sampling of Replies

DEAR READERS: Remember the letter from Wyoming Ice Cube — the 16-year-old Caspar cutie with the high date turnover? She had been called everything from a tease to a mental case. A pre-med student told her she'd probably have a nervous breakdown because of her teen age emotions. In desperation, the girl performed an analysis on her social life. Her findings were as follows: Invariably the fellow was massively and respectful on the first date. On the second date he made it clear he wasn't about to waste any more time. His question was to the point: "How about it?" On the third date if she wasn't willing to lie down and talk things over he would feed her telephone number to the nearest goat.

ANN LANDERS

Cube asked me: "Is virginity outmoded? Do men really want everything they ask for, or are they merely testing?"

I told her I'd ask the fellows. And I did. Here is a sampling of the replies:

Yale Class of '42.: This will probably come as a disappointment to most college students, but you didn't invent sex, my little knucklehead. There was a good bit of it in "the olden days." I got my share, probably more. But the girl I married was the one who said, "Nothing doing until we get married." We had some knockdown, drag-out arguments but I was secretly happy that she won them all. We celebrate our 25th next month.

University of Nebraska: I wish Ice Cube could listen to the conversations in the men's dorm. It would settle the question once and for all. The nicknames — "Mistress Mary," "Horizontal Helen," and "Round-heeled Ruthie" are just a few. Of course it's rotten, but most guys figure if a girl doesn't have any respect for herself, she doesn't deserve any from them.

Colorado U.: If I score on the second or third date, I put C.P. next to the babe's phone number. It stands for "Community Property." I've never dated a C.P. more than three times. They are usually super-dumb and crashing bores.

From Ohio State University: If Ice Cube is left sitting home on her highly prized assets because she refuses to go to bed on the third date, she should ask herself, "What's wrong with my bait? Why do I attract such scum?"

From Orlando: Men have been making jokes about chastity for a long time. — During World War II the G.I.'s in London said, "If a virgin walked down Trafalgar Square the statue of Lord Nelson would raise his hat to her." Funny how a guy will bed down with anything but he'll kill a guy who takes advantage of his sister, or, heaven forbid, his daughter.

U. of Kansas: Cube is lucky to learn on the third date what the jerk is after. She can dump him fast instead of wasting her valuable time.

Waterloo, Ontario: As a psychiatrist I can assure Ice Cube that vastly fewer people become disturbed because of abstention compared with those who are wrecked with guilt caused by sexual promiscuity. — W.F.W. (M.D.)

From Omaha: I married at age 20. My bride was 25. Neither my bride nor I had sexual intercourse until the night we were married. Please print my name. I am proud of it. — C.H.W.

DEAR C.H.W.: Congratulations, Lover, but I'm not sure your wife would care for the publicity. If it's all the same to you, I'll just use your initials.

Three Versions of Shrimp French Toast

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Would you please send me a recipe for Shrimp Toast? I have a few friends also who would like the recipe. — Angie B.

ANSWER: In the first place I did not know what Shrimp Toast was so I dreamed up three versions. I hope one of them fulfils your request.

NO. 1: SHRIMP FRENCH TOAST

¼ cup well mashed, drained, canned shrimp
2 medium eggs
½ cup milk
4 slices of bread cut in halves
2 or 3 tbsps. margarine or butter

Mash drained shrimp to a puree and measure ¼ cup into a shallow bowl. Beat eggs until blended, then stir in the milk. Soak the eight half slices of bread in it, until they soak up all of the liquid. Melt margarine or butter in large heavy frypan and transfer soaked bread slices to pan. (Spread what little shrimp puree is left-over in bowl on top of slices.) Fry until deep gold on bottom then carefully turn over and brown other side. A delicious breakfast or brunch or lunch dish.

NO. 2: SHRIMP TOAST — BROILED

6 tbsps. well mashed, drained, canned shrimp
4 tsps. butter or margarine
4 tsps. mayonnaise
Paprika
4 slices bread, toasted on one side only

Mix well together the shrimp paste, butter or margarine and mayonnaise. Spread on untoasted side of bread slices right to edges. Arrange on broiler pan and broil four inches from preheated broiler burner until bubbly and delicately tinged. I cut each slice into three triangles and served hot. These are lovely and thank you for asking me to devise them.

NO. 3: TOASTED SHRIMP ROLLS

Use same shrimp paste as above in No. 2 and spread on crustless slices of fresh bread. Roll up diagonally, place open side down on baking sheet. Brush tops with melted butter and heat this and toast until bubbly and tinged with gold in hot oven — about 425 deg. Fahr. Serve hot in napkin-lined bread basket.

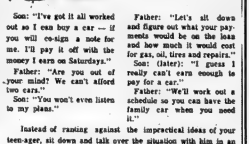
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Son: "I've got it all worked out so I can buy a car — if you will co-sign a note for me. I'll pay it off with the money I earn on Saturdays."

Father: "Are you out of your mind? We can't afford two cars."

Son: "You won't even listen to my plans."

Instead of ranting against teen-ager, sit down and talk over the situation with him in an amicable way, so he will find the answers to the problems for himself.

Father: "Let's sit down and figure out what your payments would be on the loan and how much it would cost for gas, oil, tires and repairs."

Father: "We'll work out a schedule so you can have the family car when you need it."

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

STIRLING .— Mrs. Oscar Merrick was hostess on Monday, Nov. 10 for the regular meeting of Stirling Horticultural Society. Forty-two adults were in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Floyd Armstrong opened the meeting and extended a welcome to all. She reported that the Dutch citizens in this area had donated 500 orange and red tulip bulbs in the flower beds at Memorial Park. This was their way of expressing gratitude on Remembrance Day.

The revised prize lists for next year were read by Mrs. A. Brooks and two cards were signed for members who are ill. Plans were also completed for a bus trip to Yorkdale early in December.

The January meeting will be held the third Monday in the afternoon at the home of the president. Nominating committee will bring in the slate of officers for 1970.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell on behalf of the Mount Pleasant members introduced Mrs. Manley Lawder, president of Marmora Horticultural Society. Mrs. Lawder presented a corsage to Mrs. H. Bellshaw, the oldest member of the Stirling group. She demonstrated how to make corsages from various flowers and displayed a large sample of artificial decorations, various shades of ribbon and numerous floral arrangements.

Mrs. Grant Hubole thanked her and presented her with a gift. Reading selections were by Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mrs. Ashley Brooks.

Several seeds and plants were given to the group by two members.

Serving refreshments were the Mount Pleasant members and William Ashby held the lucky cup.

Bantams Fattened

Baseball was the farthest thing from the minds of the Branch 99 Legion bantams last night.

They had more important things to think about — like plate - overflowing portions of chicken, for example, and cream pie as thick as a catcher's chest protector.

The Eastern Ontario Baseball Bantam A champions were being treated to a dinner by coaches Russ Soule and Earl Cousins, and manager Dick Elston.

Following the meal, Belleville Minor Baseball Association president Garth Bradshaw presented the boys with the new E.O.B.A. crests to record their 1969 accomplishments.

The Branch 99 bantams advanced to the all - Ontario semi-finals before being eliminated in two straight games by Kitchener.

Volleyball Titles Gone

The Quinte area was the hub of provincial high school boys' volleyball in every way but the one that counted over the week-end.

Belleville's Ontario School for the Deaf and Napanee District High School were the sites of OFSAA volleyball tournaments, but there wasn't much cause for cheering among the hosters.

Belleville OSD managed only one win in six games in "A" competition, for schools under 750 student population.

Belleville OSD downed Athens 15-6 but absorbed losses from Elliot Lake, Woodbridge, Stouffville, Milton OSD, and Harrow.

Guelph's Bishop McDonnell team defeated Merlin 15-4 and 15-5 in semi-final play and went on to capture the OFSAA "A" title by beating Harrow two games to one in the final.

Bishop McDonnell dropped the opener 15-8, but came back to record a pair of 15-8 wins.

At Napanee, Toronto's Parkdale entry downed Hamilton Westmount 15-10 and 15-6 to earn "AA" honors in two straight games of the round-robin tourney's finale.

Santa's Mail Bag

Dear Santa:

I am six and I have got the darn mumps. I would like to go to wonderland. I like your parade and I would like to ride on your rides.

I would like to have breakfast with charly brown and snoopey.

Santa would you bring me a jonny speed.

the End

Dear Santa:

I would like to go to wonderland because I like you. You are my hero. I like to see your furry whiskers and big crubby tummy. I would like to see all the toys and my Christmas wishes. I would like to see the fairy princess. I would love to go to wonderland and see you the most. Wonderland would be the lovely place in the world. If I do get to go to wonderland I would want to go every place there because I would be so happy.

Bye Santa:
From Laura Bennett, 3 yrs.
Shannonville, Ontario

103 Donald St.,
Belleville.

Dear Santa Claus:

I would love very much to go to the Christmas Wonderland. My smallest sister, Joanne, and I would like to see you in person. This year we heard there was not to be a Santa Claus Perade, in Belleville. We were very dissapointed, as were all the children in Belleville. The trip to the Christmas Wonderland would make us all very happy. It will be like a dream come true to see you in your ice palace. I have tried to be good and have helped my mother as much as possible for my age.

Merry Christamas Santa Claus.

Love from Robbie and my sister Joanne Premo; who is two years old to write. (P.S. — I would like it very much if you would make it next year for the Santa Claus Perade.)

Dear Santa Claus,

Our mommy is writing this letter for us as we are too young to write.

This letter isn't why we want to go to Wonderland but we would like our two aunts and an uncle to go instead of us.

You see Sandra our aunts and uncle are handicapped. our aunt Ellen is nine years old and she walks on crutches. Aunt Sharon is 19 and she is in a wheelchair, and uncle Ron is 11 and he also walks on crutches.

Santa they don't get to do things like other kids and this would mean so much for them.

If we had one wish, we would wish for them to walk and be normal but we have been wishing and hoping for so long, so this would be the next best wish because it would make them very happy. We also have an uncle Bob and he is 14, but he's alright.

Sharon, Ellen and Ronald Ellis,
74 Burton St.,
Belleville.

Thank you very much Santa for reading our letter.

Yours lovingly
Jody, Ricky and Sandi
Sanford.

BRIGHTON — She won't be wearing winter apparrel, but Lynne Bailey of Brighton won't mind the weather come Saturday, Nov. 22 and Santa Claus Parade time in Trenton.

Though it may be cold that afternoon, chances are that Lynne will be much warmer than her mother and most of the spectators.

Lynne's a majorette who will give a solo performance in the Santa Parade and she says: "I'll be twirling almost constantly so I'll be warm and, in fact, perspiring by the end of the parade, while some of the onlookers may think they're freezing."

She captured the Ottawa Winter Carnival novice class, juvenile age title in 1964, at age seven. In her competition, in jump up to the juvenile age (10 and under) intermediate class.

A victory in her very next competition boosted Lynne into the advanced class where she's remained ever since.

Now in the junior age bracket (11-14) Lynne, who will be 12 on Wednesday, has already achieved a rare distinction — that of being first runner-up in the Miss Majorette of Canada juvenile competition at the Ca- In 1968.

Lynne has done so well that she has obtained a dazzling collection of trophies — 199 to be exact — in five years of competition throughout Ontario, Quebec, British Columbia and New York State.

Among her many laurels were such juvenile - a g e crowns as Miss Ottawa in 1966, Miss Eastern Ontario in both 1966 and 1967, Miss Bytown in 1968, the CNE Two-baton title in 1967, the CNE Flag-baton crown in 1967, Miss Sweetheart of London and Little Miss Twirler of Oshawa.

In reality, Lynne's trophies represent a problem — Lynne's parents, Bob and Bobbi, have no place to put them all at present. So until they have a trophy room, the majority of Lynne's 199 trophies rest in two huge cardboard boxes in her bedroom.

The Baileys have lived in Brighton a year now. Previously they lived in Vancouver and Ottawa.

It was in Vancouver that Lynne was introduced to twirling at the tender age of three. Since both of Lynne's parents worked at the time, she had a babysitter.

And it just so happened that the babysitter was a woman who had two daughters — both majorettes in the British Columbia Lions marching band. It was this pair of sisters who gave Lynne her first baton and started her on the way, with mother's full approval.

"I had played the trumpet in a band and was always behind the majorettes," said Mrs. Bailey, "it was then that I decided if I had a girl I would like her to be a majorette."

The competitive season is from March to November, but Lynne practises an hour each day 12 months of the year. When she's not competing she is refining and developing new routines.

In order to excel a girl must receive expert instruction and it is in this area that Lynne's parents make a big sacrifice.

Mrs. Bailey drives Lynne to Peterborough every Saturday for a one-hour instruction period under the tutelage of Miss Sonia Anderson, a 9-year-old three time Miss Majorette of Canada.

In addition, Lynne undergoes intensive periods of instruction prior to major competitions. While preparing for the Miss Majorette of Canada competition in 1968 Lynne stayed in Peterborough for two weeks and practised between seven and nine hours each day.

Expenses are not long in piling up, what with weekly lessons in Peterborough, the travelling required to enter major competitions and entry fees (ranging from two to six dollars per event). In the Miss Majorette of Canada contest in 1968, Lynne competed in 14 events and entry fees totalled $45.

Another requirement is uniforms and a modelling dress, as well as sneakers. And believe it or not Mr. Ripley, Lynne goes through between 20 and 25 pairs of sneakers every year.

Mrs. Bailey jokingly says, "Lynne will compete until her father goes broke!" In actual fact, expense set Lynne's parents back about $1,000 each year.

"Up until 1968 I couldn't wait to go to the competitions but now that I own a bowling alley and restaurant I haven't got the time so Bobbi drives Lynne to her lessons in Peterborough every week and to many competitions," Mr. Bailey explained.

"I do it for the enjoyment and I meet a lot of girls and make new friends," Lynne says.

A Grade eight student at Brighton Elementary School, Lynne has other interests besides her majorette part-time. She's a cheerleader at school a member of both the Girl Guides and 4-H and captain of a team in the local Youth Bowling League.

Her ambition is to become an airline stewardess, but she hopes to continue competing in majorette competitions until she's 16 or 17.

She says that if she doesn't become a stewardess she may come a majorette instructress or a judge at majorette competitions.

The petite, four-foot-eight-inch, dark-haired Lynne is the Quinte area's only majorette competitor and she is always in demand, at this time of year — for this is Santa Claus Parade time.

One final bit of advice from the mother of a majorette competitor: "If you go to a majorette competition always take a pillow with you for the seats are very often hard and the hours long, no matter how well your favorite is doing."

Pesticides' Effects on Fish Sparked Bay Investigation

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The decline of the game fish population in the Bay of Quinte has become a source of concern to the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

One of the suspected culprits, DDT, was the subject of an investigation this summer in the bay and the rivers flowing into it.

Lloyd Thurston, a fisheries biologist in the fish and wildlife branch of the department, said that a summer project of the department sought to trace the source of DDT pollution in the bay and determine its extent.

At the same time the Ontario Water Resources Commission took samples of water, aquatic plants and bottom organisms in an attempt to trace the progression of DDT through various food chains of creatures living in Quinte waters. Samples were collected at the mouths and some upstream points on the Trent, Moira, Salmon and Napanee Rivers.

Results of the analyses now under way at the University of Guelph will not be available until early in 1970.

Scientists suspect that the insecticide, which collects in the yoke sac of fish eggs, is responsible for the death of newly hatched fish.

During the first three days after hatching, the baby fish live on the nourishment in the yoke sac. DDT is soluble in the fatty acids of the s a c, and poisons the young fish as surely as it does insect pests.

This reaction has been observed in Coho salmon from western Canada stocked in Lake Michigan and Lake Ontario in recent years. Whether or not the same factor is at work in lowering the fish population of the Bay of Quinte is now under investigation.

Recent legislation has banned use of DDT in Ontario, except in the tobacco and orchard industries. Results of the 1969 sampling of water and fish in the bay could have far-reaching effects on the boom net commercial fishing operation in the bay from Trenton eastward to Lake Ontario.

Mr. Thurston said over-fishing by sportsmen apparently is not responsible for the lowering of the pickerel population in Hay Bay.

"Apparently older pickerel (over eight pounds) find the bay waters inconducive and they head for the deep waters of Lake Ontario," he said.

The young fish have appeared in the Napanee River and other eastern areas of the Bay of Quinte in recent years.

The biologist said a high white perch population in the bay may be a factor in the disappearance of pickerel. The perch feed heavily on new hatches of pickerel fry.

The sea lamprey, an eel-shaped creature that feeds by attaching its suction-cup mouth to the bodies of fish, is another menace to game fish in the bay.

The stock of Coboe salmon planted in Lake Ontario by both Ontario and New York state was severely depleted by sea lamprey attacks.

Small experimental plantings of the Coboe salmon are continuing, as the fisheries departments of Ontario and New York seek to find a solution to the factors that have prevented successful establishment of the fish in Lake Ontario.

The salmon grow rapidly, about 12 pounds in two years, and gorge on shad. As game fish and a natural control on the shad they are considered a desirable addition to local waters.

However, the first commercial harvest of Coboe salmon introduced into Lake Michigan was seized by government authorities when high concentrations of DDT were found in their bodies.

Possessed Marijuana, Trenton Youth Guilty

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Paul Leslie Ketcheson, 19, of Trenton, Ont., Monday was sentenced to six months definite and three months indefinite in reformatory when he pleaded guilty in country court to possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Ketcheson was one of four persons charged Sept. 9 after RCMP officers seized 58 pounds of unrefined marijuana near Apsley, Ont., about 40 miles north of Peterborough.

They are scheduled to appear in provincial court Dec. 10 for a preliminary hearing.

Rich Must Aid Poor, Says Educator In Order to Solve World Problems

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

Dr. Escott Reid, principal of Glendon College in Toronto, yesterday painted a stark picture of the poverty endured by more than two billion of the world's population, and said if in the next two or three decades more was not done to speed up economic growth, the tensions of the world would become intolerable.

A Rhodes Scholar and former ambassador to India, the Campbellford native told Belleville Rotarians that the real reason the rich should give to the poor was humanitarian . . . religious.

"This is the message Cardinal Leger and Lester Pearson (as head of the International Commission of Inquiry into the needs of poor nations) has been carrying across the country."

Dr. Reid took issue, however, with a statement of former prime minister Pearson that the wealthy world "is weary of well-doing."

Figures given on foreign aid, he said, include loans in Israel — a wealthy country — and in Kuwait where people enjoy the world's highest per capita income.

They also include interest so that recipients are paying back about one-third of the funds.

"The wealthy nations give about $9 per head per year — not a very heavy white man's burden."

Dr. Reid said he agreed there was "enormous waste" in foreign aid but this was often due to actions of the wealthy countries, like trying for reasons of prestige to find steel mills, nuclear power stations, airlines and airports on projects which could not afford them.

Noting that what the underdeveloped countries require most was an increase in food production and a decrease in the reproduction of children, Reid said new strains of wheat developed in India and Pakistan have led to a tripling of production per acre.

He suggested the establishment of an international research organization financed by the government to continue the work of the Rockefeller Foundation in developing new agricultural seeds. Failure to do so could lead to a situation comparable with the Irish potato famine in the 1860s.

Regarding population control, Dr. Reid said it may take the better couple of years to find a method of contraception suitable for the ordinary woman in the ordinary Indian village. Otherwise efforts to raise the standard of living would be useless.

By the end of the century India may be able to hold its population to 750 million. If hundreds of millions do not prove effective however, it could reach more than a billion.

Dr. Reid compared Canadian aid to the bare-cost with defence expenditure but said he was not advocating a reduction in this sphere. Canada could increase its aid while maintaining its defence appropriations.

Works Council Formula Repairs Communication Breakdown

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Communication, at every level, still remains one of the toughest and most urgent problems facing society.

The need to communicate is paramount — whether it be student to teacher, or employer to employee.

The latter poses a difficult but unique problem — and Northern Electric is one company that decided all the communications gap really needed was a positive approach.

Northern Electric's positive approach can be found alive and well in the form of works councils — a practical two - way forum where employees can discuss problems, and at the same time, acquire information.

Councils meet with employees during office hours to discuss problems and answer questions. Each group has 15 to 20 members that are rotated about every four months, with senior management attending each session.

What exactly is discussed at works councils?

Conditions affecting employees as well as a sharing of information tailored toward providing a better understanding of the conditions of the companies.

Charles Baillie, corporate co-ordinator of works councils, can tell you all about how the councils bridge the communication gap, because he attends all sessions in plants throughout Ontario.

He explained what he sees as the purpose behind the councils:

"It is the function of the works councils to provide guidance in achieving objectives, insuring that topics discussed do not infringe on the contractual obligations of the company."

"The obligation of the council is to contribute towards assuring the activities of the work council are directed toward improving employee relations."

Mr. Baillie has been functioning as co - ordinator for the past year. Asked to assess the success of the councils, he remarked this would be difficult since success would be in terms of improved communications — an intangible.

"Some councils, of course, are more successful than others, depending on how effective the particular council may be", he said.

He stressed the importance of communication, emphasizing the necessity for this ingredient in successful employer and employee relations.

"Communication is very important. The employee expects to know more about company policy and problems. He wants to know why certain decisions are made."

"But more than that," he continued, "this concrete communication system gives the employee a greater feeling of identity with his company, resulting in greater job satisfaction."

Mr. Baillie's belief in the value of communications if 100 per cent.

He maintains that no matter on what level you improve communications, you add understanding to any relationship.

Works councils have been operating within Northern for a year-and-a-half, and if indications are right, they will be forging ahead for a lot longer than that.

The idea for the works councils resulted from a close look at one of the countries where labor - management relations have reached a most effective peak — Sweden.

F. F. Fulton, vice-president of administration and G. Dunnigan of labor relations went to Sweden to find out how.

This two-way conversation then took a spetial place throughout Northern Electric plants across the province.

"Yes", agreed Mr. Baillie, "we are trying to promote the concept of better communications between all employees, at all levels."

The council, however, is not a decision-making group. It is one that identifies and anticipates problems, exchanging opinions while suggesting possible solutions and taking action only in the form of making the responsible people aware of these problems.

But you can usually measure success.

"If we can say the communications are better, if there is a good exchange of ideas and opinions, if the employees are better informed, and if the work council has achieved a broader understanding of problems by all employees and management, then you can say you have achieved concrete results from the works councils", said Mr. Baillie.

Blues Woo Hall

Armstrong Makes Third Comeback

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Old hockey players never lose interest—they just die," says George Armstrong who is alive and back in uniform with Toronto Maple Leafs.

". . . The tremendous reception of the St. Louis fans, the genuine warmth of my teammates and the sincerity of the St. Louis management and ownership made it impossible for me to refuse," Hall said after it was announced Monday he has signed a two-year contract with the Blues.

The 38-year-old veteran of 18 NHL seasons with Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and the Blues had been given "equipment for his Alberta farm and "definitely decided" to stay away from hockey.

But last Thursday he returned to St. Louis to receive the Ventura Trophy along with Jacques Plante. The two shared goal-tending duties for St. Louis last season to record the lowest goals-against average in the league which won them the trophy.

"I had definitely decided before coming to St. Louis that I would not play," Hall said, but the Blues management had several talks with him during the weekend and laboured him in return for'an estimated $50,000 a year.

A team spokesman said Hall, who recorded eight shutouts last season, will begin alternating in goal with Plante in about two weeks.

Meanwhile, Armstrong announced Monday he has started practising with the Leafs after ending his third self-imposed retirement during the weekend.

The 39-year-old veteran said it would be up to coach Johnny McLellan to decide when the right-winger would start his 19th NHL season.

"It's on the payroll now, so I have to do what I'm told."

Armstrong went through training camp with the team, but announced just before the season started that he was quitting the game because he had lost his enthusiasm.

But, retirement was boring.

"And, like I say, when you're a hockey player, you don't lose interest until you die."

He retired in 1967 after the Leafs won the Stanley Cup and he realized he wouldn't be protected in the draft. But he came back and retired again at the beginning of last season only to have former Leaf manager and coach Punch Imlach talk him out of it.

This time, though, he talked himself out of it.

He met with McLellan and general manager Jim Gregory Friday and Saturday and has skated in a couple of Leafs' practices since.

Armstrong could help the team at a time when they have several players limping.

Defenceman Mike Pelyk fractured a collar bone in Saturday's game against Philadelphia and right winger Floyd Smith suffered strained knee ligaments. Just back from a bout with the flu is left winger Wayne Carlton who has been used on right wing and defenceman Jim Dorey who had a sore back.

Armstrong was not sorry the Leafs had taken the "C" off his sweater and made Dave Keon team captain.

"I think the C is where it should be," said Armstrong who served as team captain from 1957 until Keon assumed the role two weeks ago. "It should be worn by a player of Keon's calibre."

Orr Already Halfway To Point Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — In 16 National Hockey League games this season, Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins all-star defenceman, has reached the halfway point in his quest to gain a record that eluded him last season.

Orr, who was pushed out of first place in the individual scoring race one week ago by Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues, is back on top today with 29 points, including 25 assists.

The record for assists by a defenceman in one season is 30, set by Pat Stapleton of Chicago Black Hawks during the 1968-69 schedule.

Never in the history of the NHL has a defenceman so dominated the scoring race as Orr has so far this season. When he broke the points record for a defenceman last season with 64, he had only 13 points on five goals and eight assists after Boston's first 16 games. In four games last week he picked up 10 points.

Another former Canadien, goalie Tony Esposito, has helped move Chicago Black Hawks to the longest winning streak of any team this season after they started with the longest losing streak of any team.

Esposito, drafted by Chicago from Montreal last June, moved into the lead in shutouts by registering his third of the season and maintained his lead in goals against. The Hawks won both games they played last week to extend their winning streak to six. They, lost their first five of the season.

Some indication of Esposito's recent sharpness is the fact that he has given up only seven goals in his last eight games and four of those were to Oakland Seals, who also scored an empty-net goal against Chicago Oct. 26, the last time the Hawks and Esposito lost a game.

Esposito has been especially hot against his former Montreal team-mates. He shut out Canadiens both times the two clubs met.

For the season, Esposito has played 10 games and has 18 goals against for a 1.80 average.

Defensive Stalwarts

Argos Give Credit to Front Four

TORONTO (CP) — Much of Toronto Argonauts' success in the first two games of the Eastern Football Conference playoffs has been due exclusively to a four-man defensive line.

The Argos, who played the early part of the season with a three-man line, began experimenting with the four-man unit in the last four games of the season and in two playoff games have allowed only two touchdowns and 23 points.

* * *

"Moving Walt Balasiuk and Mike Wadsworth into the middle is the really big difference," flanker Bobby Taylor said Monday. "That was a great move."

After alternating between the three- and four-man formation over the final four games of the season, Toronto went to four in the EFC sudden-death semi-final and defeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats 15-9.

Last Sunday the defence stopped Ottawa cold in the final half and defeated the Rough Riders 22-14 in the first game of the two-game total-point EFC final.

The Argos also made another key shuffle in Sunday's game—benching rookie defensive end Vernon Vance in favor of Dave Knetchel, a Canadian who missed most of the regular season with injuries.

The Rough Riders had beaten Toronto in three regular-season meetings, including a 39-9 rout in the third game.

Much of Ottawa's success in all three games was the superb running and passing of quarterback Russ Jackson. During the three games, he ran 29 times for 200 yards when Toronto had successfully covered his receivers.

Offensively, Taylor says the Argos' ability to run inside was the deciding factor against Ottawa Sunday.

Stamps Rely on Kicking To Accomplish Sweep

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Place-kicking could be a major factor in the second game of the Western Football Conference playoff Wednesday night with Calgary Stampeders hoping for a reversal of their 1967 series against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Calgary trails the best-of-three final 1-0 after losing 11-10 to Saskatchewan Saturday in Regina and will be counting on veteran place-kicker Larry Robinson who finished third in the WFC scoring race with 95 points.

The Roughriders will be seeking their ninth win in a row when the teams clash in the 8 p.m. MST contest at McMahon Stadium, to be televised nationally by the CBC with a blackout at Calgary.

Jack Abendschan's pinpoint kicking, which accounted for 118 points and the WFC scoring title, could spoil Calgary's comeback hopes and enable Saskatchewan to become the sixth team to sweep the best-of-three final since 1950.

The Stampeders, who advanced to the Grey Cup last year with a sweep of the Roughriders, remember the bitter afterteaste of 1967 when they defeated Saskatchewan 15-11 in the first game of the final. Saskatchewan eliminated Calgary with 11-9 and 17-13 triumphs in the succeeding encounters.

In 1965, Calgary also won the first game before dropping the next two to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The Roughriders and Stampeders meet in the WFC final in 1949 and 1948 when Calgary won on both occasions. Calgary has defeated Saskatchewan in two of three semi-final series.

"I knew they would be tough. We made a lot of mistakes. Maybe it was the long layoff. I really don't know."

It was the fourth consecutive win for the Roughriders against the Stampeders. They met three times during the regular season and Saskatchewan won 24-8, 31-12 and 24-18.

Abendschan, 26, who booted three field goals, a convert and a single in Saturday's game, has been a stone in Calgary's shoe all year. In the three league games, he succeeded on nine converts and five field goal attempts.

During the season, Abendschan was successful on 21 of 42 field goal attempts and made 42 of 45 converts. Robinson kicked 18 of 37 field goals during league play and made 30 of 37 converts.

Interceptions and fumbles could be another key factor in Wednesday's game as the Roughriders seek their third Grey Cup berth in the last four years.

Cubs Pad Pasture

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs, whose total collapse last season was partially attributed to a lack of outfield strength, Monday acquired veteran outfielder Johnny Callison from Philadelphia Phillies.

The price was high as the Cubs gave up starting pitcher Dick Selma and outfielder Oscar Gamble, a bright 19-year-old prospect.

Callison, 30, batted .265 in 134 games for Philadelphia, including 16 home runs and 64 runs batted in. A left-handed slugger, Callison twice made the National League all-star team and has 189 career home runs.

Callison led he National League outfielders in 1968 with a 1.000 fielding percentage and committed only three errors last season for a .998 mark.

Selma, 26, finished with a 12-10 record last season after being acquired from San Diego in April for pitchers Joe Niekro and Gary Ross.

Gamble, a hard-throwing screedster, was considered one of the Cubs' top minor league prospects. He played most of the season with San Antonio where he batted .298 with seven home runs and 32 runs batted in.

The Cubs brought him up late in August and he compiled a .225 average in 24 games.

The bantam junior bowlers of Belleville have challenged their parents to come out and match skills and techniques with the younger generation.

"We have approximately 100 bowlers, young and old, participating in the events Saturday," said chief youth bowling instructor Madeline Jones. "We are mainly trying to get the parents closer together and make bowling more interesting for the youngsters."

There will be 3-game roll-offs with the first series scheduled to start at 1 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 22 at Brunswick's Belleville Bowl.

Parents and their youngsters will bowl on separate lanes, and scores will be compared afterward.

The junior 5-pin bowling council sponsored by Brunswick Bowl includes in its ranks such youngsters as senior Ron Hallan who has recorded a 690 triple and a 306 single game this year without handicap. Junior Kim Kempson will also be competing to see if she can improve her 670 triple and 253 single bests.

Bantam age group is up to 11 years old with Juniors aging from 12-14 years.

The parents will have instructors Sharon Rychenen, Barry Blakely, Art Heard and Madeline James to pad their pinfalls.

A week from Saturday senior youth bowlers will roll against their parents in a similar tournament.

Keep Your Arm Straight

Belleville youth bowling instructor Art Heard shows 10-year-old son Steven some of the teechnique he will be using when he bowls in the parent-children tournament at Belleville Bowl this Saturday.

McConnell's Hat Trick Helps Juniors Win First

McConnell — one of the now - you - see - 'em, now - you-don't-a s recent practices and games — made the trip to Cobourg last night and scored three goals as the Ellis Juniors whipped the Cougars 8-5.

It was the first win for the Belleville B's in eight tries this season.

"The rest must have done him some good," Crawford quipped on McConnell's performance.

"The boys gave it everything they had tonight, and the win was the reward. If they skate that way against every club the win will start coming more frequently."

Other Bellev l11e scorers were defenseman Al Jones, with his first two goals of the season, while Danny Lupenette, Brian Coughlin and Dalt Lambert scored one goal each.

Cobourg goal-getiers , were Garry Hart with two and Wayne Helps, Dave Peers and John Gutteridge.

Last night's turnout was better t h a n that Saturday night, when Crawford could round up only 12 players to go into Oshawa. The result was a 12-2 thumping from a team the locals had nearly beaten a week before, settling for a 6-6 tie.

The two prominent absentees from last night's Cobourg game were Dennis "Tooly" McCormack, who excused himself from Saturday night's game on account of studies and Teddy Waite, still sidelined with a bruised ankle.

Crawford used two new - comers last night in an attempt to fill the gaps.

Gary Thompson and Mark Acquafredde looked at h o m e wearing Junior sweaters for the first time. Thompson has been playing with the Blake Kerr midget all-stars.

Acquafreddo didn't see as much ice time, but looked very promising. Acquafreddo and Thompson should feel at ease with the club, having played minor hockey with several members of the Juniors.

Danny Lupenetie and Terry Meagher also drew Crawford's praise for strong two-way performances. ' h a d d i d rearguard Al Jones.

There were a total of 48 minutes in penalties with Belleville drawing 16 minutes.

The next Belleville game comes Monday, Nov. 24, with an 8 p.m. game against the Kingston Frontenacs in Kingston.

Belvedere Whips Stars To Keep Unbeaten Record

The Hotelmen, last - place regular - season finishers last year, earned a 9-2 verdict over 1968-69 pennant - winning Aluminum Stars.

Elmer Cain led the league - leaders with four goals and an assist. Jack Lucas and Jack O'Donnell got the other Belvedere goals while Ron Urch and Ron Poste scored for the Stars.

There were 14 minutes in penalties during the course of the game with Belvedere getting the gate for 10 minutes.

In other action in the league last night, Central Taxi and Stinson Construction played to a 2-2 tie.

Stinson's drew 12 of 16 penalty minutes.

After three weeks of the schedule, Belvedere Hotel is in first place with five points. Stinson's Construction are in second with three and Central Taxi and Aluminum Stars are tied with two points each.

Mallory Helps

Reid Mallory left junior B hockey to play Gas House League and Mulroney's are glad he did. Mallory scored three goals last night to lead Mulroney's to a 5-4 victory over the Downtown Merchants.

Tom MacDonald and Terry Casselman scored the other Mulroney's goals. Ted Schwager with two goals and Paul Goodfellow and Wayne McTaggert were the Merchants' marksmen.

In the other Gas House game, the Mustangs and Marysville skated to a 1-1 tie.

Getting Together

Ferguson's Critics Off Base

The husky Trenton winger looks 20 pounds overweight, uses a stick with a blade curved like a soup ladle, and skates as if he were laboring under a full infantry back - pack.

He is also one of only three players in the entire Ontario Hockey Association Senior A grouping currently maintaining a goal-a-game clip.

Ferguson's third hat trick of the season in Sunday's 5-3 Belleville win over Woodstock gave him an even dozen goals, only two less than he scored in 28 games with the Mo-Hawks last winter.

The three goals also gave "Fergy" a total of 14 points,

Organist Barrie Cabena Delights Bellevillians

By EUGENE LANG

Visiting organists of international renown are few and far between to this city. Thus it was a rewarding experience for the many who were in attendance at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last evening to hear Barrie Cabena of London, Ontario.

Originally from the land of his birth, Australia, Mr. Cabena has made his home in London for the past 12 years where he holds the post of director of music at First St. Andrew's United Church and is on the staff of the music department of the faculty of music at Western University.

A graduate of the Royal College of Music, London, Eng., he has been heard in recital at the centenary of the convocation of learning besides touring south of the border and playing at Expo '67.

Besides his exectant abilities he has composed numerous works for organ or choir, six years ago winning the American Guild of Organists anthem competition and recently playing one of his commissioned pieces at the International Congress of Organists.

The program last evening included compositions, both known and unknown from the pens of master organ composers of the last three centuries. The Prelude and Fugue in F Major by Buxtehude was emblazoned with a brilliant portrayal of the opening section encompassing a spirited passage work, while the occeeding subject of the four voiced fugue was tossed back and forth from keyboards to pedals with lively lilt.

Pachelbel's Chorale with nine variations on the old Lutheran hymn What God Ordains is Best was treated with dramatic embellishment spiced by contrary motions in brisk fashion that exhibited the organist's capabilities, concluding in repeated statement of original tune with resplendent volume from full organ.

Bach's well known Dorian Toccata in D Minor again brought the full akill-of the recitalist to the fore in a portentious summation with unflagging tempo (barring a certain disjointedness in the opening measures). Here the classical voicing of the Casavant was shown in stained glass clarity. Why not the fugue?

Five Choral Preludes by Johann Christoph Oley (mid-18th Century, whom even the musical dictionaries overlook) proved delightful in registration that brought out the bassoon (in the first), the flutes (in the second), formidable throatings (in the third), subdued stoppings (in the fourth), and infectious gaiety (in the last), traversing many tonal facets of this new instrument of which the members of St. Andrew's Church can be justly proud.

Mozart's Fantasia in F Minor (K.594) was recreated in brooding approach for the opening, with exciting agitation predominating in the Allegro ending in tragic melancholy at the conclusion.

The Prelude and Fugue in C Minor by Mendelssohn was interpreted with colorful splash and dash in the romantic bravuras of the opening section followed by an Italian canzonetta gaiety in the tripling, five-voiced fugue that bounced under the dexterous fingers of Mr. Cabena. This was an excellent performance of a demanding composition with showers of sound in sparkling spectacle.

The second half of the recital was devoted to compositions by Canadian composers, beginning with Mr. Cabena's own Sonata in Camera. Written on the anagram of a friend, Gordon Jeffrey, the three short movements were clever in conception that concluded in a Boellman style Toccata. Most intriguing was Sir Clarons (here, a contrived solution to an old dance form).

Former English organist and composer Derek Healey, who now makes his home in Victoria, B.C., was represented by four brief movements in semi-satirical outlook form his Cookham Notebook. Again Mr. Cabena brought forth diverse effects from the instrument at his disposal, arriving at clusters of dissonance in the labyrinthal ramblings of the final Hec Dies. Here tone piled upon tone that seemed to be scored for scaring and scarring. However a powerful final chord did bring a majestic finis.

Victor Togni's Five Liturgical Inventions were excerpted with three numbers from same as the final,scheduled number. The Alleluia movement stimulated our ears to the fiery reeds of the two manual organ with its full scale storm bringing a most enjoyable recital to its close. One encore was added to the program as the recitalist for extended applause by the listeners, this by the pen of the soloist.

Mr. Cabena provided interesting verbal insights into most of the selections that he played, thus adding to the enlightenment of all in attendance. Previous to the recital the artist was introduced to the congregation by Rev. A. L. Sutherland, minister of St. Andrew's Church.

Air Pollution Watched

TORONTO (CP) — Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said Monday his department has undertaken development of a province-wide system of observation stations to provide a continuous stream of information on air pollution programs.

He told the legislature that these stations measure the concentrations of sulphur dioxide, carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons and hydrogen sulphide nitrogen dioxide.

In addition to the stations, the department has made plans to survey each large city in the province for sulphur dioxide and carbon monoxide.

City PCs Get New Look

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Progressive Conservatives have reshaped themselves along a tighter political front.

Last night they voluntarily merged three separate party units into a single group.

Involved in the merger were the men's and women's associations and the Young Progressive Conservatives.

The new grouping will be known simply as the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association.

The reorganization, which gives the party a tighter administrative nucleus, received ready endorsement from a general meeting of all three groups at the Kiwanis Centre.

Last night's general membership approval followed discussions between the separate organizations which began about two months ago, said Roy Jeffrey, president of the men's group.

"We feel it'll be for the betterment of the party," he added.

The move also indirectly gives credit to the political enthusiasm of women.

Traditionally, the male contribution to politics appears to peak at election and tapers off between contests, he explained.

By contrast the tradition of women's groups is of continuing activity. Even during the lulls between campaigns they usually are busy organizing social and special events, he said.

By combining both groups, Mr. Jeffrey said the overall Belleville organization would benefit from this enthusiasm.

Last night's realignment also is gearing to attract more young people into party ranks.

Voting age in the new association has been lowered to 18.

"We're going to have programs at the beginning of next year to encourage youth," said Mr. Jeffrey. "I feel we are going to have to start new and organize topics of interest for them."

Other executive members of the new party association are: Mrs. Phyllis Hume, Harvey Brothers and Mrs. Vera Moody, vice-presidents; Dr. Brendan McSherry, secretary and Mrs. Rosie Shore, treasurer.

Mr. Joyce will be chairman of the town council of the new association with Mrs. Rendell head of the women's group.

Mr. Grills charged that the "governing influence" in the federal cabinet "could be counted on one hand."

(Later he named the group as Prime Minister Trudeau, Foreign and Rural Development Minister Jean Marchand, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin and Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier.)

The staff of the prime minister's office had been tripled since Mr. Trudeau has headed the government, he said.

Cabinet ministers were crisscrossing the country proclaiming good times while pensioners and persons on fixed incomes were "experience in a their most difficult time," claimed Mr. Grills.

Quebec Said Becoming Colony Of France's Publishing Firms

PARIS (CP) — Paul Gerin-Lajoie, former Quebec education minister, said Monday Quebec is in the process of becoming a colony of the French publishing industry.

As a result of the cultural agreements made between France and Quebec in the last several years, French firms have launched "a veritable invasion" of Quebec in the publishing, distribution and even book-selling fields, he told reporters.

By contrast, France was boycotting the distribution of books published and printed in Quebec.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie, now vice-chairman of the Canadian government's special committee on prices and incomes, is in Paris for meetings of the Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development, an international body of which all western industrial powers are members.

He told reporters that the "d um pi ng" of the French publishing industry's products in Quebec may reach dangerous proportions, while the Quebec government "is doing nothing to protect Quebec's own publishing industry."

He said five major French publishing groups have become installed in Quebec in recent years, namely Flammarion, Udel, Sederxport, Laffont and Presses de la Cite.

"The competition could wipe out the Quebec publishing business, since it is financed by the governments of Quebec and France."

Under the Quebec-France cultural agreements, the two governments grant subsidies to defray the cost of importing certain books into Quebec, particularly scientific texts.

But "this is a one-way operation, this book agreement, which threatens to kill Quebec's book business," Mr. Gerin-Lajoie insisted.

The former Liberal cabinet minister said he is not blaming French publishers for this state of affairs. He blames Quebec's Union Nationale government for allowing the cultural agreements to be twisted in this fashion.

He said negotiations are under way for the sale of Periodica, the only Quebec-owned distributor of French-language periodicals, to French interests.

Periodica asserted that Flammarion has succeeded in undercutting Canadian publishers and booksellers in the sale of textbooks to the Montreal Catholic School Commission, the province's largest school board.

Trudeau Tried to Bar Frenchman from Dinner

PARIS (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is reported to have opposed his French governor of a French representative at a banquet given in his honor at New York recently by Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations.

This is the latest tidbit in the controversy that still flares here from time to time over the October visit to Quebec of a French junior foreign minister, Jean de Lipkowski.

It comes from Le Nouvel Observateur, a weekly newspaper. Mr. Trudeau's attitude is depicted by the paper as the Canadian prime minister's way of repaying the French government for refusing to let Mr. de Lipkowski visit Ottawa.

It is recalled here that Mr. de Lipkowski's failure to visit Ottawa stirred up a mild storm in Canada.

While the Quebec government insisted that he was visiting the province under terms of a cultural agreement with France, Ottawa gave the impression that it was miffed. Mr. de Lipkowski talked publicly about Canada's constitutional problems during his visit to Quebec, and Mr. Trudeau reacted angrily by saying the French official was out of order.

The paper's correspondent suggests the UN incident was to be expected.

"When one knows Pierre Elliott Trudeau one is not in the least surprised by this information. Dynamic, truculent, florid, he speaks his mind."

Over Half Executives Look for Price Boosts

TORONTO (CP) — Almost 60 per cent of a group of sales and marketing executives from companies across Canada say prices of their products will go up next year.

The executives made the forecast in a survey of 428 Canadian firms, mainly manufacturing companies, conducted by Sales and Marketing Executives-International, and Manpower Services Ltd., a private Canadian employment service.

Sales and Marketing Executives-International is a world-wide society of sales executives, with a Canadian branch.

Asked whether they expect price increases next year, 59 per cent of those surveyed or 253 replied, "yes."

Of those, about 32 per cent expect the increase to range between one and five per cent. About 25 per cent expect prices to go up between five and 10 per cent, while 4.4 per cent expect an increase of between 10 and 25 per cent.

Only seven of the 428 executives expect prices to go down next year, while 22 per cent or 138 expect them to remain the same.

The remainder gave no answer.

Canada's Reactor Failure?

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberals demanded Monday that the government end its 10-year commitment to an all-Canadian nuclear power system and open bids on future plants to international bidding.

"Canada's basic experiment has not worked," Robert Nixon, leader of the provincial Liberals, told the Ontario legislature.

Canada's commitment to a nuclear reactor which uses natural uranium as a fuel controlled by heavy water may eventually be a success, but there are growing indications that it is a potential failure, Mr. Nixon said.

Ontario may have made a "billion-dollar blunder" in tying its own power-producing plants to the Canadian commitment since 1959 and "this is not a case for unwarranted patriotism to blind our eyes to a potential failure."

Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., with Canadian General Electric Co. as its contracting agent, is building nuclear plants for Ontario Hydro, based on a heavy-water system called CANDU, developed in an experimental station at Rolphton on the Ottawa River.

Universities Face Flood of Students

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Leslie Frost, former premier of Ontario, said Monday predictions of enrolments at the universities of Windsor and Western Ontario doubling in the next five to seven years, will have a "profound effect on the taxpayer."

A member of the Ontario committee on university affairs which is hearing briefs from four Ontario universities, Mr. Frost said a reassessment must be made of how universities fit into Ontario's system of education in light of the spiralling costs.

J. F. Leddy, president of the University of Windsor, presented a brief to the committee forecasting the near-doubling of his university's enrolment to 10,000 in the next seven years.

Dr. D. Carlton Williams, president of Western, said the university has just discovered "the wave that threatens to engulf us."

THIS IS AN ARTIST'S DRAWING of Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad and Alan Bean inspecting the Surveyor III spacecraft on the moon.

Moon Chores Start

Conrad, Bean Happy Laborers

'No Joy' As TV Fails

HOUSTON (AP) — There was, in the language of flyers and astronauts, "no joy" on television from the moon today.

It started fine when Charles Conrad opened a lower compartment on the lunar lander and exposed the camera. It showed first Conrad, then Alan Bean, climbing down the ladder.

But when Bean moved the camera away from the spacecraft, the picture suddenly went sour. At the top there was a jagged white area. The bottom three-quarters was solid black.

"All the connections look good," said Bean.

Mission Control suggested that a color wheel inside might be stuck.

"When I hold the end of the camera I can feel the wheels running," Bean said. He tried changing the setting, but still no joy.

Suddenly there were streaks.

"Okay, it's coming in now," said Mission Control.

"I hit it on the top with my hammer," Bean said. "I figured we didn't have anything to lose. That's skilled craftsmanship."

The ground suggested: "Give it one more light rap and also cut down on the F stop." On a camera, the larger the "F stop," the smaller the amount of light admitted by the lens.

"Okay, we did," said Conrad. "Did it zoom down for you?"

"No joy," said the ground.

"Okay, I'm going to pound it a bit," Conrad said.

Streaks, but still no picture.

North Bay Couple Murdered

NORTH BAY (CP) — A provincial police Inspector said Tuesday a North Bay man and woman whose bodies were found Monday in a river within city limits were murdered.

Insp. R. N. Williams of the criminal investigation branch said city and provincial police used scuba divers to search the river Tuesday but nothing was found.

Both Jack Berthel MacWilliams, 28, and his sister-in-law, Carole MacWilliams, 20, had been shot in the head, police said. Mrs. MacWilliams had been married to the male victim's brother Lyle who was killed in a car-train collision in 1967.

Work on Moon For Four Hours

HOUSTON (AP) — Two American astronauts made a bull's eye landing on the moon today, raised their flag and conducted the most detailed exploration yet of the black, powdery surface.

Before returning safely to their lunar ferry Intrepid, they set up five scientific instruments powered by the first nuclear generator on the moon. It was man's second quest for knowledge on that alien soil.

The moonwalk was spoiled for earthlings when a camera transmitting the first color television pictures from the moon failed after less than an hour.

Charles (Pete) Conrad climbed back into the cabin at 10:28 a.m. EST after being on the surface 3 hours 44 minutes.

Alan Bean, his companion on this voyage of discovery, re-entered at 10:15 a.m., after an even three hours outside.

"We won't have any trouble sleeping tonight," Conrad reported.

These third and fourth humans to trod the moon were in good humor and wisecracked often as they explored the cratered world around them.

Conrad's cackling became a familiar sound.

They steered their lunar ferry Intrepid to a perfect landing just 20 feet from the edge of their target crater at 1:54:29 a.m.

Just 600 feet away resta an unmanned Surveyor spacecraft that soft-landed on the slope of the crater 2½ years ago.

The nuclear generator worked perfectly, and the instruments began sending data to earth as soon as the unit was turned on.

After collecting a few rock samples, raising the flag and deploying the nuclear-powered instruments, Conrad and Bean climbed back into Intrepid's cabin to rest for the second excursion Thursday.

The moon walkers originally were to have stayed outside about 2½ hours. With their oxygen supply holding well, Mission Control told them to remain out an extra half an hour and instructed them to collect samples from the rim of a nearby crater.

Conrad and Bean reported the dust in the Ocean of Storms was thicker and blacker than that in the Sea of Tranquility where the first moon explorers landed in July.

"Your boots dig into the soil quite a bit," Bean said. "If you don't pick up your feet you really kick a load of dirt in front of you."

They roamed several hundred feet from Intrepid to explore and to set up a set of five sophisticated scientific instruments to measure such things as the solar wind, monoxakes and the moon's atmosphere and ionosphere.

The third member of the expedition, Richard Gordon, orbited some 61 miles overhead, awaiting the return of his companions on Thursday after they complete 31½ hours on the surface.

Astronauts Plan to Visit Early Surveyor Spacecraft

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronauts Charles Conrad and Alan Bean early Thursday will hike to the Surveyor III spacecraft during their second stroll on the moon. The Surveyor landed on the moon 2½ years ago. The trek to Surveyor's location 150 feet down the slope of a lunar crater is to be a slow one — with the astronauts carefully collecting rocks en route and taking care not to slip when standing on the 15-degree crater slope.

After reaching the edge of Surveyor III's crater, Conrad and Bean will attach a 30-foot safety line to one another, then Bean will carefully descend the slope.

Using a bolt cutter, Conrad plans to snip off a piece of cable attached to Surveyor's TV camera, the camera itself, a piece of aluminum tubing, and a section of glass. After each piece is severed, he will hand it to Bean who will stow it in Conrad's knapsack. The parts will tell engineers how well man-made materials wear on the moon.

They will then head back to the Intrepid lander craft, stopping for rock en route.

French-only Policy Is Ruled Illegal

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Court of Appeal said Tuesday that the suburban St. Leonard Roman Catholic school board had no right to embark on a program of gradually eliminating English-language education in 1968.

But four of the five judges agreed that the court should take no action against the board at this time since it might disrupt the education of about 400 English-speaking Grade 1 and 2 students.

Mr. Justice Brossard of the appellate court said the French-only program was a form of "racial discrimination" and said Superior Court was wrong in saying the board had the right to stipulate what language should be taught to Grade 1 children.

The board could exercise only such powers as are provided by the Quebec legislature and even then it is doubtful if "the legislature himself has the constitutional power to grant the jurisdiction . . ."

Parents League Wants Reports On Giving Marks

TORONTO (CP) — The Parents Action League told Toronto school trustees Tuesday schools should go back to giving report cards with marks so parents will know how their children are doing.

The league, comprising about 5,000 parents who feel schools have become too permissive and undisciplined, said children should be trained to compete academically.

Dal Middleton, Norgard Construction field man, surveys site of groundbreaking operation for new service centre near Macdonald-Cartier Freeway and Highway 37. Project, estimated to cost about $600,000 is planned for 98-seat restaurant expected to be ready in mid-1970.

Sod Turned for Gulf Service Centre Near Proposed Holiday Inn Site

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Ground is being broken on Belleville's boundary today for the district's latest, large-scale development.

The work preliminaries mark the first stages toward realization of a $600,000 service centre, between Highway 37 and the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway just south of Canniffon.

The big project — launched by Gulf Oil and expected in operation by mid-1970 — will have a 98-seat restaurant as its core feature.

The move is the first tangible signs of development possibilities which earlier this year stimulated exciting prospects for the site as a major provincial highway oasis. At that time plans were announced for location of a big Holiday Inn project on neighboring acreage.

Work on the service centre is being supervised by Toronto contractor Norgard Construction Co.

Construction gets underway immediately ground is broken on the site and Mr. Middleton had called in the needed equipment for this morning.

Working through the winter, he estimated the project would be completed by May or June next year.

Local labor will be hired, said the Norgard spokesman, while plumbing, heating and electrical installation contracts had been given Belleville companies.

Today's ground-breaking operations also were contracted to a city operator.

With a trim facade in stone-wood-brick finish, the new centre will have parking space for more than 100 automobiles.

Will Ask OHC to Consider Condominium Housing Here

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council will request the Ontario Housing Corporation to consider building condominium type housing in Belleville.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey broached the matter to council Monday evening, noting that as today's prices, conventional homes were beyond the financial reach of the lower and mid-income group.

Condominium housing would afford this group the opportunity of owning their own homes, she said. With condominium housing, a type of town housing or apartment structures) individual units are sold rather than rented.

Ald. Gerald Joyce agreed there was a need in the city for the condominium concept of housing but said the holdup was the lack of mortgage money for this type of housing. Local builders had been asking for mortgage money for condominium housing for some time, he said.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the real need was for housing for families earning up to $6,500 per year.

He felt those earning more than this could afford conventional homes.

To fill this need the mayor said the Ontario Housing Corporation had been asked to assemble 100 lots in Belleville under the Ontario Homes Made Easy plan.

But he saw no reason why council should not go along with Ald. Jeffrey's motion to request condominium housing.

"But it is a deed-and street — it is a matter of mortgage money availability," he said.

Members Contest Seats

Pre-election meeting of the Sales and Ad Club last night saw three members signifying intentions to run for alderman. Seated at the head table were Donald Soutter, Ald. Gerald Joyce and Jack Ireland.

900 Units

Palmer Gardens Housing Under Way

Gowanbrae Ltd., owners of the sprawling new 900 - unit Palmer Gardens housing subdivision on the city's west side, are losing no time in getting construction underway.

Just over a month ago The Tatham Company of Belleville started work as general contractors on roadways, storm and sanitary sewers and watermains.

And now construction has started on the first of 53 single - family detached homes. The group of 53 houses will include six different plans in two - storey, split - levels and bungalow models.

But accommodation is also being provided in the subdivision for senior citizens, with the contract calling for construction of a 51-unit apartment building.

The major portion of the housing units at the Palmer-Road - Bridge Street subdivision will be in the form of high-rise apartments to be built opposite Centennial Secondary School and along Bridge Street. About 600 units will be provided in the high-rise development.

The apartment buildings will be the last to go into the 45-acre site after the single-family and semi-detached units are completed.

Assessment Nears $20 Million

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — Reeve George Cunningham reported Monday that building permits issued to the end of October represented $708,405 in new construction — a record for the township.

Ameliasburg's total assessment would pass the $20 million mark as a result, he said.

Pointing out he spent much time on affairs of the county, he revealed his work with the Quinte Air Services committee had convinced him it would be possible "to hop on a plane at Trenton and fly to Toronto in the very near future."

Reeve Cunningham noted that the county council was concerned with providing adequate facilities for the senior citizens of Prince Edward County and was aware a new building would have to be made available to them within three years.

Criticizing the present accommodations the county provides the aged, the reeve observed "a county that can build schools for the young misters will certainly have to look after its old people."

He said that as many as eight persons were compelled to live in one room of the crowded, outdated home the county maintains for senior citizens with no other place to live.

And some of them pay the full rate set by the government until their savings are depleted, and they have to depend entirely on old age pension contributions and charity, he informed the meeting.

Reeve Cunningham said he was criticised for not calling a public meeting while council was deciding on spending money for fire protection. Regardless of the consequences he said he had no intention of seeking advice in this manner because the majority of township residents had elected the councillors to run their business and that's what they were going to do and did as far as he was concerned.

"The fire department is costing added funds he told the meeting but not to the extent "the city of Belleville would have liked Ameliasburg to pay."

A breakdown of the township's total of $54,801 spent so far this year for fire protection includes $1,723 to the municipalities of Trenton, Belleville and Wellington for standby and protection, $25,164 for a new pumper, $4,617 for two used water tankers and $23,297 for a new tanker.

Ameliasburg council turned down Belleville's proposal of more than $32,000 to supply fire protection under a contract for 1969. Until this year the township paid the city around $3,500 a year for fire protection and protection in the event of an emergency.

The township, to pay for its own fire protection, borrowed $50,000 for capital expenditures under a plan to repay the indebtedness over a period of three years, commencing in 1970.

For residents at the east end of the township not already enjoying a lower fire insurance premium, the rate applicable to homes within a five-mile radius of the fireball — is in effect now. The preferred rate as it is known is about 45 per cent lower than the customary rural protection. Farm buildings in the township, including homes, are still not eligible for preferred coverage.

Radio Hams Attended Convention

Among the more than 400 licensed radio amateurs from all parts of Ontario who attended the recent two-day convention at the Holiday Inn in Toronto were Jay A. White and Ross Dryden of Belleville.

Mr. White is the communications manager for Canada, representing the America n Radio Relay League incorporated and completing his two-year term of office at the end of this year.

The program at the convention included the presentation of the latest in electronic equipment and theory together with studies of means to better serve the public, both in times of peace and in emergency.

Licensed radio amateurs hold federal certificates of proficiency and these are only granted following examinations. Licensed amateurs communicate all over the world and the present sophisticated equipment is a far cry from that used in earlier days.

Amateurs stand ready at all times to provide emergency communication facilities and the recent explosion and fire at Malton amply demonstrated the value of the service.

Ratepayers Win - - Will Have Their Say

But it took a delegation to city council to get assurances they were not being overlooked.

The delegation attended Monday evening's meeting of city council, claiming their offer of involvement and participation on the committee had not been accepted by council.

Acting as spokesman for the group, association vice - president Zdenek Kvarda said it was difficult to understand how council could exclude one - half of the city as a direct representative body. He said his association represented a potential 9,934 voters, yet their offer of assistance in the committee had been answered merely with an indication that their letter had been received and filed.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said that so far there had been no meeting of the Urban Renewal Citizens Committee.

"There was a intention of Walter frequently visited this area and the City of Winnipeg in 1837 presented him to the Prince of Wales. Selkirk he belonged to the Kiwanis Club of Winnipeg, which bestowed upon him a life membership.

Mr. Waller was a member of St. Chad's Anglican church in St. James.

Surviving are his wife, the former Porrence Edith Smith, one son, Richard D. W. "Jim" Waller of Calgary, one daughter, Mrs. Angus (Beth) MacKenzie of Madoc and one sister, Mrs. J. (Dorothy) Mitchell of Banff. He was predeceased by one son, one sister and three brothers. Surviving are five grandchildren.

Mr. Waller is resting at the Parlor Funeral Home, 1000 St. James. Service will be conducted in the chapel on Thursday, Nov. 20 at 11:00 AM.

Interment will be in Brookside cemetery, St. James, with Canon D. Stewart officiating.

Three Break-ins, Thefts

Cigarettes valued at $25 were taken from Huff's service station on Dundas Street East. At Camilton Road and Station Street a small quantity of cigarettes also was taken from Tompkins service station.

Early Tuesday morning $18 cash was reported missing after thieves entered the Station Street premises of Tendi's Chic Ltd. by tearing off a rear window screen.

Bell Applauds City's Attitude

City hall administration has been commended by the Bell Telephone Co. for its efficient handling of its application to the Ontario Municipal Board for a rezoning change to allow construction of the Four Seasons Motel and Bell training centre.

The OMB hearing on the application for rezoning on the city's waterfront was heard last week, with board member granting immediate approval of the request. Objection to the application was entered by Sam Goodman, proprietor of the north-end Sun Valley Motor Inn.

In a letter to Mayor J. Russell Scott, L. J. Lagadin, regional counsel for Bell Telephone, expressed his "considerable" satisfaction with the way in which the Belleville municipal machinery functioned in connection with the proposed Bell training centre.

"However, regardless of the outcome, the matter has been very well handled municipally for which I congratulate you and your people."

"In particular I am assured that your Industrial Commissioner, Ray Brown, has been particularly effective. At the hearing I personally saw the result of careful preparation and good presentation by your city solicitor, E. (Gus) Porter."

Service Centre Started

Services to the township area bordering the city's northern limits on the highway still are being debated among local and provincial governments.

A decision has yet to be made on any extension of city water and fire protection beyond the boundaries.

However, Mr. Middleton said three wells already had been tapped on the service-centre site, indicating an abundant on-the-spot water supply.

Sewage would be contained by septic tank pumped out at regular intervals and trucked from the site, he said.

Meantime, there have been no firm announcements on any recent moves in the Holiday Inn development.

However, Thurlow township officials yesterday confirmed Holiday Inn took out a $1,500,000 building permit "a month or six weeks ago."

John Skurka, one of the two partner landowners of the site, also confirmed that the major hotel chain still holds its property options.

Holiday Inn has had its construction and financing drawn up for six months," he added.

"For two years the Holiday Inn people have consistently said — and still says — they would like to go into the Belleville area," he added.

Prospects of the development resulted in a liquor application in June. Thurlow went wet for the first time in decades.

Mr. Skurka agreed spa services was water and sewer services.

The current issue involving extension of city services to the township in reality was not "a complicated thing," he added.

"Somebody ought to clearly state the facts as they are," said Mr. Skurka.

He emphasized optimism that the Holiday Inn development would be realized.

"I'm dead sure," he said. "I've been dead sure for two years. And they're definitely going to build."

Area Farmers Inspect Czech Tractor

Czech Tractors Demonstrated, Exports to Ontario Sought

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
(Staff Reporter)

CODRINGTON — The pair of orange Czechoslovakian tractors didn't look much different than their Canadian counterparts but they could provide a possible solution to one of the problems facing Ontario farmers.

"We've got to become more competitive in the world agricultural market and one way is to lower input costs through reduced farm machinery prices," said Roy Coulter, the president of the Ontario Farm Machinery Company which is a subsidiary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

It was this hope which caused the OFA to explore the possibility of importing foreign tractors and explains the presence of the two Czech tractors Monday at Howard McCann's farm on Salt Creek Road, 13 miles north of Brighton.

"The two Czechoslovakian tractors are here for demonstration and display purposes only," Coulter explained, adding "If they are found acceptable by Ontario farmers the OFMC is willing to negotiate and put these tractors on the Ontario market."

"I see a tremendous saving in price for the Ontario farmer," Coulter emphasized. "In fact the Zetor 80-horsepower tractor with rubber-mounted cab will likely be priced at around $5,500 as compared with a price tag of over $9,000 for a comparable Canadian tractor."

Antonin Stachovec — the head of the Zetor Company's Ontario delegation — explained that through Motokov, one of Czechoslovakia's export divisions under that nation's ministry of foreign trade, the Zetor group would make a series of demonstrations across the province from Nov. 8 to Nov. 29.

"We have four tractors here to demonstrate to your farmers if this type of tractor is convenient on their farms," Stachovec said.

"Then we will meet with the OFA and discuss prices, service, parts and other details, but the price must be interesting for both the farmers and the producer," he added.

"We need a good quantity to make the sales of economic value, but we're willing to give service and parts demonstrations later," Mr. Stachovec stressed.

"You must realize that we're not playing with our name—each year we manufacture from 25,000 to 30,000 tractors is our factory and more than 80 per cent of these are exported, mainly to Europe but also to the United Kingdom for the last three years and now in Japan and South America," he emphasized.

When asked how he interpreted the Ontario farmers' reactions to his tractors Mr. Stachovec said "I think the farmer's reaction is good — very much the farmer is asking and interested in our tractor."

McCann himself said "It's great!" after taking the 80 - horsepower machine for a test run, drawing a four - furrow moldboard plow.

The smaller tractor drew a three - furrow moldboard plow in the trail and after a Czechoslovakian technician demonstrated the features of the tractors many of the 30 or so farmers tried the machines out for themselves with a generally favorable reaction.

Of special interest was the rubber - mounted all-weather cab which also afforded the driver a view of the trailed implement. Most farmers admired the cab and were surprised upon learning from Czech officials that the tractor would be cheaper than its Canadian counterpart without the cab.

New Reeve

Wellington Council Seats Filled by Acclamation

A lifelong resident of Wellington, Mr. Marvin operated television sales and service shop in Wellington.

He will succeed incumbent Reeve Robert Boyce, who yesterday announced his resignation.

Herbert Hiles and Cecil Insley each qualified their nominations to council as did incumbent Keith Barnett. Rodney Bower withdrew his name from the nomination.

Thus, four men remain to fill the four vacant seats in village council. The new council will include William Greer, Herbert Hiles, Cecil Insley and Keith Barnett.

Incumbent councillor Donald Batley was not nominated to run for re-election at Monday night's meeting.

Election Definite

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — Four candidates will fight it out Dec. 1 for election to three township council seats.

Roger Redner qualified before the deadline Tuesday, ensuring an election contest at the polls this year.

Both he and candidate Dean O'Hara are throwing their hats into the political ring for the first time. Incumbents Arnold Wetherall and Lyle Vanclief are the other council candidates.

The township's incoming reeve, Russell Thompson, was elected by acclamation. He is now the deputy-reeve. Councillor Norman Post was acclaimed deputy-reeve when four other nominees declined.

Nine people were nominated for the three council seats Monday night, but five failed to qualify.

New Post Office Contract Awarded

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — The department of public works in Ottawa announced today that a contract for a new post office at Carrying Place has been awarded to the J. D. Coad Construction Company of Trenton.

The contract price is $29,030.

Plans call for the building to be one storey, 38 by 36 feet in size with an inside area of 1,350 square feet. Parking will be provided on the premises.

The construction expected to start immediately, is to be completed in five months time.

The first postmaster in Carrying Place was Charles H. Westfall, who was appointed in 1911. Since 1949, when the first postmaster retired, his son, Vernon Westfall, has filled the position. Mr. Westfall is retiring from the federal post to devote his time to his general store.

Don't Want Marina

GOSPORT, Ont. (CP)—Residents of this tiny fishing community Monday petitioned town council to prevent the building of a proposed marina.

Ninety-eight of the village's 100 homeowners signed the petition stating they don't want another marina here "because it would harm our fishing livelihood."

There already are two marinas here.

Eleven Council Candidates Qualify for Trenton Vote

TRENTON (Staff) — The voting populace of 7,475 in this town will have 11 candidates to choose from in the Dec. 1 municipal election.

All 11 men nominated Monday night qualified by 9 p.m. Tuesday and will let their names stand in the election.

There are two mayoralty candidates — incumbent James MacDonald and challenger Duncan McDonald, who resigned from town council to run.

There are seven hopefuls for four council seats: Councillors E. M. Parker and Douglas Kinney, former councillor Charles Hilton, Dr. W. R. Patrick, Gerrit Bruinix, George Greer and Neil Robertson.

Town merchant F. J. Aziz will oppose incumbent Clifford Baker in a battle for the lone Public Utilities Commission vacancy.

Town assessor J. A. Smith said Tuesday the total of 7,475 voters in eight polling subdivisions — four on each side of the Trent River — are increased 146 over last year's electorate total.

He also noted the east side of the river has some 400 voters more than the west side district. On the east side there are 3,958 and on the west side 3,517.

Let's Look Around

Amid all the conflicting arguments and outright uncertainty that pervades the development scene in Belleville and other small cities, planners could do worse than look at the achievements of larger centres around the world.

We are unaware of what problems faced the early planners of cities like Stockholm, Leningrad, Rome, Athens, Marseilles, Hamburg, Edinburgh, Washington and Auckland, but suffice it to say that whatever the strains of latter day urban sprawl they have in common not only beauty of location but architectural interest and good taste.

Consider Hamburg. Globe and Mail travel writer Robert Turnbull was in the German city earlier this year and he points out, justly, that there is another side to its world-wide reputation as a "rowdy, raffish seaport."

Few cities in Germany, or elsewhere, he says, "have a more scenically attractive core — a large lake called the Alster, bordered by parks, promenades and, in places, wide boulevards filled with motor traffic. . . .

From his hotel room, the writer looked out on sailboats and other small craft on the waterways. "There is a glimpse, under trees, of a marina with boats for hire, and a deck gay with colored umbrellas and tables for coffee drinkers.

"Above all, go to the harbor. Fascinating for anyone who loves ships and the sea . . . Like the Alster, the Elbe, too, has its promenade; a riverside that leads from Oevelgonne through Blankenese to Schulau, a distance of ten miles, with parks and gardens; thatched cottages and country houses, and all the time views of ships."

The other cities mentioned have their own special charm. But here in Belleville we do not even have to travel to the far corners of the world to discover what is best in the life of a city. Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Vancouver . . . these are homegrown centres of prominence which are progressing with due regard to natural environment and assets. In all of them there are lessons for smaller cities such as our own.

All for Research

It is comical to witness the government, so full of self righteousness, doing its best to clobber the pollutionists and the marijuana addicts, and then in the next breath allow to speak buoying itself polluting the lakes of northwestern Ontario and putting its own scientists on "pot" — all in the name of research.

On the one hand Ottawa is trying to come up with more effective anti-pollutants and on the other it wants to determine as far as possible the effects of smoking the Mexican weed which in translation means the Spanish sounds so innocent as "mary jane."

Enough is known already, of course, to warn anyone who knows the part of wisdom to lay off it. Only recently a 14-year-old girl in Calgary shot herself with her father's gun, leaving a note blaming the "grass" for her depression and "black moods."

Anyway, here presumably are the mature gentlemen of the capital's scientific world bracing themselves for the euphoria of marijuana. And — listen to this, Prime Minister Munro says that while his department would prefer to give scientists quantities of quality-controlled "pot" raised in its own greenhouses, samples seized by police may also be given.

The latter is the stuff that must be watched particularly closely for ill effects, for it is often mixed with heroin, strychnine and other samples of dubious origin.

A question that must also be asked is, will the scientists be quarantined during the period of experimentation? Those with children of tender age, not to mention in the teens, likely would have to be kept isolated, for obvious reasons. And what would wives think of their husband coming home high on the stuff? And who is going to smoke it — better perhaps that they draw lots lest some get killed in the rush!

More Jobs

Industrial Commission president Gerald Joyce's announcement of an increase of 367 jobs in local industry in the past seven months is an encouraging trend — one which actually has been under way for some time. In fact more than 300 jobs had already been provided in this category between November 1967 and April of this year, making nearly 700 in all. This, together with the new industries being established in the city, is eloquent of Belleville's increasing commercial status.

The Second and Probably Last Moratorium

What Course Will the Peace Movement Take Now?

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — The second Vietnam Moratorium came and went, generally peacefully, leaving in its wake a few piles of rubble, no serious injuries and many soul-searching questions for its organizers.

The general consensus is that it was the biggest, the best and probably the last. The big question: Where does the anti-war protest movement go from here.

Moratorium organizers estimate 800,000 took part in the weekend demonstration. Government officials, who had 9,000 soldiers standing by, believe 250,000 would be more accurate.

Whatever the number, it was the biggest public protest ever in this capital city. If it could not convince the government that it can't safely continue the war, then no amount of marching will change its mind.

The demonstrators were a diverse group, including the Crazies, the Mad Dogs, the Weathermen and Weathermoon, Trotskyites, troubled liberals, worried draftables, rock lovers, drifters and confusme dwellers.

They came in buses, by hitchhiking, automobile pools, trains and planes and they marched, carrying candles and mostly silent and policed by some 2,500 parade marshals chosen from their own ranks.

Only a few sought violence. While their attempts to reach the Pentagon and the South Vietnamese embassy brought plentiful tear gas, they did not provoke the head-knocking retaliation they expected from the police.

"I think the extremists were surprised when we didn't break ranks and chase them," said a spokesman for the police anti-riot division. "Those parade marshals tried real hard. I'm sorry some of them got caught in the gas."

The box score was 76 stores with broken windows Friday and Saturday nights and one case of looting. About 158 demonstrators were arrested, mostly on disorderly conduct charges.

The soul-searching came later when the various factions got together to assess the impact of the demonstration and discuss the future course of the anti-war protests.

While the White House was quick to dismiss the protests, claiming they would have no effect on foreign policy and provided opportunities for widespread violence, Moratorium organizers thought differently.

"Whether the Nixon administration acknowledges it or not," said co-chairman Cora Weiss of the New Mobilization, "we have proven something to the government and the nation."

"We don't have to prove it again," she said when asked whether more mass marches lay in the future. She indicated the New Mobilization is considering new forms of protest, probably of a local nature in many communities.

Throughout the city, other groups met for the same purpose because, as one woman put it, the movement cannot let down all those people who came to Washington to demonstrate.

Students for a Democratic Society discussed whether the group should adopt a "national line" and attempt to expand student strike regulations into the general labor movement.

No conclusions were reached, but it was generally conceded that the American workers, one of every nine employed directly or indirectly by the military machine, would not join the protest movement.

Another meeting discussed formation of a new national political party, but they couldn't agree on the name or what its political philosophy should be.

One thing was evident. The unity of radicals, revolutionaries, reformers, liberals and moderates that was demonstrated Friday and Saturday was no longer evident Sunday and Monday.

Most of the radicals would agree that peace as a political issue can be a decisive force, but it would require a national leader and a national platform or purpose if it ever hoped to elect or impose a president.

"But dear, I definitely feel a cold coming on - - -"

Bridge Street United Church will mark another milestone in the 124th anniversary, on Sunday. Special services of music have been arranged for the day and the Rev. D. Trevor Davies of Toronto, well-known throughout Canada as a preacher, will be the special preacher for the day.

The annual collection and repair of broken toys by members of the Belleville Fire Department during the few weeks prior to the Christmas holidays, will not be undertaken this year, Fire Chief William Lynch announced. With various organizations of the city devoting their efforts to work of a war-time nature, it was felt by the members of the department that it should fall in line.

"The two oldest stone houses in Belleville are one on Dundas St. near the residence of Alfred Gilles, at the foot of William St. and the other one is on the bay shore near the School for the Deaf and is owned by Col. Ponton. The historic first brick house in Canada was on Meyers' Hill here; it disappeared some years ago. Trenton in the early days was called The Trent." Letters from Scotland shown by Col. The first of the two Northwest rebellions of the Metis under Louis Riel broke out 100 years ago today. The Metis, who were the hunters, boatmen and carters of the Red River in Rupert's Land, were alarmed at the possibility of a rush of Canadian immigrants into the area when the Hudson's Bay Co. handed over jurisdiction to the government of Canada. The subsequent uprising brought about the creation of Manitoba.

Spies and Refugees

BONN—More than 100 Communist agents have defected to west Germany since 1958, according to a report by Bonn's Ministry of Interior. The report also reveals that west Germany continues to be a prime target of east European espionage.

Eighty percent of the Red spies are working for Communist east Germany, the report says. Last year, it discloses, 85 Eastern agents were sentenced in the country because of their espionage activities.

BERLIN — Communist east Germany continues to dish out punishments practically wholesale for so - called political crimes, according to a new study by West Berlin's Investigative Commission of Free Lawyers.

Since the Berlin Wall was put up by the Reds Aug. 13, 1961, 10,000 east Germans have been arrested for "political wrongdoing" and 8,569 were found guilty and sentenced.

The key crime was attempting to flee to the West. Of all sentences, 3,851 fell into that category — 4,874 of them for actually trying to flee, 977 for giving assistance to would-be refugees.

According to the West Berlin group's figures, capital punishment was ordered in five of the political crime cases and 39 ended with life imprisonment sentences. Another 261 ordered jail terms of between 10-15 years.

The group was unable to determine what sentences were served up in 1,500 of the cases.

Art and the Stock Market

German Features

VILLIP — An enterprising German university student has hit on an idea that could revolutionize speculation in works of art. Bodo Schroeder, a student of advertising science, is selling shares for paintings. The system transforms the traditional, individual ownership right to a corporate type of possession with shares provided for an art work determining the value of the shares.

The only misgivings involved at present, of course, are ones put up for sale by Schroeder at an old mill where he has a specially sponsored art gallery here. Villip is just on the outskirts of Bonn, the capital.

Schroeder has devised a complex system for determining the rights of shareholders to whom a particular art work belongs. Each of the shares initially costs 12½ dollars.

Much of the money that is take in via special stock market sales the gallery keeps as the modernists that was demonstrated Friday and Saturday was no longer evident Sunday and Monday.

Most of the radicals would agree that peace as a political issue can be a decisive force, but it would require a national leader and a national platform or purpose if it ever hoped to elect or impose a president.

Sportsmen and exhibitionists attended in droves. The festivities lasted six days, during which visitors from all over Europe in addition to several American observers. It was, by all accounts, a panting success.

There were 55 stands manned by some 200 producers of what the Victorians used to call, coyly, curious — stag films, books, magazines, fetishy postcards, erotic jewellery, aphrodisiacs — all the perverse paraphernalia of the sexually jaded. Also on display and tried to buck the trend by selling chastity belts.

It was all good, dirty fun, Danish style, although a few ingrates raised their repressed heads decrying the official abolition of all censorship earlier this year. The police seized a movie (one of many being shown) depicting sexual intercourse. The films, they reported, was in living color (bright blue) and accompanied by sound effects. Like heavy breathing?

Obscene or not obscene: that is the question.

Not to Mention Down on the Farm

Advantages of Life in the Smaller Centres

Shawn Herron in the Winnipeg Free Press

What, after all, do you lose by living in a small city with an easily accessible hinterland? When Professor John P. Wyatt made his a study of the air breathed in Winnipeg and St. Louis he found, I believe, that smokers in Winnipeg had less lung debris than non-smokers in St. Louis. He found the incidence of lung ailments massively higher in St. Louis than in Winnipeg. In an age of environmental pollution that in two years will in some areas have reached disaster levels, the notion that life is safer, cleaner, even possible, in small cities with the prospect only of secondary industries is a substantial attraction at least to those who want to live, and who hope for an environment in which their children may survive.

What, after all, do you lose by living in small towns? Noise, fumes, the alienation of the crowd, public disorders, syndthetic excitement, loneliness and unnatural separation from a natural environment which we recognize more and more as a necessary element in a healthy social or personal life?

There are no real cultural disadvantages. Most people even in large cities never go to a theatre anyway, but it happens that the best theatre in Canada is not in its largest cities. As much theatre as large city people have available to them is available to small towns and countrymen through provincial tours; as a much entertainment as most large city people care to take advantage of is available to almost everybody is an immense country like Canada through television and radio.

What, after all, do you lose by living on a farm? A great deal, it was once supposed. But at a moment in time when the quality of life has become so important that it is important enough to provide the British Labor party with an election slogan, what you lose may be a lot less obvious than it recently appeared. A week in an Irish cottage with a thatched roof, who not long ago did her cooking over an open turf fire but does it now on a small electric cooker, told me this summer that she had the same facilities as city people and "a damn sight" better life."

Her better life had no phone "what do I need a phone for?" It had clean air, green fields, neighbors to talk to with, time to talk and things to talk about, and now and then she saw television and didn't need it because she could hear all than "them ones I see on it."

On the farm in North America, of course, we are not so deprived, but what is not there that is fundamental to a good life? Not education for our children, not transport, not news and entertainment, not neighbors, not things to talk about and not time to talk. Isn't there a time in life — twice in life in fact — when working for a living matters less and less and living while you work becomes the only thing that matters?

Stray, Lost Hunting Dogs Find Temporary Refuge Here

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The 1969 deer-hunting season is raising some hefty echoes around the Ontario Humane Society's Quinte animal shelter.

Currently contemplating confinement while comfortably awaiting collection by hunters are more than a score of dogs who once romped out in search of the 1969 deer herds.

The dogs are this year's tail-end of an annual motley group — strayed hounds and trackers who never return to hunting camp.

Each season the department of lands and forests gathers a small legion of lost or stray dogs at pounds strategically located in Quinte district hunting grounds.

When the temporary pounds come down, unreclaimed pets are despatched to the OHS building on Wallbridge Road.

The current crop of strays was herded to Belleville yesterday by wardens from shelters at Gunter, Millbridge and Deloro.

OHS officials say owners reclaiming the dogs will be charged only the cost of board.

The strays are the last tangible signs of a season of chagrin for many hunters.

Poor weather was a prime factor.

Lands and forests officials estimate the hunting force was 20,000 - 22,000 and the kill at probably 2,500 deer.

For the hunters this was a success ratio of 15-16 per cent — compared with 20-25 per cent in normal seasons.

Deer herds in Quinte forests now are reaping the benefit of winter feeding programs and are down in numbers, say game wardens. Some 30 per cent of the kill was fawns — indicating a "healthy herd condition."

But persistent rains discouraged hunting efforts, with hunters spending more time in camp.

Bad weather also reduced the number of marksmen making one-day ventures into the bush.

Tail End of the Season

Deer-hunting season is finished for another year in the Quinte district — its passing noted once again by string of strayed dogs. Ontario Humane Society agent Howard Gardiner and kennel man Earl Wager here shepherd lost pets toward Belleville animal shelter.

David Disputes Soden's Facts

Alderman Enos David, target of some strong criticism Monday night from Alderman Kenneth Soden as the alderman announced his retirement from municipal politics, claimed today that Ald. Soden was not entirely factual.

"Contrary to what Alderman Soden claims I have not been a member of city council since 1957," said Ald. David. "I have been a member of council only since 1962."

Ald. David said he was on council in 1955 and 1956, but was away from city hall until re-elected in 1963.

"I thought we discussed issues at city council — not personalities," said the alderman in retaliation to Ald. Soden's attack.

"I agree new blood is needed in council, but experience is also required."

Oshawa Fair Competition

Hastings 4-H Members Clean Up

Hastings County 4-H members are handy people with a rope.

Club leaders were Malcolm Sharp and John Murray.

Approximately 40 Hastings club members competed at the fair in field crop competition and in the calf club championship show, in which 25 Hastings boys and girls were represented.

Neil Reavie, RR1, Flinton, won the reserve championship as beef showman and was also in the four member team which finished in A group.

Sixteen county calves finished in B group and 15 calves in C group.

Robert Jarrell, RR4, Belleville, was first place in the junior hay exhibit; David Wannamaker of Eldorado finished third in oats; and Paul Hickey of Bird's Creek, and Neil Reavie finished second and third respectively in the potato competition.

Tips for Camera Fans Taking Moon Photos

Mount your camera on a tripod, adjust the TV for the best contrast possible and turn off the lights in the room. Use no flash bulbs or strobes.

For color photos, use color negative such as Kodacolor X at 1-30th of a second at f 2.8 or f 2. For slides, set your camera at 1-30th of a second at f 4.

For best results use a camera with a compur shutter—one that expands and contracts like the pupil of your eye. This helps eliminate a "bar effect" produced by most focal plane shutters.

If you have only a focal plane shutter camera, hold the camera vertically. This will reduce the possibility of a "bar effect." Most 35-millimetre cameras have focal plane shutters.

STAMPS PAID WAY

Resettlement of the South Atlantic isle of Tristan da Cunha in 1963, 18 months after a volcanic eruption forced the evacuation of the 264 inhabitants, was financed by the sale of postage stamps commemorating the return of the exiles.

Consumer Groups Criticized

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Consumer protection groups were described Tuesday as vigilante groups which can hurt the free enterprise system because their adherents often are misinformed.

John Foster, a Toronto management consultant, also told a meeting of the Peterborough Sales and Ad Club that government scrutiny of business should not take on the appearance of "a hanging party."

He said consumers' groups can help to set new standards for product quality and truthful advertising but "they are also attempting to act like vigilante groups."

These groups fail to see that advertising is necessary in a competitive society because it forces manufacturers to improve their products.

EARLY COMMERCE

The first commercial development of the apple in Canada took place in Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley, as a result of the efforts of the early New England settlers who came there in 1760.

Scarf Accessory Popular in Fashion Scene This Year

By NANCY BARRIAGE
Women's Reporter

Contrary to popular belief, it doesn't necessarily take money in order to dress fashionably these days. With a few accessories and a few ideas the smart girl can dress in step with the leading pace setters.

Accessories are the thing in fashion this year. They can add the finishing touch to an ensemble, dress an outfit up or play it down. Popular are the scarves, which can be worn in a variety of interesting ways.

They have always added a little something to each outfit with which they are worn. If you desire the flair, square knot a scarf folded in straight style. Then fling one scarf end back and the other one forward or flair the ends below one shoulder to enhance your neckline.

For the six-footer scarf a gracious effect is to drape one end of it in front over one shoulder and flair the other end over and behind.

The hipster scarf is not to be worn below the hemline. Here the bias tie or double point square (at least 32 inches) is used. Start the knot with one tail longer than the other. Make two loops with the first, holding and centring the first loop while making the second. Bring the first across and around, behind loops, then between fold and loops.

"Tie Me" scarves in colored cottons or silks are worn with long beads, gold and silver with a ring bar. Also popular on the fashion scene are cravats worn with tailored shirts following the unisex theme. Some of them are crepe and silk fringed and can be worn also as hats.

The Intelligencer interviewed Hazel Smith of Woodley's Millinery and Accessory Department. She commented on the focus of fashion evident this year. The square world of scarves has changed. She noted that "there is a renewal of the Victorian stock and cravats, the adoption of obis and cummerbunds, larger scarves, longer oblongs and lots more imagination."

"Part of the accessory scene most definitely is the hat which is essential because the elegant look is coming back," commented Miss Smith. Hats made of fur and wool are a must, the bigger-the-better. For the informal look wool and mohair scarves with matching hats are very popular, especially with the younger generation. A wide assortment of colorful, beautifully knitted matching sets can be found in most of the women's wear stores in Belleville.

The old saying that clothes make the man or woman may not be true but one fact can not be overlooked - the woman who knows how to dress will be wearing accessories this year, and lots of them.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN PATTERSON

Patterson – Carruthers

Christ Church, Belleville was the scene of the recent marriage of Deborah Doris Carruthers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Carruthers, Belleville to John Bruce Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Patterson, Hamilton. Officiating at the ceremony was Ven. Archdeacon J. Creggan.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street length dress of imported silk in hues of gold featuring a fitted bodice with wide collar of gold beading and tiny seed pearls. She wore a garland of sweetheart roses in her hair and carried a matching nosegay of roses and white button 'mums.

Best man was William McGrath, Collingwood.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Pamela Carruthers, also a sister of the bride.

The bridegroom's mother wore an imported silk sheath of pale green with a cummerbund of tiny seed pearls and gold beading and matching accessories. Her corsage was white sweetheart roses and green statis.

For the wedding trip to points west the bride chose a winter - weight suit of fine wool in a stunning shade of olive green. The petite length coat was in the Napoleon style with a high double collar and the matching dress was a sleeveless A-line with a jewel neckline.

The couple will reside at 563 Oxford St. E. London, Ontario.

BRANCH 99 AUXILIARY

Initiation was conducted by president Edna Semark. Escorted by the color party Mrs. Edith Sylvester and Mrs. Nordi Armstrong were welcomed into membership of the Auxiliary.

An application was received from Mrs. Muriel Pafford and an invitation sent for the December meeting.

Toys have been purchased for the Children's' Christmas Party and members are asked to send in names of 10-year-olds and younger. The date will be announced in a few days.

Beautifully dressed dolls by the members were brought to the meeting, these are for the underprivileged children of Belleville. A donation was also made to the Canadian Mental Association to help provide a little sunshine for these people, many completely without families.

Several members of the Auxiliary were guests of the Men's Branch at the Armistice banquet and enjoyed an evening of comradeship.

President Semark has several more catering dates, November 20 and 29, Dec. 5 and 6.

Comrade Semark was also the winner of the evening's draw. Next meeting will be the election of officers after which there will be an exchange of Christmas gifts and a special lunch. Every member is asked to attend to make this a successful election.

The evening ended with a lunch and social time.

Requests for 1) cookies without butter or shortening and 2) how to use "instant" flour came in the same mail. I was able to put them into my Christmas baking program and here they are and very good too — especially the new light shortbread.

1 cup granulated sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1¼ cups sifted all - purpose flour
1½ tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup sultana raisins
1 cup mixed fruit-cake-fruits
½ cup red glace cherries, quartered

In beater bowl beat eggs, sugar and vanilla until light. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt and add to egg mixture and beat on low until blended. Remove beaters and stir in nuts and fruits. Turn into two 8 x 8" pans lined with buttered foil. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. about 25-30 min. Cool. Cut into bars with very sharp knife. Freeze well wrapped- if to be stored for more than three days.

NEW LIGHT SHORTBREAD
Highly Recommended

½ cup sifted icing sugar
1 cup butter (room temperature; no substitute)
1¼ cups unsifted instant flour (no substitute)

Into beater bowl measure the icing sugar and butter and beat two min. on low. Pour in "instant" flour and beat one min., scraping down sides with rubber spatula at halftime.

With hands shape into one inch diameter balls and place two inches apart on two ungreased cookie sheets. Into each ball on one pan I pressed a whole unblanched almond. On the balls on the other pan I pressed my thumb deeply into centre to make depression. (When served this depression is filled with ½ tsp. red strawberry or raspberry jam or red current jelly.) Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 10-12 min., but watch them—they should not brown at all. Store in single layers, separated with wax paper, in cool place. Crisp and light the "best yet" shortbread.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Jack: "I wouldn't mind going to the party with a gang of boys, but my mother says I have to get a date. I don't know any girl who would date me."

Younger teen-agers should not be pressed into early dating just because parents want them to be popular. Actually solo dating can be a burden to shy 13-year-olds, whose social life should revolve around school activities and informal gatherings.

Mother: "Why don't you just invite your classmates to have hamburgers after the game and not try to pair everyone off at a party. Most junior high boys aren't really interested in dating but they would have fun in a crowd."

Successful Living

Has Guilt Feelings About Aged Mother

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Here I am a grandmother, 58. I have always been a worrier and nervous, but managed to live a fairly normal life. My mother is my problem.

She was very ill and I nursed her here at home for several months. Finally she got so ill and I was so run down we had to put her in a private nursing home.

Now she has improved, is 86 years old, and looks much younger. I have feelings of guilt about leaving her there. Yet I could never go through another terrible session like when I had her here before, and it wouldn't be fair to my husband.

My mother is a dear little soul, but everyone tells me she has ruled me all my life and inside me I know it's true. All the doctors do for me is give me sleeping pills and tranquillizers. — All Nerves

Dear All Nerves: If your mother has been used to your self-sacrificing devotion, she is probably unable to your feelings of guilt with hints that she wants to move back to your place. Am I right?

Obviously the nursing home is treating her well. They have the energy and facilities to wait on her, to prescribe the nourishment she needs and to watch over her. Your guilt feelings might be even worse if she were to come home with you and get sick again.

A group like Recovery Incorporated could help you to live with your thoughts, and to begin to see that you and your husband have a right to some peace and pleasure. I'm sending you the address.

* * *

Dear Doris: Our daughter is a teacher and is all right with children, but her social life is nil. She chickens out when it comes to doing things on her own. When a party is coming up, she seems more tired than usual, and will often go to bed to avoid visiting with friends.

How can we as parents help her, when she balks at all suggestions? I hate to go out in an evening when she is home, as I can see the hurt in her eyes. — Puzzled Mother

Dear Mother: She can't sleep her life away. And the more she withdraws from being with people, the harder it is going to be to snap out of it.

There is bound to be a way of reaching her. What are her special interests? If she has a single enthusiasm, build on this.

Learning to associate with people is a part of life. She must be helped to see this, and if there is a club or craft group which needs her help, such an association could gradually pull her out of her shell.

Ann Landers

Ann Apologizes To Honest Repairmen

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The wet noodle won't do for this one. You deserve ten lashes with a greasy shop rag.

I am an independent garage owner and we do a lot of car repair work. Your suggestion that a customer stands less of a chance of getting gypped if he will take his car to the dealer was a slur against all the honest repair people who work very hard — and there are a lot of us.

I've spent many an evening repairing a vehicle for someone who had to travel the next day. Last night I worked until midnight to accommodate a customer who needed his car to make a living. And speaking of getting stuck — I've never kited a bill in my life, but a lot of people have stuck me.

I think you owe us honest repairmen an apology, and it ought to appear in the newspaper and not just in a personal letter to me. — JOE R.

DEAR JOE: I think so, too. Here it is — in the newspaper. I apologize to all the honest repairmen everywhere. And if there are any women in the field, I apologize to them, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you are busy so I'll make it snappy. We have five children. Our oldest son is married to a lovely girl who, unfortunately, does not get along with one of our daughters. These two are like fire and brimstone.

Our youngest son will be coming home from Boot camp soon. I want to have a family dinner. If I ask my daughter-in-law, I'm afraid my daughter will not come. If I ask my daughter, I'm afraid my daughter-in-law will not come. If I ask them both, I'm afraid neither of them will come.

There's an outside chance they both might come and that would be the worst thing of all. I'd be on needles and pins all night.

Tell me what to do. — MAMA-IN-THE-MIDDLE.

DEAR MAMA: Rise above the battle and invite them both. If one or the other chooses to stay away — fine. You did the right thing by inviting them. If they both come and behave badly, the reflection is on them, not you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a complaint from a group you can call "The Omitted Ones." What do you think of clods who invite half the town's population to a dry wedding reception? By "dry" I mean fruit punch and coffee and cookies. The "Sunday school picnic" ended at 5:30 then a select few — about 50 — were invited to a cocktail party where the real stuff was poured. If this isn't discrimination and social injustice, what does call it? We'd appreciate it if you'd respond in strong language. — THREE OUTCASTS FROM DRY GULCH.

DEAR OUTCASTS: If it's strong language you want, I just happen to have some handy. Your indignation at not having been invited to soak up the free booze gets me right here. I've seen your kind — perpetual free-loaders with hollow legs and sponges for toes. No doubt the hostess knew what she was doing when she invited you for fruit punch and cookies. It's a wise hostess who knows who can be trusted around an open bar.

Church of Redeemer Has 100th Anniversary

DESERONTO — The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer, Deseronto, last Sunday gathered to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the church and to mark its re-dedication. Guest speaker for the afternoon service which filled the church was Rev. Max Putnam, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Kingston. The theme of his sermon was "The Vital Mark of a Church".

The Church of the Redeemer has been gradually restored in past months through the efforts of its minister, Rev. Robert Jones, and an enthusiastic, and devoted congregation. Money for necessary repairs was raised through projects such as the Deseronto to Picton walkathon organized last spring. Christians "on the march" succeeded in earning about $2,100 toward restoration of the stone church with this project. Letters were mailed out urging support for the Deseronto church.

When the doors of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer were opened on Sunday the results of several months of patient work greeted the congregation. The sanctuary has been carpeted, the organ repaired and the pews refinished. On the outside numerous repairs have been made, including the removal of a crumbling church steeple and the addition of a new roof to part of the building.

The church was rededicated during Sunday's service by Rev. Douglas Wilson, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton. Delivering his sermon to the congregation, guest speaker, Rev. Putnam emphasized the rededication with the question: "Where do we go from here?" He stressed the need for the church to reach out to serve community needs and provide daily service for the children in the congregation.

Organist for the anniversary service was Frank K. Martin, organist and choir director of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. Bruce Parsons also played during the hour of worship and rededication.

Sunday's congregation was a special one with many out-of-town visitors joining the regular members for the Church of the Redeemer's 100th anniversary. Among those attending were Clarke Rollins, MP, Lee Grills MPP, and worshippers from Trenton, Picton, Gananoque, Vancouver and Toronto.

Women Prisoners Face Difficult Adjustment

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Once a woman is released from a prison she faces difficult problems of adjustment if she is to stay out. At the Kingston prison for women, increased use is being made of pre-release and parole systems and of after-care agencies to help former inmates make the adjustment.

The pre-release system allows women to go out to work during the day and return to the prison at night.

The more familiar system, parole, allows a former inmate to serve part of her "time" living and working in the community, but under supervision of a parole officer.

Parole is credited by C. A. M. Edwards, regional representative of the National Parole Service in Kingston, with cutting the rate of return to prison of inmates by 50 or 60 per cent. Mr. Edwards says about 10 per cent of paroled inmates, male and female, return to prison, compared with about 60 to 70 per cent of those who have served their terms with the usual reduction for good behavior.

The prisoner must apply for parole. She must say why she thinks she deserves it, what her plans are and who would be willing to help her when she gets out.

Some prisoners will not apply for parole because to them it means serving a whole sentence instead of gaining time for good behavior.

Prisoners who do behave well normally get some time cut from their sentences. Many prefer to serve their time in prison and get out a few months early completely free. Parole lasts for the duration of the sentence and is a sense cancels out an earned remission.

The parole legislation has been amended to change that. Section 18B provides that an inmate to whom parole is not granted, and who is released prior to the expiration of his or her sentence as a result of earned remission, will be subject to mandatory supervision for the duration of the remission if it is longer than 60 days. The section has not yet been enforced.

Mr. Edwards says he expects that in two years no inmate will be released "cold" into the community. He says it will take that much time to build enough parole staff to carry out so extensive a program.

Day parole is described by Mr. Edwards as another stepping stone to full release. It works like pre-release, allowing prisoners into the community during the day. It is under the jurisdiction of the parole service. Pre-release is under the jurisdiction of the penitentiary service.

The Elizabeth Fry Society in Kingston has considered setting up a "half-way house" for released prisoners and some on pre-release or parole, but the number of women who might make use of it is considered too small. Now the society is thinking of providing an apartment for a year to see how the idea works out.

Several volunteer groups are concerned with the welfare and after-care of women prisoners. Elizabeth Fry, the largest and oldest, has a semi-official status in the prison system and receives government grants to help carry out its programs. In 1968 the society received $9,000.

Street Haven and local church groups help in more informal ways. They befriend people in prison and try to help them when they are released.

The group is an offshoot of Street Haven in Toronto, formed in 1965 to help women, not necessarily former prisoners, who have trouble with drugs or drink, sex or the law.

Don MacDonnell, a social worker at the prison, says he has doubts about all volunteer workers. He says a woman is not sent to Kingston just for "hustling or shoplifting." She must have committed a fairly serious crime. He says many of the prisoners are tough and have had hard, poverty-ridden lives.

Besides, he says, many of them do not want to get away from the prison, out on the street again. Many of them have lived in institutions all their lives, and are used to the security and life style these provide. They have no home or friends to return to.

He says they may be right back a few months after they are released.

Tomorrow: Prisoners now given more time to adjust to life in outside world.

Know Your Apples

Ontario McIntosh
Happy "Macs" are round and rosy; crisp and juicy; refreshingly tart in flavour, it is the all-Canadian snack apple.

Ontario Cortland
Similar to McIntosh but larger, flatter, redder. Stays white longer when sliced; excellent for salads and eating. Also a quick cooking and baking apple.

Ontario Northern Spy
Variegated green and red, all-purpose apple. Especially good for pies and other baked desserts. A crunchy, munching apple, too.

Ontario Red Delicious

Bite into a crisp, juicy Ontario apple today. The new crops are in — fresh from the orchard! There are many varieties, each with its own characteristic colour, flavour and texture. All of them are delicious and nutritious.

A few tips: Choose firm, unblemished apples and refrigerate them. Warm temperatures cause apples to lose their flavour and crispness.

For quick peeling, dip apples in and out of boiling water.

To keep peeled apples white, place slices in cold water and add a punch of salt for each whole apple sliced.

If your apple pie leaks in oven, sprinkle salt on juice while hot and it will remove more easily.

Indians in Guatemala

Indians, who constitute about half the population of Guatemala, are descendants of ancient Mayas. They present a special problem for development-minded officialdom because many show no wish to abandon their culture, language, and way of life, and learn Spanish, grow more crops than they require or enter the money economy. Above, women in a village near Guatemala City weave intricate patterns, each community using distinctive patterns for shawls and other clothes. (CP Photo)

Opposition Critics Denounce Government Farm Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition mounted a scathing attack on government farm policies Tuesday in a day-long Commons debate following an announcement of spending and staff cuts in the agriculture department.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said he was "seriously disturbed at the flippant attitude" of Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson in making the announcement.

The Conservative motion charged the government with trying to balance the budget for political reasons without regard for farmers. The NDP motion said the government has failed to provide farmers with additional cash income.

Mr. Olson said the new reductions would include program-adjustments, reductions in purchases of equipment, less travel and ceilings on federal-provincial cost-sharing programs. He did not indicate the extent of staff cuts.

There would be increased fees for some services the department provides farmers.

The greatest saving would come from a $10,000,000 reduction in the dairy support program to $115,000,000 from $125,000,000, Mr. Olson said.

The measures would take effect in 1970-71 after further consultation with the provinces and farm groups.

Mr. Stanfield said the government is using "the questionable excuse" of the need for further discussions to delay making a full policy statement on agriculture.

It was the first "opposition day" of the new session and the Conservatives chose agriculture as the subject for debate.

Alf Gleave, NDP farm critic, said the grain marketing crisis is being aggravated by numerous unsolved problems in distribution and handling. He said government was cutting back in the services it gives to the people who depend most on government help.

Today, the Commons debates on second reading a bill to establish a corporation to manage all national parks.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert), former prime minister, said the farm situation has deteriorated so much there is widespread talk of secession on the Prairies.

Harold Danforth (Kent-Essex), Conservative agriculture spokesman, said the government is preoccupied with balancing the budget for political reasons and has ignored the effects this will have on farmers.

He said the government is treating the small farmer—one earning under $2,500 a year—as if he had no right to be on the farm.

Inflation was forcing this type of farmer to take part-time jobs in the city where there was a high degree of unemployment.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio responsible for the wheat board, said there has been progress in stabilizing world wheat prices and he was confident "any move in the future will be in an upward direction."

Advance cash payments to farmers for wheat, still stored on their farms has amounted to $277,000,000 so far this year, he said, and payments are being made at the rate of $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 a week.

But the real problem facing wheat farmers and the government was world over-production. World wheat production totalled 10,000,000,000 bushels in each of the last four years, compared with an average of 8,800,000,000 in each of the previous four years.

As many countries had become more self-sufficient world wheat trade had dropped,

Young Canadian Leader Admits Terrorist Background

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Renaud, No. 1 man for the Company of Young Canadians in Montreal, told a Commons committee Tuesday he and two other CYC workers were former terrorists.

Mr. Renaud, 25, answering all questions without any apparent equivocation, said he and the others adhere to CYC principles and objectives which preclude violence.

He also told the committee that:

—CYC volunteer Francois Bachand, arrested during the riotous McGill University march last spring, has quit the company and is now in Cuba.

—Raymonde Laurin, who an MP said spent 10 weeks at the trial of Charles Gagnon, charged with sedition and terrorism, quit the CYC last month.

—The printing press from which Montreal police allegedly seized a recipe for making Molotov cocktails, which are homemade bombs, was in quarters lived in by several volunteers.

Mr. Renaud joined the CYC in 1967 after spending a suspended sentence studying social sciences at the University of Montreal. He had been convicted of helping hatch a Front de Liberation Quebecois robbery. The FLQ is a terrorist group.

He became co-ordinator in charge of the 70 CYC volunteers in Quebec in September, a few weeks before Montreal Executive Committee Chairman Lucien Saulnier touched off the Commons inquiry with allegations of subversive activity in the CYC.

Mr. Saulnier is expected to testify next week. He has said police can provide documented evidence of subversive activity.

Mr. Renaud said police seized CYC documents in raids the day after Mr. Saulnier made his allegations. He said city police, provincial police and Mounties have dogged CYC workers.

He denied that Quebec volunteers have instigated unrest in classical colleges, compiled "scab" lists for unions, or told strikers to occupy plants.

He said the CYC has been involved in rent strikes, helped poor people out of credit jams, aided a St. Jerome movement to defeat the mayor in recent elections, and taken part in demonstrations.

He said political conflict is a natural result of the social and economic conditions the CYC is trying to improve.

Mr. Renaud is expected to appear again Thursday.

Poverty Committee Only Scratching at Surface

WINNIPEG (CP) — The senate committee on poverty has learned so far in its public hearings that it has only been "scratching at the surface of the problem," says chairman Senator David Croll of Ontario.

In an interview before the committee headed for more hearings today in Vancouver, Senator Croll said "we really haven't got down to the people yet."

He said the committee has found it "very difficult to reach the poor, because "privacy is the most prized possession."

The senator said it is not easy to get across to the poverty-stricken that "we're breaking our backs to find solutions—they don't trust us as much as they once did."

The committee was impressed, however, with briefs presented during the Winnipeg hearings which were backed up by presentations of persons "who bared their souls."

Senator Croll said the committee has discovered that it likely will not receive briefs from what he termed "the working poor," which he described as the largest group riddled by poverty.

But a development the committee found after the Winnipeg hearings was that the poor are becoming organized — particularly the women—and are presenting briefs representing many persons.

Asked whether he thought organization of poor people would ultimately bring them benefits, he replied:

"You bet—let people know what's wrong morning, noon and night. Shout it from the mountain tops."

New Laws Said Needed For LSD-Induced Crime

TORONTO (CP) — New legislation is required for court cases in which the defence was under the influence of a hallucinatory drug such as LSD during the crime, says a report prepared for the Canadian Mental Health Association.

The report, released Tuesday, delves into both the medical and legal aspects of hallucinatory drugs and explores their effects on criminal responsibility.

It was prepared for the association by psychiatrist Lionel Solursh, a drug expert at Toronto Western Hospital, and his brother John, a Toronto lawyer.

When dealing with drug- or alcohol-related crimes, the courts have usually held that a necessary element of the crime is specific intent. Intent has been established by proving that the accused took the hallucinating substance voluntarily, it says.

And since the accused would know the effect of the drug or alcohol, he was responsible for crimes he committed afterwards.

Although there may be valid policy reasons for this approach, it is possible that the courts may be forced to go around the basic elements of criminal responsibility in order to get a conviction, it says.

"Undoubtedly new legislation is required which will neither convict those whose actions lack the traditional elements of criminal responsibility nor free into a defenceless society without care and supervision those people (such as addicts) who require help. . . ."

Dr. Solursh, whose practice is made up mostly of adolescents and young adults, has seen up to 500 bad trips or "freak outs."

Dr. Solursh says the effects of the drug vary by mood, expectations, personality, dose, and setting.

Rising Health Costs Require New Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — More efficient use of manpower and facilities is the best way to limit the rising costs of health care, says Federal Health Minister John Munro.

He will have an opportunity Nov. 25 and 26 of trying to convince his provincial government counterparts, who assemble here to examine reports of seven costs studies they established a year ago.

Seventy per cent of the current cost of health services represents salaries, wages and fees. But Mr. Munro has said he believes cost cutting should avoid making savings at the expense of health care personnel.

In the field of manpower use he sees plenty of evidence that savings can be made. A three-day conference here last month of top health care professionals added their voices to evidence of this turned up by the federal-provincial studies.

In a recent speech, Mr. Munro argued that modern resources of cost efficiency and manpower utilization have not been brought fully to bear in the health care system.

Similar viewpoints were expressed at the October manpower conference, including criticism by one study group chairman, Dr. J. D. Wallace of Toronto General Hospital, of administrators and educationists for failing to see evidence of poor management practices as the cause of uncontrolled costs.

Mr. Munro is critical of practices such as nurses being used for multiple duties that have no real relationship to their training in care of the sick. A nurse employed in the field where she can spot illness and problems before they become serious could reduce the pressure on hospital beds and expensive treatment.

He sounded a note of urgency by saying he wants "to come to grips with this problem before adverse popular reaction forces us to slash health costs and impair our services."

The magnitude of the problem he illustrated by forecasting total costs within three years of $6,200,000,000 compared with $3,700,000,000 in 1967 and $1,700,000,000 in 1957.

Rose Kennedy Watches Death Again Come to Her Family

NEW YORK (AP) — The courageous matriarch of the Kennedy family watched her husband's life flicker to a close Tuesday. And once again the Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, it was a time of mourning.

For four days before his death, she took turns sitting by his bedside, comforted by the surviving members of the family she and Joe had raised together, knowing that the 55 years and one month they had been married were full and fervent years.

Looking subdued and sorrowful, she attended the 7 o'clock mass at St. Xavier's Tuesday morning, a daily custom which has led many to call her "the power and glory and the strength of that family."

Rose Kennedy's life has been threaded by more triumph and sorrow than most women could bear. And still, she stands straight and proud, looking younger than her 79 years, the creases of tragedy only lightly carved into her face.

Four of her nine children met violent deaths in the prime of their lives. A daughter turned out to be mentally retarded. Late in life, her husband suffered a crippling stroke. Then last summer, the reputation of her only surviving son was tarnished in a tragic automobile accident. And now, Joe is dead.

Yet despite these crushing losses and tragic blows, Rose Kennedy rarely acknowledges weariness, never defeat.

"I've had such a thrilling life," she has said. "And being a Catholic has been such a tremendous help. A strong belief is the most wonderful thing that can happen to you. The fact I've had one has given me a certain stability.

"But don't say I have fortitude. That sounds so sanctimonious."

After the assassination of her second son, John F. Kennedy, 35th president of the United States, she recalled previous sorrows.

"This is the third child I've lost. I've learned to be brave and put my faith in the will of God."

She demonstrated the same bravery when her third son, Robert F. Kennedy, was assassinated on June 6, 1968, while he was campaigning for the 1968 Democratic presidential nomination.

Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, daughter of John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald, U.S. congressman and mayor of Boston, was one of six children. She attended public high school in Dorchester, Mass., and attended a convent in Aachen, Germany.

She met her first ordeal when she and her husband, then ambassador to Great Britain, returned from London to discover their daughter, Rosemary, was mentally retarded. Then during the Second World War, her oldest child, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., a navy lieutenant and pilot, was killed when his plane exploded over the English Channel. That was the summer of 1944.

A month later, the husband of daughter Kathleen, the Marquess of Hartington, captain in the Coldstream Guards, died in action in France. They had been married only four months. Then Kathleen, whom her mother considered high-spirited and beautiful, died in a plane crash in the spring of 1948.

Seven from Liftlock City

Peterborough Mo-Hawks Do Their Fair Share

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

If you'd gone into the Memorial Arena certain evenings 15 winters ago, you'd have seen senior teams from Peterborough and Belleville embroiled in some of the keenest hockey battles imaginable.

If you'd gone into the Memorial Arena last night you'd have seen half a dozen Peterborough natives doing their part to make Belleville a senior hockey contender.

The transformation from the old wars of the Redmen and Petes and Eagles to the two-city co-op nature of today's Belleville Mo-Hawks began four winters ago when Senior A hockey was exhumed here after a post-McFarland funeral.

A Peterborough influence began to make itself felt with the addition to the Mo-Hawk roster of such names as Gary Darling, George Godson, and Greg Marchen.

Now, in the club's fourth season of operation, no less than seven of the 18 Mo-Hawks hail from the Liftlock City.

Godson, acknowledged as one of the best skaters in the eight-team OHA Senior A loop, is still with the locals. Now 23, the diminutive centre last year led the locals with 49 points, and was regarded to be an object of extreme interest for Barrie Flyers.

Godson's five goals and nine assists in the first 12 Mo-Hawk games this season tie him for the club point lead.

One of the most valuable Mo-Hawk acquisitions in the latter half of the 1968-69 season was Lorne O'Donnell. The 27-year-old left-winger is rated by coach Dave Jones as the Mo-Hawks' outstanding forechecking artist, and draws frequent penalty-killing duty.

Playing left wing on the Mo-Hawks' highest scoring forward line with Godson and Al Ferguson, O'Donnell has picked up six goals and seven assists in his first 12 games. Last year, O'Donnell signed with the locals after five years in the Eastern Hockey League and picked up 10 goals and eight assists in only 17 games.

Two new faces in the Mo-Hawk stacking unit this year are Billy Armour and Gary Dalliday, about as contrasting in style as possible.

Armour, 25, played junior A and B hockey in Peterborough before heading south for six winters with the Eastern League's Greensboro Generals.

Like George Godson, Armour rests a mean figure eight and has seen action on both forward and defence already this season. Good around the net, blood Bill has collected 13 points in the 12 Mo-Hawk games to date.

Actually Armour has played in the Memorial Arena before this OHA Senior A season. He won Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A most valuable player honors for his play with the ill-fated Belleville Quinte Merchants.

The 24-year-old played junior hockey in Peterborough, and also gives a good account of himself in softball and lacrosse. Greg—and club captain Ralph Plane are the Mo-Hawks' two-man police force, and already have logged 80 minutes in penalties between them this season in their efforts to keep the opposition honest.

A pleasant surprise for Mo-Hawk fans has been Lou Kazkowski, who, if he looks a trifle overweight, hasn't been playing like it.

Officially a native of Winnipeg, the 28-year-old Kazkowski has centred his life around Peterborough since coming east to play for the strong Junior A Petes of the late 1950s.

Lou has played with the American Hockey League's Cleveland Barons, Providence Reds, and Quebec Aces, and last winter gained first team all-star recognition as playing-coach with Toledo Blades of the International League.

Kazkowski's nine assists in 11 Mo-Hawks games attest to his ability as a puck-handling rearguard. Lou has been paired with veteran Lionel Bolly on the blue line.

Probably nobody outside coach Davey Jones knows the strengths and weaknesses of the Mo-Hawks better than goalie Steve Rexe. He has played behind some of the good — and worst — senior hockey players here.

"Suitcase," as he is dubbed for the many travels his hockey ability has earned him, came into Belleville an unheralded 19-year-old redheed three winters ago.

Rexe was one of the main reasons the Mo-Hawks gained a playoff berth that year, and showed flashes of former Belleville heroics Friday night when he earned the Mo-Hawks a scoreless tie by stopping 42 shots in Barrie.

Steve spent the last two seasons with the Canadian National team's Ottawa-based squad and his professional playing rights are owned by the National Hockey League's Pittsburgh Penguins.

On nights like last night, the Liftlock City brigade piles into their cars and head for Belleville for a practice session. It means not getting home before 1 a.m. or possibly later.

But such rewards as the Mo-Hawks' current five-game unbeaten streak somenow make it all worthwhile.

Some Buddy!

Belleville Mo-Hawk defenceman Greg Marchen doesn't let the fact that he and Gary Dalliday are Peterborough chums interfere with his job. Here Marchen blocks Dalliday out of the play while goalie Steve Rexe looks on. The three are among seven Peterborough residents now in the Mo-Hawk lineup.

Exactly 28 goals from tonight, the most famous hereford-breeder in the world will become only the third man ever to score 500 goals in the National Hockey League.

Yes, Bob Hull's back in Chicago, and tonight will make New York Rangers' goalie Ed Giacomin wish he was back home in Sudbury.

Giacomin got into print last winter for suggesting that missiles from Robert Hull's hockey stick could conceivably kill any goaltender who happened to be in the way.

What disturbed Giacomin was that HE might be that somebody.

What with insults, rebuttals, verbal agreements, breaking of same, and plenty of vitriol all around; the Black Hawks found themselves without the dynamic services of one Robert Hull.

Hull pulled a prodigal son a week ago and told a baited-breath hockey world that any team that paid him $100,000 a year to play shinny couldn't be ALL bad.

It took some pride-swallowing for hockey's biggest box office attraction to sit down at the same table with Tommy Ivan and admit "I may have been ill-advised."

The Hawks' not-so-genial general manager had been the brunt of many of Hull's more acid banquet anecdotes.

"You know why Ivan signed little Howie Menard, don't you?" Hull would ask the knife-and-fork clutch crowds. "So he'd have somebody on the club who'd look up to him."

Or, in the wake of some of Ivan's more infamous exploits at the bargaining table (a la Esposito): "Tommy didn't wait all the Black Hawks to be in last place, so he traded half of them to Boston!"

It was all, apparently, in good fun, because Hull resumes wearing his Chicago "7" tonight against a very worried Giacomin and the Rangers in a game being billed as "The Return of Ye Olde Golden Jette."

Hull will be doing his utmost tonight to make Giacomin duck and collect goal No. 473, etc., etc.

For one thing, this would lend strength to his argument — (as if anyone needed convincing) — that he earns his hockey bucks as well as the next guy.

Passing the 500-goal plateau in the midst of only his 13th NHL season is a certainty for Hull. It took both The Rocket and Detroit's Big Fella 16 terms to turn the trick in regular-season play.

But then, Richard never won a league scoring championship (Hull has three under his suspenders) and Howe has never scored 50 goals in one semester. Hull — yawa — has done that four times.

Tonight Hull joins a Black Hawk team that is on the sunny side of the .500 mark after 14 games. Assuming his presence should be of some help, the Hawks look like they are capable of getting airborne.

Last year only Boston scored more than Chicago's 280 NHL goals, but so team in the eastern division, and only two relegated expansion squads had as poor a defensive record as the cellar-dwelling Hawks.

By season's end, goal judges behind Denis Dejordy and Dave Dryden had flicked their digits 246 times.

It's easily forgotten that expansion took a lot of starch out of what might otherwise have been a respectable season's record.

The Hawks won more games than they lost (34-33-9) last year, and 10 years ago, that 77-point total would have made them a contender for first place.

They might not polish up the Prince of Wales Trophy this spring, but Bobby Hull will help put them into the playoffs.

Aces Used To Bad Start

Crawford's Aces, last year's Bay of Quinte men's basketball champions are off to the same dismal start as last year by dropping their first scheduled league game 94-84 to the Belleville Teachers' Association squad, at Centennial Secondary School last night. In other action, Cobourg Solo edged Cobourg Kiwis 72-68 in Cobourg.

Bruce Faulds was top point-getter for the night with 28 points. Brian MacKenzie had 17 points while Nelson Banting had 12, Doug Irvine 8, Earl Naismith 6, Wally Chrynuk 5, Dave Sellers 4, and Tom Jlawkin 2 points.

Crawford Aces' top scorer was regular Tom Lornie with 37 points. Mark Sheridan, also back from last year, had 19 points with Joe Theriault hooping 11. David Hurst 8, Bob Zalkowitz 5, Bob Michand 3 and Bob Young 1 point.

At Cobourg top scorers for the Sols were Gary Quinlan, Jim Bales and Gord Anderson, all with 14 points each. Mike Ruddick had 15 points for the Kiwi's with Al Healy and Smith adding 10 points each. Other scorers were not made available.

Montreal Alouettes had three on the offensive team but were blanked on the defensive squad.

Bosox Big Draw

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox led baseball's American League in attendance this year with 1,833,246, while Washington Senators had the biggest increase with a rise of 371,445 over their 1968 total.

Divisional champions Minnesota Twins in the West and Baltimore Orioles in the East were the only other teams besides Washington to show increases.

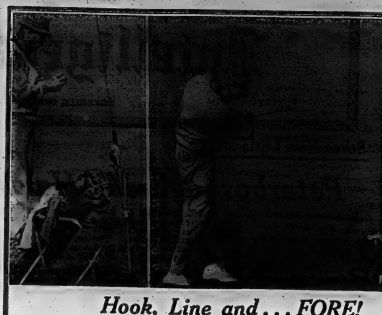
The total attendance for the first 12-team season was 12,-124,014, the highest in league history, but below the 11,317,287 of last year or the record 11,-336,923 of 1967 on a per-team basis.



Hook, Line and . . . FORE!

Howard Brodeur of San Mateo likes to fish and golf, so he devised this novel combination. He uses a golf ball, left, as a sinker on his line. Then using a club he slams the ball out into San Francisco Bay, right, sending it — and his fish bait — all the way from 90 to 175 yards, depending on the club he's using at the time. Brodeur says he's pulled in shark, perch, smelt, sturgeon and striped bass. (AP Wirephoto)

Could Win Tonight

Keys Cautious About Stamps

CALGARY (CP) — Coach Eagle Keys feels football is an unpredictable game, and he isn't about to hazard a guess as to the outcome of tonight's second game in the Western Conference final between his Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders.

"We've beaten them four straight times, which would indicate we're the best team, but I wouldn't rule out their coming back to win two straight," Keys told a news conference Tuesday night.

After his club's 17-11 victory in the first game of the best-of-three series in Regina last Saturday, Keys was sure of only one thing—the Stampeders weren't going to try to run against his club.

That left Saskatchewan in the position of stopping the Calgary passing attack, which saw Jerry Keeling complete 22 of 45 attempts for 406 yards Saturday.

"We spent all week getting ready for people like Herm Harrison, Gerry Shaw and Terry Evanshen," Keys said of the first game, "and they surprised us with Bob McCarthy."

McCarthy, used sparingly during the season because of an injury, pulled in a handful of passes against Saskatchewan.

The Roughriders will go into action at 8 p.m. MST without flanker Gord Barwell, knocked out of the first game in the second quarter with a shoulder injury. Keys said Al Rankin and Lance Fletcher will probably alternate at the position.

"Rankin has got speed, but Fletcher has more experience," he said.

Next Season Clair's Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Win or lose in Saturday's deciding game of the Eastern Football Conference finals against Toronto Argonauts, coach Frank Clair faces a major rebuilding job on his Ottawa Rough Riders next season.

When Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson steps on the field in an attempt to lead Riders into the Grey Cup game despite an eight-point deficit, it will be his last game before an Ottawa crowd.

Jackson announced earlier that this would be his last year as a player. He wants to devote his time to the teaching profession and has rejected promotions in the city high schools until his football days are over.

But other outstanding players also are considering retirement or leaving Riders for greener fields in the United States.

Halfback Ronnie Stewart is among the expected retirements. Now 34, he also is paying his 12th year with Riders but hasn't been as prominent in a rushing role since Ottawa acquired Vic Washington last season. He is still highly regarded as a blocker.

Also expected to call it a day is centre Jerry Selinger. This is Selinger's 16th year with Riders.

Another doubtful next year is defensive halfback Joe Poirier. After 10 years with Riders, there's been talk he is ready to retire.

Contract and other troubles could pluck three more stars from the Ottawa lineup.

Washington, now on the injured list, has said he won't play another game in Canada. He says his wife is unhappy away from their home in Plainfield, N..

Riders say however they still believe Washington will stay here.

End Margene Adkins and defensive halfback Gene Gaines are playing out their options. Both are having salary disputes with the club and say they won't be back next year unless their demands are met.

Chuvalo Contender

LONDON (Reuters) — George Chuvalo of Toronto, Bob Cleroux of Montreal, Rocky Campbell of Antigua and British champion Jack Bodell were listed Tuesday as leading contenders for the British Commonwealth heavyweight boxing title held by Henry Cooper, the former British and European champion.

Among recognized champions and contenders at other weights given by the British Commonwealth and Empire championships committee were:

Moody Made Big Jump

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Orville Moody, the former army sergeant who rose from golfing obscurity to fame in one leap, was named Player of the Year Tuesday by the Professional Golfers' Association.

Moody, 35, was the surprise winner of the U.S. Open in June, 20 months after joining the pro tour.

A native of Chickasha, Okla., he won the World Series of Golf, finished in a tie for seventh in the PGA championship and was second in the Greater Greensboro Open.

Fast Eddie Remembers His Nights on End of Leafs' Bench

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"This is the best seat in the rink," said Eddie Shack, sitting on the end of Toronto Maple Leafs' bench.

"I should know. I've sat here often enough. I think they should put my name on it."

Shack, also known as The Entertainer and Fast Eddie, now is with Los Angeles Kings but he hasn't forgotten his benchwarming days with the Leafs.

His erratic playing style often got him in trouble and prompted former general manager and coach Punch Imlach to relegate Shack to the end spot on the players' bench where he sat Tuesday waiting for his Los Angeles team-mates to show up for practice.

Imlach traded Shack to Boston Bruins in 1967 for Murray Oliver and this spring he was traded again to Los Angeles.

But he still remembers as well the rules Imlach laid down regarding such things as sideburns.

"I need a haircut," he admitted Tuesday. "My sideburns have gotten too long, but out in Los Angeles this is what they expect."

The Kings management, meanwhile, held talks with defenceman Bill White in an attempt to bring him back to the club.

The 30-year-old Toronto native walked out of the Kings training camp because the club refused to re-negotiate the four-year contract which he signed last season.

Toronto coach Johnny McLellan, meanwhile, looked over the Maple Leafs injury list which lately has been growing almost as long as the active player sheet.

Left winger Wayne Carleton, suffering from a mysterious stomach ailment, has been put on a special diet and defenceman Jim Dorey is recovering from a back injury.

George Armstrong, who rejoined the team this week, was the last to leave the ice after practice.

"I feel awful," Armstrong said. "I don't know when I'll be ready."

McLellan said the only line he is sure he can start tonight is Mike Walton at centre with wingers Brit Selby and Jim McKenny.

General manager and coach Scotty Bowman of St. Louis Tuesday answered charges of inciting brawls made against him by Bud Polis, general manager of Philadelphia Flyers.

Polis said in Quebec Monday that it was too much of a coincidence that St. Louis players were involved in four major brawls since 1967.

Bowman shrigged off Polis's comments, calling it a "minor-league stunt" designed to attract publicity.

No Blackout Here

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Attendance has been so good for St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League that club vice-president Sidney Salomon III says a closed-circuit television system may be installed for those who can't get in the arena.

"If we continue to draw the crowds we're drawing," Salomon said Tuesday, "it has real potential. But we won't come to it this year."

The remodelled arena where the Blues play seats 15,800, but the club has drawn an average of 16,285 for the first seven games this year.

Make-up of Canada's Nationals 'Distinctly Pleasant Surprise'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The make-up of Canada's national team in the 1970 World Hockey Tournament is as uncertain as ever but Hockey Canada is confident the ultimate selection will return the championship to this country.

"Our immediate objective is to regain the world hockey championship for Canada next March . . . and I believe that we will win," said Hockey Canada president Charles Hay at a news conference Tuesday.

While few names cropped up in discussion, Hay said "the team which will represent Canada in the 1970 world tournament will prove to be a distinctly pleasant surprise to all Canadians."

National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell, who attended a Hockey Canada board of governors meeting as an observer, said help from the NHL is assured.

"I have no reservations in saying the two Canadian teams (in the NHL) will deliver the very best players they have who can qualify for the tournament."

The International Ice Hockey Federation has granted any team playing to the world tournament, scheduled for Montreal March 13-30 and Winnipeg March 22-29, the use of nine professionals providing they did not play the 1969-70 season in the NHL.

Another provision allows the participating team to use as many reinstated pros as they want with the deadline for reinstatement being Feb. 10, 1970.

A number of professionals already have attended the National's camp with the most recent addition being Billy Harris, formerly of Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings and Pittsburgh Penguins.

Hay refused to name players currently contained in a list of about 200 being considered by National's general manager Buck Houle.

Houle said that he and coaches Jack McLeod and Gary Aldcorn will be taking 21 players for a series of exhibition games in Czechoslovakia and Russia this month.

"This isn't going to be any nice innocent little holiday trip," he said. "When we get to Russia, they're throwing us into a tournament which actually will be a preview of the 1970 world championships.

"Our five opponents in Moscow will be the national teams of Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and East Germany, the same five teams which will oppose us in the world tournament."

School Shinny Emphasized

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hockey Canada's board of governors Tuesday announced establishment of a five-year program, not only for development of the national team but to foster hockey in general.

The plan, announced at a news conference, following the governors' meeting, encompasses all areas of the game with particular emphasis on high school and intercollegiate levels.

"While our immediate goal is the 1970 world hockey championship, we have another program which will be of even more far-reaching importance," said Hockey Canada president Charles Hay.

"We have committed ourselves to a five-year plan for improving the quality of hockey in Canada, with particular emphasis on the high school and intercollegiate levels. This program, which will be undertaken immediately, was approved unanimously today by our directors."

The federal minister charged with the responsibility of Hockey Canada, Health Minister John Munro, followed those remarks by emphasizing that the organization has two simple objectives:

"To ice a good national team and to foster more and improved play."

"It begins with co-operation . . . between the government, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, the professional players, the colleges and the schools."

In answer to those who criticized Hockey Canada for not approaching Bobby Hull during his recent dispute with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, Munro said such an approach was impossible.

"Hockey Canada cannot encourage him in breach that contract unless it wants war, financial and otherwise—and no co-operation from the NHL," he said.

Referring to the national team, Munro said Hockey Canada faces a number of tasks.

Besides building a contender in world hockey competition, the organization must "establish good and realistic relations with European countries, using the abilities of external affairs personnel in order to achieve the goal of open competition."

Said Munro:

Garrett Leads Goalies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Orr leads the National Hockey League scoring race with 29 points, including 25 assists. The assists total in 16 games this season puts him more than half way to his total of 43 in 67 games last season.

In 17 games with St. Catharines Black Hawks this season McDonough has 21 goals and 21 assists and could double his output of 28 goals and 30 assists in the 54-game schedule last season.

OTTAWA (CP) — The life insurance business and the National Farmers Union both called Tuesday for better management of inflation, but offered politicians sharply divergent advice about how to do it.

The Canadian Life Insurance Association told the Commons finance committee voluntary co-operation among business, labor and governments would be the best way to deal with inflation in the long run.

The National Farmers Union told the committee earlier the government could curb inflation by selective taxation that would drain spending power away from sections of corporate big business which largely evade present restraints and push up prices.

The life insurance association, testifying in the committee's inquiry into high interest rates, said voluntary saving by Canadians should be encouraged to help relieve upward pressure on interest rates caused by demands for investment funds outstripping the supply of money on the domestic front and from the United States and Germany.

However, suggestions of an increase in forced saving through such methods as pension funds or direct controls on prices and incomes were rejected.

The National Farmers Union argued that the long-term control of inflation requires "selective management of the economy," covering corporate spending and some labor sectors where unions are highly-organized and powerful.

U.S. Firms Hard to Frighten

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians may be overly nervous about frightening away foreign capital, says Prof. Melville Watkins, who headed a group that looked into foreign domination of Canadian business.

"American companies go everywhere in the world," the University of Toronto professor of political economy told a meeting Tuesday night of the Certified General Accountants Association of Ontario.

"It's very hard to get rid of them. In Brazil, for example, there are right-wing coups followed by left-wing coups, but American investment continues to grow."

The report of his group, commissioned by the federal government, urged action now to stop erosion of Canadian sovereignty caused by foreign control of industry.

Prof. Watkins proposed an income tax surtax to build a buy-back-Canada fund. The fund would be used by a Canada development corporation to roll back foreign control.

Colleges Urged To Get Involved

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario's 40 community colleges were urged Tuesday to integrate with their communities and become involved in community problems.

Problems unique to community colleges are being studied by 200 campus builders and organizers at a two-day workshop.

Architect Jack Diamond expressed fear that the colleges are becoming isolated communities, structured along university lines.

R. L. Meyer, business dean of Ottawa's Algonquin College of applied arts and technology, said the community has not yet fully accepted the community college.

"It's not a one-way street. . . . We're moving more and more into the community but people have to accept off-campus activity," he said.

Some delegates also questioned the role of computers in academic and growth planning, expressing fear that computer-oriented programs may rob campuses of their "individualism."

Probe Nears End

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons smoking inquiry, which produced a plea from federal Health Minister John Munro for strong controls on cigarette advertising and on tar and nicotine content, is nearing a conclusion.

The committee, reconstituted last Friday, heard Tuesday from Dr. Gaston Isabelle (L—Bulli) that only two or three witnesses remain to be heard.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: I had an accident that was caused by the other driver. He's admitted it was his fault and has agreed to pay for my damages, but is he responsible for my cost of a courtesy car while my car was being fixed?

ANSWER: If you can show that your income was affected by not having a car, you can ask for courtesy car costs. If the other driver won't cover this, it may be necessary to go in court to recover the loss that was suffered.

QUESTION: I had a car accident last summer. The police made a report on it which was sent to my insurance company. I keep trying to get my agent or the insurance company to pay me for my damages but I only get a runaround. Is there any place I can go to get this settled?

ANSWER: Any accident victim who thinks he is being given the runaround by an insurance company should state the facts to the Office of the Superintendent of Insurance, Mr. G. E. Grundy, 555 Yonge Street, Toronto. The policy service people can advise you as to your rights, and they can force insurance companies to live up to their obligations — the ultimate weapon is cancellation of that company's right to do business in Ontario.

QUESTION: I got a speeding ticket for doing 40 mph in a 30 mph zone, but on the summons the name of the street was misspelled. Can I get off on the basis of this typographical error?

ANSWER: You'll probably save money by admitting to the offence, if you are guilty of it. Courts have the right to correct such information, and would likely do so in this case.

QUESTION: We are driving to St. Petersburg, Florida, in December and would like to know what our driving costs and motels will be for a return trip. What is the best route down via the Ivy Lea Bridge and are there any speed traps on the way?

ANSWER: Figure on $70-$80 driving costs for a return trip. But this doesn't allow for breakdowns on the way. Your $12-$14 a night and you will need four nights for return trip which will cost about $50. On top of this you will have to add your meals.

Take No. 81 from Ivy Lea Bridge to Scranton, Penn. Last year we changed here for the North East Penn. Turnpike but this year No. 81 is finished south as far as No. 61 near Pottsville, Penn. No. 81 will be finished all the way to Harrisburg, Penn., in 1970. Take No. 81 south to No. 22, No. 22 and 83 bypassing Harrisburg to Baltimore, by-passing city on No. 695, No. 301 and 95 to Richmond Virginia, No. 95 and No. 301 to Summerton, S.C., and No. 301 to Ocala, Florida, No. 75 to St. Petersburg.

From Petersburg, Va., to North Carolina border, and through Georgia, watch your speed. The only toll road on this route is between Richmond, Va., and Petersburg, Va., a distance of 25 miles, a 25 cent toll charge.

There's a new attraction this year at Santee, on route 301, called the Wings and Wheels Museum. It houses a large collection of antique cars and the earliest flying machines, from replicas of the Wright brothers' first plane to Curtiss Jennys. Stunt pilots perform in barnstorming fashion.

About 8 out of 10 Canadians who head to Florida this winter will do so by car. If you are one of them, the big trick is to make the trip in 3 days without picking up a bunch of speeding tickets. Every year hundreds of miles more of the big interstate highways are finished, replacing the twisting narrow two-lane roads with four lane highways similar to our 401.

Much of the pain of driving can be removed by starting out on the road by 8 a.m. and stopping for breakfast when rush hour traffic and school buses hit the highway. This way you can cover the necessary daily miles easily and stop early enough to get a choice of motels.

Beads Tell All

The order and pattern in which colored beads worn by Zulu girls are threaded reveal the girl's feelings. A gaudy ornament indicates a broken heart. White beads signify love and hope; red means anger; green depicts depression.

'Right Down the Middle of the Road'

Exuberance, Excitement Mark Apollo 12

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 11 had history, uncertainty and danger. Apollo 12 had pure exuberance and excitement. So much that you almost forgot about the danger.

Across 250,000 miles of space you could almost picture Pete Conrad jumping up and down with joy as the lunar lander Intrepid bore down on the Ocean of Storms exactly the way it was supposed to.

"There it is!" he shouted. "Son of a gun. Right down the middle of the road."

Down, down, came the Intrepid. And the excitement mounted.

"Hey, it's right down the centre of the crater!" he yelled. The moon's horizon was coming up in the Intrepid's little windows.

"Forty-two," Bean said, calling out the degree of the ship's bearing. "Look out there."

Conrad again: "I can't believe it! Amazing! Fantastic!"

"Forty-two degrees," Bean said again. "Ride it in. Forty-two. We're passing 8,500 feet."

It seemed superfluous, but Mission Control had to say it:

"Intrepid, Houston. You're go for landing."

"Forty degrees, Pete. 40 degrees," said Bean.

"That's so fantastic. I can't believe it," Conrad said.

"We're at 2,000 feet." Bean again.

"Thirty-eight, 38 degrees. 36 degrees. You're 1,200 feet, Pete. Thousand feet coming down at 30. You're looking good. Get 14 per cent fuel. Looks good out there, Babe, looks good."

Down, down came the Intrepid: 800 feet . . . 680 feet . . . 600 . . . 530. Bean counted them off.

"Four-seventy-one," he said. "You are all right. 426."

It was the signal for Conrad to take over from the computers, his hand on two airplane-type controls.

"I got it," he said.

"Four hundred. You're at 360, Pete, 360. Okay."

"I gotta get over here to the right."

On Apollo 11, in July, there was not a lot of gas.

"Hey, look at that crater!" Bean shouted. "Right where it's supposed to be. Hey, you're beautiful. Ten per cent, 257 feet coming down at five feet per second. 250, coming down at five. Hey, you're really maneuvring around. Come on down, Pete. Okay. Ten per cent fuel, 200 feet, coming down at three. You can come on down."

Down, down came the Intrepid.

"Start the clock," said Bean. "62 feet coming down at two . . . 40 coming down at two . . . Looking good. Watch the dust . . . 31 . . . 30 feet . . . coming down Pete. You got plenty gas. Plenty gas. Hang in there."

"Thirty seconds," said Mission Control.

"Coming down at 21" Bean was shouting again. "We've got it made. Come on in there, 24 feet. Contact lights!"

Two more men from earth were on the moon.

Gordon Has Lots of Room

HOUSTON (AP) — "I can really move in here pretty good when I've got all this room," said Richard Gordon, consoling himself as his Apollo 12 crewmates made history on the moon.

In the Clipper, a mother spaceship built for three, he sailed along high above the moon, ready to rescue the moon explorers if necessary.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"What in the world is THAT! . . Something you invented?"

Moon Good for A Cold

HOUSTON (Reuters) — Astronaut Alan Bean told ground control today he thought the moon's gravity was helping to clear up a stuffy head which bothered him while he was in the Apollo spacecraft.

"It started clearing up along about PDI (powered descent initiation) time and I think this gravity field right here is helping a bit and allowing it to drain."

Lovell Praises Precision

LONDON (Reuters) — British space expert Sir Bernard Lovell today hailed the "precision and accuracy" of the Apollo 12 moon landing.

Lovell who directs the Jodrell Bank radio telescope said the "precision and accuracy of the landing of Apollo 12 on the moon is a tribute to the flexibility which has been built into the Apollo 12 system."

Small Step?

HOUSTON (AP) — When stood on the moon last July, stood on the moon last uly, he said: "That's one small step for a man, a giant leap for mankind."

When Charles Conrad, five-foot-six, stretched to reach the moon from the landing pad today, he said: "That may have been a small one for Neil, but that's a long one for me."

Exuberance, Excitement Mark Apollo 12

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 11 had history, uncertainty and danger. Apollo 12 had pure exuberance and excitement. So much that you almost forgot about the danger.

Across 250,000 miles of space you could almost picture Pete Conrad jumping up and down with joy as the lunar lander Intrepid bore down on the Ocean of Storms exactly the way it was supposed to.

"There it is!" he shouted. "Son of a gun. Right down the middle of the road."

Down, down, came the Intrepid. And the excitement mounted.

"Forty-two," Bean said, calling out the degree of the ship's bearing. "Look out there."

Conrad again: "I can't believe it! Amazing! Fantastic!"

"Forty-two degrees," Bean said again. "Ride it in. Forty-two. We're passing 3,500 feet."

It seemed superfluous, but Mission Control had to say it:

"Intrepid, Houston. You're go for landing."

"Forty degrees, Pete, 40 degrees," said Bean.

"That's so fantastic, I can't believe it," Conrad said.

"We're at 2,000 feet," Bean again.

"Thirty-eight, 38 degrees. 36 degrees. You're 1,200 feet, Pete. Thousand feet coming down at 30. You're looking good. Got 14 per cent fuel. Looks good out there, Babe, looks good."

Down, down came the Intrepid; 800 feet . . . 680 feet . . . 600 . . . 530. Bean counted them off.

"Four-seventy-one," he said. "You are all right, 426."

It was the signal for Conrad to take over from the computers, his hand on two airplane-type controls.

"I got it," he said.

"Four hundred. You're at 360, Pete, 360. Okay."

"I gotta get over here to the right."

On Apollo 11, in July, there was not a lot of gas.

"Hey, look at that crater!" Bean shouted. "Right where it's supposed to be. Hey, you're beautiful. Ten per cent, 257 feet coming down at five feet per second, 220, coming down at five. Hey, you're really manoeuvring around. Come on down, Pete. Okay. Ten per cent fuel, 200 feet, coming down at three. You can come on down."

Down, down came the Intrepid.

"Start the clock," said Bean. "Q feet coming down at two . . . 40 coming down at two . . . Looking good. Watch the dust . . . 31 . . . 30 feet . . . coming down Pete. You got plenty gas. Plenty gas. Hang in there."

"Thirty seconds," said Mission Control.

"Coming down at 21" Bean was shouting again. "We've got it made. Come on in there, 24 feet. Contact lights!"

Two more men from earth were on the moon.

Gordon Has Lots of Room

HOUSTON (AP) — "I can really move in here pretty good when I've got all this room," said Richard Gordon, consoling himself as his Apollo 12 crewmates made history on the moon.

In the Clipper, a mother spaceship built for three, he sailed along high above the moon, ready to rescue the moon explorers if necessary.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"What in the world is THAT!... Something you invented?"

Moon Good for A Cold

HOUSTON (Reuters) — Astronaut Alan Bean told ground control today he thought the moon's gravity was helping to clear up a stuffy head which bothered him while he was in the Apollo spacecraft.

"It started clearing up along about PDI (powered descent initiation) time and I think this gravity field right here is helping a bit and allowing it to drain."

Astronauts' Wives Celebrate

HOUSTON (AP) — "We made it again," sighed Sue Bean. "Unbelievable!" exclaimed Barbara Gordon. "There they are," said Jane Conrad, pointing to the moon.

With cheers, hugs, sighs, applause and champagne, the Apollo 12 wives celebrated today America's second successful moon landing.

The families, huddling with friends and relatives and astronauts and astronauts' wives, watched television and listened as Charles (Pete) Conrad and Alan Bean guide their moonship Intrepid to the lunar surface.

"It's all-night moon vigil," was the way Sue Bean described it, although she chose later to try for a nap between the landing and the moonwalk.

Separated from his colleagues, Richard Gordon piloted the command ship Yankee Clipper in moon orbit, alone and poised for a rescue attempt should one become necessary.

"Mama's going to let us stay up," exclaimed an excited Larry Gordon, 11, one of the six Gordon children. "And we don't have to go to school Wednesday."

Peter Conrad, 14, and a companion were mapping plans to re-enact the flight of Intrepid in a cardboard "lunar lander" this weekend.

Peter and his friend, Michael Howell, will climb into a box between beds in a room of the Howell house Friday night.

The two Bean children, Clay, 13, and Amy, 6, also were swept up in the excitement of the moon adventure.

But their reactions differed. Clay complained that his schoolmates brought newspaper pictures of him to school, which "is embarrassing." Amy, on the other hand, took the clipping and raced off to show a girl friend.

Film Shows Lightning Following Apollo Aloft

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A color film clearly shows lightning following the Apollo 12 moon rocket into the clouds at its launch last Friday, the curator of the University of Nevada planetarium said Tuesday.

The lightning began on the ground and followed a brownish-red path of ionized gas from the rocket's engines, 41.84 seconds after blastoff, said curator Richard Norton.

Shortly after the launch, a blinding flash streaked through the morning sky and after that astronaut Charles Conrad Jr. raised the possibility that the ship might have been hit by lightning.

The flash was accompanied by a sudden drop in the spacecraft's electrical power, and the astronauts reported there were so many short lights they couldn't count them.

NASA scientists said they believed static electricity caused the electrical problem.

By calculating the rocket's rate of ascent, Norton said, it is possible to determine the bolt's length.

There's no proof the bolt hit the spacecraft, which is hidden by heavy clouds in the film, he said. The bolt is clearly seen travelling up the path of ionized gasses just to the right of the launch pad.

Enlarged copies of the single frame picture have been sent to NASA. The lightning was clearly shown in great detail between water droplets that spotted the extremely wide angled lens, Norton said.

St. Jean Baptiste Societies Political Influence Untested

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Societies has taken the plunge into separatism. But nobody knows how much strength this will add to the movement for political independence in Quebec.

The federation claims to have 165,000 members, but this is the first time it is trying to speak for them on a concrete political issue. Without taking a poll, it is impossible to say how many members feel committed by the new separatist policy of the federation's executive.

The St. Jean Baptiste Society, which calls itself the national society of French-Canada, is an open organization, with no secret pledges or rituals and virtually no discipline over members. Historically, its activities have been cultural, aimed at instilling pride of origin and language into French-speaking Canadians.

Like any such organization, it has members who throw themselves into it body and soul, and members who take little or no part at all in its activities.

Those running the provincial federation have been leaning in the separatist direction for several years. Their decision, therefore, taken at a special meeting here Sunday by 117 votes to 13, caused no great surprise.

The first thing the decision accomplished was to confirm a split in the ranks of the society in different parts of the province.

Three affiliated societies—Quebec City, Sherbrooke and Valleyfield—have left the federation during the last three years because they did not want to become identified with the separatist movement. Now they will stay out.

But one wanderer, the St. Jerome society, announced its intention of returning to the federation fold Tuesday. Ironically, St. Jerome had left the federation because it thought it was too cool towards separatism.

St. Jean Baptiste Society membership is still restricted to Roman Catholics, although there is considerable sentiment for dropping the religious requirement. There is one society for each of the 18 dioceses of Quebec province.

A chief characteristic of the society's membership is that, apart from farmers, it is predominantly white-collar. Teachers, lawyers, notaries, salesmen, accountants and proprietors and managers of small business firms make up most of it.

Many of them live in small towns and rural areas. The largest societies still in the federation are Rimouski, with 35,000 members, Nicolet with 30,000, and Trois-Rivieres with 22,000. The Montreal society, in an area populated by nearly 2,500,000 persons, claims only 13,500 members.

It is difficult to identify some of the prominent individual members with a separatist concept. At least eight Creditiste and Liberal MPs from Quebec, including Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, are members, as are some of the leading figures in the provincial Liberal and Union Nationale parties.

Former premier Jean Lesage, who belongs to the Quebec City society, said the federation has no business pronouncing itself on political issues.

Mail Clerk Fired Gun At Garage

MONTREAL (CP) — Roger Malo, a 23-year-old post office mail clerk, testified Tuesday he fired three shots from a 12-gauge shotgun at a besieged bus garage during a demonstration in which a provincial policeman was killed.

Malo was the last person to testify at a coroner's inquest into the shotgun death of Cpl. Robert Dumas, 35, a provincial police undercover agent sent to observe the demonstration.

Coroner Laurin Lapointe said he will take a few days to review the evidence before delivering a verdict.

Taxi drivers and other groups took advantage of a Montreal In a protest against Murray police strike to raid the garage Hill's exclusive right to pick up passengers at Montreal airport.

Santa's Mail Bag

For the next few weeks The Intelligencer will publish a few letters taken at random from Santa's Christmas Wonderland Mail Bag.

28 Trent St. S.,
Frankford, Ont.,
Dear Santa

My name is Kelly Moran. I am 11 years old. I am in grade 6 in Frankford Public School. I would like to go to see you because I have never been in Wonderland before, and also because I have never seen any of the cartoonists. It would be a lot of fun to see you in your Ice Palace. It would also be fun to ask the Princess a wish. It would be a ball to ride through the Enchanted Mountain on the train. I would really like to talk to a police car because it would be the only talking police car I would see, and talk to and maybe he could also help me with my safety rules. I would like to see the skeleton of the dinosaur because it would be interesting and it would likely be the only one I would see. I would like to eat lunch with Snoopy because I have a stuffed snoopy and I would like to see Snoopy in real life. My birthday is on Nov. 15. I hope my letter is chosen because it would be a real experience to go to Toronto and see Santa's Winter Wonderland.

Love: Kelly Moran

Frankford, Ont.
Dear Santa

My name is Francy Moran and Im 8 years old, my birthday is Oct. 25.

I would like to see you because I have not seen you before. I have not been in Toronto. I would like a holiday in Toronto for one day for Christmas. I would like to see the princess and her castle and eat with snoopy. I would like to see Santa in his Ice palace. I would like to ride a train up the Enchanted Mountain. I would like to Race in a Mini Grand Prix. I would like to visit and talk to the talking police car, and learn more about safety rules because I am a Brownie and maybe I could help other children. I think it would be scairy to see what the skeleton of a large dinosaur is like. I also like to see how children spend their Christmas, because it would be interesting to me.

I wish most of all to sit on Santas knee and to whisper in his ear and give him a big hug, and tell him I love him.

I am in Grade 3 in Frankford Public school and I hope my letter is chosen.

Dear Santa

I would love to go to Christmas Wonderland because, I would like to have my money. And I would like to ask the Fairy Princess for a wish. I would like to have lunch with Lucy as long as she doesn't yell at me. I do not know what the Talking Police Car is but I would like to find out.

I am 7 years old and I go to Harry J. Clarke school. My sister is 4½ years old. And her favourite toy is Snoopy. I would enjoy going to Christmas Wonderland.

Yours truly Shari Niles

I would like to visit Santa Claus because it would "add" to my enjoyment, "subtract" from my boredom, "multiply" the Spirit of Christmas, while keeping my un "divided" attention.

Valerie Bird
177 Pine St.

Dark of Moon Cast May Be Osaka Bound As Education Project

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

The department of education has become interested in the Belleville Theatre Guild's youtheatre production of Dark of the Moon. And a possible result could be a trip to Osaka, Japan for Expo 70 for the entire cast.

Roy Higgins, resident artistic director of the Belleville Theatre Guild, and director of the youtheatre play, said that statements about a journey to Japan by approximately 40 young people involved in Dark of the Moon could best be described as "rumors."

He did say, however that there was an interest in sending a youtheatre production to Japan. In 1967, Mr. Higgins, directed a play at Expo in Montreal with young people.

There is another reason for department of education officials being interested in Belleville's youtheatre production of Dark of the Moon.

The department is seriously considering a youtheatre project in the summer of 1970 involving over 100 young people.

"They're looking for a vehicle to bring knowledgeable people together interested in backing a summer project," Mr. Higgins said. And Belleville's youtheatre could be that vehicle.

Already, Dark of the Moon is sold out on three nights of its performance schedule at the Pinnacle Playhouse which begins Nov. 26. Tickets have been on sale for the production since Nov. 3.

Recently, department of education officials, headed by Candice O'Connor, youth and recreation branch youtheatre officer, paid a visit to Belleville to witness a youtheatre rehearsal.

"The production standard amazed them, they said," Mr. Higgins said.

"They told me they were 'quite bowled over'", he added. "They said, 'We think you've a great company — well-disciplined, eager and talented.'"

And the mammoth project proposed for next summer could possibly be in Belleville putting this city on the theatrical map once more.

Of course, the whole project is pending approval, but "Belleville's youtheatre is the standard-bearer for the whole province."

Dark of the Moon is the story of John, the witchboy, who falls in love with Barbara Allen, a human and is turned into a man. The play is based on "the Ballad of Barbara Allen", recorded by Joan Baez.

The cast is large with many extras. Young people have been used in every facet of the show from production to set and costumes work.

The play will run for 10 performances in a two-week period beginning Nov. 26. Tickets are on sale now and may be obtained by phoning the Pinnacle Playhouse.

'Open Plan' High School For Hastings

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Hastings County Board of Education may have one answer to teenagers' demands for more responsibility.

It is a program for more independent study and less formal lecturing — in an open plan secondary school with learning areas instead of conventional classrooms.

The open plan school is slated to open in September, 1971, on the school lot at Bayside, and will accommodate 1,200 students.

Most recently-built elementary schools are designed on the open plan, with learning areas accommodating up to 90 pupils instead of conventional classrooms, but no open concept secondary schools are in use as yet in Ontario. At least two are under construction in the Toronto area.

Although the school is still in the sketch plan stage, students have already become involved. Through a committee of teacher-consultants they have had an opportunity to study the plans and offer their comments.

The advisory council of 16 teachers, headed by Moira's principal L. D. Read, had a share in planning the design of the school.

They consulted senior teachers in each subject area on the curriculum and went back to the architects, Boigon and Heinonen, with suggestions on how space allotted to each subject could best be utilized.

Size of each area is dictated by provincial grant specifications, but the layout of the areas is flexible and was altered by the architects to suit the needs of teachers and students.

"The school will have only half as many interior walls as schools," Mr. Read said. "About 20 to 30 per cent of the space in a traditional school is used up by corridors. In the new school the corridors are included in the teaching areas."

The teaching area for each portable walls into three or more classrooms, if the need arises. Incorporated into the design of each area are small seminar rooms, learning areas for independent study and research and a staff storage and the staff room in each area, smaller than usual.

Plans call for all the books, equipment and audio-visual material required for a subject to be kept in the area resource room. These will be the primary reference centres. The library in the centre of the school will be a secondary resource centre for general use.

Maximum space in the library has been ensured by a three level arrangement, with access to the room from both floors of the two - storey school.

This is the first time an advisory council of teachers has been brought in to plan a secondary school in the district. Part of the reason is administration's determination to make the open plan concept work with senior students.

"It has been successful on both the junior and senior levels in elementary schools," said Mr. Read. "But if it does not work for us in a secondary school, the building has been designed so that it can be restored to the traditional style."

$1.5 Million Estimated Cost For New Kente School

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — All three township representatives on the county school board voiced approval at the nomination meeting Monday night in favor of the proposed expansion of education facilities in the Kente school area of Ameliasburg.

Referred to as the Kente complex, kindergartens, grade school and high school would be available under virtually one roof.

The size of the facility would be determined in accordance with the needs of students in Ameliasburg as well as students in neighbering townships.

While no firm figure has been released on the total cost of construction and furnishings the board's finance chairman George Flower said he was satisfied one and a half million dollars would be sufficient to cover the outlay for the undertaking. "We're trying to look after our children's education needs not build a great marble edifice as a showpiece," he asserted.

Board member Harmon Montgomery said he was skeptical of the complex idea at first.

"I changed my mind after I became aware of all aspects — in particular the possibility of a large reduction in transportation costs."

In the Midst of Demons

Robert Dafoe, witchboy in the Belleville Youtheatre's "Dark of the Moon" is surrounded by some of his female "friends," a group of witches in a scene from the play. The story surrounds the witchboy's transition from witch to human.

Dark of the Moon Music

Fake Wake Puts Life in Party

Liberal Says Ontario Fails To Educate Children of Poor

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is not fulfilling its commitment to educate the children of the poor, an Ontario legislature committee on education was told Tuesday.

Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) told the committee during a debate on education department estimates that Ontario's children of the poor have only one-third the chance of entering university that children of middle- or upper-class families have.

"Whereas one-third of the brightest children from poor families do not survive high school, one-third of the stupidest children of the rich clutter up the universities," Mr. Reid said.

"There must be a government commitment to educate the children of the poor," he said. "This is not being done."

Mr. Reid said too much priority is given to spending at the high school level; but "the cycle of poverty" could be broken if more money was spent on educating three- or four-year-olds.

Education Minister Davis said he could not accept that universities are "so delinquent in their admission requirements that one-third of university students are stupid."

He said he agreed that the disadvantages of poor children have to be solved, but he doubted that schools alone will solve the problem because poverty is an "environmental problem," involving all agencies.

He told the committee more pre-school programs are being provided and the number of poor students entering university is increasing.

In other legislature business:

—George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said adequate water standards in Ontario will be maintained under the proposed federal Canada Water Act. Mr. Kerr said he was concerned when the act was first proposed that Ontario's standards would be lowered, but this fear was allayed by discussions with federal representatives.

—Mr. Kerr also said Ontario Hydro has invested no capital in the Douglas Point nuclear generating station, under construction by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. AECL must bring the plant in ahgahape before Ontario Hydro takes it over—at a cost equivalent to that of a fossil fuelled plant, "which is much less than a nuclear plant."

—Mr. Kerr said the Ontario Water Resources Commission is investigating the intensity and extent of mercury pollution, word downstream from plants producing chlorine and caustic soda.

—The committee on education was told parents are becoming "terrified" by the increasing rate of accidents and injuries involving school buses. Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) said there were 47 injuries to children in school bus accidents in 1965-66 and 144 in 1966-67. He suggested an educational transport authority should be created to assume responsibility for vehicle inspections and driver licensing.

—Education Minister William Davis said the government is preparing legislation to safeguard the personal records of students against unauthorized users. He was replying to Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough), who said he recalled a recent court case in which a teacher was subpoenaed as a witness and forced to reveal under oath some of the information about a student contained in his personal files.

—Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said his department is considering ways to restrict commercial trucks to a single lane on provincial highways. He noted the federal government is studying the same issue.

Hydro Boost Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government can never again say it is trying to fight inflation, the leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party said Tuesday.

Donald MacDonald told the legislature that the recently-announced increase in the wholesale price of electrical power could have been absorbed by a stabilization fund kept by Ontario Hydro. Because it was not Hydro and the government have demonstrated their unwillingness to meet the problem of inflation.

He made his comments during a wide-ranging NDP attack on the rate increase, which averages about six per cent. In some municipalities, the increase will be passed on to retail consumers.

Ontario May Run Trains

TORONTO (CP) — If the CNR discontinues rail passenger service between Toronto, North Bay and Kapuskasing, the Ontario government would consider substituting its own service, Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr says.

The CNR has an application pending to withdraw service.

Strictly Personal

Medicines Often Useless

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The clinic in my office building was offering employees free flu shots last month, and I declined a little ungraciously, telling the nurse that the only time I took a preventive flu shot, five winters ago, was the only winter I caught the flu, a few weeks later.

She snorted at this primitive attitude of mine, suggesting that a man as knowledgeable as I pretend to be ought to have no truck with such old wives' tales. I shrugged, smiled wanly, and still declined, feeling a trifle foolish and stubborn.

Vindication fast followed. A few days later I picked up the paper and read that the U.S. Public Health Service's advisory committee on immunization "excludes all healthy adults and children from its list of persons who should be immunized before the coming flu season."

As the committee tactfully put it, neatly reversing its field, "the simple facts are that the flu vaccine is not highly effective, and it does have a frequency of local and systemic reactions." This means, in even simpler words, that it won't help you much, and is more likely to give you flu symptoms than prevent them. Just what I murmured in our nurse's ace-shell ear.

Before the turn of this century, Sir William Osler, the great physician, made a remark to his students that every doctor should pass out along with a prescription: "The desire to take medicine," Osler said, "is perhaps the greatest feature which distinguishes man from the animals."

This nation rushed into a flu-vaccine program long before anyone had properly evaluated its efficacy, or its dangers. We are now in the midst of a birth-control-pill program of vast dimensions, when all the possible side-effects and long-term genetic consequences of the pill are still unknown.

People have become conditioned to demand shots and pills for every ailment, and are provided them even when the doctors privately know that their value is negligible or nil. This is simply "good merchandising" on their part, for the patient who is refused such dubious treatment will just move on to a less scrupulous doctor.

The antibiotics, life-saving as they are in some cases, are fraught with peril and wildly over-used; and even the vitamins, when taken excessively and in place of balanced nourishment, can produce "vitaminosis," a pathological condition seen only in super-civilized societies. Eskimos, of course, never got the flu, until we raised those primitive people to our own standards of sickness.

Air Travel Tax Yield $20 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The new tax on air travel proposed to the Commons Monday could bring in up to $20,000,000 in its first year, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Tuesday.

The tax will be $2 to $5 on overseas flights from Canada and five per cent of the fare on flights in Canada, the United States and the French Islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon. If approved by Parliament, the taxes would be brought into effect at some later date by proclamation.

THANK YOU . . .

FOR PAYING YOUR CARRIER PROMPTLY

Collections by your Intelligencer carrier are timed to provide you convenient service and best meet his school and study schedules. He may begin collections Thursday and complete his collection on Friday, so that he can pay for his papers on Saturday morning.

Your thoughtfulness in paying him the first time he calls to collect will encourage him in giving you prompt service. It will save him extra work for which he would receive no additional profit.

It will give him more time for school and other activities . . .

Hungerford Council Meets Township

TWEED — The Hungerford Township Council meeting was held earlier this month (November).

The minutes of the October meeting were read and adopted. A resolution from the Town of Massassaga was received for approval, so that the Legislative Authority of the Province of Ontario could be requested to pass legislation enabling local municipalities to license community antenna television companies that have Canadian radio television authorization, in order to control location of equipment and how it is to be a position to collect fees on a percentage basis of gross charges to subscribers within the municipality.

A resolution was passed concurring with this resolution. A notification was received from S. C. Jevons, Assessment Commissioner that Court of Revision of the Assessment Roll for 1969 would be held at the Township Hall at 11.00 a.m. Dec. 1, 1969.

Retirement--A Wealthy, Wise Man's Dream

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Well-to-do Bellevillians are more likely to relish retirement than their less - prosperous neighbors.

An intensive Ontario - government survey shows that men with high incomes or sound education are more likely to want retirement than those with low or middle incomes and less education.

Belleville was one of 17 Ontario communities chosen for the 20 - year research project into problems of aging.

The study has now passed its half - way mark and John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, says a 10-year progress report on the project will be issued next year.

An unspecified number of Bellevillians included in the survey which began in 1964 with 2,000 healthy, working men 45 years old.

The minister said 1,500 of the men, now 55, still are healthy and active. But, he said the study has found that those with high incomes and sound educations are the ones who look ahead to being retired.

Mr. Yaremko said this preliminary finding of the 10-year progress report is an example of ways in which the research will help in planning services for the elderly.

"It pinpoints an area of concern. . . . We will have to consider how to encourage men to develop outside interests that will continue after retirement, and how to make retirement a more attractive prospect for them."

Later findings may indicate how government programs can be changed or improved, he said.

The Ontario project, described by United States gerontologists as the most comprehensive long-term study of aging conducted anywhere in the world, began with preliminary interviews of the 2,000 selected male prospects.

It involved the work of 150 field workers in 17 Ontario communities: Chatham, London, Hamilton, Brantford, Niagara Falls, Peterborough, Belleville, Kingston, Alexandria, Toronto, Ottawa, North Bay, Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie, Kirkland Lake and Port Arthur.

The subjects were gainfully employed, in good health and with strong social urges—only 22 reported poor health and only 84 were not involved in out-of-work activity.

At the end of 1967, 82 per cent of the participants still reported their health as good or excellent, 15 per cent said it was fair and only three per cent reported poor health.

It was an important finding for the researchers, since it helped counter a commonly-held belief that men over 45 are poor employment risks because of health problems.

The report showed that at the end of the first decade, 1,525 of the original 2,000 were still actively participating. Only 119 had died, 125 had moved out of the province and 231 could no longer take part for various personal reasons.

Mr. Crawford said the first question put to the computers for the half-way report—mother 23 have died or stopped participating since 1968—dealt with the relationship between income levels and attitude to retirement.

The computer gave this picture of the 1,500 survivors:

The higher the income and the greater the level of education, the more exactly retirement is anticipated; primary workers—farmers, miners—differ significantly from other groups in their attitudes; only 20.7 per cent look forward to retirement, while 41.7 per cent of white-collar workers welcome it.

There is no significant difference in attitude between persons in different groups at the same income level; urban residents are more favorably disposed to retirement than are rural residents if they are in the low or middle income groups, but groups do not differ at high er incomes.

Those who find retirement disagreeable don't want to quit until an average of 63.7 years, while those who anticipate it hope it comes at an average of 61.3 years; personal health has no bearing on attitude toward retirement, whether it is good, fair or poor.

Greatest fear among 55-year-olds is that retirement will cut them off from other people—77.6 per cent said they found that not meeting people at work would be the most disagreeable feature of retirement.

Other areas of concern were having too much free time—71.7 per cent found this disagreeable; being without a daily routine to follow—64.8 per cent; and having to stay at home too much, 59.1 per cent.

Those who die are not replaced. The original 2,000 were chosen because they represented six per cent of the 45-year-olds in Ontario in 1958. The computer estimates that 800 will survive in 1978, still representing six per cent of the males in the 54-year-old age group.

Kiwanis Club Proposes Drug Abuse Education

TWEED — The Kiwanis Club of Tweed will begin a program of drug-abuse education, according to Clarence Woods, president of the local Club. The program, which is directed to the community in general, but ultimately to those in the upper elementary and junior high schools who have not yet been confronted with an option of voluntary drug use, is called "Operation Drug Alert".

The Club has appointed a co - ordinating committee for the Operation Drug Alert program, Chairman for the committee is Ray Woolfrey. He, and the members of the committee, Dick Simon, Dalton Lindsay and Frank Tate, will undertake a self-education program on the extent and seriousness of drug abuse in general, and in the community in particular.

An action program will be set up to provide a system of drug abuse education for the community. The "Operation Drug Alert" program is a flexible one and, in communities where a problem of drug abuse is not a serious one, will be used as a preventive measure. Each of the Kiwanis clubs across the continent will operate in much the same way with variations in his action program depending on the community need.

"Kiwanis International is well aware that campaigns aimed at stifling drug abuse are already underway in many communities. However, it feels that, because of the diversity of accusations, professions, contacts and talents within each club, that in such communities the Kiwanis is in a good position to unite various drug education campaigns within a specific community," reports the Kiwanis president.

The 'Operation Drug Alert' program is being carried out by Kiwanis clubs throughout the United States and Canada. It constitutes Kiwanis "major emphasis" program in community service for the current year.

The major emphasis program asks that each club committee devote at least some of its efforts to Operation Drug Alert. It aims at enlisting the strength and abilities of each club member of each of the 5,700 clubs in the drug education program.

This program is the result of a survey undertaken late last year by the Kiwanis Club which posed this question to 500 leaders in all walks of life in Canada and the United States.

On the basis of recommendations received from this group of leaders, the Kiwanis identified the need for a program of drug abuse education as providing the most significant challenge to its member clubs. Operation Drug Alert was set up as Kiwanis' major emphasis for the next year to two years, though there is no real terminal date for the program.

This plan has been reviewed by the American Medical Association, the American Pharmaceutical Association, the National Association of Retail Druggists, and the National Coordinating Council on Drug Abuse Education and Information, among others.

Recreation for Elderly Needed Says Red Cross

DESERONTO — Proof of the need of recreation for older people came to the Deseronto branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society at its meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Harold Transue. Many friends and letters of appreciation were received from older citizens who had been guests of the Society at an afternoon tea in Stover Hall. Members also told of oral appreciation, and of requests for more frequent opportunities of this sort for older folks to spend an afternoon together. It is hoped that some such arrangement can be made.

Mrs. Charles Griffith reported that the loan cupboard is still very useful and very popular. Numerous articles had been returned during the past month, and others had been borrowed, including a wheelchair.

The members are appealing for non-members to come and assist them with sewing. They themselves have completed an astonishing amount of work, including 15 layettes, but now have on hand 24 A line dresses to be completed before the end of the year. These are very simple to make but the members are not sure that they will be able to finish the job in time in addition to all the other work, including pants and shirts for children of tropical countries. Volunteers are requested to call Miss Ruth Lloyd.

Says Old Homes Record of Past

"It is regrettable that many fine old homes are not being preserved as they are an important record of the past," said Carl E. Reid, supervising principal of Picton Public Schools.

He was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the United Empire Loyalists Association held at Corby Public Library in Belleville.

"While many of these old homes are being restored there are many instances in which their original architectural beauty is lost due to additions and such which do not fit into the original style had denoted a particular period," observed Mr. Reid.

Using slides to illustrate different types of architecture of homes in this district, Mr. Reid urged that persons be more observant and attempt to place the period which they represented preservation of such homes.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Lab Technician Wrong to Smoke

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am nervous about writing this letter because I don't like to complain. My question is this: Is it wrong for a technician to smoke while he (or she) is running and taking tests on a patient?

And how about cleanliness? When a specimen of blood is taken, no alcohol or anything else is rubbed on my arm before the needle is inserted. My husband says forget it. But I can't. Am I being too finicky? — Mrs. C.

Comment: If any laboratory technician had a cigarette dangling from his lips, and tried to push a needle into my arm without disinfecting the skin, I'd jump up from there and say, "Thank you, but you are not getting a blood contribution from me."

Incidentally, in spite of what your husband says, I'd also consider a change of doctors — or, at least a talk with your doctor about it. He may be unaware of the sloppy technique going on behind his back.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am in my late 60s and my eyesight is failing badly. I have been buying store glasses all these years but they don't help any more. Should I see an eye specialist? Meanwhile, would you be willing to make three or four guesses as to what might be the trouble? — Mr. M

Comment: I'll make five. I: All you may need is a change of glasses after expert examination. Other possibilities are cataract, glaucoma changes in the retina due to long-standing, untreated diabetes and detached retina.

All guesses, you understand. But all reason enough for you to see the eye specialist.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am the mother of a 5-year-old boy. My question is about disciplining him. We have spanked him with our hand, but now my husband feels we should be more severe; namely, use a wooden rod. My husband says he needs this punishment to become a man. What's your opinion? Mrs. B.

Comment: For a man to know how to punish his son, it's necessary first that the man grow up to be a man — and not remain immature.

I don't believe in "rods" or any other adjunct to the open hand. There are too many child-beaters around as it is. And even more than the frequent use of the open hand, I advocate parental reliance on practical psychology. It works better and everyone is happier for it.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I used the birth control pill for two months. We have been trying to have another baby for six months now, but I am not pregnant. We have one baby now. We want another very much.

I can't help worrying that the pills have something to do with the fact that I can't get pregnant again. My doctor tells me there is nothing to worry about; that the pills might even have made me more fertile, and that taking them for two months would not have done any harm. Do you agree with my doctor? — Mrs. L.

Comment: I agree.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been told my nervousness and dizziness is due to low blood sugar. But I keep on smoking two packs of cigarettes a day and drinking at least 10 cups of coffee. Are they harmful? — Mrs. L.

Comment: I'm sure you've been told to go on a high protein diet and eliminate most sweets. Well, I believe that smoking and drinking coffee aggravate hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). Why not try eliminating them? I think you will notice an improvement.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 20

Your birthday today: Your year ahead is one of experiment, trial and error, dramatic shifts in your interests and fields of action, perhaps relocation. Romantic interests thrive despite, or perhaps even because of the many other pressures at work.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Meditation, any sort of psychological or self study, would go well; business decisions do not. Purchases turn out quite different from expectations.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Resolve that you will stay in good humor. Avoid making promises or crucial choices; just do your best to get through a complex day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Lively sounding but faulty offers abound. Determine to enjoy conversations, compare notes, and pursue routine activities.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your work goes ahead rather well. Check information supplied by other people as some confusion is likely. Romantic impulses can lead to potentially embarrassing circumstances.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Today is best spent resting. If you must do business as usual, double check everything, or put whatever can be delayed. Pride sets you up for a disconcerting incident.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Directions are most likely misleading. Skip material affairs as creative efforts fare better. Some improvised music, for example, could set a whole new style in composition techniques.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Reserves endure as normal for this perplexing day of contradictions. Your intuition shines forth in brief sparks to guide decisions — follow it rather than logic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You have no choice but to collaborate with greater pressures today. Avoid disclosure of any information that is not already quite public: assume nothing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Look and listen carefully. The news contains a subtle significance. Keep your own activities completely above board. Misunderstanding is the greatest hazard.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Friends may cause puzzling incidents. The less you mix into the details, the better. Instead pursue your own dreams.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Pledges from those in authority prove useless today in changing circumstances. Take nothing for granted at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 19—Mar. 20): Legal matters run into complications and are better postponed. Make no promises, rely on nothing beyond your own clear resources now.

Two-man Race For Mayoralty

School Strike Threat Grows

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Roman Catholic separate schools in Prince Edward and Hastings counties are threatened with the mass walk-out of their teachers Dec. 31.

Spokesmen for the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Federation said this morning "there was complete agreement among the 189 teachers" to resign in mass.

The two OECTF officials said from Toronto that salaries are not an issue.

"The issue is dissatisfaction with the manner in which trustees treat the teachers," said Jon Kuchinak, a Toronto teacher and provincial president of OECTA. "It is a master-slave relationship between trustees and teachers."

Both Mr. Kuchinak and Patrick O'Neill, another teacher in Toronto and an official of the Association, called in by the local teachers, said the teachers want the right to ratification of their salary contract by all the membership.

They claimed the contract negotiated last spring by a team of teachers and trustees was not submitted to all teachers under the board's jurisdiction but ratified before signing. The chairman of the teachers' negotiating committee signed, with the understanding she had been empowered to do so by all teachers concerned.

"At a meeting with the trustees Nov. 12 in Belleville, the board conceded to us it didn't have a valid contract," Mr. O'Neill said this morning.

Students Ignoring Real Issues

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's young, radical students are more interested in parading in front of the United States Embassy than working to improve the lives of Indians, Eskimos or Metis, Richard Rohmer said Wednesday night.

Speaking at a meeting of the Administrative Management Society, Mr. Rohmer said the young "rebels" are not tackling the real issues plaguing Canada.

Mr. Rohmer, president of the Mid-Canada Development Corridor Foundation, suggested part of the problem was the influx of United States professors "... who so heavily populate our universities, who have absolutely no commitment to Canada, who haven't the faintest clue of what Canada is, was or will be."

Scott, Ellis Are Nominated

By ROY PEACOCK

A straight two-way fight for the mayoralty, a contest for the 10 seats on council and a possible election for two public utilities commissioners.

That is the way the December 1 municipal election picture shaped up last night following nominations at city hall.

Incumbent Dr. J. Russell Scott and Ald. Richard Ellis will fight it out for the office of mayor in a straight battle for votes.

A third candidate — Ald. Robin Jeffrey — was nominated for the mayoralty as well as for alderman but following the nomination stated she would not run for mayor.

Eighteen candidates received nomination for aldermen and as many as 14 or 15 are expected to remain in the race for the 10 council seats.

Two years ago in the last municipal election 16 candidates sought election as aldermen.

At noon today the following aldermanic candidates had qualified: Andre Mercier, Mrs. Jean Smith, W. S. Sills, Arthur Keegan, Gerald Joyce, E. Arnold Orr, Enos David, Ray Bradshaw, J. B. Corke, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, Jack Ireland, Donald M. Soutter, Gerald Cunningham and Paul Russell.

There were five nominations for the two public utilities commission seats but whether there will be a contest remains to be seen as at noon only the two incumbents, Lyle Langabeer and John W. Deacon had qualified.

All nominees have until 9:00 o'clock tonight to qualify.

Seven sitting council members, Enos David, Robin Jeffrey, Gerald Joyce, Arthur Keegan, E. A. Orr, Paul Russell and Kenneth Soden, received nomination at last night's meeting, although Ald. Soden said Monday at council that he would not be running.

Ald. Soden attended last night's meeting but made no comment as to whether he might accept the nomination.

But Ald. Douglas Boyle, council member for the past four years, will not be in the contest. Ald. Boyle's name was not among last night's nominees although there had been no previous indication he would not seek re-election.

Three former council members, H. Jack Allin, Jack Ireland and Ben Corke, received aldermanic nominations. Mr. Allin also received a nomination for the PUC. Nominations for PUC also included sitting members Lyle Langabeer, and John Deacon, Gerald O'Connor and Roland Belanger.

Workers Demand Policemen Stay Out of Italy's Strikes

MILAN (Reuters) — Militant workers today demanded that police stay out of Italy's industrial turmoil following a vicious general strike unrest battle which left one policeman dead and 56 others injured in Milan Wednesday.

Union leaders said the question of police involvement in the wave of walkouts would be aired at meetings in Milan factories and offices today — along with a demand for the immediate release of 19 persons arrested in Wednesday's fighting.

The policeman who died was clubbed over the head with an iron bar in a three-hour bloody clash with Maoist students and left-wing workers as about 20,000,000 Italians from Sicily to the Alps staged a paralysing 24-hour strike.

In Rome, Interior Minister Franco Restivo told parliament the Milan battle flared when 500 members of the Italian Marxist-Leninist Communist Union marched to a theatre where about 3,000 persons were leaving a meeting called by the unions to mark the strike.

As police moved in to maintain order one demonstrator fell to the ground and iron bars from a nearby builder's yard were hurled, the minister said.

As police fired tear gas and repeatedly charged the demonstrators, Maoist students wearing red scarves around their faces against the tear gas came running to join the fight.

The general strike, only the fourth since the Second World War and probably the most effective of them all, was called to demand cheaper rents and better housing.

The strike was almost total support. Practically all factories, stores, bars, movie houses and transportation services closed down leaving the centres of most cities like ghost towns.

Polish Plane Is Hijacked

VIENNA (AP) — Two men hijacked a Polish airliner en route from Warsaw to Bratislava in Czechoslovakia today and forced it to land in Vienna.

Officials said the two men, described as young, forced the four-man crew and the hostess at gunpoint to change the plane's course to Vienna.

In addition to the crew and the hostess, there were 16 passengers aboard the Antonov-24 plane of the Polish airline LOT.

Ships Link Up Safely

Moon Visitors Catch Their Ride Home

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 12's moon explorers blasted off the bleak lunar surface Thursday, chased their mother ship 236 hours and linked up safely for the long journey home.

Charles (Pete) Conrad and Alan L. Bean, the third and fourth humans to land on the moon, skillfully guided their lunar ferry Intrepid through a series of rocket firings to catch Richard F. Gordon Jr. in the command vessel Yankee Clipper.

The two ships manoeuvred into position and then gingerly moved together to lock together nose-to-nose like first time they had been attached since Intrepid started the descent to the moon Tuesday night.

Conrad and Bean were to transfer into the command cabin after assembling their gear.

Their target, the command ship Yankee Clipper, with Richard Gordon at the controls, was 65 miles overhead and about 50 miles ahead at the time of ignition.

By the time the lunar ferry Intrepid achieved orbit seven minutes later, Gordon was more than 300 miles ahead and the chase was on.

On the way up, the astronauts reported a master alarm flashed on briefly, but they could detect nothing wrong.

Conrad said he "got to watch ing that problem" and allowed a slight overburn of 1½ seconds, which he was able to trim out.

Conrad and Bean will transfer into the command ship and later today the astronauts plan to deliberately crash Intrepid on the moon, about 18 miles from Apollo 12's base, to excite a moonquake device left on the surface.

Then they'll spend an extra day in lunar orbit, photographing future landing sites before starting back to earth Friday.

Splashdown is scheduled for 3:57 p.m. Monday in the Pacific.

The four-legged descent stage that lowered them to the moon Wednesday served as a launching pad today and was left behind on the moon, along with five scientific instruments and unneeded boots, tools, trash and other items dumped there by the astronauts.

Tucked inside with them are 50 to 100 pounds of carefully documented rock samples from at least six craters; soil dug from a foot beneath the moon's surface; hundreds of photographs and five pieces clipped from an unmanned Surveyor spacecraft that soft-landed on the moon 31 months ago.

Also there was a bit of the fine black powder that adhered to Conrad and Bean as they walked the surface.

"Man, is it filthy in here," Conrad reported. "We must have 20 pounds of dirt and all kinds of junk. Al and I look like a couple of bituminous coal miners. But we're happy."

Conrad also reported that he had fallen down one time while outside. When Mission Control asked if either of them had knelt down to retrieve rocks, he replied: "I'd take the shovel and stick it in the ground and just do an arm pushup and lean down and pick a rock off the ground with my other hands. I fell over once out there and Al picked me up. It's no big deal."

He added that both did kneel at times to gather samples.

Both men reported they did not get tired working outside but that they did get thirsty.

"We were really thirsty after the second time out," Conrad said.

Intrepid has only one liftoff engine. It must work, or the astronauts would be stranded with less than a day's supply of oxy-

Once linked up, the three spacemen will spend an extra day in lunar orbit photographing future landing sites. On Friday, they'll shoot out of lunar orbit and streak for a splashdown in the Pacific Monday.

Apollo 12 astronauts will bring home the harvest from more than a day spent on the cratered, dusty surface by Conrad and Bean, including more than seven hours spent outside Intrepid by each man.

Their booty could help scientists learn the origin of the moon and perhaps the earth and

Scientists Planning To Mine the Moon

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Scientists are planning to mine the moon.

At the United States bureau of mines research centre near here, and at six other locations, scientists have been experimenting for four years on way to harvest any natural resources astronauts may find on or under the lunar surface.

Scientists say the aim is to use lunar materials to build and support manned moon stations.

It will probably be too expensive to ship materials from the earth to the moon and vice versa.

"Even if we found pure platinum on the moon, it would cost too much to bring it back," said Thomas C. Hutchinson, over-all project director.

The ultimate goal is to set up manufacturing processes on the moon to speed up the later exploration of such planets as Mars and Venus.

Saving Lives Their Goal

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Life Line — known internationally as a 24 - hour counselling service — stood still long enough last night to look back at it's beginnings and glance ahead to tomorrow.

Although the pause was only momentary in the active life of the six-year-old organization, it was just long enough for an exchange of ideas and a thoughtful assessment of how big a gap the ocean makes.

Talking to his audience of Life Line counsellors and trainees, the director of the Life Line Centre in Sydney, Australia was not so much concerned about generation gaps as he was ocean gaps.

Rev. Ian Miles, on a 20 - day tour of North American Life Line centres, termed the purpose of the tour as an attempt to share together some of the successes of the Life Line training program difficulties, and at the same time gather some bright ideas because we haven't all the answers."

The impetus that sent Rev. Miles and six other Australians on an around-the-world tour was the Second International Life Line convention in Chicago Nov. 14 to 16.

"At least 25 more will be in operation in the next 12 months," he informed his listeners.

Rev. Miles, a minister in the Methodist church, has been the director at the Sydney Life Line Centre for the past year-and-a-half.

Asked how he first got involved with the counselling organization and how he views his position, he explained, "There is tremendous satisfaction in this job.

"But getting satisfaction aside for the moment," he continued, "it is my strongest conviction that I am where God wants me to be. I am where I can serve best.

"If I had anything to offer, I honestly believe there is nowhere I could have found a job which could provide the amount of interest and creativity.

"The most exciting thing, for me, is working with people at their point of deepest need," he added.

The Sydney Centre has a full-time staff of 33, and an annual budget of more than $85,000 — serving the two million citizens of the city.

Talking about the day-to-day encounters in his function as director, Rev. Miles related that he keeps a watchful eye over proceedings, but particularly wants to make sure the principles of Life Line are applied in the best way possible.

Pointing to the success of the organization, the director singled out Belleville's operation to compare to the mammoth one of Sydney.

"We operate on a budget of $85,000, while you function with a financial limit of $500. If this does not testify to the success of Life Line, the adaptability and relevance of the whole project, then I don't know what will."

"It is not a case of transplanting ideas from point A to point B, but rather a continuance of the principles and framework behind Life Line."

Rev. Miles then briefly described these as understanding Christian principles know ledge of the human personality, and an awareness of specific area problems, such as alcoholism.

Also a guest during the evening was Dennis Millikin, from the Life Line Centre in Newcastle, Australia. He was on a similar tour, his path crossing that of Rev. Miles.

Rev. Miles summed up the Ideals Life Line stands for when he concluded his talk by saying simply, "don't try to do people good — just love them."

Thurlow Council Opposes New Subdivision Scheme

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

CANNIFTON — A proposed 228-home subdivision to be built 4½-miles east of the CNR crossing near the express terminal in Thurlow Township has so far failed to get off the ground.

The 137-acre project was discussed yesterday in detail as Jack Parrott, the man proposing the subdivision, visited Thurlow Township council at its regular monthly meeting.

Township bylaws and council's wishes are so far blocking construction of the subdivision.

It was planned for construction when the land in question was outside the township's area subdivision controls. The property involved has since come under subdivision controls.

As a result, the project now comes in conflict with a Thurlow Township bylaw which states that all homes must front on a public road. Many of the interior lots of the proposed subdivision fail to meet this requirement.

"We wouldn't be able to issue permits," explained clerk-treasurer E. M. Dafoe this morning.

But Mr. Parrott wants council to take over road allowances, thus making the proposed lots applicable to the bylaw.

However, council yesterday also voiced concern over drainage and the fact that houses in the subdivision would not be fully serviced. The township will not consider taking over the roads unless the lots are fully serviced, it said.

"I don't think they need to be fully serviced," Mr. Parrott told council, explaining that the services would come in the future. "I think you'll see services coming."

While explaining plans put forward by Mr. Parrott, Reeve Horace Casey said, "It doesn't show us anything except lines on a piece of paper.

"I think you're going to have to fight with the town ship on every step of the plan," he added.

Crash Injures Monsignor

A well-known Belleville Roman Catholic clergyman was injured, yesterday when his car was in collision with a school bus on Highway 2.

Provincial police say Msgr. John A. Carley, 52, pastor of St. Joseph's Parish in east Belleville, suffered a broken leg in the accident. He was treated and released at Bellevilla General Hospital.

The accident occurred near Elmwood Drive, east of the city limits.

LESS IN DEBT

SASKATOON (CP) — It would cost Saskatoon residents $289 each to pay off the city's net debt, city council statistics show. However, council was told this was an improvement from 1967 when the per capita debt was $308 and 1966 when it was $304.

Until the days forget to shine,
I will remember him.

Warden and Mrs. George Foster

Annual Banquet

Prince Edward County Honors Warden

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The annual warden's banquet was held last night at the Masonic Hall, Picton, with more than 250 persons in attendance. Guests were greeted at the door by Prince Edward County Warden George Foster and his wife.

Later, speaking from the head table, Warden Foster remarked, "Writing the guest list for this banquet proved to be the most difficult job I have had all year — there just wasn't enough room for the many persons I would like to have invited. I decided, said Mr. Foster, to ask all members of the township council that I have sat with in Sophiasburg since 1961."

Mr. Foster then introduced Mr. Roy Ketcheson, who represented Sophiasburg as warden in 1939 and was, until this year, the last warden to come to county council from that township. Both Sophiasburg Township Council and Prince Edward County Council members were then introduced to the gathering by Warden Foster.

Guest speaker for the banquet, Mr. J. K. Bradford, president of Loyalist College, Belleville, was presented by Sheriff Herbert Colliver, Mr. Bradford, originally from Toronto, was for 19 years placement officer at the University of Toronto and was recently one of 19 Belleville citizens to receive an award commended to him as a goodwill ambassador.

"When I gave thought to the assignment that has been given to me to speak to you, I was determined that I would try to avoid the substance. I have great respect for the integrity of those of you who make up the county — I feel that the civic leadership and the reasoned and deliberate approach that is special to this part of the world gave me the chance to speak more seriously and in greater depth about some of the basics that both you and I must face in this everyday world of ours than I might have done elsewhere.

"I want to take advantage of the wonderful opportunity of being here in Picton tonight to exchange ideas with you about our education world of local administration in the context of the confused society which surrounds us," stated Mr. Bradford.

The speaker urged his listeners to take a positive attitude toward administrative organization. Remembering that while it is easy to criticize it is also possible to take a very positive look in this direction. He referred to his recent examination of educational establishments in several forms.

"Varieties of education are as numerous as the imagination of man. They range all the way from the school master with his cane, whipping the heads of the unfortunate group of youngsters in their unexciting, dusty little schoolroom to an incredible college in the United States that has translated the ideas of the new administrative structure of radicals into a grotesque actuality.

"By the way, I have noticed that the young rebels all want to remain under conformity of an established structure for the sake of prestige. In fact, their new administration requires the authority of our administration to survive," observed the speaker.

Mr. Bradford continued to point out that in the Quinte area recently a number of representative university students had expressed their wishes not only to be the architects of their educational societies but also the administration.

He suggested that the administration faces the problem, occasionally, of being on the defensive because they have allowed themselves to become concerned about occasional examples pulled out of context to prove a case.

Mr. Bradford said that his main concern was centred on the time wasted with the defensive approach.

"The real aim of administration should be to produce the ultimate end results whether these results be in education, local government development of welfare services, or whatever else we need to maintain our society at its present level," commented Mr. Bradford.

Concluding his address, he spoke of the importance of developing specialists. "It is not really difficult to develop a specialist. All it requires is interest, motivation, and the particular combination of talents that specialization demands. The difficulty lies in finding the special individual with that talent built into him who can give leadership of administrative co-ordination to the specialist, who can provide them with the resources in a proportion in which they will have their greatest effectiveness; who can relieve them of the administrative detail which, in turn, wastes their own allocation of time. These people are rare but they are the threads that hold together the entire tapestry of this affluent and exciting world in which we live.

"The machines can do a lot of work for us on a routine level. The specialists can concentrate on our special problems. I would leave you with the thought that the success of this new world of ours will rise or fall on the quality of those who co-ordinate the specialist and who also set up the machine.

"I have yet to see any effective substitute for our own order of life. Let us strive that we shall not starve that reason for lack of the tools, both human and financial, to direct the job," concluded Mr. Bradford.

Seated at the head table during the banquet were Mr. and Mrs. Norris Whitney, Mayor and Mrs. H. J. McFarland, Chief Justice Dalton Wells, Judge and Mrs. W. R. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. George Hees, Warden and Mrs. George Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Colliver, Rev. and Mrs. James Cullen and Mr., and Mrs. Richard Sheehy.

At the conclusion of the evening, Warden Foster was presented with a marble ash tray and matching table lighter by his son, Earl, on behalf of the family. County council presented him with two pieces of luggage while Sophiasburg Township Council commemorated his term as county warden with the presentation of a photograph depicting Mr. Foster in his robes of office.

Teachers' Strike Possible

But this morning, E. Buckley, chairman of the separate school board, denied the claim.

"The statement is not correct. In our opinion, we have a contract," he asserted.

The matter came to a head Nov. 17, when, at a meeting at Club Canara, the teachers voted by secret ballot to tender their resignations on Nov. 30, to be effective Dec. 31.

"All but 28 of the teachers employed by the board attended the meeting, and those who were absent are being polled by mail," Mr. Kuchinak said.

"We expect they will agree with the majority."

He said about 30 teaching posts occupied by the board also were in attendance and voted "as they saw fit" on the mass resignation.

"Some spoke in favor of the move and some were against it," the provincial president said.

Nov. 30 is the last date at which teachers are permitted to resign from any board for personal reasons. The mass resignation if carried out, means no teachers, except those hired to begin work Jan. 1, will be in the separate schools open after the Christmas holidays.

"As of today, neither I, nor any member of the board, nor any executive official has received any notification whatsoever concerning the reported decision by the teachers," chairman E. . Buckley said this morning.

"What has come to our attention has come in the last few hours, and that through gossip only," he added.

The two OECTA spokesmen said another issue is at stake in the teacher-board dispute.

"The issue is the teachers' right to have a say in the category placement of teachers who have no departmental teaching certificates and who teach on letters of permission," said Mr. O'Neill.

The separate school board employs teachers at four categories or levels — ranging from inexperienced teachers' college graduates in category 1 to graduates with bachelors' degrees, in category 4.

"When department of education certificates do not clearly indicate to what category or level a teacher belongs, teachers wish to define that position," said Mr. Kuchinak. "They are the only group that knows, not trustees."

"The trustees now have the right to place teachers on what ever category they please, and are delegating this placement right to the superintendent of education," Mr. O'Neill said.

"The teachers want a say in defining the categories in which teachers on letters of permission will be placed and they want a say in the salaries paid them," Mr. O'Neill asserted.

Terrance Flynn, a teacher at St. Michael's Academy, and head of a new negotiating group formed last May, had no statement to make this morning.

However, he confirmed that the mass resignation, first hinted last spring, is a strong possibility.

Mr. Flynn formed the new negotiating team after the teachers repudiated the first contract signed.

The contract gives teachers in the separate school system in Hastings, Prince Edward and Nipissing district salaries on a par with those paid teachers with the Hastings county public school board. In some categories, these salaries are $100 a year or more higher than those paid teachers in the same category in metro Toronto schools.

Starting salary for a category 1 teacher is $5,200. Top salary is $11,400, paid a category 4 teacher with 12 years' experience. Annual increments are $300 a year.

Salaries negotiated for if the contract signed last spring have been paid the teachers since September.

The two OECTA spokesmen in Toronto said they are now drafting an advertisement, outlining the teacher's grievances, for inclusion in all newspapers in the area. It is expected to be ready by the end of the week.

Mental Health Group Renamed

The Quinte branch, Canadian Mental Health Association, will be the new name of the group which has been working to promote mental health in the Belleville area for the past 14 years.

At the regular meeting of the CMHA on Tuesday a motion was passed requesting the provincial executive to make the change on the charter of the local group.

The new name reflects more accurately the widespread interest of the Mental Health Association in this area. Services in homes for special care and for rehabilitation of discharged mental patients and other aspects of the Association's program have grown to include areas well beyond the city limits of Belleville including Trenton, Deseronto, Madoc and parts of Prince Edward County.

The local association plays a prominent part in developing treatment facilities for the emotionally and mentally disabled. It was largely the work of the association which obtained for Belleville the services of a psychiatrist and promoted the inclusion of a modern psychiatric unit in the new Belleville General Hospital.

Recognizing the increasing importance of dealing adequately with the problems of prevention as well as treatment in the field of mental health the local branch of the CMHA authorized at its Tuesday meeting an intensive publicity and educational program designed to inform the public at large of the needs and resources available to deal with mental and emotional problems. The educational program will be linked with an intensive drive to increase the membership of the Quinte branch, CMHA.

Under the leadership of president Bert Messacar, the association will also undertake, through its regular monthly meetings in the next year, a study of the most pressing needs in the field of mental health in the local area. It is the aim of the association to develop or promote programs designed to meet these needs.

Dogs Blamed For Thurlow Sheep Deaths

CANNIFTON (Staff) — Thurlow Township Council has taken steps to halt a sheep-killing outbreak in the southeast corner of the township.

Approximately a dozen sheep have been killed since September and it is believed dogs are the problem.

The latest incident was reported on Nov. 13.

It is believed that the dogs responsible are operating at night.

"There is a possibility the owner could be charged with the damages," E. M. Dafoe, clerk-treasurer, explained.

"Of course, wild dogs could be responsible," he added.

What Others Say About Mayor Scott

It's election year in Belleville and already the wheels are rolling. Pleased to learn that Dr. Russell Scott, the incumbent Mayor has announced he will seek re-election, for what will be a three-year term.

With the great progress in the city during his current term, and the fine leadership he has given, it would seem acclamation would be merited, but already competition has been announced.

The Lonely Ones

"I didn't believe there were adults who cared about me before I joined this group. Because I never experienced this concern before, and I want to share my experience with others."

It is difficult to realize this statement comes from a local high school student no longer living at home. Yet there are young people in this sort of predicament, as last week's story about a new teen-adult centre proved.

And is it possible there is the kind of situation reflected in this statement: "In our city there are homes where young people are not welcome, although they live there . . . Young people can't express a point of view there, there is no listening ear. . ."

Or this: "Many young people in this city still going to school, have been thrown out of their homes. They have no place to go. . ."

Yes, such situations exist in Belleville, as they do in other cities. But something is being done here to help these young people, and its concept is all the more meaningful because it involves adults who are genuinely concerned about them. In this bridging of the generation gap there will emerge something of value for both age groups because parents and adults — either by accident or wicked design — are also cut off to a large extent from contact with the young.

Thus next Saturday there will be a fund-raising event to help promote the new centre, The Living Room — Especially for People, as it is called. The event is a "pushathon," in which participants will push a bed 27 miles from Tweed to Belleville.

A spokesman for the group says if the centre is a success it may lead ultimately to establishment of a hostel for students in the over-16 category. That such a centre is needed is an unhappy fact in itself, in terms of the broken homes that are its tragic inspiration — but we can be thankful too that it brings to the forefront people who are willing to try and make the world a happier and more interesting place for these young people.

Tax Scene

Mayor J. Russell Scott and election opponent Richard Ellis were talking about taxes the other night.

Alderman Ellis said if elected he would work to keep taxes down. Mr. Scott countered by saying it was impossible to keep taxes down, they would have to go up some.

And of course time will tell. But meanwhile there are signs of a general nature. Like prices — both big and little. For example, almost 150 per cent of a group of sales and marketing executives from companies surveyed across Canada say prices of their products will go up next year. More than 400 firms, mainly manufacturing companies were queried.

When consider the host of smaller, or should we say routine, things — like the price of milk, up four cents in recent days, and gasoline, not to mention Christmas and greeting cards — single cards are up ten cents from last year so that what formerly was a 25-cent card now costs 37 cents with tax.

So just name it and the cost in most cases is higher than last year. In such circumstances, with municipal costs also rising all the time, so too is the possibility of increased taxes commensurate. It is a vicious inflationary circle, and government economies notwithstanding there seems to be no end to it.

The Moon—Again

Well the Americans have done it again, settling down on the moon for a second look at a lunar surface that must remind them of Macbeth's "blasted heath." Incredible as it is, the operation thus far lacks the tension and excitement of the Apollo XI mission. That is the way it is with people, with human nature. We quickly become bored with the most astounding feats of man, once they have been accomplished.

Credit Balance

When so often an initiative like Belleville Week runs the risk of finishing up in the red, it is an occasion for congratulation of the organizers and all who took part that the week of activities ended with an interim credit balance of $1,301.87. This sum is being turned over to the city. Belleville Week made the city's name known far and wide and its benefits doubtless will be felt for years to come.

Trudeau Magnetism Boosts Ottawa

From Dullsville to Fun-city-on-the-Rideau

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Ladies, pay attention — and since this particular column is for you, let us begin by considering Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau as a socialite.

It used to be Dullsville - on - the - Rideau.

Or at least that is what the self-styled sophisticates who go to Montreal and Toronto to do their shopping always insisted.

And the supposedly smarter women's magazines customarily yawned off the Capital — the few times they deigned to notice it — as a crashing bore.

Perhaps they just might have had something.

For can you, in your wildest dreams, ever imagine Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King — even in those knee-breeches and velvet cutaway he wore to greet Their Majesties on royal occasions — doing the boogaloo?

He was a bachelor, too.

Or can you picture Prime Minister Louis Stephen St. Laurent — so old world that he kept some of the state papers under the bed in his Rexborough apartment — as a swinger? Madame St. Laurent preferred bridge.

As for Prime Minister Lester Bowles Pearson, if it was not a quietly dignified reception on Diplomatic Row, he seldom made the scene. Maryon Pearson thought parties an awful drag.

And Prime Minister John George Diefenbaker, long and firmly on the wagon, usually had better and, for him, more entertaining things to do than stand around in a haze of cigarette smoke, shouting with all the others above the babble.

Anyway, Olivo Diefenbaker saw to it that if they were socializing, they arrived early and stayed as brief a time as common courtesy allowed, because she was so insistent on him getting a full night's sleep.

But in the past year, all that has changed.

Dullsville has come alive.

On some nights now it is Fun-City-on-the-Rideau.

And does Pierre participate!

Like the other night when the National Gallery threw its annual masquerade.

Everyone was there, looking like somebody else.

There was Katie Hepburn, counterfeit, of course.

And the young Shirley Temple, two count 'em) Marlene Dietrichs, and three (triple version) Clark Gables all ducked up as Captain Rhett Butler.

Dr. Doolittle was there with Eliza. So was Lawrence of Arabia, Mary Poppins, Bonnie and Clyde.

There was even a couple playing roles from "Tight Little Island" — not hard to do with all those bars doing never better business.

But best of all, there was Pierre, king.

King, you ask, of what? King of the Bill (Parliament, that is), monarch of all he surveys including the social set.

He came on the floor grinning at all the bexxxx, swivelling his hips, snapping his fingers, every living inch of him the "with it" bachelor prime minister.

With the PM was his date of the evening, Miss Margaret Sinclair, inoffensive daughter of former federal Fisheries Minister Jimmy Sinclair, now a West Coast industrial tycoon.

An auburn - tressed beauty in demure burgundy velvet, she looked and played the part of Juliet until, on the arm of the dapperly black-tied Pierre, she sashayed onto the floor for a marathon medly of mambo. And they went the course.

There were two bands, rock and Latin, and Juliet and her ultra - modern - times Romeo showed the SRO crowd of Who's Who in the newly swinging National Capital how to dig the beat in all and any rhythms.

The best thing about this best of all fun-loving prime ministers is that he is a party hopper and gladdens many a hostess' heart with an unscheduled appearance as he hips from one soiree to another.

Makes her the Bostess with the Mostess, at least for the one gloriously successful social evening when her guests get to gaze upon the PM en plus.

How would you like to have Trudy-on-the-town as the surprise guest of honor at your party, Mlady?

It could happen, you know, but you would have to come to either once-marvellous Montreal or this new Fun-Capital - of - Canada.

But think of what it's going to be like when Pierre Elliott Trudeau, all prime ministers must, bows out.

Downtown Merchants Offer $5,000 for Urban Renewal

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Once again the old sore of urban renewal has been reopened. At a meeting of the Belleville Downtown Merchants' Association, it was proposed the association offer the city $5,000 for completion of the renewal study.

At first glance, this offer would appear to be a generous one. But experience of this association has taught us to tread with caution when they offer to spend their own money.

Why do these people continue to urge the continuation of the urban renewal scheme? Senior governments have, in their wisdom and overall knowledge of the financial picture, decided urban renewal is neither opportune nor practicable at this time.

It would seem that this is the time for reason, responsibility and co-operation with our elected representative in doing all that is possible to bring a halt to the serious problem of inflation.

When referred to by the BDMA, urban renewal has only one consideration — the rebuilding of the downtown area at the expense of the taxpayer.

They have never indicated any interest in the overall development of the city of Belleville, which surely is the ultimate concept of any urban renewal scheme.

It seems to be apparent to all but the BDMA that urban renewal is a pipe dream. The enormous sums of money that would have to be found to even commence this renewal of the downtown is enough to make the average taxpayer shudder.

Even if the study is completed, it cannot be implemented in the foreseeable future. So, if and when it does become a practical proposition, the whole thing would be hopelessly out of date and of no real use anyway.

To be of value, a study such as this has to be ready to be utilized within a reasonable time. In a very short time circumstances change beyond comprehension.

To me, it appears that this offer is little more than a subterfuge to ensure the turn down of the north end shopping plaza.

If this study is completed, the BDMA would have the weapon of "persuasion" in their hands again. As far as I can see, this offer of $5,000 to the city, is nothing more than an insurance payment to hinder the establishment of a new shopping plaza.

DONAT CLEMENT

Parking at Station

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Why is it that the parking at your railway station is so terrible? Usually when one comes to the station there is lots of traffic rushing through, and at times I have had a narrow escape as I turned into the station area.

But that is only one battle. The second one is to find a spot to park. There is obviously too little space to fit too many cars. Thus cars park all over and this week someone parked his car in such a way as to block the exit to my car. Not only did I have to wait till the owner returned, but even then I had to wait till she had "lit up"!

Could the city not acquire more space, or put in meters, to end this intolerable situation that I have to face so regularly? Surely, a progressive city could not move on with such antiquated parking conditions, as anyone who goes to the station on a Friday night can see for himself.

The Nuernberg trial of 20 major German war criminals following the Second World War opened 24 years ago today—in 1945. The International trial occupied nine months and ended in the conviction and sentencing of most of the surviving leaders of the Third Reich for their part in preparing and waging war and for crimes against humanity.

1841—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was born.

1867—The then Princess Elizabeth and Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, were married in Westminster Abbey.

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—United States 7th Army troops took St. Die in Vosges Mountains; Chinese troops fought inside North Burma stronghold of Bhamo; American planes attacked Ruhr Valley; it was announced Belfort had to take place in 1970, possibly considering that the impact of these increases may not be felt until 1971 or thereafter.

But 1970 may be a troublesome year. As the economy remains predicting a slight decline in the United States economy which, because of its dominant position, tends to bring sharper drops among its trading partners.

Consumer restraint may be unpopular with the election year but the ability of the Labor administration to continue to exercise sound economic democratic expansion may determine how long the British boom can last.

Wage Demands...Inflation May Ensue

Britain's Fortunes Improve But Debts Remain High

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain's fortunes are definitely on the upswing, two years after devaluation.

There still is some questioning in the marketplace whether the shift is temporary or long-lasting. But the general mood is one of confidence, giving rise to speculation that the heavy consumer tax burden may soon be eased.

All eyes will be on the labor government's budget next spring, probably the last before a general election.

So far the government has sought to keep the economy bubbling by exerting pressure on exports. Next spring the concentration may be on revitalizing the British consumer market with industry predictions of a substantial income tax cut.

The probability that the government will encourage a rise in domestic purchasing power, partly to keep the voters happy, carries with it the problems that Canada and other countries now face—the difficulty of controlling inflation.

In Britain's case, a sharp rise in inflation could make her exports less competitive with other countries, thereby endangering the progress of surpluses in international accounts on which the defence of the pound rests.

Meanwhile, the monthly surpluses continue to mount. They are not yet apparent in the official foreign exchange reserves which total just a little over $2,700,000,000, but the reason is that the government is using the heavy flow of dollars and other foreign currencies to repay short-term debt.

This policy of concentrating on debt repayment is likely to continue for some years. And the official reserves are thereby unlikely to show much change during that period, although Britain's surplus in her overseas accounts may range between $800,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 during the next 12 months.

One London newspaper, The Daily Mail, suggests that money is pouring into Britain in a much larger flood "than anyone suspects—or the government tells us."

Reacting to that report, a government source argues that the "satisfactory" trend should not be exaggerated. Perhaps the concern over possible exaggeration carries with it a fear that trade unions and others are likely to step up their demands for bigger cuts of the national pie.

Undoubtedly the government will allow more wage increases

Movie Makers at Work

Mrs. C. H. Phillips, grade 6 teacher at Prince of Wales School, and Stanley Else from Moira Secondary supervise a film editing session with the class engaged in making a movie on old and new Belleville. The social studies project is a venture in co-operation on the part of elementary and secondary schools and the community.

Behind Cameras They Learn Whole New Education Concept

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

If the media is the message, it's getting through to 18 Grade 6 pupils at Prince of Wales School in Belleville.

This month they have been engaged in a movie-making venture as a new approach to learning history and geography.

Location shots for their color film, Old and New Belleville, are completed, and the pupils are now embarking on editing, cutting and splicing, under the direction of Moira Secondary School teacher Stanley Else.

For the children, movie making is fun. For their teacher, Mrs. C. H. Phillips, it's an opportunity to get several lessons across at once, and put many recommendations from the Hall-Dennis report on education into effect in her classroom.

Her pupils are learning by individual discovery and inquiry and by experiences best suited to their needs, as the report urges.

"Before this venture began, the children's scope had been limited to the north part of the city," she said. "By moving out to explore their community they have learned things they might never have heard of."

By photographing old buildings and new ones, the pupils compared the past and the present and learned how and why a community grows. Producing, directing, shooting and editing the film is only a beginning. It will be used in social studies classes as an on-going history and geography program.

Moira lent its equipment and Mr. Else's services for the for the Deaf and Albert College conducted the pupils on their tours of institutions.

A parent, Mrs. Merv Sanders, drove the children on their initial tour of discovery, when they decided on subjects to photograph.

Charges Tweed Students Not Included In New School Accommodation Plan

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The new addition under construction at Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc was not designed to accommodate Tweed students when their high school is closed next June.

The charge was made at the meeting of The Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board last night by Laird Morton, chairman of a Tweed citizens' association to save the school.

With William McCrea, reeve of Hungerford, and Thomas Keilty, a member of the former Tweed-Hungerford High School Board, he attended the trustees' meeting to tell them they would be presented with a brief.

It is now being prepared by the committee for the Hastings County Board of Education.

Tweed high school was sold in June, 1968, by the Tweed-Hungerford board to the separate school board. The sale was subsequently blocked by the department of education until proof was given that accommodation was available for the 334 students.

After formation of the county board in January, 1969, the agreement of sale was confirmed and the closure date of the high school was moved ahead to June 1970. The addition to the Madoc school is expected to be completed by then to accommodate the Tweed students. Vocational students in the Tweed area are now bused the 15 miles to Madoc.

Mr. McCrea confirmed Mr. Morton's statement and said accommodation for Tweed students was not provided in the plans for the Madoc addition at the time they were drawn up.

Mr. Keilty clarified the statement by quoting Bruce Porti, a former member of the Bay of Quinte District High School board, who was chairman of the building committee at the time the decision to build the Madoc addition was made.

"Bruce Porti told me the committee asked Ralph Frosts, (now regional director of education in Kingston), if plans should be made to accommodate Tweed students in the proposed addition. According to him, Mr. Frosts, after some hesitation, said 'no'. Mr. Porti told me he is positive there is no accommodation at Madoc for Tweed high school students," Mr. Keilty related.

Rev. Louis Casartelli told the delegation it was his understanding the original purchase agreement between the two boards has been renewed.

"Any further business would involve the repurchase of this school from this board by the Hastings county board," he said. "Is this correct?"

"That would be my understanding," replied Mr. Morton. "All ratepayers, Protestant and Roman Catholic, would like to see this school retained in its present state."

James Lesage, separate school trustee and a member of the 1968 Tweed-Hungerford High School Board added: "The Hastings County board would have to be convinced somehow that they made a mistake, then arrange to buy it back."

"As a matter of curiosity, why did it take a year for the citizens of Tweed to get stirred up enough to fight?" asked Austin Soul, Trenton.

"We started eight years ago," countered Mr. Keilty. "The only way we could proceed was to get our own school board. In this we were successful — otherwise the school would have been closed eight years ago."

Mr. Keilty said copies of the brief now being prepared by the citizens' association for the Hastings County Board will be given "informally, individually to each of you."

He said the committee association delegated would like to meet the trustees at their next meeting to discuss the brief.

Later in the meeting, Mr. Lesage reported on an earlier meeting of the separate school board's Tweed school committee and the citizens' association.

"I thought they would have liked to have us support them," he said. "Even if we were sympathetic to their position, we would take no active part."

The board disbanded the temporary committee set up to negotiate the sale of the school, and transferred responsibility for any unfinished business to the Tweed school renovation committee.

After closure of the high school in June and transfer of the property from the Hastings Board to the separate school board, it will be renovated to become a Roman Catholic senior elementary school housing grades 7, 8, 9 and 10.

Mobile Village Considered For Thurlow Township

Mr. Maxfield was on hand at Thurlow Township council's regular monthly meeting yesterday to discuss his project.

He told council that digestive system of sewage control, as opposed to a lagoon or septic tank system, was what he favored for services. He mentioned using the river, after treatment, as his water supply.

"We are definitely planning on a 15 per cent green area," he said, explaining that the layout of the village would be modern and not jammed together.

Council's decision on the creation of the village will be delayed until more reports from the Ontario Water Resources Commission are received.

In other council action, Reeve Horace Casey was selected to represent Thurlow Township on a joint committee to consider area problems with other municipalities, including Belleville, in this area.

AN EARLIER MARKET

CALGARY (CP) — Marketing cattle at an earlier age through use of a computer is the aim of two Calgary men. Dr. Ronald Lynch, a veterinarian, and Evan Bodrug, an oilman, rancher and engineer, will use a computer in their cattle-plant so that optimum nutritional intake can be accomplished at all times. They hope to market cattle at one year of age instead of the 18 months to two years under the present methods of feeding.

Successful Living

'No Excuse for Boredom,' Says Philosopher

By DORIS CLARK

The famous philosopher Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche said, "In not life a hundred times too short for us to bore ourselves?" And how right he was!

But there are bored housewives; housewives who find themselves bogged down in a morass of drudgery. Why? Sometimes we can blame early marriage, where a young mother has not done her share of living outside of the home first. Sometimes the reason is a lack of interest in housework. Sometimes it is a lack of interest in anything at all outside of home and children.

But there's no excuse for becoming a colorless person with no topic of conversation except children. A homemaker has no time clock to punch. She is free to take time out to read at least one newspaper and weekly news magazine. She needs to know what's going on: the latest news in current events, politics, fashions, literature, science. She needs hobbies or interests which she is at home with. She needs to get out of the home regularly.

Being tied down with children is no excuse. There's time to do the things you really want to do. Such famous Canadian women as Kate Aitken, L. M. Montgomery, and Adelaide Hoodless made their mark while raising families.

Dear Doris: When my steady and I go to a party, he does not sit with me for more than five minutes. I feel like a bump on a log.

Am I insanely jealous, or just an average girl, because when he flirts around with other girls I just feel like crying. I don't show my jealousy because I'm afraid he'll think I'm bossing him around.

I can tell that he realizes he has ignored me all night by the way he acts after. I can't get mad at him because I like him too much. Sometimes I feel so hurt that I just cry my eyes out.

I am 19 and he is 22. — Jealous or What?

Dear J. or W.: Just another so-called "steady" who wants to eat his cake and have it too.

It just won't do. Would you be willing to marry a man who still felt and acted single? You are not insanely jealous but perfectly normal.

Threaten him with permanent neglect unless he wants to spend his time with you when you are out. Better get mad instead of so blessed weepy.

Ann Landers

Doctor's Assistant Upset Over Feelings

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 21 years old, married and have two children. Three months ago I took a job as a doctor's office assistant. Although I was engaged to handle the phone and do book work, I was trained to fill in for the nurse when she is occupied or absent.

ANN LANDERS

Saturday, a 29 year-old boy came in for a physical. I showed him to the examination room and asked him to undress to the waist. Evidently he misunderstood. When I returned a few minutes later, he was completely nude. My first impulse was to tell him to put on his shorts, but for some reason I didn't. I went ahead and weighed and measured him, took his temperature and blood pressure.

He was somewhat embarrassed, but I enjoyed the situation immensely. The feelings I experienced were indecent and I am ashamed of myself. Now, the worst — several times this week I have caught myself daydreaming and hoping other young men would misunderstand the instructions.

I am happily married and can't understand what has come over me. Has something gone wrong with my mind? I am upset over this whole thing and any help you can give me would be deeply appreciated. — HARTFORD.

DEAR HART: Everyone has fantasies and apparently you are having some delayed adolescent frillies. Accept them as such and stop feeling guilty. R. L. Stevenson once said, "We all have thoughts and desires that would shame hell." No true words were ever spoken.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Mr. X was new in town. He presented himself to me and to my family as a well-to-do contractor. He drove a '59 Olds, wore custom tailored suits, and had a different pair of cufflinks for every day of the week.

After a whirlwind courtship of 29 days, I married him. Now, four months later, it turns out that he left Toledo owing everybody. I have seen letters from collection agencies, lawyers, angry merchants and former colleagues from whom he borrowed money. I am afraid to answer the phone because he has run up overdue bills in local shops.

Our marriage is heading for the rocks because all we do is argue about money. I cannot respect a man who has a bad reputation and no integrity. I am also afraid that I might be held responsible for his debts. Is misrepresentation of financial status grounds for divorce? Please advise me. — CASTLES CRUMBLED.

DEAR CAS: See an attorney. The laws vary from state to state. In some states, misrepresentation is grounds for annulment. And let this be a lesson to all the dolls out there who are impressed by external trappings and go husband-hunting with a Geiger-counter.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I often have lunch alone in the coffee shops or at the counters of department stores. Yesterday I was half way through my lunch when a man brought his tray to my table and sat down. There were other places available. In fact, the cafeteria was nearly one-third empty.

I said very courteously, "Excuse me, but I am not particularly interested in your company for lunch." He replied, "I'm sorry, but I work here." It was obvious that he was an employee because he was wearing what appeared to be work clothes and a kitchen worker's cap.

I said nothing more because I didn't wish to cause a scene. I was highly irritated, nevertheless, and got indigestion over it. Would it have been better to have said nothing and written a letter to the store manager? — SITTING DUCK.

DEAR DUCK: It would have been better to have said nothing, finished your lunch, and left. In my opinion, you were unnecessarily abrupt. I saw no evidence that the man behaved in an improper manner.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Special Treat Cheese Biscuits

By MARY MOORE

Last year at this time I noticed an abundance of "help" cries for "different" canapes and hors d'oeurres and appetizers. Of course I tried to come up with satisfactory answers but I resolved then to help the girls on the cocktail circuit this year with some surprise snacks.

Today's Puffy Cheese Biscuits are made from a yeast dough and are popular and thoroughly tested. (I made 100 and they were gone before I could test-freeze them.) Even if you are not a yeast baker you can make these so go ahead and try them and you will have a new snack to serve with tea, coffee or cocktails.

PUFFY CHEESE BISCUITS (36)

1 pkge. granular yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
½ cup margarine (room temperature)
2 tsps. sugar (second amount)
1½ tsps. dry mustard
1 2/3 cups grated old cheddar cheese (at least 6 oz.)
1¼ cups plus 1 tbsp. unsifted all-purpose flour
2 eggs (room temperature)

Into beater bowl measure yeast, water and 1 tsp. sugar. Let soak 10 min. Meanwhile measure remaining ingredients and when yeast liquid has risen add all remaining ingredients and beat on low for 5 min. (This takes the place of kneading.) Grease three cookie sheets with margarine. Dip a silver teaspoon in hot water and spoon little mounds of dough 2½" apart onto cookie sheets. Top them up a little to encourage them to stand high. Let rise until puffy. (Mine took 3 hrs. under a light on the stove.) Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 15 to 20 min. at centre of oven. But use your own judgment — for if you remove them too soon they tend to fall. Serve warm. These reheat to perfection if you have any leftover. I think this recipe is a real find for cheese snack lovers.

Holly Day Luncheon Highlights Event Held by Bridge Street United Church Group

Bridge St. United Church Hall was crowded to capacity yesterday afternoon with over 200 guests present. The occasion was the Holly Day Luncheon and Bazaar sponsored by the UCW of the church.

At the entrance to the luncheon room was a lighted Christmas tree. Carrying through the Christmas theme were white floor candelabra with red candles and snow-covered spruce. Beautiful silver ornaments hung from the ceiling, while Christmas holly and wreaths adorned the walls. Centring the individual luncheon tables were candles and Christmas ornaments.

Carrying Place

Dear Santa

Hi! I just read the column of the newspaper. I read the whole thing and became very excited. My mother and father said I could take a chance on writing you a letter. So I'm writing you a letter. Now to begin, well the reason why I would like to go to Christmas Wonderland is because I haven't ever been there before and I'd like to see you. I'd probably faint if I got a letter sent back saying that my family and I could go but I wouldn't mind. I would like to ask the Fairy Princess for a wish. If I got to go to Christmas Wonderland I would not ask for hardly anything for Christmas. I still dont forget what Christianity means. I means it was when the birth of Jesus was. My sister which is 8 thinks that if I win she would have to stay home alone. She and everyone else is waiting to see if I win. If I got to go I'd be the happiest girl in the world, and my parents would be surprised too. It would be the best Christmas I've ever had if I got to go to Christmas Wonderland. Every one in our family believes in you. It would be a pleasure to know how other people celebrate their Christmas. I'm sorry if I am asking too much but I would sure get carried away. So I better not ask for anything else, but I would like to say good-bye and I love you.

Yours sincerely
Terry Rollins

A Little Extra

I would like to go to Christmas Wonderland to ask the Princess for a wish, talk Santa, and go in the ice palace.

Love Terry Rollins

Springbrook, Ont.
Dear Santa

I would like to visit you in Christmas Wonderland and as I've read many Mother Goose fairy tales and stories of Santa, but to see them all shown in their full real life would be something marvelous to see. It would be something I'd never forget. I would like to thank Santa in person for the wonderful gifts he brought me and my brother and my sister eight years and of coarse put in a good word for this year. I would like to meet the fairy princess, if I am lucky enough to go, my wish for this year will be Peace so all these children in other countries would be happy and have food to eat so they wouldn't be starving to death like I seen on T.V. It would make our Christmas better to know they had something when we have so much. So Santa you won't have to bring us so much if you could take some to these other children that really need it. "Merry Christmas".

Dear Santa

My dad read us the story in the paper about Christmas Wonderland in Toronto. He said we should try to win so I am writing like the paper said. I would like to win so we could see everything there and take my three sisters and mom and dad. Because after Santa came last year all our toys and new things we got burned up in our house.

Everybody was nice to us and gave us more toys. But they wasn't like what Santa brought us so would wish we could go to Toronto and see him and tell him to bring the same things again. I will put down my sisters names with mine. Tessa Stapley — Connie Stapley — Sharlene Stapley and Marlene Stapley.

Dear Santa Claus

My name is Beverly Donovan. I am 10 years old. I would love to go to wonderland, because I have never been to a place like that before. I do not live with my parents but I stay with friends. This year there isn't going to be a Santa Claus parade so I won't get to see him except on television. I would be glad if you chose my letter so I and the people I stay with could go to wonderland. It would be fun and exciting. I would feel happy if I were to go to wonderland.

Beverly

Dear Santa
Dear Santa I want to go to Wonderland because I have never gone to Wonderland in my whole entire life. I havent been to Disney land. I saw in the paper that if we wrote a letter and you picked 3 of the winners, if you picked me and my family will go to toronto and see Wonderland I would like to talk to the talking police car. I would like to have lunch with snoopy or one of his friends and I would love to see all the rest of the group. Please!!!!!!

Area Church Dates To 1880

DESERONTO — Early records of the Church of the Redeemer indicate that the first Moderator of Session and Minister was Rev. R. J. Craig, M.A. Mr. Obijah Smith and Mr. J. W. Dexter were its first Elders. Some time later, E. W. Rathbun, S. Russell, James Mackie and Fred H. Sase were ordained elders and added to the Kirk Session. The congregation was then known as Mill Point Union Church.

In the year 1880 Hugh R. Rathbun, realizing the need of a Presbyterian place of worship, made plans to build. The corner stone was laid in 1881 and in 1883 he donated not only the site, but also the very beautiful stone church which still stands, known as the Church of the Redeemer.

The vote on Church Union, 1924 - 5, resulted in an almost unanimous decision to maintain allegiance to the Presbyterian Church of Canada. Services have thus been carried on continuously according to Presbyterian form for more than seventy-five years.

Although much reduced in membership during recent years, the congregation is making a brave effort to carry on. The church property is free from all encumbrances but certain liabilities are being carried, all of which, it is hoped, with the assistance of friends, will be cleared off in the near future.

An important feature of the work of this church has always been the Sunday School, which at one time had an enrolment of over 200.

Deseronto Council 'Routine'

The meeting of the Deseronto Council held recently was devoted almost entirely to routine business.

Councillor Clayton Brooks announced that he would not run for re-election and the announcement was received with regret, as, during his eight years of office, he has become increasingly valuable in his conscientious work for the town. Mayor J. W. Sharpe stated the following morning that he did not know who could replace him as chairman of the streets committee.

Following his announcement of retirement, Councillor Brooks took everyone by surprise by making a motion that the honorarium for 1969 for councillors should be increased by $2 for each meeting. This includes the two regular meetings and special and committee meetings. The honorarium for 1968 was $12 per meeting. The motion passed.

The dog-catcher, Wayne Brant, reported to Council that he had picked up 17 dogs since November 1 when his duties began. Some of these were reclaimed almost immediately, but of the ten which were taken to the Ontario Humane Society shelter near Napanee, only five are left. Two were reclaimed by their owners and three were "adopted". Mrs. Chester Wemp, custodian of the shelter, reported Tuesday.

There was some discussion regarding the procedure in case of acclamation following recent nominations. Under normal conditions, reeve, mayor and three councillors must either drop out or come up for re-election this year. However, Councillor George Lyons resigned as councillor in order to run for the reeveship, necessitating the election of a fourth councillor to hold office for only one year.

Clerk - treasurer Joseph Lyons explained that the proper procedure is covered by the Municipal Act.

Buys Land For Wildlife, Pays $1 Fee

CANNIFTON (Staff) — George Woodhouse, local conservationist and wildlife sanctuary operator, has become the owner of 10 acres of ponds directly east of Elmwood Drive.

The new 10-acre site will complement the three acres he already owns. In past he had leased the 10 acres, but decided he would like to purchase it.

Mr. Woodhouse intends to fence the property, using it as a wildlife sanctuary, in particular for birds.

Council has agreed to sell it to him on condition that it remain a fish and game preserve. Should the use of the property change, ownership would immediately revert back to Thurlow Township.

St. Julien Chapter IODE Honors Member

The highlight of the November meeting of the St. Julien Chapter IODE was a presentation of a 50 year pin to Mrs. George Watkin. Mrs. W. Gilbert, a member for 53 years, awarded Mrs. Watkin with the pin. Both women are still active members of the St. Julien Chapter.

Mrs. Watkin contributed a great deal to the chapter, especially during the war years when she held the position of regent for four years. Many chapter members were present for this ceremony and both Mrs. Watkin and Mrs. Gilbert were given an attractive corsage for the occasion.

Mrs. George Hume, honorary regent of the chapter, congratulated Mrs. Watkin and read passages from a poem written especially for St. Julien IODE for its 50th anniversary. The message helped to express how proud the IODE members were to have Mrs. Watkin in their group and how she is a symbol of the organization and what it stands for.

Previous to the presentation an informal business meeting was held filling the members in on the recent fall activities and future plans. Mrs. Bailey, secretary, reported on the success of the "meet the IODE."

An openhouse held during Belleville Week 65 visitors came to view displays and learn the role of the IODE in the community.

A report was given of the district dinner held in Campbellford in October. Many members attended to hear Mrs. E. MacKay, Provincial Convener of Services at home and abroad.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis, education secretary, reported on the bursaries awarded recently by the St. Julien Chapter to students of veterans in this area.

Timothy Foster of Quinte Secondary School was awarded $100 and Scott Sine of Quinte received the $100 U. E. Mac Coll bursary.

Services secretary, Mrs. M. Kerr asked that all knitted hand made articles be turned in to be parcelled and sent away. Volunteers were asked to aid with the Blood Donors' Clinic to be held in December and Citizenship Court, December 9.

Women's Institutes

SIDNEY SOUTH WI

The November meeting of the Sidney South WI was held at the home of Mrs. G. Wilman with 20 members and six visitors present.

In the absence of the president, 1st vice president Mrs. G. Wilman conducted the various items of business.

Mrs. M. Nobes gave a most interesting talk on the recent Historical Society meeting she had attended at St. Andrew's Church in Belleville. Highlights were a tour of the Belleville Museum and the viewing of many relics of past years. The members were also taken on a tour of Corby Distillery where they saw films and received pamphlets and tea towels.

Mrs. K. Rush gave her report on the recent 43 Annual Area Convention held at Club Canara in Belleville. Two hundred and forty-seven delegates and visitors attended the two day convention and heard Mr. James Clarke speak on Education.

The 4-H leaders' training school will be held January 29 and 30 with Mrs. J. Caddick, Mrs. D. Joss, Mrs. J. Best, Mrs. H. DeBoer, and Mrs. H. Regensburg planning to attend.

Mrs. M. Nobes introduced the guest speaker for the evening Mrs. Jeffrey, District President, who gave a most informative talk. She based her commentary on a trip she had taken to the Canadian West. While in Edmonton, Alta. she toured an Indian Reservation and watched the making of mukluks out of hide, belts, beaded work, sweaters, birch bark and bear paws for a wide range of uses. She stated that there are 2,274 Reserves in Canada, with 160,000 people speaking 10 different Indian languages. Many young people are now getting out into the world and attending university or teaching and nursing. While in Saskatchewan, she had the privilege of attending a Homemaking Club, similar to our Women's Institute, which pledged to help the aged and less fortunate while improving community living and the status of women. Mrs. G. Sills thanked Mrs. Jeffrey for an interesting message and presented her with a gift in appreciation.

The annual Christmas party will be held December 6 in Centenary Church Hall and the short course "The Main Dish Makes the Meal" will be held Nov. 17 at Mrs. R. Nobes' home.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. M. Nobes for sending birthday cards to Hastings Manor for November on behalf of Sidney South WI.

A $5.00 donation to the Mental Health was also given.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "For goodness sake, why don't you watch what you're doing? You got filthy fingermarks all over the door. Why can't you be careful when you're using your paints!"

A child often needs to be told about her careless actions — but she will learn just as well if the telling is in a friendly, rather than a scolding, manner. A tirade only arouses resentment; a polite request to repair the damage shows the child what to do, without making an issue of the misdeed.

Mother: "Laura, please get a soapy cloth and wash the fingerprints off the door before the paint dries. Maybe you had better wash your hands first."

Dr. R. Sanders Addresses Deseronto UCW

DESERONTO — "To me, the words God and love are synonymous." So said Dr. Robert Saunders of Belleville speaking to the women of the evening unit of the UCW last Thursday evening. Dr. Sanders is the medical worker in the Belleville General Hospital, and a record number of women attended the meeting to hear his views on modern morality.

Dr. Sanders contrasted the morality of Victorianism with the morality of today. In the days of Victoria, he noted, people were ignorant of themselves and of the significance of events of the day. They were inhibited, afraid to speak openly of their beliefs and feelings. Today, he said, people are aware and they look about them and do not like what they see, war, in particular. They are not inhibited, and openly express their views. They do not know where they are going, and are not afraid to say so. They rebel against conventions and withdraw. Long hair, unconventional dress and drugs are all symptoms of withdrawal, he declared, just as surely as though they withdrew within themselves and sat with folded hands, refusing to speak.

They listen to people talk about love, and look about them and see war. They feel the world is hypocritical and they want no part of it.

Dr. Sanders held the attention of everyone and was afterwards plied with questions during the discussion period.

Mrs. William Hendry led the meeting, conducting the devotional period unassisted, and reading an article on "Why we had better know what is happening". The business meeting was short, dealing principally with final plans for the bazaar December 29 and with a report of the meeting of the executive held the previous day.

Dr. Sanders was introduced by Rev. William Hendry and was thanked by Mrs. Hendry.

Rev. A. Bateson Addresses Ministerial Association

Rev. Arthur Bateson of the Canadian Auxiliary of the Leprosy Mission addressed the Ministerial Association on Tuesday, Mr. Bateson, formerly of Vancouver, B.C., has come to live in Belleville and set up an office for the region comprising Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

The Leprosy Mission began through the efforts of Wellesley Bailey, a British Civil Servant, who went to India as a policeman. On returning home, he reported on the plight of the lepers. Two women raised £300 to assist him in setting up a home for lepers. Thus the mission began in 1874.

The mission helps all missionary societies which are working with lepers. They work in 20 countries and have 32 homes and hospitals. Last year they granted three - quarters of a million dollars to 30 missionary societies.

Three years ago the mission personnel, in co - operation with the World Health Organization, contacted over 13 million lepers (exclusive of Russia and China) and invited them to come for treatment. About 3 per cent responded. With the population explosion, the present estimate of the number of lepers in the yorld is 20 million.

One of the thrilling instances related by Mr. Bateson concerned a boy in India who was treated in their hospital and cured of his leprosy. When he returned home, his family and community rejected him. He was made a ward of the mission which undertook his education. Today, he, Dr. C. K. Job, is head of the Department of Pathology of the Madras University Medical School, and president of the All - Asia Pathological Society. His wife is an ophthalmologist. Recently when the Leprosy Mission obtained an electron microscope for one of their two research centres, Dr. Job offered his services for further research into the disease of leprosy.

The Ministerial Association completed plans for Week of Prayer Services in the New Year, January 4-8. The first will be held in the Wesleyan Methodist Church with Rev. H. G. Hedley - Smith, senior pastor at Trenton Air Base, bringing a message especially geared toward youth.

Local pastors wil lspeak at the succeeding services to be held at Emmanuel Baptist, Fre Methodist, Christian Reformed and St. Andrew's Presbyterian. Following the final service, at which Dr. Harry Davis will speak, the President of the Ministerial, Rev. Laurie Sutherland, and his wife, will be host to the ministers and their wives for an hour of fellowship.

Camp for Mentally Retarded Discussed

NAPANEE — A meeting of region II of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded was held recently in the Shah Road Adult Rehabilitation Centre, popularly called the "workshop" of Lennox and Addington. It will be the last of such meetings under the present conditions. The regional boundaries are being changed and Lennox and Addington will then be in region 10.

The meeting was well attended, with two representatives from Brockville, four from Kingston, two from Picton, three from Belleville, and five from Napanee. In addition to the regional president, Harold Todd of Newburgh, and Mrs. Todd, who is the regional recording secretary. Also present was Rick Tuti, area representative for the OAMR for the eastern part of the province.

The main business of the meeting concerned a proposed camp for the mentally retarded and reports on several preliminary meetings which have already taken place. Mr. Fritz Juliussen, president of the local association, Mr. Harold Todd, past-president of the association, and regional president, and Mr. Earl Moses of Kingston, z regional director, had attended one of those meetings in Pembroke November 1. Mr. Juliussen admits that he went to that meeting determined to oppose the plan, principally because of its cost, but came away with an open mind.

A site is available just over the border in Quebec, not far from Pembroke, and the camp would serve the two provinces, Ontario and Quebec. The National Capital Commission has a special security prison, now unused, and would like to see it used by some worthy organization, leasing it at $1 per annum. The question of money is all that is stopping the acceptance of this offer in some quarters. It would cost at least $10,000 the first year just for equipment, and the Ontario Association doesn't have that kind of money. Each local association is responsible for financing its own workshop, and even this is a heavy sum.

ST. MARK'S ANGLICAN CHURCH FAMILY LIFE GROUP

DESERONTO — The Family Life Group of St. Mark's Anglican Church, headed by Mrs. Ted Lindsay and formed in January, is becoming increasingly useful as its members gain experience. The members meet regularly in an informal way, one of the purposes being fellowship. They are taking on more and more responsibilities. Following the induction of their new rector Rev. John Neal, they organized and served refreshments. Three of them, Mrs. Lindsay, Mrs. Frank Tinney and Mrs. David Johnson are co - operating in providing leadership for the Girls' Auxiliary, and the Junior Auxiliary. The work was formerly done by Mrs. A. F. Dowdell, wife of the previous rector who recently retired. She had had 26 years experience in such work.

Their latest venture was Saturday afternoon, when a party was held with the Little Helpers as hosts and hostesses. The J.A.'s and G.A.'s and all parents were the guests.

Mr. Neal had a short service in the church, and then all repaired to the parish hall where the older girls provided th program. Everyone enjoyed the refreshments.

If it wasn't for the Ontario Department of Labour you might still be living in the good old days.

It's 1908 and there are still children working in the mines.

But you're better off because you have a skill and you work in a factory. You work a normal day like everybody else. Fourteen hours.

You make eight dollars a week if you work the full seven days. Most men do, because families need food and a roof over their heads.

Your holiday is Christmas. One day. You need more, but nobody's going to pay for it, and besides, there are others just waiting to take your job.

And payment for overtime hasn't even been invented yet.

Nightmare? No, that's the way it was.

But over the last fifty years things have changed. Trade unions, management, public opinion and the Ontario Department of Labour have brought about legislation to improve job conditions and wage standards.

Child labour is long abolished, and we've managed to establish a legal maximum of 8 hours work a day and 48 hours a week.

The law also guarantees you a minimum wage of $1.30 an hour, with time-and-a-half for any hours you work over the 48-hour maximum.

Today, you are guaranteed a paid vacation. And last year we struck a blow for working women, strengthening the equal pay for equal work law.

And, if you're working in Ontario without the protection of a union, or if you're a new Canadian or a native Canadian unaware of your employment rights, the Ontario Department of Labour offers help for the asking.

There is still much to be done. But we've already made things considerably better than they were in the good old days.

As well as upholding employment standards, and regulating the private employment agencies within the province, our Manpower Division provides an industrial training program and directs the Women's Bureau and the Office of the Athletics Commissioner.

Another division deals with industrial safety, construction safety, the inspection of all the elevators and boilers within the Province, and the certification of operating engineers.

We also administer the Labour Relations Board, the Conciliation Services Branch, and the Human Rights Commission.

With such varied areas of responsibility the Department of Labour is much more than just the Department of Labour. It's really the Department of Labour and a whole lot of other things.

Ontario Department of Labour, Employment Standards, and a whole lot of other things.

Housewife's Lament

Late Hours Killing Us All

HOUSTON (AP) — The pretty blonde housewife stepped outside, shivering in the post-midnight darkness, and looked skyward.

"Where's that moon?" said Sue Bean.

"I'm going to have to speak to my husband about these late hours," she said. "They're killing us all."

Man's third lunar excursion had just ended, and Alan Bean and Charles Conrad were tucked safely into Apollo 12's moonship Intrepid.

"They did a great job on the lunar exploration," Mrs. Bean said proudly.

The other Apollo 12 wives, Barbara Gordon and Jane Conrad, apparently faded into bed shortly after the four-hour moonwalk ended early today.

For all three wives, sleep had come only intermittently, if at all, since Intrepid separated from the command ship Tuesday night and took mankind again to the moon.

Left alone in the orbiting Yankee Clipper was Richard Gordon, the lifeguard of the Apollo mission whose role the last two days has been significant mostly for its silence.

He has spoken infrequently, usually for routine technical reports. And, says Barbara, "he doesn't sound like himself."

Someone asked her then if being a space wife was a unique form of torture.

"I think," she replied slowly, "that's a very lovely description."

"I don't believe that's true," said Sue Bean, responding to the same question. "They (astronauts) believe in the space program. They are dedicated to their work. And I think if your husband is happy, you are happy."

Everything Is A-OK!

Mrs. Alan Bean, wife of Apollo 12 lunar module pilot, and their son, Clay, 13, give the A-OK sign after the astronauts set their landing craft on the moon surface for man's second landing. They listened to the landing at the Manned Space Centre, near Houston, Tex. (AP Photo) the solar system.

The excursion to Surveyor III, carried out in the high-spirited tone that has marked the Apollo 12 mission, climaxed the mile-long scientific foray on the second moon walk that extended from late Wednesday to early today.

Surveyor rests about 150 feet down the gentle slope of a 600-foot-wide crater. It is just 600 feet from where Intrepid made a bull's-eye landing early Wednesday.

Conrad and Bean found the sides of the Surveyor crater terraced and followed one level around to the dead spacecraft. They reported the vehicle was a light tan and asked what color it was when it left earth in April, 1967. They were told it was white and blue.

"The sun has cooked it," Conrad said.

They then clipped off five pieces of the craft—the television camera, a piece of cable, a strut, a scoop shovel and a section of glass. The shovel was a bonus; the flight plan called for only four pieces.

"You don't think we're going to leave without this scoop, do you?" Conrad asked ground monitors who followed their activities.

Moon Chatter

White Surveyor Tanned

HOUSTON (AP) — Here is a partial text of conversations Thursday morning when astronauts Charles (Pete) Conrad and Alan Bean reached the Surveyor III and American spaceship that preceded them to the lunar soil 31 months ago.

Ground: The equipment bay and the primary structure of Surveyor was all painted with a white paint.

Bean: It's all tan. The sun has cooked it. It's changed to brown.

Ground: Equipment bays were white and the scoop itself was a white blue.

Ground: Hey, Pete, you think there's a chance you have the wrong Surveyor?

Astronauts: Laughter.

Conrad: Hey, we have a nice brown Surveyor here, Houston. The glass is still on the top. Not a bit of it is fractured.

Bean takes pictures all around footpad.

Bean: Now I photograph the trenches, right?

Conrad: The TV mirror is brown.

Conrad: Get the tool off my back.

Bean takes bolt cutters out of knapsack attached to Conrad's backpack, hands them to Conrad.

Bean: Drop that in the can. Why don't you cut that one back there too, Pete?

Conrad: Okay, give them some extra pieces.

Conrad: Hey, that cuts easy.

Bean: Which tube did you want to give me, Pete?

Conrad clips off section of aluminum tubing.

Bean: Too big.

Conrad: Too big? (laughter)

Bean: Okay, we got the sample, Houston, the cable and tube.

As a bonus, Conrad clipped off an extendable handled scoop which the Surveyor III used to scrape out a trench in the lunar surface.

Conrad: It's even got dirt in it.

Ground: Pete and Al, before you leave the Surveyor, will you look at the Surveyor and see if the direction of the sun has any influence on the color.

Conrad: No, its brown all around.

Conrad: Let's get up out of the crater where we can get up on the level ground.

Conrad: We're going to give you a partial pan of this because it's a fantastically interesting crater.

Conrad: I got the idea that the bedrock is not very deep and it's very, very old and this thing came along and hit it and broke the part of the bedrock that was sticking up.

Ground: Okay, Pete, for a four-hour EVA, you're right on.

'If You Have Never Been Poor You Can Not Imagine It'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Senator Douglas Everett of Winnipeg thinks it may be time members of the Senate Social Security committee stopped studying poverty in Canada from the outside looking in.

"Maybe some of the younger senators should go down and live among the hard-core poor for a couple of days to find out what they're really fighting," the 62-year-old senator said in an interview Wednesday night following the first session of two days of hearings in Vancouver.

"But it shouldn't be a publicity stunt. Our whole function is to let it out in the open."

The gap between the haves and the have-nots took on new meaning for Senator Everett and the nine other members of the committee Wednesday night when a brief was presented by the Vancouver Housing Inter-Project Council, a group representing welfare recipients living in public housing projects.

Bill Johnston, chairman of the council's brief committee, told them he and his wife and six children receive a basic welfare payment of $223 a month—roughly the annual amount the senators receive for expenses alone.

Senator Everett, father of six, receives a basic salary of $12,-000 a year plus a $3,000 expense allowance.

"If you've never been on welfare, you can't imagine what it's like," said Dorothy Thomas, chairman of the inter-project council.

"We want money for people who need more money—call it a guaranteed adequate income if you like, but it should be given as a right to those who need it whether employed or not.

"We have found that many families on low incomes living in public housing are worse off than families living on welfare."

Mr. Johnston said that as a welfare recipient living in a public housing project, his rent is calculated on his gross income.

"If I earned an extra $50 a month—the maximum allowed by the welfare department—my rent goes up 20 or 40 per cent. After deductions and expenses, there's nothing left—no incentives to work."

Senator Herbert Sparrow suggested the council delete its request for increased subsidies for rents and ask for a raised income with the view to saving towards the cost of a home.

Earlier, the Association to Tackle Adverse Conditions, a group started by students and graduates of three high schools in the poverty pocket bordering on the Vancouver waterfront, said in a brief that three low-rental projects were developed in the last three years in the area not already properly serviced.

The brief said present low-rental housing projects, constructed to eliminate slum conditions, have crowded together all the underprivileged and isolated them from the average community.

It noted that in an area of about 600 square blocks with a population of about 30,000, there are no libraries for public use, unsatisfactory libraries for school use, no community recreation centre and no day-care centres.

Senator Sparrow disagreed with a suggestion that isolated low-rental housing should be abandoned for smaller-scale projects dispersed within an average community.

"Integration is impossible for a guy on welfare or the head of a low-income family making $2,800 a year ... when his neighbors are making $10,000," he said.

The senator also questioned the value of libraries in an area where elderly members of the predominantly Chinese and Italian community still don't know how to read and write.

"We keep building these great physical facilities for the middle class, spending millions of dollars on such projects as centennial centres, but we don't build houses."

The senators also heard a suggestion from a community development worker for the establishment of a multi-billion dollar fund to develop northern Canada as one answer to the country's growing poverty problem.

Herb Barbolet of the Neighborhood Services Association, admitting the suggestion was idealistic, said the fund could be developed with monies now being used by the Canada Pension Plan "to create new frontiers for those who have no options in today's society."

"I can hike all day too—in some sensible place like the Emporium Department Store!"

Voting Age Debate 'Pointless'

OTTAWA (CP) — An irritated Commons opposition said Wednesday the government already has decided to lower the voting age to 18 from 21 and it is pointless to put the matter before a Commons committee.

However, the privileges and elections committee would also be studying extensive changes to the Canada Elections Act, Government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald said.

Listening in the Commons gallery was Chief Electoral Officer J. M. Hamel, who has ready 125 pages of proposed changes for the committee to study.

Mr. Macdonald said he hopes the committee can provide recommendations by Christmas, setting up a draft bill to amend the act.

He also hoped the proposed bill could be passed by the time the current session ends next summer. This would allow Mr. Hamel to make changes and advise returning officers before the next general federal election, not expected before 1972.

The lowered voting age would add 1,000,000 names to the next voting lists. A proposal to extend the franchise to Canadians aboard, who do not now have the vote, would also add to the lists.

Mr. Macdonald promised that the committee would go on to a study of election expenses later.

However, Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) and Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said the government already has announced in the throne speech its intention to lower the voting age. Why send the matter to committee?

Easier Entry Asked by Bank

WASHINGTON (CP) — Spokesmen for the AFL-CIO and a giant American-owned banking institution disagreed Wednesday over proposed amendments to immigration laws that would make it easier for foreigners to accept employment in the United States.

William R. Hinchman Jr., a vice-president of Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, urged creation of a new non-immigrant visa permitting individuals employed as technicians, managers or executives by U.S. companies abroad to be transferred to similar posts in the U.S. for a limited period.

Without such a provision, some employees of the bank's operations in 54 foreign countries may be discriminated against in promotions and advancement, he said.

"In effect," Hinchman said, "we desire to staff key management positions worldwide, including those domiciled in the United States, by selecting the best man irrespective of his present assignment or citizenship."

"We are not interested in opening the gates to a mass importation of inexpensive and indentured labor which would serve to undermine present wage levels and working conditions in our country," Hinchman said.

Strictly Personal

Eager Advisors Worst

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

A psychological truth that is surprisingly ignored by most people is that someone who is eager to give you advice generally gives you worse advice than someone who is reluctant to give it.

• • •

Ask the average American to estimate the amount of foreign — non-military — aid the U.S. is providing this year, and he will overestimate by anywhere from 100 to 1,000 per cent.

• • •

The most abused word among students is "relevant" — for they mistakenly imagine that only subjects of current concern and controversy are "relevant" to modern education; whereas, true relevance signifies an understanding of man's nature, capacities and limitations, which only a sound grasp of the humanities can give us.

• • •

Reading about Brigette Bardot's third (or is it fourth?) divorce at the age of 34 reminded me of Katharine Hepburn's perceptive comment many years ago: "It is the plain women who know about love; the beautiful women are too busy being fascinating."

• • •

Perhaps one reason that such celebrities tend to do so poorly in their personal lives is that when a spotlight is shining on you it makes it hard for you to see what is actually going on around you.

• • •

If you shout in an argument, it makes you wrong, even when you are right.

• • •

One of the best rules for separating our prejudices from our evaluation of other people's character was given by Lichtenberg: "Don't judge a man by his voiceless, but by what his opinions have made him."

What we call "snobbery" is less a manifestation of those at the social top than of those who desperately aspire to it; the very word comes from the Latin sine nobilitate, meaning "lacking in nobility."

Ninety per cent of the human race is victimized by the other 10 per cent; this is equally true under any system yet devised by man, no matter what name it assumes, or what creed it professes.

Boom Won't Be Lowered

Cottagers Reassured by Kerr About Anti-pollution Measures

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister George Kerr said Wednesday he doesn't plan to lower the boom by immediately instituting stiff penalties on cottagers who fail to treat waste properly.

Mr. Kerr was replying during debate on his departmental estimates to Gordon Smith (PC—Simcoe East) who read newspaper reports of a recent speech which quoted the minister as saying cottagers will have to improve their sewage facilities or face fines.

Mr. Smith asked for a phasing-in of any such program so that cottagers will not be faced with unnecessary financial hardships.

Mr. Kerr said his former statement had been widely misunderstood and he had only meant that something has to be done about the "slow but steady deterioration of our inland lakes, particularly the Muskokas and Kawarthas."

The minister said cottagers who have installed effective waste treatment systems have no cause for concern, but where systems—particularly those built on rock—were not proving effective, communal holding tanks might have to be installed.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I almost wriggled out of buying the men's hairbrush, until she pointed out I could always grow a beard."

Haskett Defends Accident Record

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister Irwin Haskett Wednesday expressed concern at the number of vehicle accidents involving children but denied there is an unusual situation in Ontario.

He told Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) that while "we have not achieved the full measure we seek," Ontario has done a "remarkably good job" in improving traffic and highway safety.

The number of highway fatalities last year decreased by 33 although the number of vehicle-miles travelled increased by 1,-250,000,000.

Ontario's 1968 fatality rate of 5.9 per cent was the best in Canada, comparing with Quebec 19.2 per cent.

Mr. Haskett, answering questions in the legislature, also told Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) that while the number of school bus collisions has doubled in five years and the number of children injured has trebled, the number of vehicle-miles travelled by buses also has trebled.

Mercury No Problem

TORONTO (CP) — Results of surveys indicate that the presence of mercury in Ontario streams "is not of such extent to cause concern," George Kerr, energy and resources minister, told the legislature Wednesday.

He said the chemical is a problem in the Ottawa River below a Quebec pulp and paper mill and in some waters below other industries, but it is "on a limited basis."

Analysis of all streams will continue "and if there is appreciable change we will take action," he said.

Robarts Differs With McRuer

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Wednesday he does not agree with J. C. McRuer, author of a report on civil rights, that creation of the honor Queen's Counsel is an "individious distinction" that is no longer needed in the province.

Mr. Robarts had been asked by Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) whether he did not agree with the former chief justice that the honor might be done away with.

Language Bill Opposed

Labor Leaders Committed to Making French Working Tongue

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaders of organized labor in Quebec appear to have committed themselves to the goal of making French the normal working language at all levels of economic activity in the province.

Of the province's 6,000,000 people, about 1,000,000 speak English as their mother tongue.

In Quebec City Wednesday, the general council of the 238,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor called on the provincial government to withdraw its controversial language bill and come up with a more comprehensive policy based on the principle that French must be the language in normal use in the province.

The language bill is controversial because it would establish the legal right of Quebec parents to choose either French or English school instruction for their children, and because it says nothing specific about how immigrants are to be absorbed by the French-speaking population.

The province's other big labor organization, the 225,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions, has adopted the position that the government must decree French as the national language of Quebec.

The CNTU executive reached this position Oct. 30.

The executive of the CNTU's 67,000-member Montreal council, led by president Michel Chartrand, has been more specific.

It has joined the Front du Quebec Francais, an alliance of various groups that want to make French compulsory at all levels of education, economic activity and public administration.

Mr. Chartrand is before the courts on a sedition charge, arising from a remark he made in Quebec City Oct. 28 that English-speaking schools and universities in Quebec would explode if the government bill went through.

The FQF has drafted a "bill" of its own setting out measures to give French exclusive status. It is trying to devise a way of testing public opinion on it.

The Montreal CNTU council declared its support of this document at a meeting Tuesday night, attended by about 300 persons.

The QFL, however, has in no way identified itself with the FQF or with any group promoting the exclusive use of French.

The draft resolution presented by the QFL general council in Quebec City Wednesday stated that English-speaking public schools "are compatible with the rights and objectives of the French-speaking majority, on condition that there exists a dynamic and concrete policy of French as the language of work in Quebec."

It included another cautionary statement: "In the domain of education, as in the domain of work, the process of making Quebec French must neither envisage nor cause the isolation of Quebec from the English-speaking North American continent."

THE PICK OF Punch

Prince Explains

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip was back in the limelight Wednesday — explaining remarks he made about pop singer Tom Jones.

Philip, whose remarks on United States television last week set off fresh debate on the Royal Family's financial needs, is reported to have told a meeting in London Nov. 11 that Jones's singing was "hideous."

A letter went from Buckingham Palace to Jones Wednesday, signed by an aide of Philip, and telling the 24-year-old Welsh singer: "I meant nothing harsh."

Malton Blast Inquiry Likely

TORONTO (CP) — The explosion and fire that decimated Malton's business section and killed one person a month ago were caused by the separation of a gas-line coupling, Energy Minister George Kerr said Wednesday.

Speaking during debate on his departmental estimates, Mr. Kerr indicated a special study of the explosion may be made once the inquest and investigations by the fire marshal's department, Mississauga police and energy department experts are completed.

He hoped this final study would recommend new safety measures and installation procedures to update the present code on gas-line safety.

Asked by William Ferrier (NDP—Cochrane South) how many old, improperly-wrapped miles of gas-line exist in Ontario, Mr. Kerr said he did not know, but the line in Malton was relatively new.

The explosion seemed to have been related to the installation of new sewers, laying of new road and paving and curbing activities needed because of recent construction in the area.

These activities apparently shifted earth near the pipeline, causing the coupling to separate. A leak developed, eventually leading to the explosion.

Trouble Brewing In Chile

SANTIAGO (AP) — Trouble appeared to be brewing within Chile's military forces when President Eduardo Frei decreed a state of emergency in Santiago province Wednesday night. But afterward tension eased visibly in the Chilean capital.

Frei declared the emergency following a day of rumors that a military coup was being plotted. The decree enabled the government to control or censor news, make arrests without warrants and appoint a military governor for the area.

Sources in the know said many officers felt a new military pay raise might put the military in a bad light because it is being financed by higher taxes instead of by government economics.

The pay raise, which went into effect Wednesday, was the result of a brief rebellion by one army division last month. The increases range from 20 to 80 per cent and will cost taxpayers some $300,000,000 a year.

Brewer Gets First Goal, Shows Special Stick from Finland

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Carl Brewer doesn't like to miss a chance at scoring a goal —or at showing off the special stick he uses to put the puck in the net.

The Detroit Red Wings defenceman scored his first National Hockey League goal this season at 19:38 of the third period Wednesday night to give the Wings a 5-5 tie with Montreal Canadiens.

Brewer, in his first season since quitting Toronto Maple Leafs after the 1963-64 season, also wasted little time showing off his special plastic laminated stick to reporters in the dressing room.

"It's a stick I imported from Finland," he said. "The shaft is laminated and it gives strength and resiliency to the stick."

Brewer imports enough of the sticks to have built up an extensive trade selling them to other players.

Two rookies matched Brewer's game-tying heroics Wednesday night in other NHL games. Defenceman Brian Glennie got the equalizer for Toronto, giving the Leafs a 4-4 tie with Los Angeles Kings and Gerry Pinder scored to earn a 1-1 tie for Chicago Black Hawks with New York Rangers.

In other games, Ab McDonald scored three goals to lead St. Louis Blues in a 4-0 victory over Pittsburgh Penguins and Oakland Seals downed Minnesota North Stars 4-2.

Frank Mahovlich scored three goals to spark the Wings' comeback before 16,780 fans at Montreal.

Captain Jean Beliveau started the Canadiens scoring with two first-period goals with Jacques Lemaire and Jacques Laperriere scoring single goals. John Ferguson made it 5-3 for Montreal in the third period but Gary Unger narrowed the margin to 5-4.

Mahovlich's goals, all on passes from Red Wings captain Alex Delvecchio, came within a five-minute session of the second period.

Brewer's goal came with Detroit using an extra attacker in place of goalie Roger Crozier.

Goalie Marv Edwards allowed two first-period goals by Leon Rochefort and one by Ted Irvine as the Kings took a 3-1 lead at Toronto. Bruce Gamble went into the nets at the start of the second period and allowed one more Los Angeles goal by Ed Joyal.

Defenceman Jim Dorey, just recovered from a back injury, scored for the Leafs in the first period and Dave Keon and Bob Pulford narrowed the margin before Glennie's goal at 15:43 of the last session.

The Leafs and Kings remain in last place in the East and West divisions respectively.

Hull, who missed the Black Hawks' first 14 games in a contract dispute, started on a power-play lineup in the first period and then saw regular duty with centre Lou Angotti and right winger Eric Nesterenko.

Pinder's goal came at 7:31 of the final period and extended the Hawks' unbeaten streak to seven games.

The one point from the tie kept the Rangers in the East Division lead, one point ahead of Montreal.

Phil Goyette scored once and assisted on two of McDonald's three goals while veteran goalie Jacques Plante recorded the St. Louis shutout before 4,297 at Pittsburgh.

Goyette's three points increased his season total to 28, just one short of league leader Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins. McDonald stayed four points back of his team-mate.

Hull, Team Take Time To Sign

CHICAGO (AP) — The biggest moment in Bobby Hull's return to hockey came after the game, not during it.

The National Hockey League superstar settled a dispute last week and rejoined Chicago Black Hawks, but it wasn't until Wednesday night that he tested his competitive legs.

He played a total of 16 minutes but didn't score as the Hawks tied New York Rangers 1-1.

The Chicago Stadium throng of 16,666 only mildly welcomed Bobby when he first skated on the ice after missing training season and the first 14 games.

Waiting near the dressing room door when Bobby came out after the game was a little, tousled-hair boy.

Bobby saw him at once. He went over and put his hands on the tyke's neck and on his head.

"Michael Bartell and I'm nine and I know you've got some little boys of your own. This is my first time at a game but I listen to them all the time."

"Well, Michael, let me sign that program for you," said Bobby and he stooped down and held the little boy's hands. "And...how about a puck—I'll get you one."

Then, one by one, other Black Hawk players filed out.

Each player stopped and said "Hi, Michael," patted him on the head and signed the program.

"Never saw the little fellow before," said Bobby. "And he never saw one. I noticed he was blind right away."

SHACK UNTRACKED BY ART — Painting has become a study in the art of relaxation for forward Eddie Shack, of the Los Angeles Kings in the National Hockey League. "This is real serious business" said Eddie as he concentrated on his rural Ontario scene in the King City, Ontario, studio of artist Rudy Reichardt. Shack said he plans an evening painting a canvas rather than painting the town when he comes to Toronto. (CP Wirephoto)

Bisons' Stretch Streak to Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons nipped Hershey Bears 2-1 Wednesday night and ran their American Hockey League unbeaten streak to seven games.

A goal by Don Blackburn with 49 seconds remaining in the first period won for the Bisons, who widened their Western Division lead over the Bears to 12 points.

White Signs with Kings

TORONTO (CP) — Los Angeles Kings announced Wednesday night that Bill White, their all-star defenceman, has agreed to rejoin the club, ending a 55-day holdout in a contract dispute.

The agreement was reached after the Kings and Toronto Maple Leafs played to a 4-4 National Hockey League tie. Los Angeles opposes the Flyers tonight in Philadelphia. White is expected to be in uniform for the game.

The 30-year-old Toronto native walked out of the Kings' Barrie training camp Sept. 25 after general manager Larry Regan refused to renegotiate the remaining three years of White's four-year contract.

"I have agreed to observe the terms of my contract." White said in a statement following a meeting with Kings coach Hal Laycoe.

The 6-foot-2, 195-pound defenceman missed 14 games this season but said he is in good condition.

Junior 'A' Council Takes New Twist, Allows Irwin to Play for St. Catharines

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The committee room controversy involving St. Catharines Black Hawks and nine Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council rivals took a new twist Wednesday when defenceman Glen Irwin was traded by St. Catharines to Peterborough Petes.

The issue came to a head when the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association approved a release Nov. 11, allowing Irwin to play for St. Catharines.

Junior A council delegates from the other nine clubs objected since Irwin came to the Black Hawks from Edmonton Oil Kings of the independent Canadian Hockey Association via Sorel Black Hawks of the Quebec Junior League. The complaining teams claim the Junior A council agreed last year not to transfer players from the independent CHA teams.

The trade with Peterborough was announced Wednesday by Ken Campbell, St. Catharines team secretary. For Irwin, the Black Hawks obtained centre Bill Ellis and negotiation rights to defenceman Pete Cunningham from the Petes.

Cunningham quit the Petes 10 days ago to concentrate on his studies at Trent University. The Hawks will apparently try to talk Cunningham into transferring to Brock University at St. Catharines and finish the season with the Junior A club.

Irwin played two games for St. Catharines against Toronto Marlboros last week following the CAHA approval, but sat out the Nov. 16 game against Kitchener Rangers due to an ankle injury.

President Fred Muller and coach Brian Shaw of the Black Hawks declined to comment on the deal with Peterborough, stating only that Campbell had handled all the arrangements.

In Peterborough, Petes' vice-president Herb Warr commented on the trade Wednesday night.

"None of the teams objected to Irwin's playing in the OHA," Warr said. "We objected to him playing for St. Catharines because they already had two CAHA branch-to-branch transfers."

The two players, Pierre Guite and Duane Wylie, joined St. Catharines this season from Sorel of the Quebec CAHA branch.

"The boy (Irwin) unfortunately got to be the central figure," Warr said.

"He was an unfortunate name. St. Catharines tried to say that the Sorel transfers were Quebec players, whereas, in reality, they were from Western Canada."

Roughriders Capture Title in Two Straight

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Lancaster's boot passes were too much for Calgary Stampeders Wednesday night, launching Saskatchewan Roughriders to a 36-13 victory that wrapped up the Western Football Conference final in two straight games.

"The best I've ever seen," was coach Eagle Keys' description of his quarterback's aerial attack that broke the back of Calgary resistance in the third quarter and sent the Roughriders into the Grey Cup game for the third time in four years.

Lancaster completed 15 of 24 attempts for 261 yards, including touchdown tosses to Bobby Thompson and Hugh Campbell as Saskatchewan swept the best-of-three series from the defending western champion Stampeders.

"When the quarterback is going well, they're all going well," Keys said.

Responding to Lancaster's leadership, fullback George Reed rushed 21 times for 83 yards and a touchdown and the Saskatchewan defence forced Calgary quarterback Jerry Keeling into nine interceptions, one of which Ted Dushinski returned 31 yards for the Roughriders' first touchdown.

Many began to leave with eight minutes still to play, and in the late stages of the fourth quarter several youthful spectators began to invade the McMahon Stadium field.

Security guards could not control the youths who forced referee Paul Dojack of Regina to call the game with eight seconds remaining.

The play that shattered the Stampeders' and the fans' hopes came early in the third quarter, seconds after Calgary had reduced a nine-point half-time deficit to six points.

Lancaster dropped back and threw long to Thompson, who pulled out of the grasp of Calgary defender Gene Beard to complete a 75-yard pass-and-run touchdown.

Saskatchewan had a firm hand on the throttle after that, collecting touchdowns on a 22-yard pass to Campbell and an 11-yard run by Reed before yielding a late touchdown to Calgary fullback Ted Woods.

"When you get behind and have to play catch-up football, you do just about what they want you to do," said Calgary coach Jim Duncan.

Jack Abendschan got the other points for the Roughriders, two field goals, four converts and two singles as Saskatchewan pulled away from a 3-3 first-quarter stalemate to quarter leads of 12-3 and 26-6.

The Stampeders, who did nothing on the ground in losing the first game 17-11 in Regina, tried to cross up the Roughriders with the run.

They sent Woods on 13 thrusts for 57 yards, but the rush stalled in the face of stiff opposition once Calgary penetrated Saskatchewan territory.

Forced to go the pass, Keeling found that remote blocked him and managed to complete only 14 of 25 attempts for 188 yards, well below his first-game total of 408 yards.

Even the absence of centre Ted Urness, injured slightly on the opening kickoff, failed to interrupt Saskatchewan's momentum. With Gary Brandt filling in, they collected 19 first downs from 108 yards rushing and 261 passing, while Calgary managed 15 first downs with 103 yards rushing and 188 passing.

Keys said he will give his club a few days rest before he starts preparing to meet either Toronto Argonauts or Ottawa Rough Riders in Montreal Sunday, Nov. 30. Argonauts lead the two-game, total-point Eastern Conference final 22-14, with the second game in Ottawa Saturday.

Ottawa Confident To Beat Argos

OTTAWA (CP) — Regardless of the condition of the playing field, Ottawa Rough Riders are confident they can overcome the eight-point lead built up by Toronto Argonauts and go on to the Grey Cup game.

Predominantly rainy weather over the last two weeks has reduced centre sections of Lansdowne park's field to a sea of mud. Grassy sections also are soaked.

Ottawa coach Frank Clair says that a muddy field wouldn't hurt his club's offence too much when the teams play the final game of the two-game, total-points Eastern championship series Saturday.

"If it doesn't rain on the day of the game, we should be all right," he said.

They keep the ball fairly dry even on a wet field if it isn't raining. We've played before on a greasy field and been able to move the ball."

Linebacker Wayne Giardino again will be used as an offensive halfback and Clair says "he can run in the mud."

Tight end Jay Roberts will be used "because he can block well and catch the short pass." That means newcomer Gene Thomas will be the designated import for the game.

End Margene Adkins, who found the footing greasy even on his good Toronto field last Sunday, will wear the longer mud cleats regardless of the field's condition.

He fell twice in the opener, once while in the open in the Argo end zone.

Clair said it was this, missed blocks and other things that prevented Riders from completing any of the eight pass attempts by quarterback Russ Jackson in the first game's second half.

Montreal Making Ready for Grey Cup

MONTREAL (CP) — Men began laying a 10-section polyethylene covering over the Autostade's playing field Wednesday—a cover the Canadian Football League hopes will protect the playing surface between now and the Grey Cup game Sunday Nov. 30.

The field is in good shape with the exception of the odd soft spot in the centre and Wednesday's brisk winds helped dry out most of the wetness.

Groundskeeper Hans Swarje said the sectional covering allows him to further dry the turf and lay down young grass section by section.

CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur has examined the field and declared it in top shape.

However, the work crew had its hands full Wednesday as winds gusting to 35 miles an hour howled through the deserted Autostade, causing the lightweight cover to flap and roll like an active surf.

The approximately 125 elongated sandbags weighing 25 pounds each to hold the cover down were insufficient and a further batch was ordered.

Field Condition Topic at Varsity

TORONTO (CP) — The condition of the field at Varsity Stadium was the main topic of conversation Wednesday when Henry Janzen, a former defensive halfback star for Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League, met Ron Murphy, University of Toronto head football coach.

Janzen, now head coach of the University of Manitoba Bisons, is here with his team to meet Montreal's McGill University Redmen Friday night in the Canadian College Bowl.

"Just get that field in shape and we'll show them some running," Janzen said shortly after the western champions arrived.

Janzen's wish for solid footing may not be granted.

"If the rain stops and we get a little wind," Murphy said, "we'll have a chance to put the rollers on it, and it will be in excellent condition. But, if it turns cold and freezes, it's going to be a bad surface."

Janzen, whose team worked out on a soggy field within two hours of their arrival, conceded the Bisons rely heavily on the running game. "We don't throw much," he said.

Manitoba qualified for a spot in the national final by winning all six Western Intercollegiate games and trouncing Central Canada Conference champion University of Windsor Lancers 41-7. Eleven Bisons earned all-star recognition this season.

Halfback Mike Shyba, a graduate student who had a total with the CFL's Toronto Argonauts, leads the Manitoba ground attack. He is ranked second to Edmonton's Ludwig Daubner in rushing and is second in pass catching and scoring.

Cahill Says Argos Will Make It

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Leo Cahill says "only an act of God" can stop the Toronto Argonauts out of the 1960 Grey Cup and he has ordered special slippers to reach the golden street.

Cahill made the statements Wednesday in reference to Saturday's second game of the two-game total-point Eastern Football Conference final against the Rough Riders at Ottawa's Lansdowne Park.

Reports from Ottawa predict that the field will be a mire or a sheet of ice, depending on the weather condition that day.

"The Indians have trails for cold so we've got a complete set of shoes that are specially made by Adidas. So we're ready to make track equipment," Cahill said.

"Of course, we'll wear the special mud cleats if it doesn't freeze. Actually, mud is not a great problem. It cuts down your lateral motion and rollout patterns, that's all.

"A frozen field is a horse of another color."

Cleats slip on a frozen field and the soles of regular running shoes are not made to take the strain under a 225-pound player.

Saskatchewan Roughriders used regular running shoes in the Grey Cup Game on a frozen field at Ottawa in 1957 and the soles kept tearing off throughout the game.

The new shoes, which Cahill plans to use if the turf is icy, have been used for some time in Europe during the winter months. They are heavy leather with a nylon ripple sole and suction cups.

The regular mud cleat used by the Argos is nylon, about an inch long and much thicker than the regular cleats.

Cahill, who said earlier that his club will attempt to score first, then told a gathering of Argonauts fans that nothing short of the unforseen could prevent the club from beating Ottawa in the series.

Toronto holds an eight-point lead after a 22-14 victory in the first game here last Sunday. Argos built the lead after a 13-11 victory over the Rough Riders last year, but lost the second game 36-13.

Saturday's game will be nationally televised by the CTV from the 2 p.m. EST kickoff time.

The winner will advance to the Grey Cup final against Saskatchewan Roughriders at Montreal Nov. 30.

Ottawa is the defending Grey Cup champion and Toronto last played for and won the Canadian final in 1952.

McCovey Shades Seaver for MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie McCovey of San Francisco Giants, home-run and runs-batted-in champion in 1959, shaded pitcher Tom Seaver of New York Mets for the National League Most Valuable Player award although both received 11 first-place votes.

McCovey gained 265 points to 242 for the Mets' 25-game winner in the balloting of the 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers' Association, announced today by Jack Lang, secretary-treasurer.

The secret vote by two committee men from each league city was taken after the season and before the playoffs, and included only regular-season performances. Lang tabulated the votes this week.

Hank Aaron, the Atlanta Braves' outfielder who ranks third on the all-time home-run list, was third with two first-place votes and 188 points. Aaron won the MVP award in 1957 when the Braves were in Milwaukee. Pete Rose of Cincinnati Reds, the two-time batting champion, was next with 127 points, followed closely by Ron Santo, Chicago Cubs' third baseman, with 124.

Tommie Agee and Cleon Jones, who play together in the Mets' outfield, were next.

Agee had 89 points and Jones, who led the league in batting with .348, received 82 points.

Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates, the winner in 1966, was eighth with 81 points, followed by Phil Niekro, Atlanta's knuckleball pitcher, with 47 and Tony Perez, Cincinnati third baseman, with 28.

In addition to Aaron and Clemente, other former MVP winners to get votes were Ernie Banks, the 1958-59 winner, 13; Maury Wills of Los Angeles Dodgers, the 1962 winner, 17; Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals, last year's MVP, 7, and Orlando Cepeda of Atlanta, the 1967 MVP, 1.

McCovey beat out Seaver with 11 firsts, nine seconds, two thirds and two fourths, the only player mentioned on all ballots. Two men did not list Seaver, who received 11 first, four second, two third, one fourth and one fifth. Aaron was listed on 23 of the 24 ballots. Some writers omitted their votes in men who play every day and do not list pitchers.

Seaver won the National League's Cy Young Award, restricted to pitchers. Denny McLain of Detroit Tigers and Mike Cuellar of Baltimore Orioles tied for the American League Cy Young trophy.

The American League's Most Valuable Player was Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota Twins. Like McCovey, Killebrew led the league in home runs and did not win the pennant, although the Twins did win a divisional title.

McCovey, who played much of the season with a painful arthritic condition in his hip, batted .320, appearing in 149 of 162 games. It was the second straight year McCovey, 31, had won both the home-run and runs-batted-in titles. In 1959, McCovey had 45 homers and 126 RBI.

Priests Make Reunion for McFarlands

Reunion night in the Memorial Arena for a handful of the World Champion Belleville McFarlands comes Thursday, Nov. 27 when they team with the Belleville Ellis Junior hockey club for a charity hockey game against the Flying Fathers, a popular team of Catholic priests.

Gordie Bell, Lou Smrke, Floyd Crawford, Tom Deegan, Ed Marineau and Jean-Paul Lamirande from the 1957-58 Allan Cup and the 58-59 World Champion McFarlands have donated their services in an effort to raise the money necessary for equipment for the new Belleville Retarded Workshop, a project of Alhambra 109.

Duke Doran and Leo Goyer will play for the locals also. Doran and Goyer played senior B hockey for the Belleville Bedmen prior to the McFarlands coming into existence.

"We are approaching "Wieser" Brown, too," said Jim "Snipe" Matthews, the co-ordinator for this event.

"We have to clear this with the Mo-Hawks first however. We are hoping to get Mo-Hawk playing coach, Davey Jones, to officiate in the game."

Tickets for the exhibition may be purchased at McKnight's Variety Store on Front Street. $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

FLOYD CRAWFORD

The Local Scene

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Mushmouth Reports:—

Dear Ec-Sent:—

The Unks were in a poetic frame of mind over the weekend with special guest Unk McShake from Stratford-on-Avon, England, the guest speaker.

Unk McShake brought his own mulled ale and mead from over 'ome and between beakers gave voice to his own doggerel after scouring the local sports scene.

Ad was rescued he dunked his Vandyke into flagons of local brew in the raucous solitude of Benny's Hideaway, which in no way resembles the Boots-and-Saddle, Rhyme-and-Rhetoric or Safety-Pin and-Garter pubs of his home town where the famous Bill he Bard did his rhyming, wenching and bottom-pinching in the days of highwaymen and roadside high jinks.

Here in doggerel is Unk McShake's version of the local scene:—

"Hornblower has his Maple Leafs
O'Meara has his Chibawk griefs,
They sigh as they look into their cups,
"What we would like is — bottoms ups."

* * *

So Bobby Hull is back again
After lots of verbal sledding.
The question I would like to ask
"Whoinell was Robert kidding?"

* * *

Young blood we need, the Ace howled
With their drive and "gits and go's"
So just to keep their faith with fans
They signed two former pros.

* * *

Joe Namath smiled above his glass,
At Bachelor Three motel,
"For me, champagne, a buxom lass,
And to hell with Bill Rozelle".

* * *

The Mo-Hawks clothed in raiment new
Are ready now to die or do,
A warning now while on the "up"
New garb alone ne'er won a cup.

* * *

SALUTE TO STANLEY

In Benny's misty hideway
They laughed when "Peav" sat down to say
"The Stanley Cup is up for grabs,
So chalk another to the Habs."

* * *

Mahoney gargled "Boo Sante"
"You guys will live to see the day
That Beliveau, Rousseau and group
From that Stanley mug will quaff pea soup."

* * *

From the loomen came a lusty roar,
"The hell we will — just wait till Orr
And all those fighting Boston Bruins
Reduce the Habs to dusty ruins."

* * *

In another corner voices rang
These Hornblower's doughty gang
"We've got to 'Punch' and bad's our start
But we'll take those cocky Habs apart.

* * *

"We'll ruin the Bruins — squash the Wings
Detcather the Hawks, uncrown the Kings
Black-flag the Pirates — drown out St. Loo
Dim out the Stars and Oakland, too."

* * *

The uproar subsided — there came a lull
O'Meara grinned widely and said "Bobby Hull
Is back there 'again with my slow-climbing
Hawks,
That should be speedy to squelch all your squawks,
Except to give Ivan that much-needed boost
So come playoff time we'll be ruling the roost.

* * *

They booed and they blasted — they called him a clown
But he had the last word 'fore they made him sit down
His Irish mug lighted with unholy glee
"We'll make it a double — just you wait and see,
We'll push over the Stanley — make room for the Grey
Fir the Riders and Jackson will do it that way,
On requiems be the fallen there'll be no
embargos
So, a fond farewell to the Habs and the Argos."

Mo-Hawks Looking for 6th Straight Win

Davey Jones and his Mo-Hawk hockey club will be out to try to make their record six consecutive starts without a defeat tomorrow night when they encounter the seventh place Own Sound Crescents at the Memorial Arena for a 9 p.m. hockey game.

"The boys weren't checking up to their potential last Sunday against Woodstock," said playing coach Davey Jones. "We were playing the last place club so our boys weren't really up for the game. If the team plays the way they've been playing the last couple of weeks I see no reason why we can't win this one too," added Jones.

The Mo-Hawks beat Owen Sound 4-3 at home in the opening game of the season and could like to make it a 2-0 record with the Crescents.

Steve Reve will be handling the goaltending duties for the locals.

Belleville's Al Ferguson, Lorne O'Donnell and George Godson of the bread and butter line will be out to improve their records in the scoring race.

Direction May Be Given to Hydro on Use of Reserve Funds

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts told the legislature Wednesday the government is considering giving Ontario Hydro more direction in its use of its reserve funds. But, he said, he will not tell Hydro what specific uses to make of the funds.

Replying to Donald MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, who asked for legislation to direct Hydro's use of reserves so policies can be co-ordinated, Mr. Roberts said:

"We have discussed with Hydro this reserve and the way it is used. . . . I think we are interested in seeing that the fund is used in the proper interests of the consumers of, Hydro, and the owners of Hydro who are the retailers in the municipalities across the province.

"This does not mean we are immediately going to introduce legislation to tell Hydro what to do with it. . . . If there is some way it might be used immediately that is advantageous, yes, we would be happy to look at that."

Mr. MacDonald had asked if the government would consider amending the Power Commission Act to empower the province "to give some direction in the use of Hydro reserves so its policies can be co-ordinated with the economic and fiscal policies of the government."

Hydro's reserve fund is $183,-000,000, up more than $25,000,000 since, last year. It announced last week it plans a six-per-cent increase in the wholesale price of electricity to municipalities.

Mr. MacDonald asked if the Hydro fund is not a "legitimate weapon" to fight inflation.

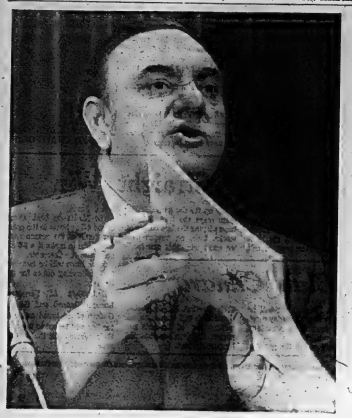
"How can we expect voluntary restraints on profits and wages to be effective if a major agency the size of Hydro does not act so as to counter the inflationary tendencies?"

Earlier opposition members attacked Hydro for not selling electricity cheaper to industry and municipal customers in areas near large power sources.

Jack Stokes (NDP—Thunder Bay) said much of Ontario's power is generated in the North and it was almost the only advantage the area had in attracting industry.

"Why charge Northern Ontarians the same for power as is charged in the south?" he asked.

Ellie Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) asked how the same rates could be charged in the North on the basis of equal treatment for Hydro when other charges —for example railway freight charges—were higher for northerners.



He Plans Crackdown

Transport Minister Don Jamieson tells reporters at news briefing in Ottawa the Canadian government will act on its own to make ship owners and shipping companies pay the entire cost of cleaning up accidental oil spills in territorial waters unless an international agreement on this question can soon be reached. Mr. Jamieson had just returned from an international conference on pollution of the sea by oil at Brussels. (CP Photo)

St. Clair Dumping Is Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is opposed to a federal government attitude that dumping should continue in Crystal Bay on Lake St. Clair, the legislature was told Wednesday.

George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management, said the bay was formed as a result of dredging and dumping.

"The federal attitude is that the bay was formed by dumping so why not continue to dump in an area set aside for that purpose," he told Fred Burr (NDP —Sandwich-Riverside).

"But Ontario is opposed to this attitude. The bay is a body of clear water extensively used for recreation and it should not be destroyed."

Mr. Burr says that American industry and the United States Corps of Engineers are seeking to dump industrial sludge in the bay, which is on the Canadian side of the international boundary.

Nickel Inquiry Is Advocated

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the United Steelworkers of America Wednesday challenged International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. to join the union in asking for a public inquiry into wages, prices and profits in the nickel industry.

Larry Sefton, director of District 6 of the USW, issued the challenge in a telegram to Henry S. Wingate, chairman of the board of Inco.

The union official disputed Mr. Wingate's public statement that a contract agreement which ended a 128-day strike at Inco last week was inflationary.

"In view of your public charges we challenge you to join with us in calling on the Prices and Incomes Commission for a full, public inquiry into wages, prices, productivity and profits in the Canadian nickel industry," the telegram said.

Sharp Plans Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp promised Wednesday to investigate assertions by a former army officer that he passed information to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency while serving with the international control commission in Vietnam.

Brig. Donald Ketcheson said in Toronto Saturday night that the external affairs department knew unofficially of his intelligence activities, "and looked the other way."

Andrew Brewin (NDP-Toronto Greenwood) asked in the Commons Wednesday whether Mr. Sharp would investigate the matter, "and give an assurance that this sort of conduct will not be tolerated in the future."

"Yes," replied the external affairs minister, adding:

"As I understand it these events related to the period 1958-59, and as far as I know the Canadian government has always acted scrupulously in this respect, and certainly I know of no repetition of anything like this."

Brig. Ketcheson was senior Canadian officer with the control commission in 1958-59.

Canadian in Guatemala

Padre Jean-Marie Paiement, 44, of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., has his parish 4,000 feet above the hot Rio Motagua valley in Guatemala. Here, Padre Paiement chats with Oscar Humberto Rosales, 20, near Gualan, who says he is taking crop of 1½ quintals of lemons — about 150 lbs. — to U.S.-owned lemon-extract plant. Oscar has worked out that, after considering plant labor, his lemons earn plant-owner profit of over 500 per cent. (CP Photo)

Sergeant Says He Saw U.S. Troops Gun Down 100 Vietnam Civilians

FORT DIX, N.J. (Reuters) — A U.S. Army sergeant Wednesday night said he saw 100 Vietnamese civilians systematically gunned down by U.S. troops acting on orders at the village of Son My.

Reports later circulated in his company said a body count showed more than 300 had been killed, said Sgt. Michael Bernhardt, 23, of Franklin Square, Long Island, N.Y.

Referring to an incident in March, 1968, Bernhardt said: "All of the people I saw shot down were women, old men and children. I don't recall seeing any young men in the village at all."

Many of the victims were babies, some of them in their mothers' arms, Bernhardt said.

The sergeant said he was a member of the unit involved, Company C of the 1st Battalion, 20th Infantry Regiment, 11th Infantry Brigade. The 70-odd men of Company C left the village only after the villagers apparently all had been wiped out, he added.

The entire operation at the village south of Da Nang took about half an hour and most of those who took part in it left the scene "tresking it like a great victory," Bernhardt said.

He and about five other soldiers in the company refused to take part in the shooting. He refused to comment when asked if those refusing to fire were punished.

The incident now is under investigation by the army. A platoon leader in Company C — Lieut. William L. Calley, 23, of Miami, Fla., has been charged with murder. A sergeant in the platoon—David Mitchell, 20, of St. Francisville, La.—has been charged with assault with intent to murder.

Bernhardt, a private at the time, said that before the incident began the unit was told by its company commander that all the residents of the village were Viet Cong and that the village and all the villagers were to be destroyed.

After entering the village, the soldiers began herding the inhabitants into several groups while some members of the company began setting fire to homes in the hamlet, Bernhardt said.

"The men then opened fire with M-16 rifles and M-60 machine-guns," he stated.

Asked whether any of the villagers had cried out or tried to flee, the young sergeant said they hadn't. "The Vietnamese just aren't like that," he said. "Most of them just stood there."

Bernhardt said everyone in the village was apparently shot down but he had a feeling there were survivors hiding beneath the bodies.

The sergeant also said there were reports the villagers were warned to leave by leaflets dropped on the village before the soldiers moved in. However, he said he doubted whether any in fact had fled.

Asked how he felt as the soldiers left the village, Bernhardt said: "I didn't feel very happy. I thought it was all kind of ridiculous."

Throughout the entire operation he heard nothing said between soldiers and villagers, the sergeant said. "We just moved in and in a short while the men started shooting."

Bernhardt said he was first interviewed by the army about the incident this summer in Washington. In recent weeks he has been questioned about it by army investigators at Fort Benning, Ga., where Calley is being held.

The army has refused to discuss the matter, saying it might prejudice the cases of Calley and Mitchell.

In another development related to the deaths, the Cleveland Plain Dealer today printed photographs showing South Vietnamese civilians allegedly killed in the incident. It said the photographs came from a former army combat photographer, Ronald L. Haeberle, of Cleveland.

Haeberle said in a copyright story that he joined the company just before it entered the village and heard from the men that fi was suspected the villagers were Viet Cong sympathizers. He said he saw men, women and children slaughtered.

A Pentagon spokesman in Washington said he did not expect there would be any official comment on the Plain Dealer story or photographs.

Antarctic Crash Kills Two Men

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP) — U.S. scientist Dr. Thomas E. Berg and a New Zealand film director were killed in the Antarctic Wednesday when their helicopter crashed and burst into flames.

The remaining six aboard the U.S. Navy Seahorse helicopter were all injured, including Dr. Berg's assistant, Donald Currie of Edmonton.

The dead film director was identified as English-born Jeremy Sykes, 34, who worked for the national film unit in Wellington.

Dr. Berg was employed at the University of Wisconsin and his next-of-kin live in St. Albert, Alta.

Scenes of the crash was Wright Bailey, 90 miles west of Scott Base. The aircraft hit an icy slope and then slid 600 feet before bursting into flames.

The crew had been working on a documentary program and were returning to New Zealand headquarters at Scott Base.

It was believed here the helicopter lost power and was forced to make an emergency landing.

Dr. Berg had been carrying out patterned ground studies in the Antarctic for several summers. Mr. Currie is being tested for secondary burns at the U.S. Navy's dispensary at McMurdo Station.

U.S. Navy men injured were identified as Cmdr. James F. Brandau, co-pilot Lieut. Michael T. Mabry and crew members Gordon E. Little and Claude L. English.

The eighth man hurt was a New Zealand camera man. They were brought to McMurdo Bay Wednesday night.

Mabry was the only one of the survivors not to receive hand burns because he wore gloves.

He trudged five miles with the least injured man to a tent which housed a generator and radio—but the set failed to work.

His next alternative was an emergency radio station a further three miles away. He walked and called for help.

Milk 'Fortified'

TORONTO (CP) — J. L. Sullivan, president of the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association, said Wednesday that most milk sold in Ontario will, within the next few months, contain added Vitamin D.

Vitamin D helps the body use calcium and phosphorus and prevents rickets.

Ottawa Mother Wants to Drink With the Boys

OTTAWA (CP) — A petite 26-year-old mother of two has challenged the men-only regulation at Ottawa beer parlors.

Mrs. J. Rink Acheson, an electronics student at Algonquin College, decided to join her classmates Tuesday for their regular after-school beer at the Bytown Inn men's beverage room.

Her 60 male classmates, angry at the segregation of sexes, promised to support any protest she would make in a local men's pub.

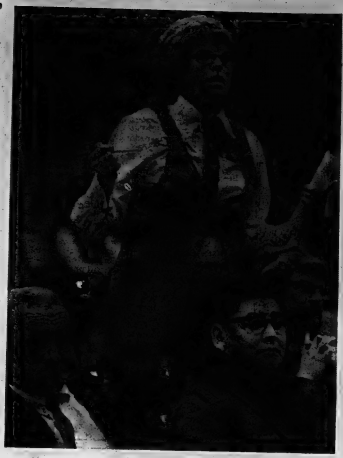
The waiter in the tavern refused service on the grounds women are not permitted in the pub, and accused Mrs. Acheson of losing him customers. Police were then called by manager.

Mrs. Acheson said she hoped to be arrested to force the issue to a public hearing in court.

The two police officers called to the scene explained that, although the tavern is called a public place, it is privately owned, giving the owners the right to request her eviction.

The officers admitted, however, they would not have acted had it been a man the owner wanted removed from their pub.

Legal sources noted the Liquor Control Act does not allow for men-only beverage rooms but added that regulations which the provincial attorney-general can make in conjunction with the act do refer specifically to men's rooms.



Formality Assailed

Social worker Valerie Bingeman of Winnipeg tells the Senate committee investigating poverty that the formal atmosphere of the hearings is a form of intimidation. Mrs. Bingeman's brief was presented at committee hearings in Winnipeg. (CP Photo)

New York Episcopalian Bishop Studies Draft-dodgers' Needs

OTTAWA (CP) — Possible establishment of a counselling service for young Americans with moral problems over the Vietnam war is the purpose of a two-day fact-finding visit here, Rt. Rev. Ned Cole said Wednesday.

"I'm here to find out . . . and open to whatever comes up," the bishop of the Episcopalian (Anglican) diocese of central New York told a news conference.

Bishop Cole says he hopes, by talking to American military deserters and draft-dodgers and the people actively involved in helping them here, to be able to aid other young Americans before they leave the United States.

Estimates of the number of American deserters and draft-dodgers in Canada range from 30,000 to 60,000, most of them located in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver. Prof. James Wilson, Carleton University lecturer and an organizer of the Ottawa Aid with Immigration and the Draft organization, says his group handles 15 new arrivals a week.

He said A.I.D. has already helped about 700 young men since March, 1968, and that 300 or 400 are still in the Ottawa area. Less than 25 per cent of these are avoiding the U.S. draft; most are deserters, he said.

Viscount Engine in Museum

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada presented a four-engine turboprop Viscount aircraft to the National Museum of Science and Technology in Ottawa Wednesday.

H. W. Seagrim, Air Canada first vice-president, made the official presentation of CF-THI to Dr. D. M. Baird, director of the museum.

Windsor Students Battle President

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An ultimatum from the president of St. Clair College on student newspaper obscenity has led to a chill in student-administration relations and the firing of the paper's two editors.

A student administration council spokesman said the sudden "apology" from administration has helped ease the tension.

The Nov. 10 issue of the community college campus paper, The Saint, carried a poem by Black Panther leader Bobby Seale containing the obscene word.

Last Thursday Dr. R. C. Quittenton, college president, called a meeting of the newspaper, council and student athletic association.

Michael Forman, council treasurer, said he received a letter from Dr. Quittenton saying that "if another issue of The Saint appears that is obscene, by my standards, then I will . . . deny the use of tax supported facilities and equipment for the preparation of this paper."

Friday afternoon the student council called an emergency meeting during which members voted to fire the two Saint editors Greg Parent and E. J. Welch, applied arts students.

The SAC also sent a letter to Dr. Quittenton stating it was willing to accept "the normal standards of the community with respect to libel, slander and pornography" but "we are not willing to accept your personal standards."

Subversion Question For Courts

OTTAWA (CP) — Subversion is a matter for the courts rather than a parliamentary committee, Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday, creating a brief furore in the Commons.

Opposition MPs, led by Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River), claimed that Mr. Trudeau was giving directions to a Commons committee inquiring into the Company of Young Canadians.

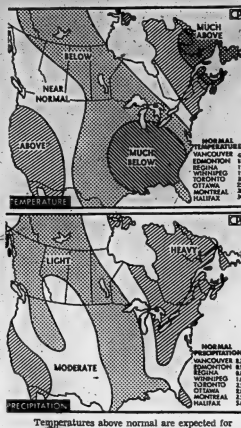
"I said quite the contrary," Mr. Trudeau replied, adding that the terms of reference of the committee had been given by the House "and we do not propose to change them at this time."

Andre Fortin (Creditiste-Lotbiniere) opened the subject by asking whether Mr. Trudeau intends to enlarge the committee mandate to allow it to hear accusations of subversion in the CYC by Lucien Saulnier, Montreal executive committee chairman.

"Parliament has given a mandate to this committee," Mr. Trudeau replied.

"We believe that this mandate is justified. We believe that it is the role of the committee to study the organization and functioning of the Company of Young Canadians.

"We believe that questions of subversion, questions eventually of criminal acts, aren't the object of this parliamentary committee's inquiry. . . ."



Temperatures above normal are expected for the Atlantic provinces in the next month, according to the 30-day outlook of the U.S. weather bureau. Below-normal temperatures are predicted for western Ontario, Manitoba and most of Saskatchewan. Precipitation is expected to be heavy in most of eastern Canada and light in most of western Canada. STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Old Feud Renewed

OTTAWA (CP) — It looked for a moment Wednesday as if good relations were to be re-established between Prime Minister Trudeau and Donald MacInnis, the Cape Breton MP who irritated Mr. Trudeau last session by questions about the prime minister's duties'

Mr. Trudeau joined other Liberals in good - natured applause as Mr. MacInnis rose in the Commons to ask a question.

The combative Conservative member for Cape Breton-East Richmond responded with the hope that "bygones are bygones," then asked whether the federal government is planning to spend millions on a motion picture starring Montreal actress Louise Marleau.

Miss Marleau has been a Trudeau date as well.

"That's a bad start," Speaker Lucien Lamoureux advised Mr. MacInnes.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For over a year my 3-year-old has been complaining of earaches. Ear infections would show up often and antibiotics were given. When he has earaches he wakes up a number of times during the night. He gets irritable and wants to lie down a lot during the day. He walks around holding his ear and complaining of the pain. Is this a common condition? My doctor doesn't believe in tonsillectomy. — Mrs. L.

Comment: The pendulum swings. A few years back tonsils were being taken out "wholesale." Sometimes as many as six children of one family would go in for their T and A's — whether they were sick or not.

These days it has swung the other way — sometimes there is too much conservat i n. Your doctor is one of many who hesitate to recommend tonsillectomy.

Nevertheless, removal of tonsils and adenoids is still the most frequently performed procedure in all of surgery. But too many chronically ill children like your own child, Mrs. L., are denied the operation when they might benefit from it.

I do not believe in "routine" T and A's for which there is no definite indication — except just having them out. But there are well-recognized reasons for the operation.

For example, tonsillectomy and adenoidectomy should be carefully considered in patients having any of the following complaints:

Whenever there is chronic infection such as tonsilitis, adenoiditis, pharyngitis and upper respiratory infections.

If there is a history (as in your child's case) of ear discorders.

If enlarged tonsils and adenoids cause so much obstruction they produce m o u t h breathing. If there is history of peritonsillar abscess (quinsy sore throat). If there is a history of strep infections involving heart or kidneys. When there is sufficient reason for the operation, it should not be denied the patient.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband has been an alcoholic for over 25 years. He used up all of his vacation leaves drinking. Finally, he lost his last job and is on retirement at 59.

Now he drinks all the time. He has diabetes, and doesn't take his diabetes pills regularly. What is likely to happen next? — Mrs. P.

Comment: Unfortunately, I have seen many patients like your husband. They go about killing themselves by slow suicide.

* * *

For Mr. M.: I can o n l y guess. You are 65 and have to get up several times a night to urinate. Better see a urologist referred by your family doctor. "Prostate trouble" is a likelihood — but not necessarily so.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 22-year-old mother with two girls. I don't know whether I am tired or lazy. I mentioned to my doctor that I was tired and he gave me thyroid pills — two grains a day. I'm always afraid I'm gettin gtoo much thyroid. I've never had a test taken. So it worries me. Is my problem silly? — Mrs. A.

Comment: Not silly. F o r proper treatment (and diagnosis) of any thyroid deficiency or overactivity, I believe a metabolism test or special blood tests are essential protein-bound iodine test, etc. Tell your doctor how you feel about it, and I'm sure he will make arrangements.

Funeral Service Is Planned Around Son and Grandchildren

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Joseph P. Kennedy's funeral mass today was planned around his only living son and his grandchildren.

The mass was for the family and close friends, with burial to follow in the family plot at Holyhood Cemetery in Brookline, a Boston suburb.

Kennedy, father of President John F. Kennedy, died at his home here Tuesday at 81. A wealthy financier, he had served as U.S. ambassador to Britain from 1938 to 1940, Senator Robert F. Kennedy, like President Kennedy, the victim of an assassin's bullets, was another of the former diplomat's sons.

A family spokesman said the mass in St. Francis Xavier, Roman Catholic Church here would be "devoted to the grandchildren, some of whom never knew the former ambassador until after he became ill" as the result of a stroke that incapacitated him eight years ago.

The role of celebrant was filled by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston and a long-time family friend.

The family spokesman said Senator Edward M. Kennedy would speak at the opening of the mass in tribute to Ann Gargan, a niece, "to call attention to her great devotion and love for his father." She was the former ambassador's constant companion from the time he suffered a stroke in 1961.

Kennedy also planned to read his own tribute, an excerpt from a privately published book. The Flowering Bough, containing a collection of essays about the senior Kennedy, and to read a prayer written by the former ambassador's wife, Rose.

At the request of Mrs. Kennedy, the new white funeral liturgy was chosen for the mass. For it, the clergy wear white vestments, rather than the traditional black or purple, and the accent is on the message of resurrection and joy after death rather than mourning.

Assignments as altar boys went to five grandsons—Robert Jr., 15, David, 14, and Michael Kennedy, 11, sons of Robert Kennedy; William Smith, 9, and Timothy Shriver, 10.

The reading of the epistle for the day and of other prayers not said by the clergy also was assigned to the altar boys.

Eight of the Kennedy granddaughters were designated to act as the congregation's representatives at the offertory in bringing to the altar the sacramental wine, water and communion hosts in a chalice.

In this group were Maria Shriver, 14, Sydney Lawford, 13, Courtney Kennedy, 13, Caroline Kennedy, 11, Victoria Lawford, 11, Kerry Kennedy, 9, Kara Kennedy, 9, and Robin Lawford, 8.

A choir of 30 nuns and students from Newton College of the Sacred Heart in Newton came to provide music during the mass.

In addition to Rev. John Cavanaugh, former president of Notre Dame University, other special guests at the funeral included five men who were longtime friends of Kennedy and who were his guests at a dinner in Washington the night before John F. Kennedy was inaugurated as president.

Also in this group were singer Morton Downey, a long-time friend and neighbor at Hyannis Port, and Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Baltimore Colts professional football team.

Even through his illness, Kennedy was a fan of professional football.

Men Most Passionate at Breakfast
British Research Council Reports

EDINBURGH, Scotland (Reuters) — Men are sexually most passionate at breakfast time despite romantic notions about the re-ordinate effects of moonlight and music, a group of scientists said today.

The scientists at the British Medical Research Council's endocrinology unit report that there is no reason to believe women are not the same.

Dr. Adel Ismail, who like other doctors in the unit has been studying levels of the sex hormone testosterone in men, said:

He has found that the highest level of the hormone occurs between four o'clock in the morning and noon.

Monkeys, the nearby Nunraw monastery volunteered to help the researchers. Ismail told reporters the monks have normal sex arousal but the lack of sexual intercourse had no effect on the output of sexual hormones.

All Aboard Die

Nigerian Plane Crashes

LAGOS (AP) — A Nigeria Airways VC-10 from London crashed today four miles north of the Lagos airport. There were no survivors among the 77 persons reported on board, airport sources said. The plane can hold up to 152 passengers.

Reuters news agency quoted the airline as saying there were 63 persons aboard and all were killed.

The plane lost radio contact as it was coming down to land. There was no indication of trouble. The weather was foggy over the crash site but clear at the airport.

It was the first reported crash of one of the British-built VC-10s since the four jet airliner went into service in 1962.

The charred wreckage lay smoking in the dense jungle just beyond the outskirts of metropolitan Lagos.

Airport sources said there were 67 passengers, including a seven-man Ghana Airways crew and 10 members of the plane crew. Most of the latter were foreign, including a British pilot and co-pilot.

The plane had stopped en route in Rome and at Kano, in northern Nigeria.

Airport sources said last radio contact with the aircraft was around 8:15 a.m., 12 miles north of Ikeja Airport, about the time it was due. There was no further contact.

The plane went into service Oct. 7, the first VC-10 owned by the national line though several had been chartered. It normally carried a British pilot with a Nigerian co-pilot.

The aircraft had made a stopover in Kano.

In the last few days, there has been a raging dispute over whether European or Nigerian pilots should fly the aircraft. Several pilots were suspended and the head of state, Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, personally intervened.

Stockholm Report Erroneous

Barrie Police Deny Story of Bomber Crash

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police at Barrie, Wednesday denied a report from Stockholm, Sweden, that a United States B-52 bomber with nuclear or thermonuclear weapons on board had crashed north of Toronto Feb. 12, 1968.

The incident was among a list of 31 major accidents involving nuclear weapons since 1950 included in a 440-page report of the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute.

The semi-official peace organization analysed international arms spending in the report, released Wednesday.

Sgt.-Maj. W. A. Coxworth of the Barrie provincial police said in an interview Wednesday an anonymous caller told officials at the nearby Canadian Forces Base Borden Feb. 12, 1968, that he had spotted a large wing with the U.S. Air Force insignia and several jet engines on Lake Simcoe about 2½ miles off Barrie.

Sgt.-Maj. Coxworth said police records show that a thorough search of the lake area that night and again the next day turned up no trace of a crashed aircraft.

He said he had a clipping from the Soviet Union newspaper Pravda that carried details of the B-52 crashing at Barrie, 55 miles north of Toronto. He said the entire Pravda report was false.

He said checks with U.S. military bases surrounding the Great Lakes, the RCMP and the control tower at Toronto International Airport showed that no planes were reported missing or overdue.

He said it was possible the report was prompted by someone spotting a small plane landing on the ice near Barrie, for refuelling earlier on the evening of Feb. 12.

Canada's department of national defence said Wednesday its records show no plane crashes on that date, and a U.S. Air Force spokesman in Washington said no American B-52 bomber has ever crashed in Canada, with or without nuclear bombs.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 21

Your birthday today: The coming year is confirmation of your inherent strengths, provided you do your level best and work conscientiously. Circumstances may indicate areas where you need to know more, but these are matters you should be alert to anyway. Leisure time is less available most of the year.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): See what yesterday's ups and downs have done to your regular program. A conservative approach is best. Wind up the week's chores; leave as few loose ends as possible.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Make a slow, steady drive to settle and present your work. Any health matter should be attended promptly, in the early evening if possible.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Distraction complicates your life today. Pay little attention to outside issues; stay with the things that matter most to you. A least get your usual job done well.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Spending gets out of hand if you begin. Expansion seems tempting, too, but isn't as essential as surface indications make it appear.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): It still is not time to leap into untried ventures. Consolidate what you have left from recent changes; plan to move in a new direction later on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Older people and long-standing issues require your attention. Distant conflicts may possess a new meaning for you. Focus mainly on improving things where you are, for yourself and those nearby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Business matters proceed slowly. You are not the only one who has to check out all details now. Expense is apt to increase, but there is no way of estimating how much and how soon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your self-expression comes on stronger today. Proceed full force despite trends in other directions among your associates. You will eventually convince them to go your way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Expect a day of relatively heavy going; pace yourself to avoid fatigue. The results will be well worthwhile. Health matters deserve your prompt attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): A busy day helps alleviate your concerns over other people and their problems. Your own spirits need brightening up — meditation is in order this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Changes of property use or ownership are not favorable today. Your home and older people deserve all the attention you can spare them. Be explicit in giving advice.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This seems like a long, slow day. Applying yourself to chores helps, and gets a lot done. Reminisce to lighten your mood.

Council Favors Vote At 18

Belleville city council on Monday concurred in the Owen Sound resolution asking for legislation to lower the voting age in municipal elections to 18 years.

The resolution noted that persons reaching 18 years are more and more expected to assume adult responsibility and accordingly should be given the right to vote in municipal elections.

The Owen Sound resolution was but one of three from other municipalities concurred in by council.

The resolution said there was indication that this property tax reduction would be abolished in favor of an increased education grant which, it was claimed could lead owners to believe their educational tax was decreased.

The resolution asked the resident property tax be returned to the municipality in the form of an unconditional grant thereby letting the public truly understand the educational tax cost.

Also council concurred in a London resolution asking that legislation be introduced to make contributions to suburban roads expenditures by separate cities and towns permissive rather than obligatory as under existing legislation.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

"Don't worry, we'll be rescued—our government can't afford the luxury of marooned taxpayers."

There She Blows!

The incident was inconvenient but damage to this umbrella in the hands of a Belleville girl yesterday, was small compared to other results of day-long high winds. Telephone and hydro poles were downed throughout the Quinte area by gusts over 50-miles-an-hour.

Roaring 50 MPH Wind Ruffles Quinte District

Repair crews today were still combing kinks out of utilities services ruffled by 50-mile-an-hour winds in the Quinte district yesterday.

Hydro and telephone services were hit by sporadic interruptions through the day as service lines were downed by damaged poles and broken tree limbs.

There were no serious incidents in the day - long battering that saw high winds sweeping along sporadic heavy rains.

Rural areas took the brunt of the damage.

Biggest power failure was in the Shannonville area where Ontario Hydro reported that 800 customers were without electricity for 30 minutes.

While damage was not serious, it was widely scattered, sending service crews over a wide area as the storm buffeted the district from early morning.

Winds up to 50-miles-an-hour were recorded at the forecast office at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton. But there were heavier, localized gusts in spots.

Highway 2 in the Belleville area took a heavy battering. Just west of Point Anne provincial police reported four telephone poles downed simultaneously.

In all, Hydro reported 15 poles down in scattered rural locations, with repairs totalling about $3,000.

Bell Canada estimated 20-25 poles were downed by the wind. A company spokesman expected all services affected to be back in normal operation today.

The storm, which shipped the Bay of Quinte into white-caps, also delayed the coast-guard craft Kreski in buoy-raising operations at Trenton. The craft rode out the blow in Belleville until this morning.

PICTON (Staff) — The weather was wet and wild in Picton yesterday, causing a considerable amount of storm damage.

The Picton Utilities Commission reported three hydro poles broken during the all - day storm and some wires burned down.

Two poles fell on the corner of Centre and Princeys streets yesterday afternoon when a tree blew down on two parked cars. The accident damaged cars belonging to James Bird and Mrs. David Lockwood.

For four homes in the immediate vicinity of the mishap it was lights out for almost two hours.

Throughout yesterday's rain squall in which .18 inches of water fell, the temperature remained a balmy 48 degrees, according to officials.

Storm damage was reported extensive throughout Prince Edward County this morning by Ontario Hydro spokesman, Dan Keeler.

Mr. Keeler explained that the damage was caused by high winds which broke off poles and swept down limbs and branches.

Power interruptions were described as "spotty" all day long, with only one major power failure which was quickly repaired.

Road crews were at work until two a.m. this morning.

The Picton Detachment of the OPP this morning reported that despite yesterday's storm there were no accidents as a direct result of weather conditions.

One mishap, however, was recorded by Ontario Hydro. The provincial police flag became entangled in power lines and police appealed for Hydro assistance to free the flag.

Jamboree Celebrates Birthday

The Trent Valley Country Jamboree held its third anniversary performance recently in Stirling, with more than 600 country and western music fans in attendance.

On hand were Sunshine Sean Eyre, from the Ole Wired Woodshed, CHEX, Peterborough, Charlie Mayall, Shirley Cooney, John McGuinness, Maurice LaChappelle, Dave Wood, Donna Moon, Leonard Scott, Ken Stapley and Ken, the Sundowners Band, Russ Wheeler, Betty and their daughter from Rodeo Records and Dick Lovering from Radio Station CJBQ.

Loewen Builders' President

Mr. Randy Loewen of Loewen Heating and Air Conditioning was officially installed as president of the Quinte Home Builders at their monthly meeting last night. He succeeds Belleville electrical contractor Albert Horlock.

Allan Klarer, director of the National Home Builders' Association, conducted the installation of the new president and incoming directors.

As guest speaker, Mr. Klarer told local home builders that 200,000 new housing units would be required in Canada next year.

He said his association had met with the federal housing minister on several occasions to emphasize the need of a continuous supply of mortgage money if this goal was to be achieved.

Mr. Klarer suggested that senior governments should provide municipalities with funds to install municipal services for housing.

He didn't agree with the proposed policy of housing land purchases by government, claiming this could be better taken care of by developers and builders, if the necessary services were provided by the municipality.

The new Quinte Association executive is made up of vice-presidents Don Keller and Garnold Peacock with Joe Cox as secretary-treasurer. Directors include Al Horlock as past president, Maurice Rollins, Gerald Joyce, Robert Byrd, Bill Downing, Robert Lambert and James Driscoll.

Allan Klarer, (left), National Home Builders' Association director, officially installs Randy Loewen as Quinte Home Builders' president. Outgoing president Al Horlock prepares to hand over the gavel.

Eight More Iraqis Executed as Spies

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Eight more Iraqis, one of them a Jew, have been secretly executed in Baghdad after being convicted of spying for Israel, says a former prisoner who has since left Iraq.

The released prisoner, who cannot be identified for fear of reprisals against his family, also reported that former Iraqi prime minister Abdul Rahman Bezzaz has been jailed for 30 years on two charges of plotting to overthrow Iraq's leftist regime.

He still awaits trial on a third charge that he plotted revolt in league with Kurdish dissidents and with the backing of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, the released prisoner reports.

Bezzaz, 57, highly respected in the Arab world as a scholar and author, was prime minister from September, 1965 until August, 1966, under former presidents Abdel Salam Aref and his brother Abdel Rahman Aref. British-educated, he was Iraq's ambassador in London from 1963 until 1965.

Awaiting trial with him, says the released prisoner, is his former defence minister, Maj.-Gen. Abdul Aziz Uqeili, 48. He is suffering from a broken leg, reported to be the result of torture.

Both men were arrested in Iraq last December.

The released prisoner, held for months with Bezzaz and Uqeili in Baghdad's central prison, reported the latest batch of alleged spies were all tried and sentenced to death in secret by Iraq's four-man revolutionary court.

He claims six were hanged in the prison in late September and two early in October. He identified the executed Jew as Naji Saati. All were civilians.

The executions would bring to 52 those put to death this year in Iraq for allegedly spying for Israel. Twelve of them, including Saati, have been Jews.

His Heart Medicine Earns Fine

TORONTO (CP) — Lawrence Devor's on-the-job heart ailment remedy—a few ounces of liquor in a medicine bottle—cost him $10 in court Wednesday.

The 51-year-old fork-lift operator on the Toronto docks pleaded guilty to having open liquor in a public place—a breath of the Ontario Liquor Control Act—and was fined $10 or three days.

He told the court his doctor had told him to take liquor in his coffee at work to keep his heart ticking on time and he had been doing this for 17 years.

"You had better get a different doctor," said the prosecutor, Martin Kelso.

Quick Trip Home Denied Astronauts

Day-early Return Ruled Too Risky

HOUSTON (CP) — Apollo 12 mission controllers today turned down a suggestion that the moon explorers return to earth a day earlier than scheduled.

As the three astronauts passed their final day in lunar orbit, spacecraft commander Charles Conrad asked ground control if there was sufficient fuel in the craft's main rocket engine to fire it longer than planned when they come out of lunar orbit and head for home at 3:49 p.m. EST.

This would have the effect of putting Yankee Clipper on a faster flight path to earth, thus cutting short the planned 72-hour return voyage.

However, a check of ground instruments at mission control centre here showed that while there probably was sufficient fuel to carry out this manoeuvre, it would only just be enough and the safety margin would be too small.

"OK, no problem. We just thought we might have enough fuel to do it," Conrad replied cheerfully when he heard the news.

This means that Conrad, fellow moon-walker Alan Bean and Richard Gordon, who are spending their last hours in lunar orbit taking photographs of future Apollo landing sites, will splash down in the Pacific Monday afternoon as planned.

At 2:33 a.m., Apollo 12 changed course slightly to bring the spacecraft in line for better photographing of the future landing sites.

"You're looking good." Mission Control said afterwards.

Conrad then asked if "that hot engine of ours didn't by any chance buy us enough gas to come home a day early, did it?"

Conrad and Bean were tired after a long day that started with a four-hour, one-mile scientific expedition on the Ocean of Storms and ended with the deliberate crash of their lunar ferry Intrepid on the moon. In between, they blasted off the moon, executed a flawless 3½-hour rendezvous to linkup with Gordon in the Yankee Clipper command ship, then transferred themselves and the treasure gathered on the moon to the command ship.

Six cameras are used, four of them placed side-by-side on a common mount, each fitted with a different type of film and filter. Another camera is fitted with a 500-millimetre lens, and the sixth has an 18-millimetre lens.

Gordon said the four mounted cameras will be fired every 20 seconds "to give us complete strip photography across the illuminated surface of the moon from one minute after sunrise to one minute prior to sunset."

Geologists, meanwhile, continued to study what they considered remarkable vibrations created when Intrepid smashed into the moon 45 miles from what hours before had been its base in the Ocean of Storms.

The 2,000-pound ship struck the moon at 3,700 miles an hour, carving out an elliptical crater estimated at 20 by 40 feet, but only about 20 inches deep.

The purpose was to excite a seismometer which Conrad and Bean left to measure the shock waves of moonquakes, meteor hits and other disturbances that could tell much about the moon's interior.

The vibrations shook the delicate instrument for 30 minutes, with the data relayed to Mission Control.

"None of us has seen anything like this on earth," said Dr. Frank Press of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Maurice Ewing of the Lamont Doherty Geological Observatory said the signal "is as though one had struck a bell and found it reverberating."

Others said the long vibration period indicated the moon's interior may be much different from earth with its internal layers.

Space Work Yields Profit

Dr. Wernher von Braun has been in the forefront of the U.S. space program since it was only a vague dream. In the following article, written for The Associated Press, the director of the George C. Marshall Space Flight Centre tells what directions the space program may take in the future, what it means for the average man and what benefits it holds for mankind.

Written for AP
By DR. von BRAUN

The purpose of the space program, how it will benefit man, and where the program is headed in the future are three often-asked questions now that Americans have landed on the moon.

Despite monumental efforts, many persons still do not know the answers to these questions, answers which, as taxpayers, all Americans rightly deserve.

The space program does cost money and this raises concern among some Americans who feel that the money spent on space could be better utilized at present on problems here on earth.

In this regard, I think we must realize two things: First, the space program is not an isolated program which is separate from the rest of America, and second, the space program is not expensive in terms of potential benefit.

In fact, during the brief period of time that the space program has been in existence we have already shown significant immediate returns. The money spent on space has contributed both directly and indirectly to improving the conditions of life here on earth. The money is, in fact, spent on earth and has re-

Senate Inquiry Sought Into Vietnam 'Massacre'

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A request for a full-scale Senate investigation of an alleged massacre of South Vietnamese civilians by U.S. troops was in the works today following an initiative by Senator Charles Goodell, New York Republican.

Urging the investigation in a letter to Senator John C. Stennis (Dem. Miss.), chairman of the Senate armed services committee, Goodell said Thursday night it was shocking that according to recent eyewitness reports American soldiers participated in the shooting of villagers and did so on officers' orders.

Referring to an incident in which about 300 men, women and children were alleged to have been killed by U.S. soldiers in My Lai hamlet in March, 1968, the anti-war senator said:

"If we, as members of Congress, are concerned with the treatment of our fighting men by the enemy, we should be equally concerned that our military forces in Vietnam maintain the standards of a civilized nation at war."

Bomb Rocks College

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's first terrorist bombings since Sept. 29 rocked west-end Loyola College and the home of a suburban deputy mayor Thursday.

The evening blast in a basement stairwell of Loyola College, described by police as "one of the biggest yet" in the city, shattered windows on all three stories and in nearby houses.

The Thursday morning explosion at the $50,000 home of Mario Barone, deputy mayor of St. Leonard and a leader of the suburb's Italian community, caused slight damage.

There were no injuries in either bombing although evening students were in classes at the college and eight persons were asleep in Mr. Barone's home.

St. Leonard police estimated the bomb at Mr. Barone's home had the power of one stick of dynamite. Montreal police said it would be impossible to estimate the power of the blast at Loyola College's modern Bryan building, which houses the communication arts department.

(In Saigon, four major South Vietnamese language newspapers today broke a three-day silence maintained on the alleged massacre after first reports broke.

(The stories, based on foreign news agency reports and Vietnamese-language broadcasts by the Voice of America, were run even though, an editor said three days ago, the information ministry had asked the papers not to print foreign news agency reports on the incident.

There was no editorial comment and all the stories were run under Saigon datelines. Foreign agency interviews with survivors of the incident were not used.

Alluding to the eyewitness reports, Goodell said it was additionally shocking that they said at least one witness was warned by military superiors not to report the occurrence.

He said he also was concerned by reports about a joint U.S.-Saigon program, codenamed Phoenix, for assassinating supposed National Liberation Front village officials.

Goodell also said an investigation should include among its findings what steps if any had been taken by the defence department and the U.S. military command in Vietnam to prevent mass killings in the future.

Milan's Police Said Mutinous

MILAN, Italy (Reuters) — Milan's overworked and weary police were in a tense mood today as senior officers stayed silent about reports of mutiny in the ranks.

The men grimly continued their search for the killer of a 22-year-old fellow officer, Antonio Annarumma, amid controversy over the manner of his death and the whole question of police involvement in violent general strike demonstrations Wednesday.

A hospital surgeon said Annarumma was struck by a long, heavy metal pipe. Left-wing students, invaded in Wednesday's street battle on the side of striking workers, said he was crushed between two police jeeps.

News of Annarumma's death sparked a mutiny at the main police station, one report said.

Shouting, "We are not beasts, we are human too," they ran to their jeeps, set their sirens screaming and threatened to run down a cordon of officers and drive out of the building.

Reporters on the scene reported evidence of fighting and saw tears streaming down the policemen's faces after they apparently were tear-gassed by colleagues.

Language Bill Given Final Okay

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's national assembly gave third and final reading Thursday to Bill 63 on language rights.

It ended one of the stormiest periods in Quebec history that included province-wide demonstrations, violence and parliamentary rift.

The vote was 67 to five. There was no word when royal assent would be given.

Basically, the legislation makes French Quebec's priority language and ensures parents the right to have their children educated in either French or English.

Aid for Unemployed

Dr. Potter Proposes Work-Activity Program

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — A radical program to stimulate work interest among welfare recipients chronically unable to hold jobs in an automated society has been advocated by Dr. Richard Potter.

The scheme — involving what the Quinte MPP calls the "marginally employable" — would encourage work habits among the work shy not reached by job retraining schemes.

"If government is going to fulfill its responsibilities both to these marginal employed and to the taxpaying public, we must pay more positive attention to this type of welfare recipient," he said.

The Potter plan, calling on the Ontario government for a "work-activity" program was last night during the throne speech debate.

It involves persons unable to hold regular employment "because of their negative attitudes towards working and making an independent living," said Dr. Potter.

There are a sizeable number of men on welfare who fail to be self - supporting neither because they are lazy nor - emotionally disturbed, but because they lack the right attitudes and habits of a working man," said Dr. Potter.

"These men haven't chosen idleness," emphasized Dr. Potter. "They have drifted into it mainly because for some reason they were deprived of employment.

Such people have "a right to live — a right to . . . the opportunity to earn some of the good things that make life a little enjoyable," said Dr. Potter.

Work - activity programs, which relatively new in Canada have been tested in Britain and the U.S., he noted.

"Essentially, it is a program that combines counselling and work practice in such a way that the welfare recipient gradually acquires the attitudes and habits of working."

Work activity is more a mental than physical rehabilitation. While not skill-training, it eventually can lead to educational upgrading.

It involves both social counselling and on-the-job activity with employed persons setting an example. Welfare recipients, paired with working people, would acquire work habits and knowledge. Shelitered workshops also might be used.

Dr. Potter emphasized the program bore no resemblance to once-popular work-for-relief projects — where welfare recipients were encouraged to labor for benefits.

"Work activity offers us the opportunity for a fascinating experiment in personal relations, in human psychology— and enterprise . . . full of hope for the participants and the public."

The Quinte MPP admitted the realities of such a program would not be easy.

Skilled counsellors would be required for "this gradual introduction of a man to a working way of life, this change of attitudes . . ."

There would have to be persuasion, counselling, encouragement, support at every step . . . It would not be as easy as it sounds, but the results would be rewarding."

Brighton Youngster Hit by Car

TRENTON — Coroner Dr. W. Elliott of Brighton has called an inquest into the death of David Walker, 7, of RR2, Brighton.

The youngster was killed instantly Thursday at about 8:35 a.m. when he darted south on to the traveled portion of Highway 2 and was struck by a car driven by Miss Doris Boer, 34, of RR3, Brighton.

Before the accident, David and his 5-year-old brother and another child had been standing on the north shoulder of Highway 2, just across the road from the Walker residence, 1¼ miles east of Brighton, waiting for the school bus to take them to Brighton Public School.

Brighton detachment of the said no charges will be laid. No date has been set for the inquest.

Deseronto Mayor Acclaimed

DESERONTO — Incumbent mayor J. Sharpe was reelected by acclamation last night when his was the only name submitted.

A former councillor, George Lyons, received an acclamation for reeve.

Frank Topping, long-time Public Utilities Commissioner, was also returned to his post by acclamation.

Four people were nominated for council posts. Edgar Cordanier, and A. P. Brooks, Jack Hamilton and Peter Dickinson. They have until 9 p.m. tonight to qualify.

Landmark Demolished

The Orr house on Cannifton Road, near Riverside Park is being razed. The old landmark, built in the 1830s, is owned by the city and has been found unfit for modern use.

Parks Board Considering Zwick's Engine Facelift

Staff officials of the city parks board will confer with the Canadian National Railways area headquarters regarding the cost of carrying out further work in connection with the display of the railway steam locomotive and caboose at Zwick's Island.

The cost of providing a permanent protective fence around the two park attractions has been estimated at $765 but the parks board has no money for this item in its current budget.

It is also suggested that the cab of the old locomotive be restored to its original condition and that steps and a walkway to the cab be provided.

Parks Board staff will confer with CN to ascertain what financial assistance the railway might give toward the project.

Parks Board staff will also confer with the Ontario Milk Marketing Board and Stephens-Adamson Company regarding a marketing board owned 2.8 acre piece of property on the Belleville waterfront.

—Parks board officials have learned that discussions have been under way leading to the possibility of the property being purchased by Stephens-Adamson.

At the present time there is a softball diamond on the property and board officials feel this could be lost as result of any sale.

Sale of the property could also conceivably interfere with the development of a continuous waterfront park and Bay Shore drive envisioned for the waterfront area between South Foster and Herchimer Avenues.

Driver Dies, Two Hurt

MADOC — With two key witnesses under intensive care, police today were still seeking full details on a fatal two-car crash here late yesterday.

Victim of the mishap at the junction of Highways 62 and 7 was 19-year-old William Calvert, of Coldwater, Ont.

Calvert, rushed to Belleville General Hospital with severe head injuries, was subsequently transferred to hospital at Kingston. He died shortly after arrival at Kingston General.

In serious condition are Theodore Goldsmith, 56, of St. Catharines, driver of the second car, and a 17-year-old hitchhiker, Martin Jones, of RR1, Marmora.

Mr. Goldsmith has chest and arm injuries and the Jones youth head injuries. Both are in the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital.

The junction is marked by a stop flasher on Highway 62. Provincial police said Calvert was heading north on the highway while Goldsmith was westbound on Highway 7.

Jones apparently was standing at the crossroads, but police said they had yet to determine exactly how he was injured.

Youth Corps To Collect Canned Goods

Members of Nicholson College youth corps are holding a Canned Food Drive on Nov. 29, in aid of needy families.

Students, wearing identification badges, will call at city homes between 12 noon and 4 p.m.

A spokesman for the group says contributions given personally or left at the door will be appreciated. The project was planned by the youth corps to aid needy families at Christmas. The group's project will distribute the canned goods they collect to families in the community.

Twirlers Off to Montreal As Root Beer Buccaneers

For football fans all over Canada the highlight of the season will be the Grey Cup Classic, taking place Sunday, Nov. 30.

For the Gail Chapman Jolly Buccaneers, the classic will also be the highlight of their season — because they have won the right to represent Belleville in the Grey Cup Parade.

This is the fourth year in the parade for the group of 24 girls and three drummers ages 12 to 18 — and they love it.

Teacher of the group, Mrs. Gail Chapman spoke with pride about her majorettes, emphasizing their wholehearted enthusiasm.

"The group is particularly excited about meeting the majorettes from all over Canada, but especially those from Quebec," said Mrs. Chapman.

She related being able to march in the parade isn't as simple as many people think it is. "Actually," said Mrs. Chapman, "the whole process is quite involved."

Each group wishing to appear in the parade must submit an application to the Grey Cup parade committee, which reviews and screens them, then stamps it "approved" or "disapproved."

"We are being sponsored by the Jolly Buccaneer Root Beer Company — a company that we have represented before," explained Mrs. Chapman.

The company will pay for transportation to Montreal, as well as supplying uniforms for the majorettes.

When they are not marching for the company, they are known as the Belleville Gayettes. But no matter what they call themselves, the girls are dedicated and thoroughly involved in what they are doing.

Boys their teacher, "they have worked hard and keep on working very, very hard. They are a great bunch of girls."

The secret to teaching the art of being a good majorette is based on experience, Mrs. Chapman will tell you. Add to that a smattering of child psychology and simple psychology, and success can be yours.

Mrs. Chapman has been actively teaching for the past 13 years, and started entering competitions herself at the age of 10. She has studied in both the United States and Canada, attending clinics for teachers to keep up on the latest techniques and methods in teaching.

The trip to Montreal could hold even more in store than simply participating in the Grey Cup Parade. If all goes well Gail Chapman's Buccaneer's could be logging a few more miles and many more parades.

Orr House Goes To Add to Park

Harry, now 74, was out by the Cannifton Road bank of the Moira River where the city parks department demolished a minor domestic edifice impeding the advance of River side Park.

For years, it's been familarly known as the Orr House.

Its two-foot-thick stone walls were built years ago north of what is now the ruined Laister Dam.

AT one time, recalls Mr. Robertson, the old house was where the man lived who managed Laister's, the paper mill powered by dammed water. Sometimes, he went there to draw his weekly pay as a millworker after World War I, he recalls.

The mill went out of business in the early 1920s.

The house lingered — until recently, when it became a city acquisition.

Various plans were proposed. Then, this week, the wreckers moved in.

The parks board will include the site in its attractive Riverside Park Greenbelt — at least for the moment. In the future is the possibility of memories perpetuated.

One suggestion is that a new Hastings County Museum be built on the spot.

Meantime, while higher-ups were conferring on the future, the demolition now lingers on Herchimer Avenue, went out to take a look at the present demolition — recalling the past.

Repairs On Bridge Completed

Motorists using the bay bridge on (the Highway 14 route between Belleville and Prince Edward county have been put to occasional inconvenience during the past week as the department of highways carried out minor bridge repairs.

The bridge beams and some overhead bracing were found to be in need of replacing.

During some of the welding operation "spot" traffic stops of 10 minute duration were necessary. Flagging of traffic was done by highway department personnel.

Dunn Machine and Repair of Trenton had the contract for the bridge repairs which are expected to be completed by noon today.

Winter Carnival Gets Lively Boost As Chamber Hears Preliminary Plans

The hottest thing on ice may be within the grasp of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

For years Bellevillians have talked about the city's potential as an ice-carnival centre.

It's Bay of Quinte shoreline is as normal as a Christmas snowflake for such an event. Its acreage of frozen water is not only a natural rink and arena — measured in yards or miles — it's flanked by snowbound shores to abet snowmobiling and shelter from the worst of winter winds.

Committees and sub-committees have been at work in recent months blazing a trail toward a big four-day carnival in early February.

Personnel on the committees are not merely confined to Chamber representatives they include high school representatives and workers on civic committees and clubs beyond the scope of the chamber's writ.

The intent apparently is to involve as wide a cross section of the community as possible.

So far, if the interim report is any indication, the lineup is proving a claim to representative content.

The carnival, tentatively, is scheduled for Feb. 5-8.

Among the events: A carnival queen contest, torchlight parade, barrel-rolling contest, senior hockey, pancake breakfasts, high school concerts, broomball, baseball-on-skates.

Meantime, the committees are still checking other events, said chamber secretary-manager O. S. Bradley.

Events and schedules are still tentative, chamber secretary-manager O. S. Bradley told the meeting. A meeting will be held Monday among various committees to discover progress on the various proposed projects.

Candidates Site Switched

Already the signals are flying for a busy Belleville election scene.

Yesterday, Belleville Chamber of Commerce directors decided to switch the venue for their traditional Meet-The-Candidates Night.

The date's the same — Nov. 27 at 8 p.m.

Reason for the switch is the fact the directors yesterday expressed worry the library hall could not hold all voters for the on-the-spot confrontation with candidates for municipal office — despite the Radio Station CJBQ live broadcast of the meeting.

County Ministers Wage Biafra Relief Campaign

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — "I'm just an ordinary guy, an ordinary minister, but my conscience has been bugging me concerning the starving children in Biafra," remarked Rev. Robert Jones yesterday.

Minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton, Rev. Jones had joined forces with Rev. Peter Breedveldt of the Christian Reformed Church, Bloomfield, in organizing "Operation Manna", a program in Prince Edward County to raise money to be used to fly food into Biafra.

Friday, a special meeting of the Prince Edward County Ministerial Association has been called by Rev. Jones and Rev. Breedveldt, in an effort to gain countrywide church support in their fund raising campaign. Main topic of discussion will be the possibility of declaring next "Biafra Week" in Prince Edward County.

If the ministerial association agrees, each member will preach a sermon this Sunday on the plight of the starving children of Biafra. The sermons would reach an estimated 1,800 persons in Picton alone. Should the ministerial association reject the project Rev. Jones and Rev. Breedveldt intend to "go it alone", on Operation Manna.

The two ministers have already spoken with Mayor H. J. McFarland concerning their plans to launch a fund drive in the county and he has pledged financial support. A local service club has been approached also.

"I get discouraged easily sometimes," confessed Rev. Jones, "and after we had decided to speak to the Kiwanis Club about Operation Manna I told Peter (Rev. Breedveldt) we may not get more than 30 seconds of their time."

Fate intervened in this situation and in Rev. Jones words, "God gave us the green light."

Two guest speakers scheduled to address the Kiwanians could not be present and the initiators of Operation Manna took the floor to outline 'their program.

"We spoke and a lot of men seemed to support us," recalled Rev. Jones.

Both ministers said yesterday that many people seem concerned with the political ramifications involved in supplying food to starving Biafrans. Rev. Jones explained that for him, the story of the Good Samaritan answered the question of involvement.

"The man aided by the Good Samaritan was the unidentifiable victim. No one knows if he deserved help or not. Now we have Biafra, again the undefinable victim," he added. "If you want political ramifications, fine, but these people are down and out," said the minister.

Rev. Jones pointed out that during the past two years two million children have died in Biafra. Today, 10,000 tons of food are ready to go in-to Biafra but there is no money to cover the cost of the flights.

Canairelief has been contacted by Rev. Jones and they are enthusiastic about Operation Manna, a project that could raise the money to carry in some of these provisions.

A second organization is Interpax, a group working toward a ceasefire and an armed embargo. Letters sent to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, would demonstrate public opinion on the war in Biafra and perhaps lead to action.

Rev. Jones added that Operation Manna is also aimed at encouraging the people of Prince Edward County in writing such letters. Eastern Ontario's division head for Interpax is David Patterson of Peterborough.

Operation Manna has sister campaigns already underway in this district. In Deseronto Rev. William Hendry of Deseronto United Church is spearheading a fund drive as is Rev. Jack Westerhoff of the Christian Reformed Church, Lindsay.

In the cities of Toronto, Vancouver and St. John's, projects are being supported to aid the people of Biafra.

"We cannot say today that Biafra is too remote for us to be aware of conditions there. Isn't it a miserable excuse to say that two million deaths in Biafra are too remote for us in Prince Edward County?" asked Rev. Breedveldt.

A national day of mourning for Biafra and Nigeria will be held across Canada on Nov. 27.

Auxiliary Out for Blood Of 275 Trenton Residets

TRENTON (Staff) — The Women's Hospital Auxiliary of Trenton Memorial Hospital is making a special request of Trenton and district residents Monday.

They want your blood — the gift of life!

Trenton's Legion Hall will be the site of a Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic Monday between the hours 2.30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 6.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

This clinic, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Trenton Memorial Hospital is the last of three held in this community each year.

A goal of 275 units or pints of blood has been set and all the blood collected Monday will be shipped immediately— by refrigerated truck — to the Canadian Red Cross Society headquarters in Toronto.

Throughout the year Trenton Memorial Hospitals relies on the Red Cross headquarters in Toronto for its supply of blood. The local hospital receives the amount they need by means of regular weekly shipments and special emergency orders when necessary.

Last year for example, Trenton Hospital received 826 units of blood from the Red Cross headquarters in Toronto even though the amount collected in Trenton was slightly below this total.

Blood can only be kept in its whole state for three weeks. After 21 days of storage the red cells in blood become too fragile for transfusion. The plasma from this "outdated" blood is still very valuable and is converted into blood fractions which can be stored safely for years.

So it would be practically impossible for Trenton Hospital to meet its daily blood requirements without the exchange service provided by the Canadian Red Cross Society which arranges staggered blood clinics across the province and country to provide a regular and constant supply of fresh blood for the hospitals in Ontario and the other nine provinces.

It is through voluntary donors that the Red Cross supplies blood and blood products free of charge to any patient in any hospital in Canada.

An average of one unit of blood must be collected every 15 seconds of every working day to maintain an adequate supply of whole blood products. More than 900,000 units will be required for transfusion therapy for patients in Canadian hospitals this year.

A specially trained Red Cross Unit will be on hand to run Monday's clinic and the members of Grace United Church will serve refreshments to the donors.

There is no discomfort experienced in giving blood donations and it takes only 30 minutes from start to finish including time for testing, registration, rest and refreshment. The actual giving of your blood takes only four or five minutes. You give only one-twentieth of the average body content — three-quarters of a pint. This is replaced within 24 hours.

Mrs. Mary Berry, Chairman of the Trenton Red Cross Blood Donor Service, called the summer clinic "marvelous" and said that if the quota of 275 units is reached Monday, Trenton could collect as many units of blood this year as they used — an ideal situation for a community of this size.

"Co-operation from both individuals and industry has been excellent with many industries advertising the clinics in their plant and some giving employees time off to donate blood," Mrs. Berry praised.

It would be wise to remember that all blood is a gift of volunteer donors. Blood cannot be manufactured — it must come from people. And some day YOU may need blood.

Datsun 1600 automatic gives you everything you want. Just put your foot down.

When you want to pass on the freeway, just swing out, tramp on the gas and your Datsun will jump to it. You see, the Datsun 1600 is not like most small automatics. Small cars generally don't have the engine capacity to handle an automatic transmission properly. And most of them only have a 2-speed transmission, so you don't get any pick-up at all.

Datsun 1600 is different. It's got guts. 96 hp, and one of the best power/weight ratios in its class. A silky three (count 'em, three) speed Borg-Warner transmission. 100 mph performance. Datsun 1600 has poke. And with all that poke you get contoured bucket seats, front discs, all independent suspension, choice of two doors, four doors or a wagon . . . all the extras, all the luxuries and all the performance of the standard Datsun 1600. Just no gearshift. If you like a gearshift, you can get one for about $200 less than the automatic option. But if you don't, put your foot down and demand a Datsun 1600 automatic. And then you can really put your foot down.

On the March

Just imagine — women on the march, demonstrating, protesting, perhaps even (perish the thought) throwing bombs! And men, poor devils, asking, "what do they want?"

Well, we don't know when the Royal Commission on the Status of Women is going to present its findings (next spring has been mentioned), but former State Secretary Judy LaMarsh could be anticipating them by suggesting the next 20 years will see feminine militancy of this nature.

Women, she says, want what every human being wants — a chance to use the abilities and brains they have. They will have this opportunity, in her opinion, as contraception more and more frees them from the biological bonds which for centuries have tied women to the home.

That is all very well, but there remains the need to raise and educate children. The world may have its militant women but they will likely be the ones who have little interest in marriage and children anyway. As it is, more and more wives have jobs; and as Miss LaMarsh points out, community welfare and social groups are largely staffed by women.

Consider another sphere of endeavor — space travel. As yet only the Russians regard outer space as a fit place for women, one having orbited the earth a couple of years ago, but perhaps now is the time for the Americans to give some thought to allowing female astronauts a place in lunar travel.

Meanwhile, the fair sex know as well as any that evolution is a slow process and that revolution is all right if it remains on a level well short of anarchy. And if perhaps that is not real revolution it can, nevertheless, at this responsible level, achieve as much in the long run. In other words it does no harm to push and hurry things along a little, without going out and starting a riot.

Of course there are any number of young women already engaged in the kind of activities envisaged by Miss LaMarsh. The university scene affords plenty of examples. Even a Roman Catholic nun clad improbably in sweater, short skirt and boots, Sister Joanne Malone of the Order of Loretto, is not above it; she recently joined students demonstrating in South Bend, Ind., against recruiters for the Dow Chemical Company, frequently a target of the anti-war people because they make napalm.

At a more conventionally democratic level we have our own Belleville city council, just finished with nominations which have produced two members from the distaff side, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, always ready to speak her mind, is running again for election on December 1. And seeking election for the first time is Mrs. Jean Smith, who headed the United Appeal campaign and has been active in community affairs for some time.

Still, there will always be those who prefer the traditional activities of church and club. They remind us of the virtues of maintaining an even course, of stability, and of the need to keep a sense of proportion and history — like the members of the Tennyson Club of Picton who of late have been studying the arts and letters of the great English poet.

Relative Values

The Santa Claus parade has been cancelled and as a letter on this page today suggests, there are different ways of looking at this situation when there are youngsters in the city to whom a parade does not necessarily spell happiness, let alone food and clothing.

Still, we may hope next year's parade will be a success for as the Scriptures say, man does not live by bread alone. Meanwhile we seem to recall an announcement that an ice carnival, it is broached about a year ago, will be held early in 1970. And what could be more fitting than that for the crisp winter days ahead.

We note also that the Kinsmen club are planning a highland tattoo next summer. Presumably this will be along the lines of the highland games held in such centres as Cobourg, Maxville — and lately, at Collins Bay, on the New York side of the Thousand Islands bridge.

The dates of the above events next year should be taken into consideration to avoid duplication and to attract entrants from other centres.

Old Wrecks

Amelisburg township's decision to ask owners of abandoned cars to move them, in order to improve the appearance of the countryside, is admirable. But where will they put them? Car dumps are unsightly in themselves, yet in order to make this a practical proposition some such provision will be necessary.

Where to Draw the Line?

U.S. and Russia Juggle with the 'Balance of Terror'

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The fact that Americans and Russians are hosting champagne together in Helsinki shouldn't cause any premature cheers.

The convivial preliminaries are no more than that. It could be anywhere from three to five years before the problem of nuclear arms limitation is solved — if at all.

The complications in and around the strategic arms limitation talks—SALT—must be weighed in the light of the fact that the prospective antagonists —though their attitudes may be softening—cannot solve current differences. This makes the observer wonder how they can reach solutions based on the state of nuclear strengths several years from now.

These questions arise:

—Should progress on fringe but related matters—such as Vietnam or the Middle East—be allowed to infringe on the SALT talks? There are enough of these to gum up the works if they get in.

—What of the anti-ballistics missile launch one day might be held by one side or the other to offer enough protection against retaliation to lead it to let fly first?

—What of MIRV, the multiple independently targeted re-entry vehicle which can hit several targets with one missile and upsets the terror balance by threatening to neutralize both ABMs and missile-launch pads?

—What of the Chinese nuclear threat on Russia's eastern flank?

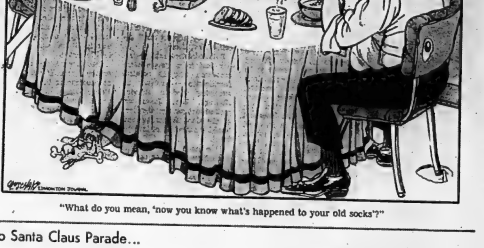
As the negotiations go on, both sides will continue to build the ABM and MIRV. So the ground will keep shifting from month to month and year to year.

Canada has a direct interest in the fact NATO and Warsaw pact troops are facing each other in Europe. The NATO forces—and undoubtedly the East—have frontline conventional weapons backed by "tactical" and then "strategic" nuclear weapons.

Just when NATO would pull the "tactical" trigger if faced with an attack by Warsaw pact forces has been bothering the West for years. And where would the line be drawn between tactical and cataclysmic strategic weapons?

Obviously such a question has to influence the SALT talks at some point.

These are just a few of the problems. Many bargains will have to be struck. There will need to be much give and take and good faith by both sides. Only in that way, after following a long road, will the balance of terror be maintained.



"What do you mean, 'now you know what's happened to your old socks'?"

No Santa Claus Parade...

But What About the Needy?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I think the time has come when people should stop and look at themselves and their sense of values. Listen to people, read the papers, listen to your radio — what do you hear? Pathetic stories of the needy — not only across the world but right here in Belleville.

What are we crying about? No Santa Claus parade!

If the people of Belleville are truly concerned about giving the Christmas spirit to their children, let them give them the true meaning. Giving from the heart. For it is in giving that we receive. They should be be taught to do this out of love for other children, their fellow men who are not as fortunate as they.

The money that would have provided a parade for our child ren who have so much, could be given to provide Christmas dinner, warm clothing and gifts from Santa to those who are un able to provide this for them selves and their families. This is Christmas; this is Christian ity.

When the words "joy to the world" rang out long ago, it was not to a selected few, but to all. We must see that there is joy in every home in Belleville — a Santa Claus parade is not the answer.

HELEN O'CONNOR

Cornwall and the Seaway

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority's plar to further decimate its Cornwall staff has produced a concerted reaction on the part of the whole community which should lay to rest Cornwall's lack of spirit at the administration or business level.

The immediate issue here is whether the Seaway machine shops at the foot of the old Cornwall Canal are to be shut down, and their 38 employees given the choice of transferring to St. Lambert, Que., or being dismissed. The shops have been in Cornwall since the canal was built, and many of the men stationed here are descendants of the lock workers of the earlier days, men with real roots in this community from a psychological, as well as material, standpoint.

One big issue is the moral responsibility the Seaway Authority has to the City of Cornwall to see that the city suffers no more harm than it has already been done by the closing-down of the canal which served many of its existing major industries and would have been an inducement to more, through its loss of revenue as a port along the Seaway and through its loss of much of its choice waterfront property through Seaway expropriation — property from which the Seaway still derives substantial revenues through rents.

The second, and perhaps most important issue in the long run, is one which has been causing increasing concern on the' national, provincial and civic levels of government: the creation of the megalopolis, the city so huge it is strangled by its own demands for services. Montreal and its suburbs are near that critical point now (witness the inability of Montreal police to cope with crime, as one example.) So is Toronto.

The Young Should Smile Have Fun

Ottawa Journal

Probably never before in the history of man has youth, as such, been given such prominence, such appreciation, such an attentive ear by all who are no longer young. Youth today is neither as bad nor as good as its accusers and defenders claim. It never was that bad or good. Youth's main burden these days seems to be that the mass of it is being labelled by the acts and attitudes of its minority. Youth is in reality a very aware outfit just now, better informed and more tuned in than the rest of us were. We don't despair of youth at all! What we wish for it is that it enjoy its youth!

The young don't have so much just plain fun any more; they have become serious adults (or think they have) before their time. They should be young while they may for the burdens will come upon them soon enough. And they'll do better with those burdens if in the meantime they have a bit of fun.

Population Up and Up

Ottawa Journal

Between 1950 and 1960 the world's urban population increased from 700,000,000 to one billion — an average of 3.5 per cent a year — while the rural population increased by only one per cent a year. A United Nations study of world population reports:

"The world's 'agglomerated' population (localities of at least 20,000 inhabitants) totalled about 533,000,000 in 1950 and about 702,000,000 in 1960, an increase by 43 per cent in 10 years: 'city' population (at least 100,000 inhabitants) totaled 303,000,000 in 1960 and 516,000,000 in 1960, an increase by 42 per cent; 'big city' population (at least 500,000 inhabitants) grew from 227,000,000 to 352,000,000, that is by 55 per cent; and 'multi-million city' population (at least 2,500,000) from 95,000,000 to 142,-000,000, that is by 49 per cent.'

The report estimates that for every 100 people living in urban areas in 1950 there are now 190, and by 1980 there will be 337; in rural areas, the 100 people in 1950 are now 130, and by 1980 will be only 170. But it is in the less developed countries that the largest growth is forecast. For every 100 urban residents in these regions in 1950 there are now 245, and by 1980 the number will soar to 534.

Robert S. McNamara, now President of the World Bank and not a man for overstating situations, sees the prospect of urban population at the end of the century being perhaps 500 per cent greater than today staggers the imagination."

Terminal Will Be Big One

DUESSELD O R F, Germany (GF) — State officials here are planning to build the world's largest air terminal — a complex capable of handling 40 million passengers per year — in honor of Germany's heavily industrialized Ruhr Valley.

So far only broad plans have been worked out for the terminal. These envision construction beginning in 1975 with the first air service starting in 1985.

The terminal is being planned to handled the anticipated passenger and freight capacity in the area at the turn of the next century.

Presently, the Duesseldorf-Cologne area is served by two airports with a maximum handling capacity of 13.5 million passengers per year.

Program Favored Hanoi

Writer, Familiar with Vietnam, Takes Issue with CBC

Letter to The Montreal Gazette

The latest CBC production drops all pretense of objective reporting of the Vietnam war. This is the impression the viewer received in watching the documentary film on North Vietnam produced by reporter Michael Maclear on the national network on Thursday evening, October 23.

This reporter's product confirms Hanoi took no gamble in agreeing to letting him in to North Vietnam to make this film. The North Vietnamese could not have done a better job themselves. It bears all the hallmarks of Communist propaganda — conveniently ignoring basic facts and distorting the truth where it serves their ends. I have not heard so much anti-American propaganda since the day I left Hanoi!

Being quite familiar with the bombed areas which I had visited prior to and during the bombing period, I would point out that a considerable amount of the devastation shown in this film occurred years before during the French occupation and the Indo-China war. The casualty figures cited were grossly exaggerated. The actual casualties were largely military — not civilian. Speaking of casualties, Ho Chi Minh himself in a radio broadcast following the South Vietnam presidential election in 1967, boasted that the Viet Cong had killed more people who had attempted to vote in defiance of their boycott than the combined casualties inflicted by U. S. air raids over the North.

In his condemnation of the Americans, Mr. Maclear conveniently failed to explain who started this war. For a decade prior to the U.S. involvement in Vietnam, North Vietnamese soldiers, in the guise of the Viet Cong, carried out guerrilla and terrorist attacks against unprotected hamlets in the South — as well as in the neighboring countries, killing tens of thousands of innocent civilians. An estimated 30,000 were kidnapped. Should we feel sympathy for a regime which is now experiencing a taste of the devastation it wrought upon others? No more than for the aggressors in the Second World War.

I object strenuously to this type of CBC programming on two counts. First, I resent the blatant distortion of fact and its propaganda value. Secondly, as a citizen, I do not want my tax dollar used to support the type of activity exemplified by the views of Mr. Maclear.

Debating Club Readies Its Election Griddle

One of the oldest "institutions" in the city the Wharf Street Debating Club, will again this year be playing hosts to municipal election candidates.

As has been customary down through the years candidates for the various municipal offices can be assured of a rough time.

Club president Wendy Rollins says the annual "duh toon feed" will be held next Wednesday night (Nov. 26) starting at 8 o'clock. Club director James "Snipe" Matthews will act as chairman.

"The candidates may speak as long as they wish, but they won't talk too long," assured the club president. "They will want to get out."

Established just after the turn of the century, the Wharf Street Debating Club is this year observing its 60th anniversary.

Over the years the Wharf Street "bun feed" pre-election program has enjoyed wide publicity and this year will be filmed for TV presentation. Cameramen from Channel 9 will film it for the national CTV network for later broadcast.

Club membership costs $1 per year and is collected the night of the pre-election "bun feed". And as the municipal election this year is for a three-year term club "fees" could be raised accordingly. Election candidates as well as club members are expected to pay.

Traditionally the "bun feed" pre-election meeting is where candidates can expect the audience to do most of the talking and when it comes to asking questions the "chair holds barred" ruling stands.

Hot dogs, cheese, pickles and a bottle of Coke will be the meeting fare.

Licence Lost for Life As Result of Fatality

PICTON — In an Ontario Supreme Court sitting in Picton yesterday, Frank Hilborne, 46, of -RR1, Carrying Place, was convicted on a charge of causing death by criminal negligence.

Chief Justice of the High Court, Dalton Wells, sentenced Hilborne to 22 months in a reformatory plus lifetime cancellation of his driver's licence.

The charge against Mr. Hilborne followed the Sept. 19 death of Ralph Main, 69, of RR1, Belleville.

The mishap occurred as Mr. Main was reported shepherding cattle across the county road. The impact, according to Picton OPP carried Mr. Main more than 200 feet and was instantly fatal.

A spectator at the scene, 53-year-old William Bedford, father-in-law of Mr. Main, was struck by a hydro pole as he watched. Mr. Bedford died yesterday.

Mr. Bedford was struck by a utility pole when an ambulance became snarled in the downed hydro wires.

The Hilborne car snapped off a mail box — which jammed in the windshield — and hit a utility pole. Low hanging wires from the broken pole scorched the roof of an ambulance despatched to the scene.

As the emergency vehicle manoeuvered it apparently snarled in the wires, jerking the pole, which in turn, struck Mr. Bedford.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the OPP said this morning that his death was due to natural causes and was not a direct result of injuries received at the accident scene.

Young Turn 'Pushers' For Own Youth Centre

A group of city teenagers, determined to start their own youth centre, will begin the big push towards their objective early Saturday morning.

The push is literal — the young people will push a bed for 17 miles from Tweed to Belleville. Pledges on "their mileage will provide funds for the start of their centre.

The Living Room — Especially for People, will be a centre where adults and young people can meet together for discussion and fellowship.

Early starters will leave Loblaw's parking lot on Pinnacle St. at 6 a.m. Saturday for Tweed. There they will assemble their bed and begin the pushathon that will see them reach Belleville by nightfall. Cars will leave from the same spot in Belleville at 7.30 for late starters.

The group has gathered pledges from the city police department, merchants, clergymen, teachers and parents.

Their route will be down Highway 37 to Cannifton, across the Canniffon bridge to Highway 14 and into Belleville via North Front St.

Separate School Board Plans Formal Report

Parents of children enrolled in Hastings and Prince Edward county separate schools will receive their board's annual report in a professional format.

Trustees decided Wednesday night to spend $225 and tax for 1,000 copies of a booklet with photographs of board members, outlining all aspects of the board's operations for 1969. It will be printed early in 1970.

The cost of running off copies on a duplicator in the board office would have been $65.

Rev. Louis Casartelli of Maynooth questioned the necessity of spending "almost $200 extra for a printed booklet, when the money is needed in the classroom."

"You want everyone to read the report, but they won't if it's not attractively presented, with pictures," he asserted.

Rainfall

TWEED — Gordon Fraser at the Tweed weather station reports rainfall for Nov. is 2.53 inches. This includes 2.21 of rain and 2.2 inches of snow which equals 2.53 inches of precipitation.

Farmers welcome the rain — wells in the country were becoming dry or almost dry.

Space

sulted in jobs and "spin-offs" in almost every area. These "spin-offs" range from a wide spectrum of weather forecasting, communications and TV broadcasting, to specific applications in intensive care cardiac units, light switches for paralytics, and integrated circuits to name some of the areas where man has already benefited tremendously. These are direct and immediate technological benefits.

As important as these physical benefits are, I think that the space program has taught us something more, something which is applicable to every major challenge we will face, whether it be poverty, congestion, pollution, or defence. It has taught us how to harness our resources and capabilities, how to attack a problem, how new and innovative management techniques developed to effectively undertake and implement an incredibly large and complex Apollo program have universal applicability.

The space program has enormous potential for improving human welfare, both through advancing technology to give us better means for combatting our social and economic problems and by developing the management systems and techniques necessary to implement the desired solutions.

We see then that the real purpose of the space program is to enhance the general well-being of the people who are paying the bill, and, through them, all mankind.

We plan to accomplish our future goals in space by concurrent exploitation of five major areas that offer the public the most promise both in terms of immediate benefits and long-term achievements. These five areas are: the development of space transportation systems, the establishment of permanent manned space stations, the further refinement of nuclear propulsion systems.

MASTER WEAVER — Master weaver Susan Gear of Oakville, Ont., prides herself on never turning down a request for a weaving job — no matter how bizarre. She has made tapestries, lengths of fabric in original designs, Latin-American-style ponchos, and an antique cradle coverlet. (CP Photo)

Oakville Weaver Kept Busy With Many and Varied Orders

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Master weaver Susan Gear prides herself on never turning down a request for a weaving job—no matter how bizarre.

"People come to you for odd all things they can't buy," says the 25-year-old Oakville craftsman.

One Gaspe family saved the hair its dog shed for eight years, then brought all five pounds to Susan to be hand spun into fabric.

She spun "endlessly" and the sweaters the Gaspe woman made from the dog-hair fabric are the talk of the fishing port.

As one of only 190 weavers belonging to the Canadian Craftsmen Association, Susan finds her colorful work in demand across the country. She has made tapestries, lengths of fabric in original designs, Latin-American-style ponchos, an antique cradle coverlet. Now she is experimenting with contemporary clothes.

"It's sort of contentative," she says about her work. With the loom at home, she works morning, noon and night.

Mrs. Gear began her career as a novice knitter, went on to needlepoint and 13 years ago bought herself a loom. She studied weaving with "one of the great masters," Rosalie Finestone of Montreal.

It was Mrs. Finestone who suggested Susan make Jewish prayer shawls. Most of these are rayon ones imported from Israel but Susan soon found a demand for her Canadian-made wool shawls.

The traditional prayer shawl—worn, for example by boys at their Bar Mitzvah—is 24 inches wide and 2½ feet long. It has seven patterned bands representing the days of the week.

Susan hems them and makes a short fringe. On each shawl, pocket size fashions an eyelet, then sends the shawl to Montreal where a rabbi attaches the ceremonial braid through the eyelets.

Pride in her work shows in the care she takes with individual commissions. For artist Dorothy Renals of Perth, Ont., she designed a tapestry showing Moorish archways to complement a hand-carved chest.

"I don't do samples before I start because if I sit down and do what I feel like it comes out better than if I meticulously plan every thread. My husband, William, says, 'Wing it —you do better that way.'"

The couple moved to Oakville from Montreal this year. Susan wants to start a boutique if she can find the right "colonial style building" in the city just west of Toronto.

She still visits with Mrs. Finestone. They attend craft guild meetings together and Susan can see her elderly teacher about technical problems that crop up.

Susan belongs to 11 guilds, among them the Ontario Craft Foundation, the Ontario Handweavers and Spinners and the Master Weaving program of the Boston Guild of Handweaving. The last is the highest accreditation a weaver can obtain in North America except for a college fine-arts program.

Hospital Auxiliary Taken on Tour of Renovated Wing

The recently completed renovations to second West hospital wing is now called the fourth level of number one building. The rooms are equally as attractive and well equipped as the rooms in the new hospital.

In a tour of this floor, the members of the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary were interested to see the new nurse servers in the rooms, as well as other furnishings, which were all purchased by the Auxiliary. Miss Ruth Gaw, Mr. Philip Rickard and Mr. John Kunitsky, who showed the group the latest equipment and facilities, also answered many queries.

The placement of hand rails in the halls of second West were a most useful addition for patients to aid in walking, particularly after being confined to bed. Second West will probably be called the Extended Care Unit.

Mrs. B. E. Burley welcomed a large turnout to the November meeting held in Education Hall. In reporting for Holiday Treats, Mrs. P. M. Till stated they were getting organized for Christmas. Mrs. F. H. Bowler told the meeting that the Opportunity Shop would close on December 20 and reopen January 4, which would give the workers a pleasant and deserved holiday. A cheque for $1,300 was presented for the past month's receipts. Four people are busy knitting for the Samarita n Cupboard, which is keeping it well stocked, stated Mrs. H. Temple.

Mrs. S. B. Bochnek, chairman of volunteers in the hospital, said the response had been encouraging in the past month. More volunteers are still required, however, in the pediatric playroom, and also pictures and several other services. Mrs. R. Moorman is in the volunteer office each Wednesday morning for the purpose of interviewing prospective volunteers.

The new system of supervisors in each volunteer service is showing favorable results. She was grateful to the BCIVS Key Club who had delivered to the office over 1,000 books. 666 magazines were circulated in October, indicating once more the never ending need for magazines.

Junior volunteers are very functional, filling in on school holidays and many other occasions. It was felt that they should be rewarded, which will be carried out on December 14, when the first annual awards program will take place. On November 25, the volunteer rooms will be moved to first west, which is also being renovated.

At the recent 53th annual Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario held at the Royal York, Mrs. B. E. Burley, president of the local Auxiliary and Mrs. S. B. Bochnek, second vice - president, were delegates. Each reported on their attendance at the many meetings and events of this convention. Mrs. Bochnek found the round table discussions held in the evenings to be most informative.

The theme this year was "Prevention is the Key to Tomorrow's Health." Eight thousand people attened, 544 were Auxiliary delegates.

Walk-in clinics, staffed by doctors, nurses and technicians were an interesting feature of the convention. Here one could be tested for diabetes, tuberculosis, etc. St. Mary's on-the-Lake Hospital, Kingston, is the only hospital for the chronically ill in Canada which has a separate department for rehabilitation. This has proved to be a worthwhile, humane and economic effort.

A sum of $6.45 was realized on the raffle of a baby doll dressed and donated by Miss Edith Lanning.

Champion Practises Every Day

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Dorothy Lidstone got rid of her hunting bow after she killed her first deer, but she didn't give up archery.

Equipped with a lighter target bow this summer, she drew back arrows with such consistent accuracy that she captured the woman's world archery championships at Valley Forge, Pa.

Next stops on the way to the 1972 Olympics are the world championships in England and Sweden in 1970 and 1971.

How did she become the world's champion woman archer?

"My husband took it up for hunting," said Mrs. Lidstone. "He considers it the really true way to pursue an animal.

"I killed one deer—and sold my equipment. I didn't like the idea."

Attracted to target archery, she began practising and still works on the range for at least one hour every night and on weekends.

"The best part of archery is the challenge," said Mrs. Lidstone. "And you are competing against yourself a lot—trying to beat your own record."

She concentrates on target archery, as opposed to field archery in which competitors conduct a simulated hunt with targets spread over a wide area.

The bow she uses for competition—she said she can't afford the bow she would like—is made of glass fibre and the string is dacron.

Winter doesn't present a practice problem for Mrs. Lidstone —she merely moves indoors at the Rod and Gun Club here to continue training.

Two Opinions Given Dealing with Column

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How far will the editors and publishers of our newspaper let you go before they decide to throw your column out? We have three teen-agers and I am tired of breaking my neck trying to get the paper first to see if your column is fit reading for our children.

ANN LANDERS

You recently described, in detail, the symptoms of venereal diseases. Some papers print you in the evening. Ours happens to be a morning paper. I can tell you that your V.D. column did not go very well with breakfast. Furthermore, it raised many embarrassing questions which our children would not have thought about for several years.

You are not a doctor, you are not a lawyer, you are not a clergyman — in fact, you are nothing. I am sending a copy of this letter to the editor of our paper, and serving notice that I shall cancel our subscription if you write another column which is offensive to decent people. — MOTHER OF TEEN-AGERS.

* * *

DEAR MOTHER: Thank you for your letter. I applaud you for sending a copy to the editor. It is important that the editors know, firsthand, how his subscribers feel about the paper.

Below is a letter from another subscriber — on the same subject:

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Congratulations on your column succinctly outlining the signs and dangers of the two commonest venereal diseases. That column was probably the most worthwhile thing I have read in any newspaper in years.

Whatever argument I have had with your advice at other times, I cannot help championing your bold stand on this vitally important subject. I hope my letter will counter — in part, at least — the letters of outrage you will doubtless receive from those who prefer to pretend the problem doesn't exist. — — BRUCE D. — Chicago.

* * *

DEAR BRUCE: Thanks for the letter of support. You were there when I needed you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every time you print a letter from a woman who admits there is something wrong with me, my husband hands me the column and says, "Your letter appeared today." I usually laugh it off because it's gotten to be a family joke, but I didn't laugh much when he handed me the letter from the woman who needed a face-lifting job.

I'm several years older than my husband, but the age difference never bothered me until recently. My figure is good, my hair is smartly styled, and I dress well. But this past year my chin has begun to sag and my neck is getting a little creepy. I find myself putting my hand to my face when I speak — to cover the signs of age. I'm seriously considering plastic surgery. Is it expensive? What advice do you have for a woman in my spot? — FAITHFUL READER.

* * *

DEAR FAITHFUL: Don't hunt for bargains and don't expect miracles. Make an appointment with a plastic surgeon, one whose work you have seen or heard about. My only word of caution is this: "Don't go in for more surgery than you actually need. If it's only your chin that bothers you, leave your eyes and forehead alone.

'Lonely Heart' Did Not Settle For This Type of Bargain

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am 40, have a good job and a nice house. I met a lady through a lonely hearts page, on the agreement that we would get married if both parties were satisfied.

This gal said the house was too small, so I bought a $34,000 home on my name and also on her name. Now the new house is too big, and I have lost my rights. I cannot play my radio, record player etc., without her nagging. I told her one time she did not want me, she wanted a place to store her furniture.

I went on my holidays alone as we are not married yet. I used to kiss her goodbye until she told me not to kiss her. She forever tells me that I am miserable and old-fashioned. She will not allow my pictures on the walls (I love holy pictures).

She is a good cook but wastes too much food. She owns her car, but I prefer to walk, as she always nags in the car. I was thinking to leave her and the house and all and go out on my own, as I still have some property. This is not the life I planned for, but she insists that we get married. — Am I doomed?

Dear Am I: Walk out on it all? No, Just' secret her out—with her furniture. You paid for the house; consult a lawyer about that deed.

Remember the bargain was that "If both parties were satisfied", you would get married. Your business deal is off. Thank her for what she has done that is good, and forget the miseries. Forget her.

Dear Doris: How do I finish senior matriculation and get the books that are required. Do I have to supply them myself?

Has the curriculum changed enough during the past 17 years to make it necessary to repeat grade 13 also? — Back to School.

Dear Back to School: The best and quickest way is to go back to school in the daytime. You might feel like an oddball to be in a class with teen-agers, but it's a good way to "get with it", and it is being done all over the place.

About the curriculum — yes it has changed. What goes on varies from province to province, so talk with the principal or guidance counselor about how to get back to it all. Often books are loaned to students for a refundable deposit which covers loss or damage.

Recipes Requested For Yule Baking

By MARY MOORE

NOTE: Letters are arriving daily for recipes for Christmas baking and several have requested those little cherry gems I gave you last year so I am repeating them for those who are doing Christmas baking for the first time or who have mislaid them.

CHERRY FLIPS

1 cup butter
½ cup icing sugar
2 egg yolks
2 cups sifted cake flour
¾ tsp. salt
1 or 2 tspf. almond flavoring
30 maraschino cherries, (drained; reserve juice for icing)
Finely chopped nuts or coconut

Cream butter and sugar, add egg yolks and beat well. Blend in flour and salt, sifted together. Add flavoring. Pinch off little pieces and press flat in palm of hand. Insert a cherry and fold and roll dough around it, forming into a ball. Place on a greased baking sheet and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 25 min. or until golden. When cold, dip in thick icing made from 1¼ cups of icing sugar and ½ cup cherry juice. Roll in nuts or coconut.

CHERRY GLOBES
(no eggs)

1 cup butter
¾ cup icing sugar
2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
1 cup finely chopped blanched almonds
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
2 doz. maraschino cherries, drained and dried

Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add remaining ingredients except cherries mixing well. Flatten a small amount of dough, (about 1¼ tsps. for each cookie) in palm of hand. Place a whole drained and dried cherry on circle of dough. Cover cherry by pinching dough up and around it, then roll between hands to form a smooth ball. Bake on greased baking sheet at 325 deg. Fahr. about 25-30 min. While still hot, roll in fine granulated sugar.

Makes 3 dozen.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Some children are venturesome and daring and have no fear of heights. They may try to walk down stairs before they have acquired a good sense of balance and muscle control.

A toddler loses her balance easily and though she may be able to manoeuvre the steps, there is too much danger she will become overbalanced or will step blithely out into space.

Discourage a small child from trying to walk down the stairs. Instead teach her to climb down backward and insist that she do so until she is well past the toddler stage.

Couple Wed 45 Years

Bethel Hall was the setting for a surprise family supper on November 12 in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Morgan of West Huntingdon who were married 45 years ago in St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling. The bride was presented with a corsage of yellow roses and the bridegroom with a single white rose.

Among those present were their children: Harry, Elmer, Mrs. Cecil (Aileen) Skinkle, Mrs. Gary (Ruth) Rowe and Roscoe as well as their 12 grandchildren. Also the attendants of 45 years ago, Mrs. Reg (Alice) Coombes, the bridegroom's sister and Mr. Clarence Rushnell.

The bread table was centred with the anniversary cake tastefully decorated in pink and white and flanked by miniature candles in silver holders, and bronze potted 'mums.

Following the meal served by the women of the Holloway Kum Double Club, the honoured couple opened their gifts and thanked all those responsible for the party.

A social evening was spent in reminiscing and playing cards.

Mrs. Roy Sills expressed appreciation to Mr. Condon and the others who contributed to the program.

Wine-Flavored

An European trick for delicious gravy is the addition of a little dry or semi-sweet wine to the dripping in the pan during the last half to one hour of the roasting time of turkey or chicken. The alcohol evaporates but the flavor that is left adds to the gravy flavor.

Vote as you like, but vote

For some time now we have been taste-testing six of Brights fine Canadian wines against the six most popular imported wines in their classes—wines from France, Germany, Italy, Spain and Portugal.

In every case the imported product cost much more, sometimes twice as much as the Canadian wine.

The wines are decanted into identical anonymous bottles beforehand, marked only by X and Y. We ask the participants to mark which wine they prefer.

Of the 2,978 "preference votes" cast 1,607 —54%— were for the wines by Brights.

Brights fine Canadian wines are as good as or better than the great majority of wines imported from anywhere in the world.

Wines like these:

President Burgundy • A great dry red table wine.
President Sauterne • A delicate light white wine.
President Sherry • Ideal before lunch or dinner.
President Extra Dry • A dry white wine of quality.
President Port • A distinguished dessert wine.

How did you ever think of it! That's the kind of reaction a gift of a wine "celler" like this will trigger. Try it.

Dear Santa Claus:
I would like to go to Christmas Wonderland because I think it would be interesting. I could tell all my friends about it and do projects on it. I am 8 years old and in grade 4. Another reason I would like to go is to see how people in other lands celebrate Christmas. I would also like to eat lunch with Snoopy and visit Santa in his Ice Palace. I would like to go on all the rides and look at the skeleton of a dinosaur. So that is why want to go to Christmas Wonderland.

Vernon Westfall, 50-Year Postal Veteran

Westfalls Postmasters Since 1919 Appointment

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Reporter

CARRYING PLACE—When the village postmaster retires in April next year the appointment of a replacement ends more than half a century of civil service for the well known Westfall family.

Vernon Westfall followed in the footsteps of his father, who received his appointment from the federal government officially in 1919.

The younger Westfall, however, had served his apprenticeship well previous to taking on the full responsibility.

He started picking up the mail from the Weller's Bay railroad station when he was nine years old. In those days there was no route delivery and people walked or drove to the post office to pick up letters and parcels, he recalled. He remembered letters needed two-cent stamps and postcards one cent to carry them any place in Canada.

Five decades have meant continuous growth for the Carrying Place postal operation. Mr. Westfall today oversees the delivery of mail to almost 700 families while 75 patrons still asked for letters and parcels at the wicket in the section set aside for the post office in the Westfall general store.

Originally, the Carrying Place post office was known as the Murray post office. The site, then across the corner from its present location was on land ceded to the Crown by the Indians under the Gunshot Treaty. A Mrs. J. E. Preston, who later married Dr. Harry Boyce, was one of the early postmasters.

There was a post office at Albury, one at Gardenvale and another at the north end of the Brighton road bridge over the Murray canal at that time.

When Mr. Westfall's father became postmaster, mail was moved to the area by train. The consignments for the Carrying Place post office were dropped off at the CNR station at Weller's Bay four times daily. The round trip to the station was two miles — a long way on the coldest day of the winter, the youngest Westfall learned soon after pick up and delivery of the mail became one of his regular assignments.

Pay for mail picked up off the train averaged out at fourteen cents a trip, Mr. Westfall recalled.

Mr. Westfall has led too active a life to sit down and take things easy, although he retires as postmaster. While he plans to spend more time running his general store and taking part in community life, he expects memories of the post office to give him a lot of added pleasure.

Weatherman Gives Blessing To Santa Claus Parade

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Don't remind me afterwards if I'm wrong, but I'll let you in on a little secret — we're going to have good weather for the town's annual Santa Claus Parade Saturday afternoon.

According to the Canadian Forces Base weather office at CFB Trenton it will be partly cloudy and cold (in the vicinity of 40 degrees) Saturday with winds from the north at 15 to 25 miles per hour.

We may even see a little sunshine and if there is any precipitation it will be in the form of isolated snowflakes. The probability of snow is estimated at five per cent by the CFB weather experts.

The Trenton Fire Department in co-operation with the Trenton Santa Claus Committee, will host all the participants in the Santa Claus Parade at the Fire Hall with hot chocolate, coffee and sandwiches after the parade, Mr. Wilson explained.

Mr. Wilson reports that preparations for the parade are nearing completion and that the list of entries is almost finalized.

A sixth band — Banch 133 Royal Canadian Legion Pipe Band from Cobourg — and a third group of majorettes — the Marching Belles from Belleville — are late entires in Saturday's parade.

In addition, 11-year-old Lynn Bailey of Brighton, who was scheduled to do a majorette solo, will be accompanied by a pair of majorette beginners — Rhonda Reid, 9, of Brighton and Sherry Blake, 8, of Trenton.

Floats were a scarce item for a while, but the number has increased rapidly to 20 with the addition of the following: Belleville Shrine Club Camel Herders' Unit, Town of Trenton, F and S Confectionery, Quinte Western Horse Association, Wright's Easo Service Centre Brighton, Hanthorn Motors Ltd., Hastings County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Association, Hollandale Nursery, Trenton High School, K. W. Kelly in the Moon Machine and the 2nd Trenton Brownies with outriders from Hendricks Stables.

There will be a contest for the best float in several different categories (to be decided Thursday night) and judging will be by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis, Phil Pasolas, Clifford Baker, Jack Goldberg, Eileen Forchuk, Ed Sinclair, Mayor James MacDonald, Mike Mason, and, hopefully, the Hon. George Hees.

Seven individuals — Bonnie Down, Janice Gainforth, Barry McGarvey, Geraldine Hyde, Peter Thorne, Karne Hodgson and Rhonda Alexander — will ride horses and some antique cars are also expected.

The 1969 Santa Claus parade will form up at Centen n l a l Park and move out to Camp bell Street at 1.30 p.m. on its journey which will conclude at St. Peter's School on Queen Street.

Wrong Time To Steal An Air Conditioner

Police are investigating an overnight break and enter and the resulting theft of an air conditioner from Circle TV valued at $200.

According to Belleville City Police Chief, Douglas Crosbie, the break and enter was discovered at 1.20 this morning after a neighbor of the Coleman Street business called police about someone in a shed behind the store.

"It would appear they (the thieves) were interrupted," Mr. Crosbie said.

Chamber Directors Endorse Finishing Renewal Study

Belleville's Chamber of Commerce directorate has endorsed the idea of the downtown business community for completion of the city's controversial urban renewal study.

The move, which yesterday brushed aside minority misgivings among Chamber directors, calls on city council to speedily unscrap the recently scraped study.

Simultaneously, the action was at the regular monthly meeting of Chamber directors — stimulated a call for business community involvement in community issues.

"I think it's awfully important the chamber should take a stand on all issues like this and stand up and be counted," said director Frank Murray, who moved the urban-renewal declaration. "I think it's very vital."

Yesterday's action followed a brief letter from the Downtown Business Association of $5,000 for completion of the study recently scrapped by city council. Controversy surrounding urban renewal dated back to testimony heard in chief draughtsman — Toronto consultant Allen Brass — before an Ontario Municipal Board hearing in February on a northend shopping plaza.

The chamber debate was touched off when director Harry Paul was asked to report. The urban renewal situation has been the chamber portfolio of Mr. Paul and fellow director Fred Deacon. However neither director as yet has been enabled to study interim renewal report submitted by Mr. Brass.

Both men, he said, also had pondered if it was "good policy for the chamber to take a stand on it (urban renewal) before the end of the downtown business community for completion of the city's controversial urban renewal study.

"Somebody might want to make a brief," interjected Ald. Gerald Joyce, Belleville Industrial Commission chairman.

Insisted Frank Murray: "Here we have an important group of businessmen in the city . . and it seems to me that if we agree with what they've done, we should go on record as supporting them in their request.

"I don't think there's anything political in this at all," added Mr. Murray. "I really can't see it, I think it's over and above politics of any party."

"The chamber should be in the forefront of all such issues," added Mr. Murray. "I think action should be taken faster on such things."

Also in favor of urged the interim urban-renewal report contained "gross inaccuracies" in the city's economic growth and potential.

"I'll say I was disappointed in some of the report in that I feel this document should be a piece of factual information and can be the greatest selling aid to the city," said the alderman.

"In many areas it's written in a very negative way. I was very disappointed when I read it."

Ald. Joyce said he took particular exception to the report's view of local education training facilities and its statement that Belleville attracts only low-paying, slow-growth industry.

"I quarrel with this," said the alderman. "It's grossly inaccurate and very negative in its approach."

Zdenek Kvarda, also a member of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, said he was the negative force behind the BDA move to reactivate the urban study.

He said he believed city council was wrong in terminating the scheme before it had studied the report and said he had approached the DBA with the $5,000 - subsidy plan.

"I'm convinced with planning as an individual," Mr. Kvarda told his fellow chamber directors. "And here was another study, another survey done by our staff — and before it was even finished they junk it and have nothing.

"I still believe the report should have been studied. They should have accepted the conceptual idea (of urban renewal) and then offered some constructive criticism."

"In there are inaccuracies. How do we know the inaccuracies are going to affect the final plan they are going to come out with?"

Noted Hugh Murray: "The financial situation is practically every city is located in the hub . . the hub of a city is also the business contributor to all (financial) causes."

The motion, drawn by Frank Murray and seconded by the directors, urged city council to "proceed with all speed to reactivate the urban renewal study."

Experts Taking Closer Look at Food Additives

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The recent controversy swirling around the artificial sweetener, cyclamates, hasn't stopped with the "cease production" order on diet foods and drinks.

Experts are now taking a closer look at many other additives — such as monosodium glutamate and countless others, long considered safe for use in foods.

The problem is of increasing concern to the consumer whose mounting demands for processed foods (frozen, canned, freeze-dried) have caused the use of additives in food to rise sharply — to perhaps three of the 1,400 pounds of substances an individual eats in a year.

These easy-to-prepare foods require large amounts of additives because they are prepared under more severe conditions that rob many foods of their natural chemicals and nutrients.

The situation is complicated by the public looking for foods to last longer while staying fresher on the shelves.

What is reflected is a change in eating habits, indicating a more mobile person who likes to snack and run, a growing diet consciousness, and a widespread taste for more exotic, seasoned dishes.

However, the food additive problem is complicated by the fact that while many are added to foods intentionally, there are those that sneak into foods accidentally.

These accidental or unintentional food additives include pesticides and minute particles from food packaging that tend to "migrate" into food.

In the United States, the Food and Drug Administration keeps an ever-watchful eye on pesticides such as DDT, conducting periodic "market basket tests" to determine levels of pesticides in a typical basket of groceries.

In Canada, the Food and Drug Directorate is just as watchful.

Food and drug inspector Joe Heimbach of Belleville explained inspections are normally made at the source of the product — the plant level.

"Most of our efforts are directed towards production at the time of manufacture, usually at a factory, involving raw materials."

"What we are after," he continued, "is to be able to predict what can go wrong with the product and stop the faults before they occur."

"As far as pesticides in food are concerned, there is certainly nothing to panic about. We haven't had any particular problems as far as fruits and vegetables are concerned, although there have been a few in milk and animal fats," he added.

Of course the biggest shift in the situation has come with the banning of DDT in Ontario, except in the tobacco and orchard industries.

"Pesticide tolerance in foods is set, and our job is to see that it doesn't build up in either the soil, animals, but particularly milk," emphasized Mr. Heimbach.

The Food and Drug Directorate, however, has limits or tolerance levels for any chemical it allows in foods.

According to the standards of the directorate, "nothing is permitted to be added to any food in any circumstance that would create a hazard to public health. Too much of a product can be harmful or poisonous under certain circumstances."

At any rate, the problem is not one to be put in the back of the public mind. It is obvious the situation is indeed one that necessitates close scrutiny — a constant vigilance.

"The point is," asserted Mr Heimbach, "if we didn't maintain this constant watch, we would probably have to move out of the county in about 10 years."

Close to the pesticide problem is the local branch of the department of agriculture — the Research Institute.

A spokesman for the Institue, when questioned about the danger posed by pesticides in foods, felt the chemical posed "no particular danger" to the population.

"The best part of the whole situation is the restricted use of DDT — it has been taken out of the hands of those who could or might misuse it," he said.

"Then, on the other hand, it is an extremely inhibiting factor to agriculturists who must use the chemical as part of their research."

Continued use of any product — even DDT, pesticide or insecticide will result in some of the chemical being absorbed into the plant. There is no way to prevent this.

Referring to the tolerance level standards maintained by the Food and Drug Directorate he said, "What is happening is that any potential danger is looked after before the alarm bell is rung," added the spokesman.

Ties Orr for Lead

Blues' Goyette Coming on Strong

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A veteran and a relative newcomer handled the scoring Thursday as St. Louis Blues stopped Minnesota North Stars 3-1 to strengthen their grip on first place in the National Hockey League's West Division.

Phil Goyette, who has played regularly in the NHL since 1956, erased a 1-0 Minnesota lead and Frank St. Marseille, in his third NHL season, produced the winner and clincher for the Blues.

In one other Thursday game, Philadelphia Flyers nipped Los Angeles Kings 3-2 and climbed to a share of third place in the West Division with Oakland Seals.

Claude Larose of the North Stars cracked a scoreless tie in front of 13,637 St. Louis fans, beating Blues netminder Ernie Wakely at 5:56 of the second period.

Goyette, with his 10th goal of the season, tied the score again at 14:02 of the same period with Ab McDonald and Red Berenson assisting.

With just over three minutes remaining in the second period, St. Marseille scored the winner, driving a low shot over Cesare Maniago's skate. The Levack, Ont., native placed the game out of reach at 2:38 of the third period, jumping on a pass from St. Louis defenceman Barclay Plager.

Goyette's goal, his 29th point, moved him into a tie for the individual scoring leadership with Boston Bruins defenceman Bobby Orr.

The Blues lead the second-place North Stars by six points, in western standings, but they have played two more games than their nearest rivals.

At Philadelphia, Jim Johnson's first goal of the season at 7:24 of the third period broke a 2-2 tie and moved the Flyers into the tie with Oakland, one point up on Pittsburgh Penguins.

Bill Sutherland and defenceman Larry Hillman gave the Flyers leads, but Ross Lonsberry, on a first period power play, and Eddie Shack, in the third period, brought the Kings back on even terms.

The Kings dropped their 11th game in 13 starts and are lodged in the West Division cellar with seven points, four behind Pittsburgh.

Two of the Philadelphia goals on Gerry Desjardins came from long range. Hillman's power play score, with Shack in the penalty box, travelled 50 feet and Johnson's winner was from 30 feet.

Campbell Sees Films Of St. Louis Ruckus

ST. LOUIS (AP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, in St. Louis to look at films of a stick-swinging incident in last weekend's Montreal Canadiens-St. Louis Blues match, said Thursday night his office has stepped up its efforts to halt such incidents.

"It doesn't make any difference whether there's injury or not," Campbell said when interviewed at Friday's game between St. Louis and Minnesota North Stars.

Campbell said he was not conducting a hearing, but wanted to see the films of a clash in the second period of last Saturday's match.

Right winger Gary Sabourin of the Blues was dazed by a blow from the stick of Canadiens defenceman John Ferguson and was out for part of the second period. Ferguson got a match penalty.

Campbell said he will continue his review of the incident at a conference involving the game officials and Montreal management.

"Hopefully, it will be completed the middle of next week," Campbell said of his investigation.

When asked what penalties he thought might be forthcoming, Campbell said: "There's really no telling what could happen. It could either be a suspension or nothing at all."

However, Campbell added that "if a club is losing a player, then the club that causes the injury maybe ought to be required to suffer a loss, too."

Campbell said closer attention to stick-swinging resulted from a skull fracture inflicted on Ted Green of Boston Bruins by Wayne Maki of the Blues in a pre-season game.

Soviets Compete for '76 Games

MOSCOW (AP) — The Olympic committee of the Soviet Union announced today the city of Moscow will bid to stage the 1976 Summer Olympics.

The latest announcement carried by the official news agency Tass said the city "has advanced its candidacy for the Summer Olympics of 1976."

This is the first time the Soviet Union has made an offer to stage an Olympics. It has been an Olympic competitor since 1952.

The Soviet Union has been host to various European and World championships in the past but never has undertaken an event approaching the complexity and size of the Olympic Games.

The International Olympic Committee is to decide next year on the site of the 1976 Games. The 1972 Summer Olympics are scheduled to be held in Munich, West Germany.

The Soviet Union was the top medal-winner in 1956 and 1960 Summer Olympics held in Melbourne and Rome. It ranked second to the United States in the 1964 and 1968 Games at Tokyo and Mexico City.

The 1972 Winter Olympics have been awarded to Sapporo, Japan.

Vancouver is among the bidders for the 1976 Winter Games and Montreal for the 1976 Summer Games.

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Sanford Hawley took the spotlight again at Greenwood racetrack Thursday, scoring four wins on the eight-race program. His total Thursday followed three winners Wednesday and brought his season production to 201 wins, just 24 less than Canada's leading jockey last year, Brian Swatuk. With eight racing days left on The Jockey Club Ltd. circuit, Hawley has a chance to top Swatuk's record. Brian Swatuk rode both ends of the daily double, getting Cliff's Break home in the first and Heel Nose in the second for a $16.30 payoff. The 5,529 fans wagered $439,663.

New Junior Tenants For Upper, Lower Berths

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New tenants occupy the top and the bottom positions in the 10-team Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series after two games Thursday.

Peterborough Petes emerged ahead in a three-team scramble for the lead after a 5-2 home ice win over St. Catharines Black Hawks and Hamilton Red Wings vacated the basement with a win at home, 6-4 over Niagara Falls Flyers.

Ken Richardson, Craig Ramsay and Chris Meloff added single goals for the Petes' 11th win in 16 starts. Brian Thorne and Pierre Guite replied for the Black Hawks.

At Hamilton, the Red Wings needed three goals without reply in the final 18 minutes to overhaul a 4-3 Niagara Falls lead and drop the idle Oshawa Generals into last place.

Canucks Would Switch

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks are prepared to operate a Western Hockey League franchise in another city if they go into the National Hockey League, director Coleman E. Hall said Thursday.

He named Calgary as his first choice, after saying Canucks consider "ridiculous" the request by WHL owners for a $1,-100,000 indemnity to be paid if Canucks leave the WHL.

Meanwhile, Hall said Medicor of Minneapolis, which wants to put Vancouver in the NHL, probably will reject an arena rental proposal put forward by the Pacific National Exhibition Wednesday.

Hall said, however, that the PNE and Medicor—the Medical Investment Corp. of Minneapolis—are so close that "a little compromise on both sides can button up the deal."

ANDY CAPP

Here's an over-the-shoulder peek at one Belleville's requests from the Sears-St. Nick Yuletide catalogue.

"Dear Santa (or, if, you don't exist) To Whom it May Concern:

Wanted: One set of autographed Orville Moody irons, one pair of genuine Tom Jones bleeding pyjamas, one Hells Engrs hubcap, one Quinte Action Centre, one . . .'

And that, if you are not one of the 1,132 persons who left pieces of feet all around the Bay Sept. 20, is the Quinte Action Centre.

It has a lot of aliases — Quinte Community Centre, Quinte Action Recreation Centre, Quinte Community Youth Centre, Quinte Youth Community Action Centre — sometimes Mr. Hurst and his partners in brine canoed, themselves, keep them straight.

The infamous Great Blister Sept. 20 raised $37,000 in pledges towards a second artificial ice surface in the city, some $10,000 of which has yet to be honored and/or collected.

When you take into consideration the 7,100 walkathon participants, hundreds of organizers, and thousands of sponsors, there couldn't be more than a handful of homes in the city that didn't make some sort of contribution.

If that's not a referendum, then God didn't make the little green apples and it don't snow in Minneapolis in the wintertime.

The "bargaining" power provided by the public response was the main item on the agenda of a Quinte Action Centre Committee meeting last evening.

It was routine that QAC steering committee members Dick Hurst, Dave Coates, Elsie Adamson, Cy Coulson, Leander Driscoll, Bill O'Sullivan, John Guthrie, and John Kunetsky, be given a vote of confidence to continue to spearhead the action centre drive. The walkathon's success was their recommendation.

What was not so obvious was the best way to come up with the remaining $150,000 estimated to make another rink a reality.

Discussion evaded suggestions of everything from a door-to-door canvass to a lottery to fund the project.

One of the four candidates for the 1970-72 Belleville City Council in attendance — Donald Soutter — had another approach to the issue.

"You people developed quite a community spirit behind your walkathon, and I'd hate to see any of that undone by a door-to-door campaign. You might lose the edge you have now."

The obvious place to try and get funds for a new city rink was from the new city council.

Mr. Soutter reminded the meeting that the project city council and, later, city voters balked on was a million-dollar-plus community centre. But, in the wake of this disappointment, had anyone thought of asking council to appropriate the considerably lesser amount needed for a less elaborate structure?

The action centre committee approached council for millions of property dollars and were rewarded with the proposed Coleman Flats site.

But at no time in the action centre committee on record as putting forward a substantial case for their $250,000 project. As one city spokesman said today, "They've got a great cause, but haven't made much of a presentation."

With the success of their walkathon appeal to the public behind them, this is what candidate Soutter suggested the QAC do — have a sound presentation ready for the earliest possible consideration of the new year's council.

The fact that the project has aldermanic respect is evident. Incumbent Richard Ellis, a champion of the action centre since the idea's inception, said: "I've been told campaigning for mayor using the centre as a platform would defeat me. If that's the case, I think we might wind up with an empty council chamber."

Alderman Robin Jeffrey, while stating she would like to see the QAC committee continue their fund-raising activities, answered a frank "yes" when asked if she thought next year's council could find $150,000 for the second rink.

Candidate Gerald Cunningham made it a four-for-one night when he seized his approval of the action centre principle.

The upshot of last night's meeting was a resolution that the QAC committee poll each council candidate at a pre-election public meeting as to their stand on the issue.

Shortly after the New Year, Mr. Hurst and Co. could see Belleville's recreational stocking filled.

Hawks Work Hard All Week

Although the Trenton Golden Hawks have had the last week off due to limited action in the Eastern Ontario Junior B circuit they have been far from resting.

The Golden Hawks skate against the front - running Kingston Frontenacs in a 9 p.m. game in Trenton's Community Gardens tonight.

"I have been putting the boys through some rough practices the last 10 days or so," said Trenton coach Red Gravelle. If they expect to beat Kingston, they're going to have to come out skating.

The Golden Hawks at present are in fifth place, one point ahead of last place Belleville Ellis Juniors and one point behind Picton - Bloomsburg Cougars. The Frontenacs are holding first place with 14 points, four in front of Peterborough Don Byes.

Rugged defenceman Andy Terwilliger is a doubtful starter for the Golden Hawks. Terwilliger suffered a shoulder injury in practice earlier this week.

Trenton neat travels to Oshawa for a 9 p.m. game with the Crushmen Saturday night.

Ellis Juniors Far From Out of Picture

The Belleville Ellis Juniors might be in last place but they are far from being out of the running in the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League.

The locals, in the cellar of the six - team league with four points are a mere three points out of third place with 22 games still remaining.

And the Ellis Juniors have two pulyers tied for second place in the league - leading Kingston Frontenac club. Louden has 18 points on 7 goals and 11 assists. The Belleville B's next action comes Monday night when they travel to Kingston. Spectators are invited on the team bus.

Mulroney's Lose Game by Forfeit

Mulroney's of Belleville's Gas House League might have won last Monday's game against Downtown Merchants as far as goals were concerned but lost the two points by forfeit.

Mulroney's engaged Reid Mallory for Monday night's game after Mallory had quit the Belleville Ellis Juniors.

"Our rules state that a player having played five games in the Ontario-Hockey Association and holds an OHA card is ineligible to play in our League," commented League president Bob Bland. "As a result of the Mallory incident, Mulroney they automatically forfeit the two points they got in the 5-4 win over Downtown Merchants."

Mo-Hawks Wary Of Owen Sound Visitors

Belleville Mo-Hawks' improved 1969-70 performance is going to earn them some recognition.

District Canadian Breweries representative Jack Tremblay has announced his firm will again sponsor individual trophies for the Mo-Hawk player-of-the-month.

The first of the handsome silver memento will be presented between periods tonight as the Mo-Hawks attempt to extend their five-game unbeaten string against the Owen Sound Crescents.

The Mo-Hawks are currently sitting in a fourth-place tie with Barrie Flyers in the eight-team OHA Junior A standings, but are not counting their chickens against the seventh-place Crescents.

"This club isn't as bad as their position might make them look," says Mo-Hawk playing-coach Davey Jones.

"They've got pretty well the same club as they had before they moved from Collingwood, and have added McComb and Jewell."

Before taking a year off senior hockey last winter, Dave McComb was the Ontario senior loop's leading scorer and most valuable player two years' running. Chuck Jewell was one of the league's outstanding goaltenders for the former Collingwood entry.

Sunday, the locals make the six of their longest road journeys, the 200-mile-plus trek back to Owen Sound to fulfil their half of the home-and-home set.

Argos' Cosentino Takes Textbook Approach to Football

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Cosentino teaches school, writes books and studies every aspect of football from its history and evolution to intricate offensive and defensive plays.

He believes the extra intelligence that makes the best engineers and doctors also makes the greatest football players.

"I don't mean that all football players are extra intelligent," he says. "I just think that anyone who has the intelligence to make a success of anything else he wanted to do."

Cosentino is the backup quarterback for Toronto Argonauts, who play Ottawa Rough Riders in the second game of the Eastern Football Conference two-game total-point final at Ottawa Saturday.

Toronto holds a 22-14 lead and Cosentino poses a special problem for Ottawa and especially defensive tackle Billy Joe Booth.

Coach Leo Cahill of Toronto agrees that it will be Booth's job "to get" No. 1 quarterback Tom Wilkinson and Cosentino's job to "take over if that happens."

Wilkinson and Cosentino have formed the most successful two-quarterback system in the Canadian Football League this season.

"I guess that's because they don't consider themselves competing against each other," Cahill says.

"They're our quarterbacks—both of them. They work together for the team."

Actually, it is hard to imagine Cosentino doing anything but working for the good of football.

He wrote a college thesis on the history and evolution of Canadian football for his master's degree and published it as his first book. He is currently working on another thesis—history on the rise of professional sports in Canada.

"Some of the most intelligent people I meet are football players," he says. "I could name you a lot of people with a minimum of education who have taught themselves things you wouldn't understand."

Cosentino has just recovered from an ankle injury that sidelined him in last Sunday's victory over Ottawa.

"It's fine now," he said Thursday. "I'll be ready to go in if they need me."

There have been suggestions that Cosentino is high strung and unable to handle the pressures of a first-string quarterback.

He backed up Bernie Faloney for Hamilton Tiger-Cats and failed as the No. 1 quarterback with Edmonton Eskimos.

Cahill is quick to come to Cosentino's defence when the word "failed" is used or even implied, however.

"I don't think he ever really had a decent chance with Hamilton and he started nine games one season with Edmonton," Cahill says.

"If he's got a problem with nerves, he hasn't shown it here. In fact, he started and played one full game with us this year."

The Argos left for Ottawa at 6 p.m. Thursday night and will hold a pre-game interview at the Skyline Hotel about 9 p.m. EST.

The game, scheduled for 3 p.m. EST, will be televised nationally by the CTV, with the winner advancing to the Grey Cup final at Montreal, Nov. 30, against Saskatchewan Roughriders, the Western champions.

Jackson Accepts Accolades, Won't Reconsider Retirement

OTTAWA (CP) — Teammates and fans agree—quarterback Russ Jackson is the most valuable player on the Ottawa Rough Riders.

Jackson received a sterling silver plate Thursday afternoon after Ottawa players voted him the most valuable player award. Later Jackson received a special award because fans attending Ottawa home games named him their choice as Riders' best.

The Ottawa quarterback, considered by many as one of the finest Canadians in pro football, said there is "no way" he would reconsider plans to retire this year after 12 years in the game.

"I have nothing to gain," Jackson said in an interview.

Jackson will be playing his final game before a home crowd Saturday when the Riders meet Toronto Argonauts in the final game of a two-game, total-points series for the Eastern Football Conference championship.

The Riders go into the game trailing by eight points because of their 22-14 loss to the Argos in the opening game last Sunday.

Coach Frank Clair of Riders has said that Jackson—highest-paid of the Riders at about $35,000 a year—might sit out next season and then come back the following year because of his great love of the game.

"There's no way that could happen," said Jackson. "After 12 years, what have I got to gain?"

A vice-principal of a city high school, Jackson said he had "let it be known" that he was not in a position to accept further promotion until his football career was ended.

"It wouldn't be fair to the school or to the football team," he said.

He expects to be just another fan when the Riders begin next year's schedule. He already has bargained for reserved tickets for Rider games.

Jackson, still sporting an angry wet welt courtesy of Argos' Ed Harrington in the opener, said he is confident the Riders can get by Toronto into the Grey Cup game against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The outlook is for either a muddy field or a hard, frozen one Saturday. Jackson said he would prefer "a muddy field with no wind" but regardless of conditions, he was confident Ottawa could throw against the Argos.

The field now is muddy and rain-soaked. The plastic covering over the field was removed for a time Thursday when the weather was sunny and cold but was quickly placed back when snow began falling.

No rain is expected between now and game time. The long-range forecast is for sunny weather Saturday morning, becoming cloudy in the afternoon. A temperature of 32 degrees is expected at game time with winds from the east at 10 to 14 miles an hour.

Day's Royal Win Costly

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Day rode Canadian Club over a seven-foot-high simulated stone wall to win the puissance event at the Royal Winter Fair Thursday night, but the victory was a costly one.

During the event, Canadian Club suffered a bloody wound to the inside of his right hind leg, which may eliminate the gelding from the final three events of the competition.

On the brighter side, the win plus Mofat Dunlap's second-place finish gave Canada 106 points, narrowing the United States team lead to six points. Argentina is third with 32 points, 12 ahead of Mexico.

The three other horses in the final jump-off lacked Canadian Club's drive.

Grande Nouvelle, the other Canadian horse in the field, also refused the wall, but Dunlap, of Newmarket, Ont., urged him over to incur three faults and win second place.

Kathy Kusner, on Wicked City, the other U.S. entry, faulted the jump to finish third.

Pinson Joins Tribe

Vada Pinson

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Vada Pinson was traded to Cleveland Indians of the American League by St. Louis Cardinals for Jose Cardenal Thursday in the first deal of the major league baseball inter-league trading period.

Bing Devine, general manager of the Cardinals, announced the trade of the two outfielders. Devine said Cardenal, 26, who hit .252 for Cleveland, will play centrefield for the Cardinals. Pinson, 31, who was traded to St. Louis by Cincinnati Reds after the 1960 season, hit .255 for the Cardinals, who slumped badly the past season after winning the National League championship two consecutive years.

Pinson now until midnight Dec. 1, the clubs can make trades with teams in the other league without the usual requirement of obtaining waivers.

Ferguson Second in Goals

GALT (CP) — With 15 goals in 12 games, Oakville Oaks' centre Jim "Obie" O'Brien leads the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series individual points race.

O'Brien, who has nearly one-third of his team's total offence of 51 goals, also has 13 assists for a 27-point total, five more than his nearest rival.

Three forwards of league-leading Orillia Terriers occupy three of the next four places. Grant Moore, who leads in assists with 17, is second at 23 points, one more than teammate Gary Milroy.

Ron Smith of the second-place Galt Hornets is next at 20 points, followed by Orillia's Moe Galand, who has 17 points in fifth spot.

Orillia's Gerry McNamara leads the netminders with a 2.25 goals against average in 11 games. Ron Boomer, 2.50, and Errol McKibbon, 2.83, both of Galt, are close behind. McNamara and McKibbon lead in shutouts with two each.

A and P Workers May Strike

HAMILTON (CP) — Negotiators said today they are "getting nowhere" in an attempt to work out the first union contract to cover A and P Store employees across southern Ontario, including about 300 in the Hamilton area, a union official said Thursday.

Earlier this week, A and P employees in Windsor voted 83 to 1 in favor of going on strike, if no agreement is reached.

The employees at eight Hamilton A and P stores will take a strike vote Monday night.

Store employees in the London area will also take a strike vote Monday. Contract talks are continuing today for A and P employees in the Niagara Peninsula area.

THE PICK OF Punch

"Isn't science wonderful? To think that only this morning I was having breakfast with my aunt in England."

PUNCH

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P., Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Readers who "can't wait until they have their first cup of coffee in the morning" will want to pop me when I say coffee is bad for some people.

"You doctors say don't so often you get into the habit of saying it for harmless habits. What's wrong with having a cup of coffee? Does that make me an addict?"

Here comes the equivocal reply: Yes and No. To be specific, one cup of coffee may up set one individual while a half-dozen or more cups seemingly have no bad effect on another. For example:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For years I have avoided drinking coffee, turning my cup down when eating out. Once, several years ago, and again last night in the home of a client, I drank coffee and hardly slept all night. Should I have then taken a barbiturate to stupify me into unconsciousness?

My wife formerly drank coffee four times daily. She came down with an irregular heart beat. She has reduced her coffee to a trickle with marked improvement.

I read somewhere coffee is as hard on the heart as cigarettes. Why do people drink toxic coffee which makes them wakeful, then take sleeping pills to sleep? (Incidentally, getting off the subject, why do nurses wake patients from sound sleep to give the pills to get to sleep?)

What fools we mortals be!—Mr. Z.

Comment: Someone has discovered caffeine may be bad for the heart — but not as bad as cigarettes. (Only a theory.) I would be the last to take coffee away from those who drink it in moderation. But each individual — like Mr. Z. — needs to discover his own limitations.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What are the causes of enlarged heart? Does it ever get small-er? — Mrs. M.

Comment: Anything which will put extra strain over a long period of time on the heart muscle. For example, such conditions as rheumatic heart disease, coronary artery disease, hypertensive heart disease, congenital heart disease, kidney disease, etc.

It can become smaller and improved with treatment. With drugs such as digitalis and diuretics (excess fluid removers); with antibiotics in treatment of infection; with operation, such as repairing a heart valve in rheumatic heart disease; with anti-hypertensive drugs etc.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My boy friend and I were measuring our heights one day. He said the height of the human body varies as much as half an inch from morning and night. Is this true? — Miss W.

Comment: Supposedly, because the protective discs between our vertebrae flatten out by the end of the day. Happens in some, not in others.

Incidentally it is also true most people are shorter in their 60s and 70s than when in their teens. This is due to a permanent flattening of intervertebral discs in the elderly, which causes the spine to shorten; and why older people look "smaller than they used to."

* * *

For Mrs. G.: The choice, of course, is your husband's. He is now 32 and has already won supports for a double hernia about 10 years. It may not bother him now, but he'll certainly get tired of wearing supports by the time he is 65 or 70.

Coffee Bad for Some People But Not Like Cigarettes

Lake Ontario Waters Good for Gardens

HAMILTON (CP) — It had to happen. Someone has discovered some good in the dirty waters of Lake Ontario.

Dr. Peter Rice, plant pathologist for the Royal Botanical Gardens, told a meeting of the Ontario Society of Biologists Thursday that the use of Lake Ontario water on the Gardens flowers, "partly accounts for their active growth."

"All that stuff in the lake makes excellent fertilizer."

Strictly Personal

Manual Work Spurned

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the real problems of being an affluent country — even with the large and shameful pockets of poverty we still have — is that everyone aspires to the middle-classes.

The laborer doesn't want his son to be a laborer, and neither does the son. In past ages, and past societies, carpenters' sons became carpenters, barbers' sons became barbers, plumbers' sons became plumbers — not always, of course, but enough to fill the need.

Now, with the rise of affluence, and with college education available for millions who a generation or two ago would have found it an impossible dream — we are facing a desperate shortage of manual and technical workers.

It is an irony of the success of capitalism that it makes nearly everyone want to be a capitalist; if not an owner, an executive, or a professional, at least attached in some way to the corporate or middle-class life.

And this very success means a breakdown in many necessary functions and services, which depend upon men who work with their hands, and thus receive little prestige or status in our society.

Skilled craftsmen of the traditional sort earn extremely high wages here and now, not merely because they are in short supply, but also as a kind of black-mail bonus for being willing to do the work nobody else wants to do.

As our society grows richer, more complex, and more demanding, we find fewer and fewer men available to perform more and more services of this sort. Young men's expectations are geared to higher-status jobs; and if they cannot get them, they perform and at rapacious prices.

Although Europe is also changing in our direction, there still remains much of the old feeling that a man who does his job well deserves respect, no matter what that job might be. A good barber, or a good cook, possesses dignity and standing among his fellows; in the U.S., their counterparts would rather work for less in a white collar than for more in a white apron.

We have become the victims of our own upward mobility, so that while we have more money than any people have ever had before, we are poorer in the amenities than we have ever been, and are more ill-served than the majority of European communities. The penalty of prosperity has been to turn most of us into our own menials.

Final Offer

SUDBURY (CP) — Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. said Thursday it has made a final package offer of $1.51 an hour to Local 598 of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union to settle a strike that has crippled operation of the company's plants here since Aug. 21.

The new package is six cents higher than the one offered the 2,300, production workers last Friday following settlement of a United Steelworkers of America strike at the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

KEEPING THEIR COOL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Air conditioners are to be installed in all new police cars, under an ordinance signed into law recently by Mayor Sam Yorty. The initial cost will be $130,000.

Fourth Plane Joins Airlift

TORONTO (CP) — A Canairelief spokesman said Thursday a fourth Super-Constellation aircraft has arrived at Portuguese island of Sao Tome off the west coast of Africa to help fly food and medicine into war-torn Biafra.

The plane, purchased for $73,500 from an aircraft firm in Florida, will have a crew supplied by Nordair of Montreal, the spokesman said. Night relief flights are expected to begin immediately.

The spokesman said that in the 10 months of operation by Canairelief, the Canadian member of the international joint church aid consortium, the three aircraft have carried about 16,000,000 pounds of relief cargo.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 22

Your birthday today: This year the Sun moves from the tropical zodiac sign Scorpio into the sign Sagittarius at 6:22 a.m. Eastern Standard Time. A baby born earlier than 6:22 would be a Scorpion, one born at 6:23 or later would be a Sagittarian. Both Scorpions and Sagittarians with birthdays today face a year of restriction: it will be necessary to consolidate what you have where you are. Precision is needed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today self-reliance is the keyword, and you have it. Some interests suffer from stress, but come up for later materialization. Patience!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your tact is all-important now. It is not enough to be correct, you must also give others the can reach the same conclusions.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Concentrate on the things that can be done in solitude. Clear out leftovers from previous, incomplete projects; discard where appropriate.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Social doings lag, as does romantic expression. Accept contrary moods as normal for the moment and go on with weekend routines.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): This is not a difficult day, but you must allow people the luxury of their whims in problem-solving efforts. Spend more time with loved ones, being helpful.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your criticism is more accurate than is comfortable today. Those you care about need your sympathy and co-operation now, although they may not offer immediate response.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Pay little attention to the sulking of everybody involved in your affairs. Your money is also a target for activities — refrain from spending at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Haste, overloading are really not necessary. There are many details to attend, but just enough time to get them all set if you start early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Live up to your standards of behavior despite provocations, and be proud of yourself later. Expect uphill conditions in work, romance, personal projects.

Jan. 19): The more you are concerned about the unhelpful behavior of others, the less co-operative they are. Take it all in stride, and continue in your determination.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Personal relations are the sensitive areas of your life today. Other areas are secure and stable. Interrupt your tasks if need be to avoid neglect amongst your loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): In which people around you fail to communicate fluently or else expect too much from you. The pressure soon passes.

Liberals to Get Hint of Trudeau's Plans at Policy Parley

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau starts a three day Liberal party policy conference today with what has been advertised by his aides as a significant and interesting speech.

He is schetuled to give the key-note address to about 400 delegates and it is said to be significant that the first subject to be taken up by the conference is poverty.

He speaks at 9:30 a.m. PST.

Nine other general fields of policy will be threshed over before delegates leave this mountain resort Sunday afternoon. The conference is the first of a three-stage approach toward new Liberal party policies.

The final party policy conference is expected next November, probably in Ottawa.

Mr. Trudeau arrived Thursday night as delegates streamed into Harrison Hot Springs by plane, bus and car under lowering clouds. He first went for a swim in the sulphur springs pool, registered as a delegate, and then mingled with the crowd in the hotel lobby.

The conference was officially opened—two hours late—by Senator Richard J. Stanbury, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, who emphasized this is not a decision-making meeting, merely an exploration of new policies.

"We hope the experts will inspire the delegates, that the delegates will challenge the experts, and that out of the free play of debate will come imaginative proposals," he said.

CYC Changes Urged

Staff Treated Like Eunuchs

OTTAWA (CP) — Top men in the Company of Young Canadians said Thursday that "volunteers are treating the staff like obedient eunuchs" and recommended major changes in the CYC.

CYC Director Claude Vidal, 39, said the CYC council is dominated by volunteers, that he has no control over the 53 volunteers in Quebec, and that he can't be sure of the extent of his authority.

Mr. Vidal, on the job since last Dec. 1, left the stand with an assurance from John Reid (L—Kenora-Rainy River), chairman of the Commons Inquiry, that changes may be recommended to make his job easier.

Mr. Vidal and CYC information director Ian Hamilton said that domination of the council by volunteers makes it almost impossible to control finances or field projects.

In about five days of testimony, they have told of reversed policies, of ignored requests for accounts, leases or other information, and of difficulty in getting anything done.

A 14-page statement from Mr. Vidal angered MPs by saying Parliament "didn't know what it was talking about" when it created the CYC, that Parliament and the CYC perpetuated the "myth" that the CYC was channelling youth into action, and that Parliament in reality had created "an elite body" of volunteers who didn't understand participatory democracy.

Mr. Reid, stung, said it was the inadequacy of the company and its lack of self-discipline rather than Parliament that had brought it "to the verge of collapse."

The Vidal brief said the community must be given control of the council and volunteers should have no place on it.

Millionaire Impressed With Hippie Samaritans

VANCOUVER (CP) — The millionaire senator from Winnipeg sat down for a feed-in with the kids from Coal-Aid Thursday and came away promising to ask the federal government for a maintenance grant to help the youth group working with alienated young people in Vancouver and others like it from coast to coast.

"They may have long hair, unorthodox clothes and an unstructured society, but I'm really impressed with what they're doing," said Senator Douglas Everett, a member of the special Senate committee on poverty.

"It's based on the good Samaritan ethic. They provide food and shelter and act as an advocate the way our society says it should, but it's getting things done with kids who have rejected affluence and conformity for independence."

It was the first exposure to the so-called hippie sub-culture for the 42-year - old senator whose wealth is estimated at $7,000,000 and it became the final day of the committee's hearings in the city.

The 10 senators heard the last of briefs presented in the morning and spent the afternoon visiting low rental housing projects, talking with the hard-core poor and sampling life on skid road.

Reporters were not allowed to accompany the senators and their guides because of an expressed wish to safeguard the privacy of the individuals visited.

"With the press around, people become actors," said Senator David Croll, chairman of the committee.

Psychiatrist Declares Marijuana Addictive

TORONTO (CP) — A draft report on drugs prepared by Dr. Keith Yonge, president of the Canadian Psychiatric Association, says marijuana should be regarded as an addictive drug that could cause permanent brain damage.

The report, circulated among members of the association for comment, says there is ample evidence that persons who use psychotrophic drugs—including marijuana—"tend to do so habitually." All these drugs should be considered addictive, either physiologically or psychologically.

Dr. Yonge said he also has evidence that continued drug usage "may include lasting changes in the chemical processes of the brain cells" and in personality.

The paper cites no studies or statistics as a basis for its conclusions.

Dr. Aldwyn Stokes, president-elect of the CPA, said Thursday the report in its present form was not intended to reach the government commission and it "cannot in any way be considered a statement by the association."

Only 3 Per Cent Of Young People Are Using Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — A Metropolitan Toronto police inspector said Thursday rumors that 50, 60 or even 80 per cent of today's young people are using drugs are spread by those who favor legalization of marijuana.

Morality Squad Inspector John Wilson told the Kiwanis Club of West Toronto perhaps three per cent of persons under 25 use drugs—including marijuana, methamphetamines (speed), and hallucinogenics.

CP Head To Retire On Monday

TORONTO (CP) — CP retires next Monday.

For a small group—Canada's newspaper men and women—the initials and date are significant.

It is the day that Gillis Purcell, general manager of The Canadian Press since 1945, retires. Next day he is 65.

As a builder of Canada's national news service, Mr. Purcell may have had more bearing on how news is gathered and presented to Canadians than anyone else during the last three decades. But he shuns publicity and his name is not widely known outside the news field.

Tonight he is to be honored by more than 200 of his friends at a CP dinner.

Cabinet Won't Put Up Money - - Yet

Pollution Fight Will Cost Billions - - Greene

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister J. J. Greene told the Commons Thursday it will cost Canada "scores billions of dollars over a period of time" to deal effectively with water pollution but he had to admit later he can't talk the cabinet into putting up the federal share of the money just yet.

Opening debate on the second reading of the Canada water bill, Mr. Greene used a mixture of literary allusion and blunt facts to describe the "grave and urgent problem" facing the nation. He warned that the cost of inaction could be greater than that of the cleanup.

"To begin with there is a threat to our entire way of life and, yes, perhaps to life itself."

Public opinion, he said, is ready to support action. The water bill would give the opportunity to individual citizens, industry and all levels of governments to join in the attack.

The proposed legislation provides for creation of federal-provincial agencies to advise the federal government on regional standards of water quality and to administer control problems. They would be backed with fines of up to $2,000 a day for violators of its pollution control measures and they would be able to charges a fee for any legal discharge of pollutants.

Both Conservative critic Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) and Ran Harding (NDP — Kootenay West attacked these main proposals as inadequate "and an indication the government lacks the will to lead effectively against pollution.

Mr. Aiken said the bill is complicated and feeble and warned that under the pressure of inter-provincial rivalries it will fall apart. It would require a tremendous amount of negotiation between Ottawa and the provinces. It failed to establish nationwide water-quality standards.

Both he and Mr. Harding wanted stronger, more direct action at the federal level and a promise of a specific quantity of federal money to assist the provinces and municipalities.

Mr. Greene said in his speech that steps are being taken to make more money available to the municipalities for sewage treatment plants through the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. The CMHC allotment for the purpose in the current year has already run out.

At a press conference later, however, he was unable to say how much extra money might be made available or if it would be advanced before the current fiscal year expires Mar. 31, 1970.

The anti-pollution program, he said, has had to struggle for priority with the government's anti-inflation policies. He felt himself it should command top priority but that it was obvious that Finance Minister Edgar Benson thought differently.

"And I'll have to accept that as long as I'm a member of the government."

He said the total cost to all Canadians for effective pollution control over the next 10 years might be close to $4,000,000,000. The philosophy of the bill was that the users of water should pay to return it in an acceptable condition. In effect, pollution control would become a cost of production.

The minister told reporters the success of the bill depended on co-operation between the provinces and the federal government. It wouldn't work, he agreed, if a province should refuse to participate in the operation of one of the water-quality management agencies which are planned.

Mr. Greene doubted, however, that would be a problem. A provincial government that refused to take part would have to face an angry electorate. In the matter of pollution, he said, "public opinion is ahead of political leadership."

Industry would face a similar penalty if it failed to co-operate, he went on. A new Canadian ethic emphasizing the quality of life is developing and "if private enterprise can't make a contribution to the new ethic then I'm afraid we're going to lose private enterprise."

He hastened to add he thought that would be a bad thing even though he hasn't received "any sort of overwhelming acclaim from industry" as a result of the bill.

Earlier, the minister told the Commons that industry should not be used as a whipping-boy in the issue of pollution. "Industry does little more or little less than public opinion demands."

He also anticipated opposition criticism of the system of fees charged against those who continue to discharge pollutants. The fees should not be considered as a license to pollute. The idea, Mr. Greene said, was to force the waste disposer to pay a sufficiently high fee to cover the cost of treating the waste.

It is hoped to begin creation of water quality control agencies as soon as the legislation is approved by Parliament. Mr. Greene said he expects the first one may be created in the Okanagan Valley in British Columbia.

Domtar Is Charged With Polluting Lake

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Domtar Ltd., Canada's second largest pulp and paper producer, was charged Thursday under the Ontario Water Resources Act with polluting Lake Superior's Nipigon Bay.

Crown attorney P. V. Ibbetson, who will prosecute the case when it comes to trial Dec. 8, said an information was sworn here by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The information alleges pollution of a specified portion of the bay by material from Domtar's large kraft containerboard mill at Red Rock, 65 miles east of the Lakehead.

The charge was laid under a section of the Water Resources Act, which prohibits discharge into any body of water of material "that may impair the quality of the water."

The section makes polluters liable on summary conviction to a fine of up to $1,000 or imprisonment for one year or both.

The case is the first involving the pulp and paper industry to reach the courts.

An official of the OWRC said prosecution followed a detailed inspection of Domtar facilities which resulted from complaints that pollution was destroying Nipigon Bay's fishing industry.

The case could provide a major test of Ontario's water pollution laws. Although convictions have been obtained under the Act against such large companies as Canadian National Railways, the size of the Domtar investment would make its case perhaps the biggest since the OWRC was set up in 1956.

Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr recently said that of the 42 pulp and paper mills in the province, only 16 have established satisfactory controls as has been urged by the commission.

Stewart Defends Dog Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Humane societies should not be allowed to keep impounded dogs and cats in protective custody when the animals are needed for research and teaching, Agriculture Minister William Stewart said today.

Speaking before 250 persons at a public hearing of the standing committee on health, Mr. Stewart said he does not want to put the societies out of business. But he defended controversial legislation as the "logical and economical" manner of providing animals for research.

The three-day meeting, packed by supporters of the act including about 200 medical students from the University of Toronto and a dozen wheel-chair representatives of the Society for Crippled Civilians, heard defences of the bill from Mr. Stewart and deans of medicine at Ontario universities.

Mafia Investment Being Investigated

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Police Commission intelligence branch is involved in a continuing investigation into Mafia involvement in investment in the province, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Thursday.

Replying in the legislature to a question from Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, Mr. Wishart said the investigation is wide-ranging and thorough, and is correlated with investigations being carried on by the Ontario Provincial Police and large urban forces.

When asked by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) if he knew of the allegation in a recent issue of Weekend magazine that a Toronto brokerage firm was under Mafia control, Mr. Wishart declined comment. When asked by NDP Leader Donald Macdonald if he was aware of the name of the brokerage house, Mr. Wishart said the matter is before the police commission and declined further comment.

INCO Is Told To Report Spillage

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister George Kerr said Thursday he will prosecute the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. if it again spills waste in the Sudbury area without notifying the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Mr. Kerr was replying during debate on his departmental estimates to Elie Martel (NDP—Sudbury East), who said Inco has not bothered to notify the OWRC when spillges of waste occurred, even on one occasion when 10,000 tons of cyanide were dumped into the Vermilion River.

Mr. Martel said Inco employees who wanted to notify the OWRC or himself of spillages had been threatened with loss of their jobs if they did so. Mr. Kerr replied Inco now was notifying the OWRC of spills. It was just one of 400 companies that recently had been warned by letter that they should notify the commission of all spills, accidental or otherwise.

Subway Roadbeds Included

Ontario Will Pay Half Cost Of Urban Road Projects

TORONTO (CP) — A bill to raise the provincial subsidy for urban road improvement to 50 per cent from 33 1-3 per cent was introduced in the legislature Thursday by Highways Minister George Gomme.

The bill, which will provide the increased subsidy for work approved after Jan. 1, specifically provides that the extra money shall also apply to construction of subway roadbeds.

Announced by Premier John Robarts last May, the increased subsidy was an important factor in the Toronto Transit Commission's decision to invest an extra $27,000,000 in extending the Yonge Street subway north to Finch avenue.

Mr. Gomme, opening debate on his department's $483,317,000 estimates, also said plans are being made to match industrial expansion in the Lake Erie, Toronto-Barrie and Burlington areas of the province.

Grenville (L—Oxford) said departmental planning does not take into consideration the role highway construction plays in Ontario's industrial, residential and environmental development.

He said the government is so desperate to "keep people moving" that southern Ontario is being turned into a "concrete desert and ruining the water table as well."

He advocated huge parking terminals at the limits of all major cities, research into new methods of mass transit and amalgamation of the departments of highways and transport.

Elie Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) suggested that Ontario create Crown corporations to do some highway construction as a yardstick to measure the costs charged by private contractors.

Mr. Gomme said the province already does its own road construction when it believes the tendered prices are too high.

Earth Is Pulling Spaceship Home

Trio Slumbers For 12 Hours

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 12 moon explorers streaked homeward today as earth's gravity pulled their Yankee Clipper spaceship faster and faster toward Monday's splashdown.

Charles (Pete) Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean, weary from their successful lunar excursions, went to sleep shortly after firing a powerful rocket burst behind the moon Friday to break the lunar gravitational embrace and plunge earthward.

Mission Control let them Apollo 12 crew sleep for almost 12 hours, the longest rest period so far of the trip. Shortly after 7 a.m., there were signs of activity in the capsule and Mission Control beamed them a taped recording of a "wake up music."

Conrad replied by turning on his own recorded music for what the ground communicator called "a little bit of a battle of bands."

About half an hour later the astronauts fired a two-second rocket burst to change the spacecraft's course slightly. The end effect of the burn was to make the scheduled splashdown one minute later than originally scheduled.

While they slept, the Yankee Clipper came under the dominance of earth's gravity. The spaceship picked up speed and was to be 200,000 miles from earth by mid-morning today, moving at more than 2,000 miles an hour.

Apollo 12 will continue to gain speed until Monday afternoon when it nears into the earth's atmosphere at 36,000 miles an hour and parachutes to a landing in the Pacific Ocean near American Samoa.

The astronauts spent their last day in lunar orbit photographically surveying three craters which future Apollo crews may use as landing sites.

One of the craters, Fra Mauro, is a few hundred miles from the Ocean of Storms, where Apollo 12 landed, and is expected to be the destination of Apollo 13 next March. Also photographed were Descartes and Lalande, both of particular interest to scientists because they may be composed of some of the oldest material on the moon.

On their 45th orbit of the moon, the astronauts fired their powerful rocket engine. The rocket firing occurred behind the moon and as the spacecraft reappeared it was travelling homeward at more than 5,000 miles an hour.

Gravitational pull of the moon slowed it until about 10 p.m. EST, when the earth's gravity took hold and Apollo 12 started down hill toward home.

The astronauts are returning with what they went to the moon to get—a spacecraft packed with precious moon rocks, film magazines full of lunar navigation photography, and proof that the Apollo lunar lander can be touched down on the moon almost precisely where it's aimed from earth.

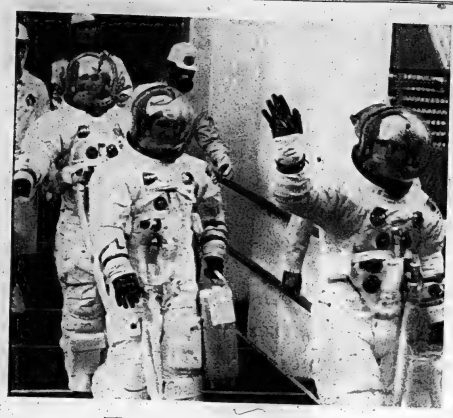
Conrad said he landed so near the planned place that "I gave myself quite a thrill."

"I think you will appreciate it when you see the pictures and you see how close we landed to the crater," he said.

Bean said that walking in the reduced gravity of the moon's surface was a funny thing. "Your legs never seem to get tired," he said. "You assume some kind of normal pace and you're able to go for long distances without your legs getting tired."

"I found I couldn't walk," said Conrad. "Wherever we went we loped, and it just didn't seem natural not to lope."

Conrad said he fell down once during the 7½ hours he and Bean walked the moon's surface. "I didn't have any problems getting up," he said.



They Are on Way Home

Now they are on their way home after a moon visit marred only by the failure of the color TV camera which was to have shown their fellow men on earth their history-making lunar explorations.

Police Charge Green, Maki

OTTAWA (CP) — City police have sworn out charges against Boston defenceman Ted Green and St. Louis rookie Wayne Maki of assault causing bodily harm, it was learned today.

The charges arise out of a stick duel during an exhibition hockey game here Sept. 23 between St. Louis Blues and Boston Bruins.

Green's skull was fractured. He was in hospital for several weeks, and his hockey future is uncertain.

The charges were sworn out Friday before Justice of the Peace D. J. Mclaughney. Then summonses were mailed to the hockey players.

Both Maki and Green were given match penalties for their first-period fight. A match penalty carries an automatic $300 fine.

Maki, now with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, was later suspended by NHL president Clarence Campbell for 30 days.

Green will be suspended for the first 13 league or playoff games after he has been declared fit to play again.

There was no indication as to when the charges will go to court.

They carry a maximum of two years in prison.

Farley Mowat Says Old Men Blight of Earth

TORONTO (CP) — Author Farley Mowat suggested Friday that "every once in a while you've got to give in to your animal natural atavistic instincts."

"Man is aggressive and always has been and we're idiots to try to suppress it," he said in an interview on the eve of the release of his latest book, The Boat Who Wouldn't Float.

"I'm 48 now, and I'm never gonna see 50. When any animal passes its point of maximum productivity it should crawl off into the bush and die.

"Old men in positions of power are the blight and curse of this damn planet."

Mowat put his theory of animal instincts to good use on a recent trip to Siberia when an Intourist guide, annoyed with him, told everybody he was a spy.

"But, there I was, running around in my kilt, and he couldn't convince anybody."

Montreal College Deserted After New Bomb Threats

MONTREAL (CP) — Westend Loyola College, target of a powerful bombing Thursday night and two bomb threats Friday, will be deserted today.

Weekend campus activities were postponed or cancelled and 600 students attending the adjacent Loyola High School were sent home early Friday following telephoned threats.

Thursday's blast and an explosion several hours earlier at the $50,000 home of suburban St. Leonard's deputy mayor, were the first bombing incidents in the city since Mayor Drapeau's plush home was wrecked by an explosive device Sept. 29.

Damage to the college could reach $20,000, Loyola president the Very Rev. Patrick G. Malone said. Planted in a basement stairwell in the Bryan building, the bomb smashed windows on all three floors, brought down a concrete platform and blew out windows in a nearby police cruiser.

Police said the bomb was one of the biggest ever used in this city, which has been rocked by scores of terrorist explosions in past years.

Meanwhile, police were scouring the province for two men seen speeding away from the campus in a car shortly after the blast.

Orphanage Collapses, Killing Eleven Children

SAIGON (AP) — A three-story orphanage on the western edge of Saigon collapsed early today, killing at least 11 children and two teachers. Three other children were missing and believed dead.

American and South Vietnamese rescue workers chopped through rubble and broken concrete to search for the missing children.

Officials said the brick and concrete structure that was home to 40 South Vietnamese orphans "just collapsed." There was no evidence of an explosion.

The orphanage, called the Children's Home of Blessing, is run by the Christian Missionary Alliance.

An effort ot rebuild the orphanage will be made.

South Vietnamese Declare Reports of Massacre False

SAIGON (AP) — One day after the United States Army announced it is broadening its investigation into an alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians, the South Vietnamese government said reports of the incident are "completely inaccurate."

Responding to published reports that American troops murdered several hundred civilians in a coastal hamlet 21 months ago, the defence ministry said in a statement today that there was no massacre but that U.S. air strikes and artillery killed "about 20 civilians" in a battle which killed 125 Viet Cong.

"Reports from newspapers and foreign news agencies recently that 527 civilians were killed were completely inaccurate," the brief statement said.

A U.S. Army lieutenant has been charged with premeditated murder and a sergeant with assault with intent to commit murder in the alleged massacre of approximately 100 civilians in the Quang Ngai province hamlet of My Lai on March 16, 1968.

The surprise statement by the South Vietnamese was based on the results of an inquiry by Lt.-Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of the area, that includes Quang Ngai. President Nguyen Van Thieu had personally ordered Lam to investigate.

The defence ministry statement contradicted not only the U.S. Army's version of the incident, but also the accounts of Vietnamese citizens of Son My village who say they witnessed or survived the massacre.

Civilians have told officials and reporters of American troops entering the village, herding the people from their homes in three groups, and killing them with rifles and machine-guns.

Photographs by a former army photographer, purporting to show bodies of some of the victims, have been published in the United States.

New Plant for Old

William H. McPherson, operations manager at Electronics Controls Ltd., points out feature of domestic refrigerator demonstration unit, to Mayor J. Russell Scott and Industrial Commission chairman Alderman Gerald Joyce. The Belleville firm which specializes in educational equipment for vocational schools, has announced it will construct a new plant on Hanna Street in north-west Belleville.

Capital Works Investment Hits $10,000,000

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A 13-year-old Belleville firm geared to the production of educational equipment for vocational schools is to build a new plant in the city's north-west industrial quadrant.

It is Electronic Controls Ltd. now located in the North building on the city's water-front area.

Clearing on the south side of Hanna Street west of Sidney Street and south of Highway 401 is already under way and construction will commence immediately on a 21,000 square foot one - storey structure costing $165,000.

The building will be a pre-engineered metal siding structure with occupancy scheduled for about April 1 next year. Of the total building area 1,500 square feet will be used for office space.

In announcing plans for the new building yesterday at the city's industrial commission office company general manager William McPherson said the plant would be built w i t h the assistance of an interest-free loan of up to $63,000 from the Ontario Development Corporation.

He said this loan would make it possible for Electronic Controls Ltd. to keep its main operation in Belleville rather than move it to the United States where it currently realizes 40 per cent of its total sales.

The percentage volume of total sales to the United States is expected to rise with increases as exports to that country are subject to import duty, it would be to the company's advantage to manufacture in the U.S., he said.

However, the ODC loan will in effect compensate for the duty and keep a Canadian company competitive with those we can companies who pay no duty for products coming into Canada.

It is hoped that under the general agreement on trade and tariffs, that duty will be passed on the company's products going to the US will be reduced by the time the effect of the ODC interest free loan is used up.

Currently the company's sales at 55 per cent in Canada, 40 U.S. and about five per cent to other countries.

Mr. McPherson said the Hanna street location for the new plant was chosen after considerable help from the Belleville Industrial Commission which provided information on alternative sites.

Total investment in the new plant, including additional equipment will be approximately $190,000.

Employment is expected to remain at about the present level initially, he said, but increased efficiency will result in a higher volume of production. After a year at the new site, the firm hopes to continue its expansion.

Electronic Controls Ltd. got its big boost from the Robarts plan of six or seven years ago which placed greater emphasis on vocational training in Ontario's high schools.

Eighty per cent of the company's Canadian sales has been to Ontario schools, including Loyalist College in Belleville which Mr. McPherson says his firm considers as sort of a "showplace" for their equipment.

At yesterday's announcement Industrial Commissioner Alderman Gerald Joyce, said the new development would boost the value of industrial capital investment in Belleville to over 10 million dollars in the past year.

Boat Building Firms Merge

A recent merger of the Belleville Marine Yards Ltd. with three other Canadian placed theilpon

marine manufacturers has placed the firm among the top seven pleasure boat manufacturers in Canada.

The merger results in the formation of a new company called C and C Yachts Ltd. which is expected to increase its production by approximately 40 per cent in 1970 from the present $2½ million and by a similar percentage growth in 1971.

Jan Morch, president and general manager of Belleville Marine Yards Ltd., said a substantial portion of the increased sales will be due to increased activity at Belleville Marine.

Present employment at Belleville Marine is 53. This is expected to increase to 70 next year and to as many as 95 in 1971.

The expansion at Belleville Marine will be effected with increased production facilities which will become available early in 1970 as Electronic Controls Ltd. gives up its present leased quarters.

Mr. Morch yesterday emphasized that Belleville Marine Yards Ltd. was quite distinct from Morch Manufacturing although sometimes the firm is referred to incorrectly as Morch Marine.

The merger of Belleville Marine Yards was with Cuthbertson and Cassian Ltd. Brockmann Manufacturing Ltd. and Hinterhoeller Ltd.

Belleville Marine Yards Ltd. has made a name for itself in the past few years in the production of the fibreglas sailing yachts.

City mayor Russell Scott said the expansion at the Belleville boat building plant was another illustration that Belleville is on the move.

Drivers Given Warning

It's getting near the season to be jolly — even behind the wheel of an automobile.

At least that seems the indication from charges laid by city police overnight in Belleville.

Chief Douglas Crosbie this morning reported spot charges had been laid for impaired driving against three Belleillans during the night.

The chief describes the count as "rather unusual" and sees it as a possible indication that the festive Christmas season is on the way.

However, he cautions, Valetide Police do ushers in new aids in the fight to reduce impaired driving.

Chief Crosbie says his department is ready for the Dec. 1 enforcement start of new legislation which makes breath tests compulsory.

Kingston Youths Plan Trenton Drug Seminar

A group of 40 young people from Kingston will be in Trenton Sunday to lecture to teenagers of the dangers of drugs.

Michael Mahoney, a research technician with the addiction studies unit of Kingston Psychiatric Hospital will lead the group.

"This group has a pitch which will make the kids sit up and take notice," Mr. Mahoney says.

In Kingston about 175 teenagers have formed an organization to warn others of drug abuse. Most have had experiences with drugs, and are seeking to discuss the subject with others of the same age.

The Sunday sessions will be held at Brewdene Senior School, Middleton Park. From 3.30 to 4.30 p.m. the visiting young people will be present to talk to teenagers. The evening session from 7.30 to 9 p.m. is intended for adults and will be led by Mr. Mahoney. Young people from Grade 7 up are especially invited to the afternoon meeting.

The program has been arranged by the CFB Trenton chaplains, with the support of the base commander, base surgeon and school principal.

IN MEMORIAM

JUNY — In loving memory of a dear sister Linda Juny who passed away November 23, 1966.

We are and within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For those we loved so dearly,
The forever have called away.
We think of her in silence,
We miss her more as we weep,
But many silent tears are shed,
Which never shall be seen.
Always remembered by brother Garnet, sister-in-law June and family.

SHORT — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Milton J. Short who passed away, November 23, 1966. God now was getting weary,
And so He thought a lot,
So many good folks around Him,
And whispered "Come and rest".
He wished to see a face He loved,
For was a good face,
So God closed his eyes, we know it,
And he's gone to rest.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by wife, daughters and their families.

EVANS, Franklin C. — Who passed away November 23, 1968.

Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who loved him best
Are those who loved him best.
Those who knew him no more,
May further and forget,
But the love for him who lies here
Will never fad away.
—Always remembered by wife Francis.

JUNY — In loving memory of a dear sister Linda May who passed away 2 years ago, November 23, 1966.

Two years have passed and gone,
Two years of heartache and pain,
Two years we miss you dearest,
Two years we long to see you again.
—Always remembered by sister Mary and brother Robert.

CUNNINGHAM — In ever loving memory of our dear father, Arthur Cunningham, who passed away November 23rd, 1967.

Dad, you left us very sudden,
Without a word or sign,
You left us many things to do,
But never more to see you.
—Always remembered by wife Frances and family.

JUNY — In loving memory of a dear sister Linda Juny who passed away 3 years ago, November 23, 1966.

What would I not give to clasp her hand,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
That sweet face to gaze upon,
But always remembered by Marlene and Jim.

JUNY — In loving memory of a dear daughter Linda Juny who passed away 3 years ago November 23, 1966.

Yours was a heartache,
Only those who have lost can tell,
Of the grief that lies in silence,
For the one we loved so well.
—Always remembered by Mother.

JUNY — In loving memory of our dear sister Linda Juny who passed away Nov. 23rd, 1966.

The blow was great, the shock severe,

Hunters Raise Ire Of Farmers

Deer-hunting ended last weekend.

This weekend hunters are after smaller game — and farmers are after the hunters.

Provincial police at Belleville today were sending patrols into Thurlow, Sidney and Tyendinaga Townships after a series of complaints from irate landowners.

The angry report came in almost simultaneously this morning — and were mainly similar.

Farmers were protesting trespassing and gunfire by hunters believed from the Toronto area.

Winter Wastes Being Dumped

Wellington Steps Up Bid to Control West Lake Pollution

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

WELLINGTON — Wellington Village Council has announced plans to initiate a campaign to prevent further pollution of West Lake.

The first step, taken at a meeting Thursday night, was to give Councillor Barnett authority to do what he can to curb plans of the Ontario Water Resource Commission allowing Quinte Milk Products Ltd. to dump wastes into the lake during the winter.

Last year West Lake was tested and found near pollution level.

"The problem, of course," said Mr. Barnett yesterday, "is not basically the dairy's fault."

He explained the OWRC stopped the dairy from dropping wastes into the lake several years ago. A holding pond one-half-mile north of the entrance to Wellington was successfully used for some time to accommodate the waste materials.

The pond was sprayed to destroy odors and the pollution of West Lake in relation to waste deposits from the dairy was stopped.

This system eventually proved unsatisfactory as seepage from the pond was suspected of being the source of ground water pollution.

Complaints were made also concerning the malodorous condition which developed at the pond. For these reasons, Quinte Milk Products Ltd. was asked to discontinue dumping in the pond.

Wellington Village Council recently learned the OWRC has again given the dairy permission to have an effluent pipe in West Lake for winter waste disposal.

Remarked Mr. Barnett, "It is a treated waste with some milk acid. We feel if it is again deposited in the lake, our recreational facilities will be endangered."

He added that many tourists especially fishermen, left Wellington early this year because heavy weed growth in the lake made fishing impossible. Mr. Barnett said tourists found the weeds made sailing and pleasure-cruising on the lake difficult.

"We feel the dumping of this waste definitely contributes to weed growth, although we have no proof," remarked the councillor.

He described the waste as "large grey clots that lie on the shore". They are slimy and cling to the boats and the lake.

He felt a petition signed by the village residents and tourist home operators could prove valuable in the anti-pollution fight.

Mr. Barnett described the attitude of Quinte Milk Products Ltd. as co-operative in this situation.

However, the effluent pipe to carry waste into the lake this winter has been laid.

A letter of objection from Wellington Village Council to the OWRC brought a reply promising an eventual taboo of dumping in West Lake.

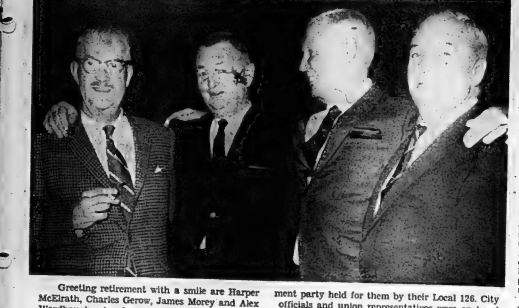
The reply from the Commission states, "An alternative waste-treatment method is being developed, but is not expected to be completed until the fall of 1970. It should also be noted that consideration is still being given to the feasibility of treating the dairy wastes in the proposed provincially financed sewerage works for the village of Wellington.

"This charge of the untreated wash-waters in the lake does meet with commission approval. It had been hoped that adequate waste treatment facilities would be installed before this winter. However the company has made a number of product changes in an effort to make plans viable. These changes have caused delay in the design of the treatment works since the characteristics of the wastes from the new processes have had to be evaluated.

"Please be assured that we will continue to maintain a close vigilance to see that adequate waste treatment facilities are installed as quickly as possible."

Said Mr. Barnett, "Wellington is in the midst of a small boom with the new housing development and the mushroom factory — many people are interested in this village because of its water recreation facilities.

He announced that he hoped for a meeting to discuss further action concerning the pollution problem when Wellington's newly - formed council is organized.



Greeting retirement with a smile are Harper McElrath, Charles Gerow, James Morey and Alex Wardhaugh who have worked together in the Belleville Yard Office of the CN for the past half century. They were honored last night at a retirement party held for them by their Local 126. City officials and union representatives were on hand to extend warm congratulations. Missing is Harold Morris, a 50-year veteran, who also retired.

Alyea to Appeal Land Award

TRENTON — Trenton residents may not know for some time the entire cost of the town's newly-constructed water reservoir in Murray township.

Apple grower John Alyea announced Friday afternoon he would launch an appeal in the provincial court of appeals which is under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Supreme Court.

On Friday, Nov. 14, Mr. Alyea was informed by Judge J. C. Currelly that the Durham-Northumberland county court had awarded him $8,750 for 12.8 acres of land expropriated from him for the reservoir by the Trenton PUC.

The 72-year-old farmer felt that, although the county court vindicated his belief that his land was more valuable than the $1,900 originally offered by the Trenton PUC, he still was not getting the true value of the land.

Expropriation of the 12.8 acres of land bisected Mr. Alyea's farm and he estimates the damage to the farm at between $17,000 and $18,000

The chairman of the Trenton PUC, C. A. Baker, said the judge's award to Mr. Alyea was higher than the commission expected, but nevertheless the members were prepared to accept the county court's decision, adding "we're in no frame of mind to appeal it."

The commission expects to receive a grant of 75 per cent from the Ontario department of energy and resources on the cost of acquiring the land.

Mr. Denis W. Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Edwards of Belleville has been promoted to manager of the Goodyear Retread Plant at Calgary, Alberta. Position effective immediately.

Nine Nominated For Murray Seats

WOOLER — Murray township businessman and farmer Harry Lafferty was elected reeve by acclamation yesterday, his term of office to run for three years. His nomination was moved by Foster Boulton and seconded by incumbent reeve G. H. Rose. His name was the only one posted as a candidate for reeve.

Reeve elect Lafferty is the incumbent deputy reeve, a position he has held for three years. In the two years previous he served as a township councillor.

Reeve Lafferty's public service includes a number of years as an active member of separate school board in Trenton.

He is a native of Murray ship have been called upon to township.

The 3,245 voters in the township choose a new deputy reeve and three councillors.

In the race for the vacant deputy's seat are James Quinn and Sherman Malaphant. The nominee James F. Day withdrew with the explanation it was possible he would stand for council.

The nine candidates nominated to contest council vacancies have until 5 p.m. today to qualify. So far Stanley Down, C. V. MacDonald, William R. Ellis and Cliff Wannamaker have confirmed their intention. The first two are incumbents.

The nominated were James Quinn, Douglas Bunt, J. F. Day, Fred Bruyea and William T. Lawson.

Railroaders Told Fixed Increase Not Way to Handle Inflation

By LINDA GELDART
(Staff Reporter)

Terming inflation "our very great problem," Donald Secord, national secretary treasurer of the Union of Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, told union members last night that labor could not commit itself to a strict five per cent yearly wage increase.

The occasion, unique in Canadian labor history saw honor bestowed upon five retiring members of the CNR, each with 50 years of service totalling more than 300 years devoted to the same company.

The more than 300 members of local 126 and their wives heard Mr. Secord call the evening "a most unique occasion," and pointing to the city of Belleville as the "stabilizing force" behind these men.

Mr. Secord traced the growth of the union, reminding his fellow-members that, "we have expanded into an organization that is hopefully able to cope with modern conditions".

Hitting hard at the hold inflation has on the economy, he said, "many people point at labor and say that we are responsible for inflation. I don't think that is true."

He singled out the Prices and Income Commission which recently asked labor to maintain a five per cent ceiling on yearly wage increases.

"How can labor commit itself to a five per cent increase when the Prices and Income Commission cannot control wages or for that matter prices in this country?" he asked.

"Unions are democratically controlled. I feel it is a false impression to suggest that unions, of their own volition, can control wage increases any more than business willing to".

Mr. Secord emphasized that the proposed five per cent ceiling only put labor on the spot, and was an attempt to load the unions down "the promrose path."

The union spokesman said flatly that where inflation does real harm is when it hits the people on fixed incomes— and the 65 per cent of the service industry workers who are non - unionized.

Mr. Secord pointed a finger at his audience as he said, "we have to bear the effects of inflations simply because we are not self - sacrificing enough . . . everyone of us wants more".

"But...then," he reminded his audience," we are so much better off than so many others in our country."

Bringing congratulations on behalf of the citizens of Belleville was Mayor J. R. Scott.

He called the city a "railway community" and predicted that, in the future, it would be an even busier railway town. He congratulated the five employees on their "excellent contribution".

Also speaking briefly and extending congratulations were H. J. Fast, CN manager of the Rideau area, and Mrs. Ross Burt, head of the Belleville Transit Commission, Paul E. Justras, regional vice-president of the Union, as well as other union representatives.

For Rock Buffs

There is no limit these days either to the learning process or to subject matter.

In the new Community Colleges for example you can brush up on everything from electronics to bridge. Now the Ontario government is offering a series of nine mineral exploration classes, as well as other "special topics" courses.

The mineral exploration classes will cover claim staking regulations, prospecting techniques, regulations of, the Ontario Securities Commission, geology and mineral identification.

Most sessions, according to Mines Minister Allan Lawrence, plan to show mining films and distribute free samples. Now how about that! The lectures, moreover, are free and are designed both for active prospectors and those wishing to get into the rockhound business as a hobby.

Hastings county rock buffs will be glad to know that Marmora is one of the centres chosen for the course, from December 8-13. The first one has just been concluded in Port Arthur, while others will be held between now and April in Cochrane, Elliot Lake, Wawa, Toronto, Red Lake, Timmins and Geraldton.

Toronto may seem a little out of place amid such a catalogue of mining centres — but then it is the business capital of Canada, a university centre, and there are all those people just itching to get away from it all and out among all those rocks!

Change of Scene

Hijacking of aircraft in recent years has been almost exclusively the preserve of oddballs in the United States seeking to fly to Cuba. There was the one recently to Rome and another one, as we recall, was diverted to some point in Africa other than its scheduled destination on that continent.

Now the Communists are getting a taste of escape hijack-style, of the kind which hitherto has been exclusively to Havana, from the United States. The country involved is Poland which now has had two of its commercial aircraft diverted — one to West Berlin, the other to Vienna.

It would not be surprising if more will follow, as people in the Communist world seeking a new way of making their way to the West take this drastic step.

Dead and Alive

Disasters, in the air and on the ground unhappily have been fairly numerous of late. A Nigerian Airways VC-10 for example went down near Lagos with heavy loss of life . . . a helicopter crash in Antarctica, resulting in two deaths and injuries to six others, including a Canadian . . . and closer to home an 18-year-old girl killed in a car crash in Prince Edward County.

Some are luckier — like Cornwall lumber merchant Reilly Hodgins who with his wife and two daughters were the only passengers to escape unhurt from a tour-plane crash on the Hawaiian island of Molokai recently. There were 11 passengers in all and the Hodgins were sitting in the front of the aircraft, which makes their escape all the more remarkable.

Providence has more to do with the ordering of our lives than we know.

The 'Jail School'

More than 40 years ago Campbellford had its "jail school" — as a distinguished former pupil described it in an address to Belleville Rotarians earlier this week. And when the local drunk was put in the jug, school closed for the day.

So even in those days, said Glendon College principal Escott Reid, primary schools in Campbellford (his father was an Anglican minister there) were overcrowded!

Dr. Reid, a former ambassador to India and now principal of the York University affiliated college in Toronto, also recalled working for the railroad as a youngster — and a foreman who said it was suitable work for ministers' sons.

Alas, school today does not often afford such spicy personal touches.

Waiting Game

From a traffic movement viewpoint Belleville has to be one of the most exasperating places for many a mile. Getting a green light in this city when you want it is like waiting for a sunny day in November (admittedly, these have been surprisingly frequent of late). Now we note another set of lights is about to be unveiled — at Church and Victoria — and the city will be sewn up that much further!

Ralph Cowan's Heir

Now It's Steve Otto Who Is Needling All and Sundry

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Steven Otto, the Honorable Member for the Toronto Constituency of York East York is PET's Bad Boy.

He was on Lester Pearson's "no-no list" top.

The fact is that Steve Otto has never been out of the doghouse since his arrival on Parliament Hill back in 1962.

Which is perhaps as good a reason as any that for all his politically winning ways — four elections — and his eight years in the Commons, success, as most parliamentarians see it, stubbornly has eluded him.

Steve Otto was a member of Liberal Leader Pearson's Official Opposition in the year that Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Conservatives were tottering, with their unsteady minority government, towards the brink of '63 election defeat.

Which makes the Hon. Member for York East in this Parliament - of - New - Faces sort of a party pioneer.

There he has sat, all these last eight years, warming a backbench in the Commons while all sorts of Johnnie-come-latelys have made it to the cabinet.

He has not yet made it as a cabinet understudying parliamentary secretary, nor even as chairman of a Commons committee.

Nor is he likely to soon.

For Steve Otto is a maverick — an MP who speaks his mind and to heck with the official party line.

He calls things as he sees them. Always has, except that until the last election, he was upstaged in the government's bad books by that super-maverick Ralph Cowan.

Cowan was an fearlessly outspoken, he was a sharper critic of the Liberal government than most Opposition MPs.

He so publicly whacked Lester Pearson that the former prime minister "arranged" for him to lose the nomination for Toronto-Metro seat of York-Humber he had won and held through three elections.

With Ralph Cowan banished, Steve Otto moved front and centre as the voice-of-dissent among the liberals.

His credentials as a maverick were established when he provided the Parliamentary Guide — the Ottawa Who's Who—with his biography.

Where most MPs use at least a half-page of the Guide to advertise their political wares, Steve Otto kept his self-billing down to three lines: "Otto, Steven, (York East), First elected to H. of C. g.e. 1962. Re-elected g.e. '63, '65, '68. Party pol: Lib. Address: 732 Broadview, Toronto 6, Ont."

So what has Steve Otto been doing lately?

Telling it the way - it - is, that is what.

Like saying what a hollow-of-meaning sort of echo chamber the House of Commons really is.

His was the Voice-of - Experience counselling the parliamentary freshmen:

"I should like to tell the backbenchers that if they are going to be critical of the government, the safest place to do it is right here in the House of Commons."

(Steve should know, he has starred as a government critic in both places, in and out of Parliament.)

"Do not do it in the press," Steve Otto went on in his Advice - to - the - Newcomers speech the other day, "because if you do, how your words will seep through to the cabinet minister and even the prime minister and you will be chastised."

(Of the truth of this, few know better than Steve O.)

"Do not write in letters to your constituents either, because it will get back to the powers-that-be and you will be punished.

"Do it right here in this House where you are absolutely safe.

"Of course, there are cabinet ministers who attend in this House (a neat crack at the two-days-off-a-week roster system) but they seldom pay attention. They are too busy writing letters, reading the papers and chatting, so you can say what you like."

Here Steve Otto pauses for some truth-telling about the Parliamentary Press Gallery, its members stampede out after the Daily Question Period, leaving only one reporter from the Canadian Press to listen to the drone of debate.

(They do not have to sit there any more than do the MPs, for the word-by-word Hansard report of the debate runs only some 40 minutes behind the talk.)

So, says Steve Otto: "Nobody listens or really cares what we say. The parliamentary secretaries talk to the ministers, the ministers talk to the deputy ministers, the deputy ministers talk to the Establishment, and the Establishment talks only to God" — and you know who, around here, parliament's fifth party, that is.

Honest Steve Otto has not been around here all these years without knowing where - it - is, and where - it - is - not.

Steve may be PET's Bad Boy, but he sure is fun and he makes a lot of sense.

Urban Renewal, Merchants and Public

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Mr. Wills' lengthy dilation in the Intelligencer of November 15 shows him to be a dedicated man. It is unfortunate his dedication seems implacably oriented toward the rebuilding of downtown to the exclusion of everything else.

His sincerity cannot be doubted, but his obsessional pre-occupation with the downtown aspect of urban renewal, is, I suspect, prompted to a large extent from personal considerations. It is no secret that Mr. Wills has very considerable property holdings in the downtown area, some of which are unoccupied at present. As an urban renewal scheme, taking in these areas would obviously enhance the value of these holdings. So it is perhaps not difficult to understand his allusions to "vested interests". We all have a vested interest in our community. Some more than others.

Urban renewal to me, implies an overall development of a city, in an orderly manner, following an approved plan, designed to achieve maximum benefits for the majority of the community as a whole, rather than one section in particular.

Any study, preceding a plan must be up-to-date, and ready for implementation before it's statistical data becomes obsolete. In these days of rapid change, even a two-year delay in implementing any plans would necessitate major revisions being undertaken.

It is a fact that the study was approved by all levels of government. It is also a fact that all levels of government have been urged to practise restraint in spending, especially in the area of urban renewal. Such request, in the national struggle to combat the evils of inflation cannot be ignored.

Viewed in this light, city council, in agreeing to Cambridge Leasehold's request to discontinue the study, was a responsible act of government, and a community activated decision.

To pour public money into a study which will be obsolete and out of date when completed while risking the loss of a very considerable private investment, would constitute an act of folly.

It does not take a financial wizard to appreciate the onerous task facing our various governments in trying to decide what money is available for this or that, while trying to keep inflation at bay. This battle is likely to be a long and difficult one, and the use of the word "temporarily" in relation to withdrawal of federal assistance must be taken with "grains of salt".

I differ with Mr. Wills when he says "the downtown should be the focal point of our community." Like him, I am not a planner, but this concept seems to me to be old fashioned.

Shopping facilities should be strategically placed all over the entire municipality for the convenience of the people. Their location and layout should result from a careful attempt to unobtrusively merge them with the area as a whole to achieve a pleasant and well-balanced development.

This idea of a huge, expensive mall, surrounded by a "large middle class population" is a hideous thought. I am not quite sure what Mr. Wills means by "middle class." When I was a boy, it was that segment of society that lived dangerously near the poverty line, while struggling to keep up an appearance of affluent respectability.

I doubt if many of us, when examining our pay cheques at home these days would describe ourselves as "middle class."

In summing up, your correspondent notes that our community grows, we shall have to consider such a development as the proposed shopping plaza. We are growing, rapidly, and we are ready now to consider such a development.

This development will not require millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money. It will not require any federal or provincial grants. It can be achieved in a relatively short time, and will not take 15 or 20 years to complete.

Municipalities have been exhorted to help themselves. In the guise of the shopping plaza I like to think our city council is trying to do this for the good of us all, rather than pandering to one section of the community, to the detriment of the remainder.

There is an obvious need for revamping in the downtown. Over the years many of the city provided facilities have become obsolete. Roads are too small, parking facilities are inadequate, and so on. But the general atmosphere of dossdrus stems from the unwillingness of the merchants to spend money to alleviate a situation for which they themselves are entirely responsible.

Until they take a realistic attitude to contribute millions of dollars to rebuild the area. The people of Belleville and the surrounding area have spent millions of dollars downtown. Prosperity, according to Mr. Stan Albert, was at an all time high for the first six months of this year, when compared with the same time last year. Under the circumstances, it seems very unreasonable to take any steps that will involve the taxpayer in spending millions of dollars to haul them out of their predicament, while they them ostensible an utter reluctance to help themselves.

For too long the downtown psychology has been to persuade the community that its future depends on the merchants. Actually, the ultimate design of any community depends on the cooperation of all its people in achieving what is best, for all. I suggest the prosperity of downtown relies more heavily on the support of the citizen than the other way round.

A token gesture of $5,000 toward a lost cause is a drop in the ocean, and cannot be taken seriously. In the first place, I feel it would be illegal for council to accept such money, and in the second, would this not be in the same category as it is claimed Cambridge Leasehold's letter to council was. Surely, this can be construed as an attempt to persuade council into taking action they have already overwhelmingly voted against.

A public referendum on the whole matter of the urban renewal study would do much to show the minority exactly how the majority of the citizens of Belleville really feel about the whole issue.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

Electronics Aid To Marriage Counselling

Regina Leader-Post

A breakdown in communications is usually cited as a factor in marital troubles. To bridge the understanding gap, researchers at the University of Michigan have developed a "Signal System for the Assessment and Modification of Behavior."

In a typical marriage counselling session, each participant is supplied with two small boxes one with two push buttons, the other with two lights. All boxes are connected to a control console operated by the therapist.

The buttons, paired with the lights, permit signal responses with such attached meanings as "agree-disagree," "like-dislike" "talk-shutdown," depending on the situation. All signals and talk are recorded so that details can be analyzed later.

The method not only avoids constant interruption of a conversation but allows a husband and wife to let the therapist know feelings they may hide from each other.

The control console must be lit up like Broadway on Saturday night in some sessions. But at least it's quiet.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 22, 1949.

After 15 years in the furniture business in the city, the Percival Furniture Company has moved into larger and ultra modern quarters at 380 Front St. where for the past several months extensive alterations have been underway.

The Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans' entry in the Belleville Service Darts League strengthened its position at the top of the league by defeating the 9th Anti Tank team by a 6-5 score.

Reg. Davey Hamilton, Provincial President of the Army Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada paid an unofficial visit to the local branch.

30 YEARS AGO

From London, Eng. comes this despatch: From his apartment, a mere carrot's throw from enlisting headquarters of the Ministry of Food, vegetarian George Bernard Shaw today penned an anxious letter to the press. He said: "May we ask for an official assurance that when rationing begins, special provision will be made for vegetarians? For some unexplained natural cause, vegetarians are the most ferocious class we have and any under-feeding of them would probably be reflected in our national fighting spirit out of all proportion to their numbers."

40 YEARS AGO

The annual convention of editors of agricultural weekly magazines of Ontario will be held in Toronto, Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School will be represented by Miss C. Hitchon of the teaching staff, Miss Berry Donovan and Ted Lill of the editorial staff of the "Elevator", and Ralph Elliott, business manager.

A number of Belleville Rotarians, including Presidents Al Sillman and O. H. Scott, the secretary, will visit Stirling to discuss the idea of organizing a Rotary Club there.

The 15th Argyll Light Infantry, with its interesting battle history, will be continued in a new 15th now being formed which will eventually be brought up to strength. Lieut.-Col. Roscoe Vandervoort, D.S.O., M.C., late Commanding Officer and Capt. D. T. McManus will be Adjutant. The announcement was made at a gathering in the armories and was received with much enthusiasm by the officers present.

Major General V. A. S. Williams, Officer Commanding Military District No. 2, accompanied by his ADC Major W. J. McManus, was present and outlined the details of the re-organization.

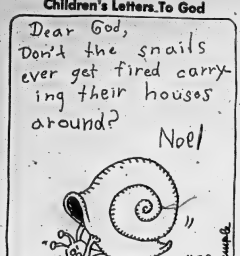
Children's Letters To God



MRA Shadow Of Former Self

CAUX, Switzerland (Reuters) — A way of life to win the world, a large-scale luncheon club, or a sinister plot in the service of big business— these are some of the conflicting views of Moral Re-Armament.

Also known as Buchmanism, after its founder Frank Buchman, or as the Oxford Group, MRA today appears as a shadow of its former crusading self, despite its continuing worldwide activity.

MRA's aims, set out in its slogan—"Absolute purity, absolute honesty, absolute unselfishness and absolute love"—concentrate on reconciliation between opponents, be they employers and workers, governments and dissident nationalists, or simply rival trade unionists.

But a European churchman who has studied the movement told a reporter that in opposing social conflict it could do actual harm.

"Why do I have a trade union leader if he does not organize strikes once in a while?" he commented when asked about MRA's claims to have settled trade union disputes and brought industrial peace to the docks in Rio de Janeiro or Pactionnes in France.

Viewed from its world conference centre here, the movement seems vital and clearly commands the dedicated service of men who say they have given up all their personal wealth to work for the cause.

But an outsider could be forgiven for asking whether the cause is not as cut off from reality as the palatial sugar-cake building which houses the mountaintop conference centre is sheltered from the noise and bustle of 20th century tourism on Lake Geneva, 700 metres below.

MRA keeps no membership records and its finances are managed separately in every country where it is active, so precise figures are not available.

But officials of the organization here say MRA has some 2,000 people working full-time for it, though this figure includes those given six months leave of absence from their regular jobs to devote the time to the movement.

If this is evidence for the movement's long-term vitality, observers say it no longer carries the same weight as it did in the middle of the century.

While once it would cite the late West German chancellor Konrad Adenauer, French Gen. Raoul Salan and prominent British churchmen among its backers, MRA today tends to rely more heavily on the relatives of famous men, one skeptical observer commented.

Best known of these is Rahman Gandhi, grandson of the mahatma, who has set up a new MRA centre at Panchanl, near Bombay, and is among the movement's most active workers.

Asked to name their most influential backers today, MRA officials are reluctant to name names.

But among prominent figures cited in recent MRA literature are Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, former Burmese prime minister U Nu, and B. K. Nehru, governor of India's troubled Assam province, where the movement has tried to bring together representatives of government and dissident tribes.

To judge by MRA's own publicity one of its most influential backers in the world of business is Fritz Philips, president of a world-famous Dutch-based electrical concern.

In a statement which typifies those often cited by MRA, Philips was quoted as telling a recent industrial conference here that he had found a new vision for industry through the movement.

"We have a role to fulfil which is much bigger than working just for one industry or one country. Industry could be a pattern of a society working together in respect for each other and developing each other's skills and talents."

Though the movement, established in the 1920s as a Christian evangelical group, now embraces many non-Christians, officials here say it is still essentially Christian.

But they also proudly tell visitors here that they have had Communist guests at Caux, despite the movement's vigorously anti-Communist phase about a decade ago.

PROVIDERS OF DELICACY

* * *

Kitchener's Edna Staebler, author of the cook book, "Food That Really Schmecks," discovers distance doesn't always lend enchantment, for she found that the old-order Mennonites, who live in her midst, who are not thought of as creative, "unleash their imaginations when it comes to cooking." Needless to say, her cookbook has met with great success.

Food, cooking, cooks — have ever interested man. What could be more delightful to learn that cooks of the Middle Ages were a recognized part of society in the 12th century, and spoken of as "providers of delicacy."

In fact they were the restaurant keepers.

In London there was a certain street, we are told, on which they were all located and bore the name Bread Street. It is claimed that "Cookshops" gave rise to our word for "Cockney" from the Latin "Coquina" meaning cookery or street of cooks. They were incorporated by Royal Charge in 1482. But before then, they felt the profession worthy, for in 1212 there was an order issued that each cookshop be whitewashed within.

There were certain rules which they were obliged to consider. One, which would startle modern cooks today was that no meat must be warmed up for the second time, to be served. A cook was liable to a fine of six shillings and eight pence, if meat was served underdone. But the public violently objected and tried to make it unlawful for cooks to come out and pluck passers-by, by their sleeves as a means of procuring a clientele. Invariably they had greasy fingers and the victim's clothes plainly suffered.

Of all the "delicacies" the best loved by Londoners were pies, which were made in every variety of meat. Those who specialized in them were known as "pastelers".

Catering was done and very cheaply. A dinner is mentioned which a caterer prepared consisting of a pike, two sole, half a side of salt fish, a side of ling, roach, oysters, flounders, sauce, quince and nuts — all for seven shillings and two pence.

Bakers, a class by themselves, were divided usually into three kinds of assistants, the oven men, who baked the bread; the whitebewns, who weighed dough and shaped loaves: the sowreurs, the doughmakers. They all lived at the bakery and were against night-baking.

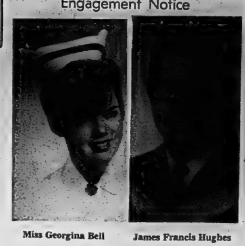
A bakery could bake only one kind of bread, white or brown. Two loaves cost a penny. If the loaves were spoilt in any way, they were sold to the poor: three for a penny.

A baker who sold underweight was harnessed to a horse, dragged through the streets and back again.

There was rivalry with bakers who came down from Stratford to sell in London. At the Old Aldgate, one of the four original gates, built by the Romans, was a scene of great activity, where toll was exacted. The bread carts were charged four pence instead of the regular two pence. They had to be out of the city by noon.

Such are some of the scenes about cooks and cooking carefully preserved in Time's Album of Medieval Snap Shots. They are history's most fascinating records.

Engagement Notice



Miss Georgina Bell — James Francis Hughes

Mr. and Mrs. George Ross Bell, Belleville, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Georgina (Gena) Marie, to Mr. James Francis Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. James N. Hughes of Willowdale, Ontario. Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I never seem to be able to find out how Jerry is doing in school. He always so vague about the work. I liked it better when he was in grade school and parents had conferences with the teacher."

Teacher: "I'm glad you came in to ask about Jerry's work. He does well in class, but he often neglects to do the assigned homework."

Mother: "I didn't even know he had homework to do. He never brings any work home."

It's your right to check on your junior or senior high school child, even though regular conferences may not be scheduled by the school. Teachers and counselors expect you to do so if you're in doubt about his work.

What Is Your Favorite Color?

CALGARY (CP) — Weary of life's pressures? Want to escape?

Paint your bedroom blue.

A man whose expertise in color has made him world-famous certainly wouldn't recommend blue bedrooms. But then, Harry Wohlfarth's bedroom carpet is red. He loves living and action and has no desire to do the blue thing—retreat from life and love.

Prof. Wohlfarth was interviewed on his way home to Edmonton from Rome.

Yellow is the most stimulating, followed by red and orange, the professor says. Darker colors depress—black the most, then blue and green.

Prof. Wohlfarth warns that a complicated series of tests is necessary before any scientific evaluation of a person's personality can be made. But his findings make for great instant analysis:

Yellow—for gogo people. Yellow stimulates, particularly mentally. An office full of laggards could be speeded up considerably by splashing lots of yellow paint around.

Red—for the self-confident. Red people are aggressive, masculine, strong, lively. They, and their color, have a "kind of roar," the professor says.

Orange—for those not as aggressive as red or yellow people. They are more like their color, cheerful and uplifting. They are usually attractive to others.

White—for Simon Legree types. White terrorizes people, conjures up images of endless icy wastes, threatens security.

Black—for calm people. Blue people inspire rest in others, can provide a retreat from the hurly-burly red and yellow types.

Green—for bovine people. They are deadlocked between peppery yellow and recessive blue. Prof. Wohlfarth says the painter Kandinsky best described green people as great, fat, contented cows sitting in a meadow and gazing around with huge, stupid eyes.

Mauve—for would-be nuns. Mauve people withdraw spiritually from the world's crassness. Purple people are not as esoteric; they have a dash of aggressiveness.

Brown—not what it might appear. Brown people are really red personalities, but they either haven't the nerve to admit it or they are hiding their red tendencies for reasons of their own.

Beige and Grey—for cowards.

Black—for those who have lost their desires. Black is like a gaping hole, empty, desolate and only to be entered when the love of life is extinguished, the professor says.

Hospital Auxiliary Group Elects New Executive

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Memorial Hospital Ladies' Auxiliary held their annual meeting recently and elected a new slate of officers.

Mrs. R. Pitt gave a report of the bazaar held recently and stated that as of November 14 the financial returns were $1,968.25 with some donations yet to come in. This is the largest return of any year since the start of the annual bazaar.

The keynote of the convention was preventive medicine, Mrs. Burgis' report dealt with suggestions for running a gift shop, which if incorporated, will be a new project for the Campbellford Hospital. Mrs. Scott, president of the auxiliary, decided to hold an executive meeting to discuss plans for a gift shop when the hospital opens after the extension is finished.

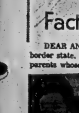
Authorities Know Facts on Smuggling



ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is an attorney in a border state. He frequently gets phone calls from distraught parents whose teen-agers have been taken into custody by the federal authorities. The charge — narcotics smuggling.

Please alert the kids who think it is o.k. to take a little trip and pick up pot for the guys in the dorm or fraternity house. Some of these characters are sure they know the ropes, but they are mistaken. The following facts should be posted on every college bulletin board in the U.S.A.

1. Customs officers are well acquainted with every hiding place of every make and every model of car. They also know all the tricks dreamed up by people who attempt to smuggle marijuana on their persons.

2. If drugs are found, the person, according to federal law, is presumed to be guilty of smuggling unless he can prove he is not. The burden of proof is on the individual.

3. Pushers are the best sources of information. They make a double profit — first on the sale, then on the reward for informing the Customs people.

I hope a few thousand weekend adventurers will read this letter and decide to get their kicks doing something less dangerous. — ARIZONIAN.

DEAR ARIZ: Thanks for the flash. So do I.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is everybody crazy, or is it me? When I was in my 20's I enjoyed the company of men my own age. Now that I'm 40, I find 40-year-old men very exciting. Younger men bore me. When I am 65, I'm sure I shall find 65-year-old men very pleasant company. But I seem to be completely out of step. Wherever I look, I see women marrying men 15 or 20 or even 25 years older. Invariably, they are rich men.

In bygone days, a girl could be sure to buy well heeled old bachelor by her family, but today women have freedom of choice — and I am appalled by the frequency with which they choose the sugar daddy. It's a prostitution no matter how you look at it.

Don't these young idiots know that when the glamor of being an old man's darling wears off they'll be stuck with the old geezer's lumbago? The natural tendency then is to go hunting for a strong young man to fill the void. And then the mess begins — the change, the shame, the end of all the rest. Don't the old clowns realize what attracted the young girl in the first place? Or do they wise up only when the divorce lawyer starts talking "alimony"?

Please warn your readers against the May and December mergers. Tell them they'll all do better if they act their age. — FEET ON THE GROUND.

DEAR FEET: If they ask me, I'll tell 'em. By and large, your thesis is correct; however, everyone knows of an exception to which they gleefully point to prove you are wrong.

Reader Checks Up on Doris' Grammar

By DORIS CLARK

Remember the story I wrote about an English teacher who encouraged her class to listen to conversations and observe grammatical errors? Shortly after its appearance, I received a clipping from a message typed across the bottom: "Thank you for saying it. We all need the advice, including both of us!"

I wondered about that "both" until I noticed two words underlined in the sentence which reads:

"The day should never come when any one of us stops improving ourselves." The words underlined were "one" and "ourselves".

I had used a singular and a plural in the same sequence and presumably referring to a single person. Cardinal sin!

Subsequently I wrote to an extremely literate friend of mine for his comments, and received the following note:

"Dear Doris:

"All the years I spent on the editorial staff of a daily, I discovered one unchangeable law of nature: 'When a newspaper goes after somebody else's grammar, it gets tangled up in its own!' It happened to me so often that I made a game of it, eventually, by correcting other people's mistakes, then adding the words for nonone else to correct mine!

"As for the use of the editorial 'ourself'. It is usually confined to such sentences as: 'Though other newspapers may take this attitude, we cannot subscribe to it ourself!' It is an awkward construction at best and yours would have read better thus: 'The day should never come when we stop improving ourselves'; since you are referring to each and every one of us — not solely yourself. Your sentence would have been correct if you'd substituted 'himself' for 'ourselves', but that would have been awkward too."

Dear Ralph: You make me feel much better. Personally I think there should be a law against the word "both" for nonone else to correct mine!

* * *

Dear Doris: My brother-in-law is in partnership with my husband and they are gradually buying their father's land. He brought nothing into the partnership except four head of cattle.

This spring he got engaged and says he is going to build a house in this yard.

I told my brother-in-law I'd have a talk with him concerning our business and he said I had no business telling him anything. That it was up to my husband. But my husband does not have the gift of the gab. Do I have a right to discuss things with this brother?

— Fed Up

Dear Fed Up: Better do your talking to your husband. Let him carry the ball when it comes to business, but buttonhole him until you are sure he hears what you have to say. You are his most important partner!

Are you paying the way for a good relationship with your brother-in-law's intended? Family partnerships take a heap of tact and love.

A Variation of Oatmeal Cookies

By MARY MOORE

Letter: I do so enjoy your column and your practical and scrumptious recipes. I did not become acquainted with your column until we moved here, although I had met you at a Home Economics Association meeting many years back.

The first recipe I clipped was for your White Bread in June '63. Since then I have only bought about six loaves of bread. I have had such tremendous results with it, as well as many compliments, I make eight loaves at one time now.

I usually try your recipes as is, but I too, like to tamper with a recipe. A while back there was a recipe for beginners:

OATMEAL DROP COOKIES (tampered with By Mrs. Edward T.)

1-3 cup butter
¾ cup plus 1½ tbsps. brown sugar
1 large egg
½ tsp. vanilla
½ cup coconut
½ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking soda
1¼ cups rolled oats
350 deg. Fahr. 10 mins.

This is a great recipe, but I have tried this change ADD
½ tbsp. grated orange rind
¼ tsp. mace
½ cup raisins instead of coconut.

My family enjoys them the above way.

Now one day I had no brown sugar so I used white sugar, plus coconut flavoring, coconut, and about 1-3 cup of candied peel (which had set in the frig. for ages). We were pleased with the flavor.

I especially want to thank you for the budget meat recipes, as in a growing family of six, I find it is a real struggle with my budget.

Bless you for your wonderful recipes and little anecdotes about your family. Your raisin bread is a great breakfast favorite with my children.

My sincere thanks for all the recipes and help. — Mrs. Edward T.

ANSWER: Blessings on both sides! I could not keep up this pace without the praise of our readers. You spur me on to new and better efforts. Thank you.

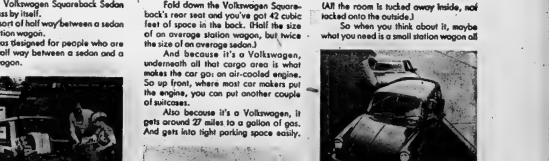
Who needs it?



The Volkswagen Squareback Sedan is in a class by itself.

It's sort of half way between a sedan and a station wagon.

It was designed for people who are sort of half way between a sedan and a station wagon.

People who have better things to carry than car payments.

They sometimes need a station wagon. But they don't need one badly enough to spend $4,000 on something so big it comes with its own echo.

Fold down the Volkswagen Squareback's rear seat and you've got 42 cubic feet of space in the back. (Half the size of an average station wagon, but twice the size of an average sedan.)

And because it's a Volkswagen, underneath all that cargo area is what makes the car go: an air-cooled engine. So up front, where most car makers put the engine, you can put another couple of suitcases.

Also because it's a Volkswagen, it gets around 27 miles to a gallon of gas. And gets into tight parking space easily.

People who like this idea but hate the way it looks.

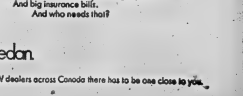
(At the room is tucked away inside, not tacked onto the outside.)

So when you think about it, maybe what you need is a small station wagon all of the time, instead of a big station wagon some of the time.

Because the big problems with big station wagons are all the bignesses that come with them.

Like big gas bills. And big repair bills. And big insurance bills.

And who needs that?



People who want room on the inside; not on the outside.

The Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

With close to 300 VW dealers across Canada there has to be one close to you.

BIAFRA PEACE PETITION

This has been prepared by the following Religious Leaders in Canada:

The Most Reverend Philip J. Pocock,
Co-Adjutor Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Toronto

The Most Reverend H. H. Clark,
Primate of The Anglican Church of Canada

Dr. Robert B. McClure,
Moderator of The United Church in Canada

The Very Reverend E. H. Johnson,
Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada

Rabbi W. G. Plaut,
Holy Blossom Temple.

Give your support to this humanitarian cause by signing the petition in the space below and getting your friends and neighbours to do the same.

We, the undersigned, appeal to the Government of Canada and to concerned people everywhere to exert political pressure to bear on these countries — amongst them the United Kingdom, The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and France, to do all in their power to end the supply of arms to Nigeria and Biafra, and to bring both sides to the conference table to begin the search for a lasting peace and a solution based on the will of the people.

We draw to the attention of Governments, the appeals made by His Holiness the Pope and the World Council of Churches.

Also the statement made by The International Commission of Jurists dated 7 June, 1969:

"In law as in fact, the conflict in Nigeria can no longer be regarded as a matter of purely national concern. The proportions it has reached and its significance in the decline of international standards and the violation of human rights, require that it be solved as a matter of priority by the International community."

We recognize that this is an African problem which will be solved by Africa but we are convinced that before this can happen, outside pressures in the form of arms and finance must be cut off. In the name of two million dead and in the name of those who still survive we call for an end to all action that prolongs this conflict and urge men everywhere to think first and foremost of those in direct need of food, shelter and medical care.

NAME ADDRESS

On NOVEMBER 27th, Biafra Peace Day, these petitions will be presented to the Prime Minister of Canada.

Telephone Techniques Outlined to Secretaries

The Bay of Quinte Chapter of the National Secretaries' Association met on Tuesday, November 18 at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville to hear Mrs. Margaret Bakay, service adviser of Bell Canada, speak on up-to-date telephone techniques.

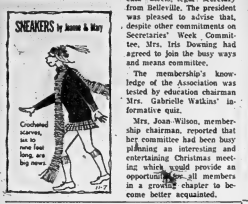
Mrs. Bakay was introduced by Miss Thelma Schlievert. "Bad telephone manners can discourage business," Mrs. Bakay advised as she demonstrated many faulty techniques used in making and receiving telephone calls. Recorded voices added a humorous vein as the membership defined the weaknesses in each type of voice in the recording. Mrs. Bakay felt that a good telephone voice can be cultivated. Members were given the opportunity to record a telephone call, the replay of which was surprising.

Mrs. Phyllis Graham thanked Mrs. Bakay for a most beneficial talk on an important business communication.

President Helen Worrell chaired the business session and welcomed guest Miss Priscilla Sirels, legal secretary from Belleville. The president was pleased to advise that, despite other commitments on Secretaries' Week Committee, Mrs. Iris Downing had agreed to join the busy ways and means committee.

The membership's knowledge of the Association was tested by education chairman Mrs. Gabrielle Watkins' informative quiz.

Mrs. Joan Wilson, membership chairman, reported that her committee had been busy planning an interesting and entertaining Christmas meeting which would provide an opportunity for all members in a growing chapter to become better acquainted.



YOUR ANTIQUES
by Jack Jamieson

Picture Credit: Sotheby and Co. (Canada)

The figure illustrated is described in a Sotheby auction catalogue as one of "A Pair of late 19th century carved wood Blackamoor Figures in the Venetian style, black lacquered and gilt, the drapes enamelled as white damask, the figures hold aloft in the left and right hands respectively, cornucopias with fern bowls and stands on plinths with simulated rock base, (both figures slightly cracked)".

Carved blackamoors were a popular decorative idea of the 18th century that enjoyed a revival in the late 19th century. As Venetian blackamoors go, the ones illustrated are not the best examples, nor are they of the original period, or even in perfect condition. However, they are of particular interest because they once belonged to the Right Honorable Vincent Massey, distinguished Canadian and onetime Governor General.

Like everything else, auctions vary in quality. The best combine reputable merchandise, a reputable auctioneer, and a reputable source. In an important auction such as the Massey sale, catalogues are printed describing each item. In time the catalogue itself will become valuable.

The new owner will, unless

Carved Blackamoors Popular in 18th Century

more distinguished than Mr. Massey, keep a catalogue with the blackamoor as the value is enhanced by the very fact Mr. Massey once owned it. At some time in the future the blackamoor and the catalogue together will sell for considerably more than the present $1,000 insurance value.

All auctions in Canada have one thing in common. The auctioneer is required to post a notice of conditions of sale. The usual conditions state that the highest bidder shall be the buyer, that in case of dispute the auctioneer's decision is final, that no guarantee of genuineness or authenticity is given, that the buyer is responsible for immediate removal of his purchase and that the terms are cash.

Guarantees or certificates of authentication seem implicit in many catalogue descriptions. However most auctioneers are careful to state, "attributed to", "school of", "style of", "period of", or some other generality. Less reputable sources will indicate paintings by: Rubens, Rembrandt, Matisse. On inspection these turn out to be Roger Rubens, Fred Rembrandt and Mary Matisse, bonest enough names but no relation to Peter Paul Rubens, Rembrandt van Rijn or Henri Matisse.

Auctions, whether the contents of Balzarwood, the Massey home, or a local farm provide the excitement of gambling by bidding with the assurance that something will be gained, frequently a generous genuine bargain.

Owen Sound Latest Victims

Mo-Hawks Run Unbeaten String to Six Games

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

Coming to Belleville to lose a hockey game was bad enough for Chuck Jewell, without having to stay overnight at the scene of the crime.

Only outstanding play by the Owen Sound Crescents' goaltender kept the visitors in their 4-1 loss to Belleville Mo-Hawks last night. He had handled 44 Mo-Hawk drives before one by Davey Jones with just over two minutes to play ricocheted off a defenceman's stick and caught Jewell in the face.

This morning he was recovering from a concussion and seven lacerations to his forehead and nose, his Belleville General Hospital nurse said.

Jewell's loss is a bitter pill for the Crescents, who are currently languishing in the OHA Senior A loop's seventh berth. Last night was his first appearance in three games after suffering another concussion in a game in Galt when bowled over by a Hornet forward on a breakaway.

It also means the Crescent's will probably have to again rely on their Intermediate B backup goalie when the Mo-Hawks go into Owen Sound tomorrow night.

While the Crescents were pondering the loss of one of their strong points this season, the Mo-Hawks were toasting their sixth straight game without a defeat. The win keeps the locals in a fourth-place tie with Barrie Flyers four points ahead of Kingston Aces, who dropped a 4-3 home decision to third-place Oakville Oaks.

In bringing Belleville a record to 6-5-2, the win also gave the Mo-Hawks a .500 record for the first time this late in the season in the club's four-year history.

Until Jewell's exit from last night's game, the scoring margin between the two clubs was provided by the Mo-Hawks newest weapon — a successful power play.

Lorne O'Donnell and Lou Kazowski each scored with Belleville enjoying a man-power advantage to give 1,500 homebrowsers a 2-0 first-period lead to cheer about.

Owen Sound's Keith Smeltzer stole the puck at the Belleville defence early in the second period. His surprise 15-footer beat Steve Rexe and made checking a little more cosy.

The score remained 2-1 until Jewell left the game. Al Ferguson fired his 13th goal in as many games as yet another Mo-Hawk power play past forward Dale Watson, who donned Jewell's pads for the game's final two minutes.

With O'Donnell fingered for holding at 13:17, the Crescents abandoned a goalie for a sixth attacker. Davey Jones backfired that strategy when he took Greg Marchen's pass and skated deep into Owen Sound territory before blasting the fourth Mo-Hawk goal into the empty net.

Despite dominating play and pouring 46 shots at the Owen Sound goal, the Mo-Hawks had been frustrated by Jewell for 58 minutes. Bill Armour, Ralph Plane, and Wayne McConnell were in alone in the first 16 minutes of the third period but couldn't buy a goal off the Crescents' ace, in the same span, George Godson and "Weiner" Brown hit goal posts and Al Ferguson's curved stick fired the puck two feet wide of the net on a point-blank offering.

Some sturdy defensive play by Greg Marchen and Lou Kazowski were the man reasons the Crescents only mustered 21 shots at Steve Rexe and only a couple of those were troublesome.

Kazowski was also the pivot of the Mo-Hawk power play, and got his first goal of the year from the left point with only eight seconds remaining in the opening period.

It wasn't exactly a picture goal — it travelled about 40 feet along the ice, struck defenceman Butch Keeling's skate, and slid past Jewell.

"It would have gone in anyway," Kazowski chuckled in the dressing room. "It was a perfect pass for George (Godson) and he was uncovered."

The Mo-Hawks had been trying all week to get clearance to play 19-year-old Ray Johnston, and finally did yesterday.

Johnston wasn't hard to spot — he was the only Mo-Hawk wearing a helmet and wore sweater No. 13.

The Peterborough native has been playing with the Niagara Falls Flyers, who last year purchased him from Peterborough's OHA Junior A entry.

He drew his first penalty in seconds after stepping on the ice for dumping Jewell outside the Owen Sound goalie's crease, and a second for a spirited second period shoving match in an Owen Sound corner.

Jewell robbed Johnston of his first Senior A goal midway through the final period when he got a pad in front of the rookie's tip-in attempt from the edge of the crease on Wayne McConnell's centring pass.

Next home action for the Mo-Hawks comes Friday when third-place Oakville are in town.

Vacancy Where It Hurts

Owen Sound Crescents' goaltender Chuck Jewell left his net temporarily vacated last night after being dumped by Belleville Mo-Hawks' Ray Johnston (13). Johnston, playing his first game with the local seniors, drew a penalty on the play watched by Owen Sound's Mickey Kaye (2) and Belleville's Davey Jones (17). The Mo-Hawks won 4-1 to stretch their OHA Senior A unbeaten streak to six games.

Football Tactics Little Help to Hawks

TRENTON — Trenton Golden Hawk coach Red Granville resorted to football tactics, but nothing was about to stand in the way of Kingston Frontenacs.

Granville had press-box "spotters" trying to pinpoint some Golden Hawk weaknesses while the Eastern Ontario Junior B league-leading Frontenacs were rolling up an 8-5 win, their eighth of the season.

Kingston passes in the first 30 minutes of hockey were going astray but the Frontenacs settled down in the last part of the game and played their usual set pattern of hockey.

There were times in the second and third periods where the Golden Hawks might have given Kingston something to think about but Kingston's defender Clyde Harris made his presence recognized with fine netminding.

The absence of Trenton's hard hitting defenceman Andy Terwilliger was noticeable on the Golden Hawks blue line.

Kingston scorers were Mike Lynch with the hat trick; while Dave Higgins, Bob Murray, Colin Louden, Brooks and Hanna adding one goal each.

With that all important first win tucked under their belts, will arrive in Kingston Monday night for an 8 p.m. game more determined club.

Belleville beat Cobourgh 8-5 last Monday in Cobourg.

"The boys are starting to play like a team," said Belleville manager Im "S n i p e" Matthews. "We play a better game against Kingston away than we do at home for some reason."

If Belleville were to beat Kingston and Oshawa beat Cobourg Monday, the Ellis unit would move into a fourth place tie with Cobourg.

With the league's leading Kerper Gardens' goaltender Kirk Lonton only picking up one point in the Trenton game last night the local's can McConnell and Terry Meagher have a chance to move into the lead in Monday night's game. At present Louden has 19 points just two ahead of McConnell and Meagher, with 17 each.

"The boys have got the enthusiasm now," added Matthews. "We had about 20 guys out at practice last Thursday."

The team bus is scheduled to leave the Memorial Arena at 5:45 p.m. and all parents and spectators are invited.

Trenton's goal-getters were Craig Bennett and Jeff Howard with two each. Chris long rounded out the Golden Hawks' scoring.

There were 32 minutes in penalities handed out in the game. Trenton and Kingston split being allotted 16 minutes each.

The Trenton Golden Hawks travel to Oshawa to play the Oshawa Crushmen in a 7.15 p.m. game tonight.

Reay Pulls Esposito With Seconds Remaining for Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The practice of pulling a goalkeeper for a sixth attacker in the final minute of a hockey game seldom pays off but the strategy worked Friday night for coach Billy Reay of Chicago Black Hawks.

Reay pulled Tony Esposito for the sixth skater with 17 seconds to play in the game after the Hawks gained control of the puck. Seven seconds later, Eric Nesterenko scored his second goal of the night to give the Black Hawks a 2-2 tie with Boston Bruins in the only scheduled National Hockey League game.

The tie, the second in the last two games, extended the Hawks unbeaten streak to eight games but they still remain in fifth place, two points behind Detroit Red Wings.

The game broke out into a fight in the second period when Chicago defenceman Keith Magnuson battled Boston defenceman Bobby Orr and Chicago rookie Ray McKay squared off with Boston centre Derek Sanderson. Referee Vern Buffey handed out majors and minors to Sanderson, Orr and Magnuson and a major to McKay.

Nesterenko had given the Hawks a 1-0 lead at 1:38 of the first period with his fifth goal of the season on a pass from Lou Angotti. Boston tied the score early in the second period when Fred Stanfield recovered his own rebound and drove a 20-footer past Esposito.

The Bruins went ahead 2-1 on Johnny Bucyk's ninth goal at 3:36 of the final period and with 17 seconds remaining in the game Reay puleld Esposito for another attacker.

Nesterenko scored the tying goal after Angotti carried the puck into Boston territory and relayed it to Stan Mikita. Mikita fired and Nesterenko, standing at the edge of goalie Ed Johnston's crease, tipped the puck into the net.

Action continues tonight with five games scheduled and one highlight will be the Toronto-Detroit game which will see five Red Wings—once Maple Leafs—return to the Gardens.

Frank Mahovlich, Pete Stemkowski, Gary Unger, Carl Brewer and Bobby Baun, who once toiled for the Leafs, play their first game in Toronto this season.

In their previous game, when the teams opened the schedule in Detroit, the Red Wings won 3-2 with Brewer setting up Mahovlich for the winning goal.

Mahovlich, Stemkowski and Unger were traded to the Red Wings in the 1967-68 season for Norm Ullman, Paul Henderson and Floyd Smith. The Red Wings were also given the rights to negotiate with Brewer who had quit the Leaf training camp prior to the 1965-66 season.

In other games tonight, Oakland Seals play the Canadiens at Montreal, New York Rangers meet the Blues in St. Louis, Philadelphia Flyers take on the Penguins at Pittsburgh and Los Angeles Kings play the North Stars at Minnesota.

Sunday night, Montreal plays at Boston, Toronto is at Philadelphia, Oakland plays at New York and Pittsburgh is at Chicago.

A doubtful starter in tonight's game at Montreal is right winger Claude Provost. The Canadiens' winger suffered a back injury when checked Wednesday night by Gordie Howe in Detroit's 5-5 tie with Montreal.

Gump Worsley is likely to start in nets tonight for the Canadiens. He has played in only three games for the Stanley Cup champions this season and has not played in a month.

However, a club spokesman said his layoff was not due to injury but to the fact young Rogatien Vachon was on a hot streak.

Hamilton Drops Niagara Falls To Bottom of the Pack

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings edged Niagara Falls Flyers 7-6 Friday and dropped the Flyers to last place in the 18-team Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

In other games, Oshawa Generals also moved past the Flyers with a 7-3 upset of the Knights in London and Montreal Junior Canadiens defeated Kitchener Rangers 5-3.

The Red Wings posted their second win in as many nights over Niagara Falls, handling the Flyers their 12th defeat in 17 games.

Ron Climie and Dave Gilmour led Hamilton with two goals each. Ray Myers, Buster Harvey and Gary Coalter also scored for the winners. Fred Thwaite, two goals, Harry Sucharuk, Owen Jelly, Brent Meeke and Bob Boyd scored for Niagara Falls.

At London, the Generals gained their third win of the year with a flurry of four goals inside four minutes in the first period.

Bob Kelly led Oshawa with two goals and two assists and his line-mate, Pete Sullivan, contributed one goal and three assists.

Gerry Methe, Steve Cardwell, Tom Simpson and Bob Stewart completed the Oshawa scoring. Dan Maloney, two goals, and Gerry Bradbury scored for London.

Gerry O'Flaherty was a one-man scoring machine before 4,980 home fans at Kitchener. He scored all three Rangers goals. But the Junior Canadiens scored three goals in two minutes and finished the second period with a 5-1 lead.

Robert Guindon, Richard Lemieux, Robert Lalonde, Gil Perreault and Scot McPhail all scored for Montreal. O'Flaherty also accounted for one-third of the Kitchener attack, firing 13 of 36 shots at Montreal netminder Wayne Wood.

Manitoba Captures Title For Intercollegiate Championships

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Kramer, a 19-year-old quarterback who plays in horn-rimmed spectacles, Friday night led University of Manitoba Bisons to a 26-15 victory over McGill University Redmen for the Canadian Intercollegiate football championship.

When it was all over, he was carried off the field clutching the Teddy Morris Memorial Trophy as the outstanding player of the game, the fifth annual College Bowl encounter on behalf of the Save the Children fund.

Kramer used the pass to soften the McGill defences for the solid running game of the Bisons—tactics which won him the admiration of both coaches.

Tom Mooney of McGill said after the game:

"I have to give a lot of credit to their quarterback. He mixed up the game well."

His own coach, Henry Janzen, said:

"Bob Kramer ran the game. I think we sent in only two plays. The quarterback ran his own game."

The Winnipeg team led 14-1 at the end of the first quarter and was ahead 24-8 at the half and 24-9 going into the fourth quarter.

Kramer scored one touchdown himself and sent halfback Robin Wright and fullback Graham Kinley over for one each. Walt McKee converted all three and added a field goal.

Dave Fleiszer, the McGill power back who won the Hec Crighton trophy as the country's outstanding college player, got one touchdown for the Redmen with halfback Ken Aikin scoring the other. The only other McGill scoring came on a single and a convert by end Sal Lovecchio and a single by punter Ron Kelly.

Janzen said: "I knew Bobby could pass well. We were told where McGill's problems were, so we built a passing game plan before we left Winnipeg."

Kramer came out throwing on the first sequence in the game and hit Mike Shyle with a 40-yard pass to put Manitoba on the McGill 20. It was 3-0B when Kramer capped the drive by running over from the four.

Lovecchio got a point back for McGill with a 25-yard field goal shot that went wide, set up when Bill McKenna recovered a Kinley fumble.

The Bisons retaliated when Gil Bramwell intercepted Dan Smilak's pass at mid-field. Kramer then hit Wright with a 13-yard scoring pass.

Aikin pulled McGill back into contention with less than three minutes gone in the second quarter by diving for a touchdown from the Manitoba one.

Both teams were going on third down and short yardage on a field made rock-hard by below-freezing temperatures which kept the crowd to about 10,000.

Midway through the quarter, helped by a 10-yard penalty to the Redmen, Kinley dived in from the McGill two and on the last play of the half McKee kicked his field goal from 35 yards.

The only score of the third quarter came midway through the period when Kelly pounded a 46-yard punt single to cut the Winnipeg lead to 24-9.

McGill ended scoring in the final quarter as Fleiszer-vadran defensive half Rich Howden for the touchdown. Lovecchio missed the convert.

McGill, Toronto Place Three Players on First All-Canadian Team

OTTAWA (CP) — The first All-Canadian college football team as chosen by editors of Sports Canada magazine was released Friday.

The team was selected following a survey of coaches, players and informed fans, the magazine said.

The selection was made from 29 teams in five college conferences, and Simon Fraser University and the University of British Columbia, who play American football against United States colleges.

Two teams, McGill University and the University of Toronto, each placed three players on the team while the universities of New Brunswick and Manitoba had two players selected.

On offence are: Quarterback Wayne Holm, Simon Fraser; halfbacks Keith Eaman, Queen's, and Larry Smith, Bishop's; fullback Dave Fleiszer, McGill; flanker Eric Walter, Toronto; ends Bill Manchuk, Alberta, and Gerry Organ, Guelph; tackles Earl Johnson, New Brunswick, and Larry Bird, Western; guards Tom Coyle, Manitoba, and Bill Hartley, St. Francis Xavier; and centre Jay Harris, McGill.

On defence: Ends Alex Squires, Toronto, and Ed Scorgie, Waterloo; tackles Max Abraham, Saskatchewan, and Joe Watt, McMaster; linebackers Mike McMahon, Waterloo Lutheran, Andy Smith, Mount Allison, and Bob Eccles, Carleton; halfbacks Chris Rumball, McGill, Rick Kaupp, New Brunswick, Rick Howden, Manitoba, Paul McKay, Toronto, and George Short, University of Windsor.

Sports Briefs

CALGARY (CP) — Don Luzzi, a 12-year veteran with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference, announced his retirement Friday night. Luzzi, 35, made the announcement at the football club's year-end banquet. He was named Canadian football's outstanding lineman in 1958, his rookie year, for his outstanding play at defensive tackle. Luzzi was also named to WFC all-star teams seven times, twice on offence and five times on defence. He was voted to the offensive and defensive teams in 1958.

BOSTON (AP) — Defenceman Teddy Green of the National Hockey League's Boston Bruins, out of action since suffering a skull fracture on Sept. 21, Friday, returned here for the first time since his injury for what was described as a routine medical checkup. Green appeared in good condition as he joked with reporters and demonstrated by moving his fingers that he has regained most of the use of his left hand, which was partly paralyzed at the time of the injury.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — John Wilfrid Loaring, a Windsor contractor and onetime Olympic hurdler, died here Thursday of cancer. Loaring, 54, was born in England and educated in Windsor. An outstanding high-school athlete, he ran second in the low hurdles at the 1936 Olympic Games. In 1938 he went to the British Empire Games in Australia where he captured three gold medals and set a 440-yard hurdles record of 52.3, a standard which lasted until 1966.

Montreal Has Five On All-Star Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Loyola College of Montreal has placed five players on this year's Ottawa-St. Lawrence Athletic Association all-star soccer squad, it was announced Friday.

The poll was conducted by the conference coaches.

Player Defends Apartheid

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Golfer Gary Player has defended apartheid in South Africa but urged that strict racial separation be softened to let United States Tennis ace Arthur Ashe compete in tournaments here.

"The government of South Africa, rightly or wrongly, has decided on a policy of separate development," Player said in a statement Friday.

"This is the law and whether one is white, black, brown or brindle, one has to obey it."

Player's comments were in reply to an overseas organization called Halt All Racial Tours. Eight members of HART confronted Player in New Zealand recently, but the golfer said he would answer written questions on his own time.

Soviet News Agency Protests Canada's Plans

MOSCOW (AP) —The official Soviet news agency Tass protested Friday what it said were plans for Canada to have a large number of professional hockey players on its team at the world championship next March.

"It is time the International Ice Hockey Federation said a word," Tass added. It did not say what action Moscow would take if the international body did not raise the issue."

The Soviet news agency did not specifically charge that Canada would have too many professionals on its national team. It said only that the Canadians "have discovered a loop-hole which is said to be in international rules."

This alleged loophole permits Canada to include any number of professionals in its national team until Feb. 10, although the basic rule permits Canada to have only nine professional players on its team, Tass said.

The complaint was the latest in a long series of Soviet disputes with Canadian hockey officials. Five days ago, Russia refused to ratify the Canadian-arragged games schedule for the world championship in Montreal and Winnipeg.

A Canadian official said at the time the Soviets objected to playing back-to-back games three times on the schedule. He said they had until Dec. 8 to report whether they would take part in the championship.

Two School Systems Could Share Facilities

WELLAND (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald said Friday his party will support equality of grants to Roman Catholic separate schools to Grade 13 if both the public and separate school system share costly facilities.

He said during a tour of the Niagara Peninsula area with 10 members of the party's provincial caucus:

"I think the separate school system should have equal grants, but to avoid an excessive burden in duplication there should be a greater share in common training areas."

Among these areas he listed vocational school facilities, bus transportation and computer centres.

"In that way you would provide equality for all children and avoid the excessive cost."

De Gaulle 79

PARIS (AP) — Charles de Gaulle is 79 today but as usual there will be no birthday celebration. The man who twice led France out of chaos remained secluded at his country estate in Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglises.

No visitors are expected in the isolated mansion where the former president lives with his wife Yvonne and their elderly housekeeper.

Hovercraft Considered For Services to Isles

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of the Ontario department of highways were in Europe this summer to study the economics and advantages of hovercraft services from mainland to islands, a legislature committee was told Friday.

"I can't say that it will be applicable to Pelee Island, but there certainly is a place for the use of this kind of equipment," said Highways Minister George Gomme.

He was replying to a plea from Fred Burr (NDP—Sandwich-Riverside) for a winter-time hovercraft service to the island in the Detroit River.

Mr. Burr said that while the province provided a free ferry service, at a subsidy of $384,000, for the 400 living on Wolfe Island opposite Kingston, the 350 people on Pelee Island pay fares for a ferry that operates only eight months a year.

"During the winter, in a circle containing 10,000,000 people, these residents are in complete isolation," he said.

Mr. Burr said a successful experiment with a hovercraft was conducted this summer. A 38-passenger vehicle costs $400,000, the cost of building two miles of average highway in the province.

Mr. Gomme said the Wolfe Island ferry is subsidized only because it is a connecting link between two sections of provincial highway.

The department is investigating the potential of hovercraft and other means of transportation, but he reminded Mr. Burr that the ferry service to Pelee Island is a federal operation since the island is in international waters.

TORONTO (CP) — Records of Whitecrok Estates and Meadows Land Development Co. Ltd. have been seized by provincial investigators, it was learned Friday.

W. J. Kucherepa, registrar of real estate and business brokers, said the seizures were made in the last week under the authority of Leslie Rowntree, financial and commercial affairs minister.

Whitecrok has been selling lots in the Peterborough area using the advertising slogan Own A Piece Of Canada.

Was It A Massacre?

U.S. Army Says Actions of Two Dozen Men Being Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The army says 24 United States soldiers and former servicemen, in addition to an officer and staff sergeant already charged, are being investigated in the alleged murder of approximately 100 South Vietnamese civilians in 1968.

In reference to the March, 1968, raid near a hamlet known as My Lai, the army said: "During the operation a small group of American soldiers reportedly shot many (possibly) Vietnamese civilians."

The army said that Lieut. William L. Calley, 26, now stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., was charged in the incident and a decision would be made early next week whether he will face court martial. Calley was leader of a unit involved in the operation.

A staff sergeant, David Mitchell, 29, of St. Francisville, La., has been charged with assault with intent to commit murder.

Robert E. Jordan III, the army's general counsel, said that another nine men still in the service and 15 others who have been discharged since the raid are under investigation.

He said the former soldiers could face court martial under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Investigators so far have questioned about 75 persons, including Vietnamese who might have first-hand knowledge about the case, Jordan said.

He denied the army is covering up the case, saying it is not in a legal position to give details or talk about aspects of the case because it could prejudice the rights of the men who may go to trial.

"Whether a crime was committed and who did it will be the two big issues if there is a trial," Jordan said.

Laborite Tells Americans : 'Stop Weeping'

LONDON (AP) — George Brown, deputy leader of Britain's governing Labor party, has urged the United States to "stop weeping" over alleged atrocities in South Vietnam and get on with the war. Left-wing MPs from his own party immediately demanded his resignation.

Brown said atrocities were committed on both sides of wars. Britain's record in 10 years of fighting Communists in Malaya, he added, was not always clean, but Malaya is free today.

He denied the army is covering up the case, saying it is not in a legal position to give details or talk about aspects of the case because it could prejudice the rights of the men who may go to trial.

"Whether a crime was committed and who did it will be the two big issues if there is a trial," Jordan said.

Earlier Gains Cut

Profit-taking Hits Markets

by NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets plunged this week as gains of the previous week were sliced away in profit-taking.

Markets recorded their best weekly advances of the year last week in response to tax reforms proposed by the federal government.

Moderate losses Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday snowballed into large declines Thursday and Friday.

However, the losses this week erased about only half of what was gained last week and trading was not as active.

It appeared that the market over-reacted to the tax proposals that would benefit it while ignoring other proposals that might dampen investment.

Switches made to adjust to the favorable proposals held up well, but trades made in the heat of the excitement seemed to fall back.

And a second look at the white paper proposals, such as the capital gains tax, appeared to cause some selling.

But along with profit-taking, renewed concern over the continuing tight money situation that has plagued Canadian markets since last May seemed to be a depressant.

Various reports from Canada and the United States that the screws will be kept tight on money sprung up this week just when markets seemed to be learning to live with it.

Although no one can say for certain, some observers believe the crunch could continue into 1970.

Gold stocks were slightly high er on the week, but lost a strong gain scored Monday.

The weakness seemed to reflect concern over sagging European bullion prices.

The price for gold on the London free market closed at $36.12 U.S. an ounce, its lowest closing price since a two-tier system for trading was introduced in March, 1968.

The system was set up to allow free trading by speculators who thought the official prices—$35 U.S.—might be raised. An increase would have devalued currency throughout the world.

Under the system, governments banks continued to trade at the official price, but no longer had to dip into gold reserves to meet speculative demand.

The price for gold on the free market rose to a record $42.82½ U.S. last March.

But since then a number of factors has helped to bring it down.

South Africa, which mines about 40 per cent of the free world's new gold supplies, is believed to have sold on the free market.

The creation last September of Special Drawing Rights provided a new way to finance world trade, and relieved some of the pressure to increase the official gold price.

And speculators who no longer expect an official increase have been unloading as the free-market price has fallen.

Statistically, on the Toronto Stock Exchange, industrials fell 5.00 to 184.63, western oils 11.59 to 200.38 and base metals 2.44 to 116.56. Golds gained 1.78 to 161.11. Volume was 13,329,000 shares compared with 19,092,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 557 to 228.

Judge Says Drunkenness Should Not Be Illegal

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Judge James Greco said Friday society should allow anyone to get drunk "when the only harm they do is to themselves."

"We are living in a permissive society," the judge said in commenting on a long list of drunkenness charges before him.

"Persons should be able to get drunk if they want to, providing they don't infract any other law."

He described Ontario's liquor laws as "ridiculous and archaic."

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY

There was a decreased requirement for additional workers during the past week. Furthermore, it was noted that the employment opportunities were evenly distributed between the men and women, which is not too common an occurrence in this community.

It must be quite apparent, to even the most casual observer, that a changing world is affecting the Bay of Quinte area. At the present time, there is unprecedented construction activity. Initially, the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre is active in assisting in meeting the labor demand for construction workers. These new industrial plants, expansions, office buildings, motels and service centre, when completed, all require staffing for their operation. The Canada Manpower Centre gathers information about these prospective jobs, some of which require skills in short local supply. Recent practice has been that the Canada Manpower Centre does the initial screening for the new employer in order to satisfy his labor requirements.

In other words, the Canada Manpower Centre, which is only one of more than 300 Canada Manpower Centres located in cities and towns across Canada, is a federal service that has been designed to look after the labor requirements of both employers and employees.

It is too much to hope that everyone in the community knows about the services available at a Canada Manpower Centre, which is operated under the Federal Department of Manpower and Immigration.

The Canada Manpower Centre's trained staff would be pleased to discuss these services with anyone requiring assistance, whether employer or employee. Any communication will be treated in confidence.

The Canada Manpower Centre cannot perform miracles. It cannot provide jobs that do not exist. It cannot place a person in a job for which he lacks skills.

However, perhaps its services can help a person get a new job or improve his prospects for the future.

It must be acknowledged that to make a sound decision the worker needs accurate information, which is not always easy to obtain.

The Canada Manpower Centre gathers information and may have the information need ed whether as an employee or employer, to decide on a further course of action.

Indian Act Revision Is Urged by MP

OTTAWA (CP) — A Progressive Conservative MP wants immediate revision of the Indian Act as a result of a Supreme Court of Canada decision last Thursday which found sections of the act in conflict with the Bill of Rights.

Wallace Nesbitt (Oxford), chairman of the Conservative caucus committee on Indian affairs, said in a news release:

"The recent decision of the Supreme Court in the Drybones case casts a shadow of doubt on the validity of other sections of the Indian Act."

The decision said liquor provisions of the Indian Act conflicted with the rights bill guaranteeing all Canadians equality before the law.

Mr. Nesbitt called for a referral of the Indian Act to the Commons committee on Indian affairs and advocated thorough consultation with Indians before any revisions are made.

The high court case involved Joseph Drybones, a Dogrib Indian charged with being drunk in a public place in Yellowknife, Northwest Territories.

Penalties for such an offence under the Indian Act are different than those set for non-Indians under liquor regulations of the Northwest Territories.

Liberal Think Tank

'City Power' Outside Field of Ottawa's Jurisdiction: PM

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — Former Toronto mayor Philip Givens tore into federal government urban policy Friday at the Liberal think-ers' conference, then foundered against an amiable but uncompromising Prime Minister Trudeau.

Mr. Givens, now Liberal MP for York West, told a task force on cities at the three-day conference that "very powerful people" in Ottawa were consistently downgrading the role the federal government could play in improving the lot of cities.

The ex-mayor didn't give any names, but few of the 400 conference delegates doubted that his barbs were aimed at Mr. Trudeau, who was sitting silently in another corner of the room.

Mr. Givens went on to say these "powerful people" want to reduce the role of Ottawa to that of "a passive banker" at a time when it is becoming increasingly obvious that Canada's 30 major urban areas need federal help.

The session broke up and Mr. Givens left the conference hall with a group of reporters to expand on his remarks. In the middle of a discourse on how Parliament is dominated by rural interests, up walked the prime minister, who turned the monologue into a debate.

Mr. Givens told Mr. Trudeau Parliament should spend more time talking about cities and less on fish and wheat, and that the great urban areas don't really have a forum in Ottawa.

Mr. Trudeau replied that the provinces guard their jurisdiction over municipalities jealously and that any attempt by Ottawa to abrogate some of these powers would run into strong resistance.

"Let's have a private meeting between federal and provincial MPs and city councillors sometime," Mr. Trudeau suggested. "And let's hear you argue with them that the federal government should have more responsibility.

"I think you'll find they disagree."

Reinforcements for Mr. Givens arrived in the form of Stephen Clarkson, Liberal candidate for the Toronto mayoralty, who suggested Ottawa could intervene on the cities' behalf by declaring the whole works a crisis situation.

"You'd use the peace, order and good government clause to deal with any problem you decided was critical?" Asked Mr. Trudeau.

The prime minister made it clear that he is not prepared to back down from the government's announced position—if the cities need more money it's up to the provinces to find it for them through taxes.

The incident highlighted what had been going on inside the session—repeated calls for "city power" in the form of more cash, better programs and less interference from higher levels of government.

In a speech officially opening the conference, Mr. Trudeau called for long-term planning to bring the proliferation of machines and technology under control.

"The internal combustion engine is a good illustration of what I mean. An admirable product of human intelligence, it can have a disastrous effect on our environment."

He said Canadians now will have to grapple with such heady questions as what, if any, controls should apply to genetic advances as they might apply to human reproduction.

"Planning, whether it is by a political party or a government or a private company, must operate in a scale of time which is sufficient to permit it to alter the future," he told his audience of academics, politicians, executives and others.

Delegates spent most of the day sitting in plenary sessions on poverty, the cities, agriculture and the individual, four of the nine major conference themes. Today more sessions and discussion groups were scheduled on the economy, student unrest, regional development and industrial relations.

At the poverty session, the son of a Georgia tenant farmer told delegates that unless Canada moves ahead on anti-poverty measures, the poor will rebel.

The warning came from Wilson Head, executive director of Toronto's Social Planning Council, who said the poor must be given help to shatter the poverty cycle that passes from generation to generation.

David Kirk, executive secretary of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, led discussion at the agriculture session and said Canadian farmers "are in desperate blood-letting competition with each other."

Agriculture Minister H. A. (Bud) Olson, one of three federal cabinet ministers present, said it was all very well to talk about introducing new management concepts to agriculture, rational organization of production and markets and special treatment for small farmers, as various speakers had suggested.

He had but one question: "What will the farmers themselves accept by way of solution?" Mr. Olson said he was convinced voluntary marketing agencies to stabilize prices would be part of the answer but would the farmers accept the limitations they would have to impose on themselves?

Professor Allen M. Linden of Toronto's York University, conference co-chairman, told the session on individual rights that the 1970s will see a tremendous revision of existing Canadian criminal law.

The law professor said recent changes in divorce laws and the omnibus bill on the Canadian Criminal Code were forerunners of legislation that will emphasize the rights of the individual in terms of society"as a whole.

The conference ends Sunday.

CP General Manager Retires

Gillis Purcell, general manager of The Canadian Press since 1945, works at his desk in the Toronto office of the news agency a few days before retirement. Mr. Purcell, who winds up 41 years with CP on Monday, a day before his 65th birthday, was honored last night at a dinner by publishers and owners of the newspapers that make up the national news co-operative.

Retiring Head of CP Honored

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's publishers and broadcasters Friday night honored the newspaper man who has guided the country's national co-operative news agency for the last 24 years.

Gillis Purcell, general manager of The Canadian Press, steps down Monday after a career that covers 41 years with CP.

More than 200 publishers, editors, broadcasters and friends gathered at a formal CP dinner at the Royal York Hotel in downtown Toronto to pay their respects to him.

Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun and president of CP from 1964 to 1966, told the guests that Mr. Purcell has done as much as any man in public life during the last quarter century to create an understanding among Canadians.

"Because Gil is a modest man, a man who shuns the limelight, this may not be known to all Canadians. But it is known to all of us in this room and, very gratefully, we acknowledge it."

During Mr. Purcell's term as general manager and as No. 2 man for 13 years before that, CP has grown to a $6,900,000-a-year operation from $800,000.

It now provides national and international news to 103 daily newspapers and 296 radio and television stations across Canada. Its staff of 400 use 40,000 miles of leased wires to transmit stories to news outlets and it is estimated that more than 13,000,000 Canadians read its news items daily.

Mr. Purcell told the guests that his 41 years with CP had "really been fun—mostly hilarious."

"I have to insist that the kind of things said of CP properly refer to the CP staff, which is essentially what makes CP and keeps it going," Mr. Purcell said.

"As I've said before, a news association to a marked extent is an exercise in anonymity based on interlocking efforts. It is the ultimate in teamwork.

"Back of every byline is the work of scores of people besides the writer. There are the editors, photographers, teletype operators, translators who share in transforming the event into the printed or broadcast story.

"As far as I know, CP and BN (Broadcast News, the CP company serving private radio and TV stations) are unusual in that they are run by the staff.

"There is no executive in either outfit who has not done all the jobs he is directing others in doing."

J. R. H. Sutherland, publisher of the New Glasgow, N.S. News and CP president, was chairman of the dinner.

Like all gatherings of newspaper men and broadcasters, Friday's dinner was a blend of sentiment, ribald humor and friendly insults.

Mr. Keate said he did not have time to talk about "Purcell the poet, Purcell the artist, the writer, cartoonist, raconteur, fisherman, chess master, bartender, historian or watcher of whooping cranes and girls—not necessarily in that order.

"Indeed, this would be impossible anyway because no two people can agree in their assessment of the great man."

In fact, Mr. Keate said, they can't even agree on how to pronounce his last name.

Ontario PCs Plan New Constitution

TORONTO (CP) — A proposed new constitution for the Ontario Progressive Conservative party was released Friday at a press conference in the legislature buildings.

The proposal will be submitted to the party's annual meeting in Toronto Dec. 4 to 6.

One clause concerning the calling of provincial conventions provides for challenges to the leadership of the party in years when it is in opposition.

The new document proposes that when the Conservatives are in opposition, party members can call for a leadership convention at any time.

While the party is in power, however, leadership conventions can be called, as before, only on death or resignation.

The proposed constitution recommends that for organizational purposes the province be broken into 15 district associations each with its own women's and Young PC associations and representative of all ridings within the geographic area. There now are 11 district associations.

CYC Says It's Unhappy Saulnier Has Last Say

OTTAWA (CP) — The Company of Young Canadians council said Friday it is "most disturbed" that Lucien Saulnier of Montreal will be the last witness at a Commons inquiry into the CYC.

Mr. Saulnier, Montreal executive committee chairman, made charges of subversion in the CYC that led to the inquiry.

"We are gravely concerned that after today the CYC has no right to reply, rebuttal or even cross-examination," a telegram sent to John Reid (Le-Kenora-Rainy River), chairman of the committee carrying out the inquiry, said.

DEMORESTVILLE — Mrs. Ethel Sallans is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Hay-mond Johnson, Whitby.
The regular monthly meeting of the UCW was held at the home of Mrs. Douglas Greave.

A Campbellford man, Lt.-Col. Carlyle Cruz was honored here last week for the award once he rendered to a Japan-ese orphanage in Singapore during the Korean War.
Col. Cruz was visited by Mr. Sergo Wado of Hiro-shima who presented him with an inscribed silk pennant from the chief priest and the board of management of the Saiiroji Temple which was destroyed in the atom bomb attack on that city in August 6, 1945.
While there Col. Cruz recei-ved considerable help from the congregation of the Buddhist Temple and an orphanage which it operated. Both had been destroyed in the atom bomb blast and Mr. Wado with other Canadians provided food and clothing for the children and assisted the congregation in rebuilding the temple.
The banner presented to him reads "Our present to-pennant to Mr. Cruz this autumn season of 1969 from the Saiiroji Temple in Hiro-shima". It is signed by Mr. S. Kogyzu, the chief priest of the temple and A. Takahima and Mr. S. Wado.
After presenting the banner, Mr. Wado presented Mr. Cruz with a similar banner from the Hiroshima Central Lions Club. It was sent to him by and presented to the Campbellford Lions Club of which he is a member. Mr. Cruz will pre-sent the banner formally to the club at a meeting on Nov-ember 28 at George's Restaur-ant.
Mr. Sergo Wado, who made the presentation was on a visit to his daughter in Tor-onto. He recently retired as administrative head of a large hospital in Hiroshima and will return to Japan to take over the management of a new professional baseball park be-ing constructed there.
He was accompanied on the trip to Campbellford by his son-in-law, Mr. J. Nekods of Toronto, who acted as inter-preter.

Yukon MP Says Northerners' Views Distorted by Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien again rejected delay provincial status for the territories but Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) said that all northerner really want is more control over their own lives.

He said Ottawa officials have been misrepresenting northern demands to save their own jobs. Now Yukon wanted neither provincial status nor control of oil, gas and other mineral resources.

"But surely we are mature enough to take over the management of our game, our forests, and our lands, together with their disposition, to mention a few," Mr. Nielsen said.

He read into the record a resolution from the Conservative party in the Yukon that would create a government just short of provincial in power.

Mr. Chretien said Ottawa may have been "a bit negative in constitutional development" but this is because "we don't believe the time has arrived" to give the Yukon and Northwest Territories provincial status because of population and financial resources.

"My attitude is not blind opposition to progress but opposition to blind progress," he said.

He said he hopes legislation to amend the territorial acts will be introduced soon. He said it hasn't been drafted yet.

Mr. Chretien spoke near the end of the second "opposition day" of the new parliamentary session. The subject was the North and the vehicle a Conservative motion, which under rules does not come to a vote, rejecting Mr. Chretien's recent policy statement on territorial government and "the pathological refusal of the government to end the colonial form of government" in the North.

"The public says, yes, the words, no," said Bud Orange (L—Northwest Territories) when asked by Mr. Nielsen if he supported the motion.

But Mr. Orange also was critical of government policy and said he will urge creation of an executive committee, a sort of cabinet, with the N.W.T. council, and more elected members.

He said that in the current situation, the council acts as "Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition" to the commissioner, who is appointed by Ottawa.

Mr. Nielsen said the territorial commissioners take their orders from Mr. Chretien and the councils act as "rubber stamps."

Mr. Orange said the government at least could have changed the name council to assembly.

Mr. Nielsen said that without a party system, there is no chance for effective government.

He said Mr. Chretien has thrown the council a "rope" by allowing them to set their own indemnities.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) and John Burton (NDP—Regina East) emphasized the need for a better break for the native peoples who make up the majority of the northern population.

Mr. Chretien said that in Yellowknife, he signed an agreement with unions and management to this effect.

But he hoped the day would come when employment of Indians, Eskimos and Metis was a matter of course.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris), a former northern affairs minister, said government initiative is needed to meet the northern territories legislative demands for autonomy and self-government.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said Mr. Chretien is a puppet of his officials and this accounts for the government's northern policy.

CPR Chairman Gives Views

West Could 'Go It Alone' If Quebec Leaves Canada

TORONTO (CP) — If Quebec was to leave Canada, the West could probably "go it alone" economically, CPR Chairman N. R. Crump said Friday.

He told the Rotary Club of Toronto unrest in Quebec is Canada's number one problem, but its seriousness is not fully realized in the rest of Canada.

The attitude in the West appears to be hardening to the point of letting Quebec go, if necessary," Mr. Crump said.

"From my own observations, I believe that Canada west of the Lakehead could be a viable economic entity, buying and selling its goods on the world market. But Ontario and the Maritimes could not."

In an interview later, Mr. Crump said one of Western Canada's main complaints is that it must sell its chief products—wheat, oil, potash and lumber—on the world market at world prices. But because it is part of a bigger economic unit, it cannot buy its goods under the same conditions."

He emphasized that this view is simply an impression from his own observations.

"There has been much too little work done on the whole problem," he said. "My burning desire is to see the country remain as one."

Mr. Crump said he was happy that Bill 62, which assures the right of children in Quebec to be educated in English if their parents wish, had been passed by the Quebec legislature.

But he said that all English-speaking people in Quebec must learn to speak French. In future Quebec and Ottawa, as well as dealing with a certain proportion of French-speaking people, will be bilingual, he said, although he did not think Canada will ever be a completely bilingual country.

Mr. Crump also said that the CPR has no firm plans to abandon its passenger train service. Its recent application to the Canadian transport commission for abandonment was simply a way of getting the mission examined regarding economics and public convenience.

He said that if the passenger trains are retained the government should absorb 89 per cent of the cost.

Sex Education Realm of Parent?

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Sex education lies within the realm of the parents' responsibility completely. It should be taught at the child reaches the individual maturity to require further information. The facts must be presented in relation to the high moral and religious code set down by the parents.

To a great degree, a child acquires his sex education daily as he observes his parents in their great love, faithfulness and respect for each other teaches the most valuable lesson a child can learn.

In this atmosphere the biological facts make sense to a child and sex neither becomes something fearful nor something to be flaunted or desecrated. The bodily functions, designs and the sex act itself were created by God for the purpose of reproduction. Of equal importance, this is the means by which married couples bring joy and fulfillment to each other.

The PTA should devote its energies to a fight against the distorted image sex has acquired via filthy movies, and magazines.

Helpful information on sex instructions is available to parents in their churches, doctors' offices or at the library. Prior to marriage, counseling is generally given couples by their religious leaders.

There would be no need for an in-depth study of venereal diseases and various forms of contraceptives. This would not stem the growing rate of venereal disease. Teaching why it is necessary and right to save sex for marriage will.

I, for one, will not relinquish my responsibility to teachers who may not believe in old-fashioned virtues as I do. And, I will not allow my children to suffer as a result. — Mrs. R.

Comment: I'll be interested in reader reaction.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 23 years old and was told for the first time in my life that I have a functional heart murmur. The doctor said it is harmless; that I can live to be 100. What is the difference between a functional and organic murmur? Would frequent fast walks help strengthen a functional murmur? — Mrs. H.

Comment: A functional murmur is one not produced by a diseased or malformed heart. An organic murmur, on the other hand, is due to disease or malformation.

Exercise such as frequent fast walks would not "strengthen" a functional murmur, because, as I hope you see, it does not require strengthening. Anyone with a functional heart murmur should live a completely normal life — without any restrictions in activity.

For Mrs. P.: It is true that change in personality is one of the signs of early cerebral arteriosclerosis. Damage to the brain arteries has an effect on one's way of life.

In your case, consider this little clue: a former meticulously dressed man now wears his clothes carelessly and without apparent care. I recall one such who invariably had stains on his vest and tie — apparently unaware of, or disregarding, such stains.

However, I must warn you, it takes more than such evidence to make a diagnosis of cerebral vascular disease.

For Mrs. G.: If you have been childless after five years of marriage, and two gynecologists say they have found nothing wrong, then it is your husband's turn to have examination. It's possible he has a low sperm count or other reason for your inability to have a child.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 23

Your birthday today: The year ahead has many odd turns of unplanned circumstances, changes imposed by historic forces at work. Plans are temporarily abandoned, revised, and picked up again. This one most essential gain is your religion which must remain sensible and reasonably basic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Be definite, set a limit on your spending for pleasure and luxuries. Started as early as conditions permit, and enjoy travel-ling or sight-seeing.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Once you have done the appropriate thing by your community and its customs, your personal projects are subject to considerable improvement. Outsiders are not impressed, may offer dissent, but should be disregarded.

GEMINI (May 21— June 20): Others have different ideas on how to spend Sunday. State your preference and either go along or stay out of the proceedings.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Pick up your independent mood and go without waiting for people to come to you. Recognition, unsolicited help cannot help but contact which make those familiar with you are unbearably restrictive.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The less you have to do with business this Sunday, the better. Home affairs are touchy, and deserve your utmost patience. You'll be sustained in your self-restraint by later events.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Strenuous efforts do not succeed — it's a passive sort of Sunday, in which you are encouraged to follow the line of least resistance and do little as permissible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Remain serene through this tense Sunday. Stay physically out of reach of potential squabbling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Personal plans run into opposition, but are feasible later if you can give them up temporarily without an argument. Your patience will earn you much satisfaction in personal relations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You do not have the cover of your work-week associates and routines to shut out family and relatives, so face them and their quibbles sweetly. Jolly them out of their gloomy mood.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Travel does not provide the answers. Care in correspondence is essential. Consider your health in whatever you attempt this Sunday.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Social doings are unsatisfactory at the moment. Forgive friends of loved ones for their present frame of mind. Tinkering around the household can be planned for the coming week.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Circumstances are against getting any work accomplished this Sunday. Do the amenities indicated by the customs of your community. Then mind your own affairs without involving anybody else in them.

For November 24

Your birthday today: Conditions improve steadily for your financial welfare in the coming year. You will have more extensive control over your own life, probably more income and greater freedom in spending. Your personal authority expands considerably.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The situation is abruptly much clearer, so go ahead with unlimited enthusiasm. Mental pursuits take priority; write, formulate instructions, make detailed plans.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The week opens with rosy aspects. Business hums right along. Take care of personal needs yourself. Celebrate the improved conditions tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Make "safety first" your slogan around machinery and power tools. Leave repairs and servicing to experts. Simplify pet projects and make them more effective.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Press your plans, make a few quick decisions, but don't announce your goals. Work capably where it counts while the going is feasible.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Businessmen should check their resources, accounts, and obligations. Act accordingly without being impulsive. Most results will be toward expansion in the coming year.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Now you can dwell on the finer points of what you want done— but be heard. Take your time and keep everything in proper sequence for full comprehension by others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Make the most of reliable contacts and friends. Personal projects expand, assume greater worth. Romance sparks into sudden excitement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Financial matters are up for review. Proceed forthrightly along a conservative line of appropriate scope. Activities you had thought nearly settled turn out to be valuable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Switch your emphasis from physical effort and charm to mapping out schedules, guidelines for further development. Instructions to others are in order and require attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Line up appointments for all necessary checkups of personal and property conditions, maintenance and repairs. Arrange to get bids where appropriate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): With nominal effort you can achieve a great deal in a week which begins quietly enough. Begin doing more about personal and family welfare.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Outstanding negotiations can be brought toward a successful conclusion today. The moment is propitious to deal with institutions, home improvements or family affairs.

Peace Negotiators Wrangle

Lodge Denies Claim He Avoided Talks

PARIS (Reuters) — U.S. chief negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge today rejected a North Vietnamese charge that he was unwilling to meet in private to discuss "general problems" concerning South Vietnam.

He denied claims by Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief delegate at the Paris peace talks, that the United States was willing to discuss only mutual troop withdrawals in private talks.

Lodge, commenting on an interview Thuy gave to an American newspaper, said the Hanoi delegate had been as intransigent in private meetings as he had been in public.

"Mr. Thuy has tried to make it appear as if he has all along been ready to meet privately for serious discussion," Lodge said in a statement.

"The fact is that every private meeting which we have held has been at the request of the United States. If Mr. Thuy had any desire to meet, he managed to conceal that desire very well."

Lodge, whose resignation as chief U.S. negotiator was announced Thursday, has had 11 private meetings with Thuy since the peace talks opened here in January.

In an interview with the New York Times, Thuy said Lodge insisted the only question he was prepared to discuss was that of mutual troop withdrawals.

The U.S. negotiator, in his reply to Thuy's interview, said: "First, it is not true that I have not been willing to meet privately, or otherwise, with Mr. Thuy to discuss general problems concerning Vietnam —and he knows it very well."

"Second, it is also not true that in the private meetings which have been held, I have only been willing to talk on only one question—that of mutual troop withdrawal. He knows that, too.

"Third, it is not true, as alleged, that the U.S. wishes to continue the war in Vietnam and is therefore inflexible."

In a dispatch from Paris by Harrison E. Salisbury, the New York Times says Thuy challenged President Nixon's interpretation of a letter from the late North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

Nixon released the text of the letter at the time of his Nov. 3 Vietnam policy address and said it "flatly rejected my initiative" toward getting the Vietnam peace talks in Paris moving.

VOYAGE

Apollo Is On Course

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 12 moon explorers raced through the final hours of their voyage of discovery today, heading for a fiery dash through the atmosphere and splashdown in "a nice little section of the South Pacific."

Charles (Pete) Conrad, Richard Gordon and Alan Bean were in good spirits and joked with ground controllers as their Yankee Clipper streaked faster and faster on a near-perfect course that would slam them into the atmosphere 76 miles above the Pacific at 34,600 miles an hour.

Splashdown was set for 3:58 p.m. EST about 600 miles southeast of American Samoa. The astronauts planned a short burst of their jet thrusters at 12:44 p.m. to zero in on the area where the aircraft carrier Hornet waited.

The spacemen awakened at 5:30 a.m. after 9½ hours rest and told the ground: "Good morning. We're just getting ready to eat breakfast."

"Very good," said Mission Control. "You ready for the big day?"

"I don't know. What's happening?" Conrad said in mock surprise.

"Oh, we've got a nice little section of the South Pacific reserved for you and we've got most of the navy standing by to pick you up."

The ground reported weather conditions were good in the recovery area, with a forecast of scattered clouds, easterly winds up to 18 knots, 10 miles visibility and waves three feet, with swells of five feet.

The astronauts spent much of the morning "polishing the brass" aboard Yankee Clipper, stowing loose articles and tidying up the cabin for the re-entry and landing.

The landing in warm Polynesian waters climaxes a lunar expedition which should vastly enrich man's knowledge of the moon and perhaps his own earth and universe.

Inco Raises Nickel Price

TORONTO (CP) — International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. today announced a 25-cent-a-pound increase in the price of its nickel for all its markets.

The increase, effective immediately, is in United States funds.

It makes the price of electrolytic nickel $1.38 a pound in Canada and $1.28 in the U.S.

The announcement said corresponding increases are being assessed in other markets, where different methods of pricing are used.

The company said the increases were needed to meet growing costs of all kinds and to match the needs of the world nickel market.

Deserters' Co-op Ransacked

MONTREAL (CP) — The offices of a newly-formed organization to assist American deserters was ransacked and files destroyed during the weekend, it was learned Sunday.

Mike Ledbetter, co-chairman of the American Deserters Cooperative, said in an interview the organization had received several threatening telephone calls before the break-in took place.

He said the threats came from a similar but "more radical" organization in Montreal.

Full-scale Conference On Missiles Is Likely

HELSINKI (Reuters) — Soviet and American negotiators resumed their arms race limitation talks today in the Finnish capital with all signs pointing toward eventual agreement for a full-scale conference.

Although the two delegations thus far have met for a total of only about three hours since the talks opened a week ago, observers said the atmosphere was clearly good and conducive to agreement.

The general goodwill between the two chief negotiators—Gerard Smith, director of the U.S. arms control and disarmament agency, and Russia's deputy foreign minister, Vladimir Semenov—was seen as a clear sign that all is going reasonably well.

The strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) are being held to explore the possibility of setting up a full-scale conference on the topic in the near future.

If agreement is reached, a conference is expected to take place in Geneva or Vienna although the present talks could be expanded here.

While no reliable word on the contents of the talks has yet seeped out, some observers have been predicting that the U.S. might this week offer to halt development of its latest superweapon—MIRV.

MIRV is the abbreviated name for a new type of rocket —one equipped with several nuclear warheads which could spray independently on to several targets. MIRV is short for multiple independently-targeted recovery vehicle.

Soviet sources here in Helsinki have given ample indication of Kremlin concern over deployment of the awesome new weapon.

U.S., Russia Ratify Pact

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon today ratified the nuclear non-proliferation treaty on behalf of the United States and announced simultaneous signing of the pact by the Soviet Union.

Israel Won't Give Up Control of Jerusalem

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Israeli Premier Golda Meir said in a recorded television interview Sunday night that Israel is occupying some Arab territories which it never will return.

Mrs. Meir specifically mentioned Jerusalem and said: "No Jordanian flag will ever fly over Jerusalem again. And there are some territories which for our security we can never give back."

The premier made the remarks in an recorded interview in Tel Aviv with syndicated American columnist Rowland Evans and the Los Angeles Times Middle East correspondent, William Toohey.

Asked whether Israel could win another war with the Arab states, Mrs. Meir said: "We will definitely win because we dare not lose. If Egypt occupied Israel there would be genocide."

Mrs. Meir said she was confident of another victory despite the fact that the Arabs now had more equipment than before the six-day war of 1967.

"The Russians have replaced equipment lost by the Arabs in 1967 and have added more modern equipment," she said.

Questioned about United States and Soviet talks aimed at finding a Middle East peace settlement, the Israeli leader said they had no hope of success.

Massacre Described

When It Was Over, GIs Sick

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A former soldier says U.S. troops were ordered to wipe out the South Vietnamese village of Song My as an enemy stronghold in 1968—and did.

"Everything and everybody was wiped out," Charles Gruver, 24, said in an interview Sunday. "Men, women . . . children . . . Only the chickens were left alive."

The killings on March 16, 1968, have led to charges that there was a massacre of civilians. Gruver said he was satisfied that Song My—U.S. military code name Pinkville—was infested with soldiers of the North Vietnamese regular army, but added:

"We'd never been ordered to wipe out everybody before. Most of the guys didn't dig it at all. When it was all over, they were almost sick."

Speaking of the 1968 incident, Gruver said:

"In the last week or so, we'd lost about half our company to snipers and mine fields, and the guys were really fired up when we started the attack. As we entered, we drew fire from some of the huts, and then a lot of guys sort of went crazy."

Gruver said he was a private first class in C Company, 20th Infantry Regiment, and carried an M-79 grenade launcher, but did not fire his weapon.

The attack began about 6 a.m. and lasted until about noon, he said.

"I walked through the village after it was all over . . . all around were bodies of women and children, all shot up.

"We confiscated several weapons and took a few prisoners, and later they found an emergency underground military hospital in the village."

Gruver was discharged from the army about 10 months ago, after serving in Vietnam 14 months. He now works for an uncle in the construction business in Tulsa.

Officer to Be Tried

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — A 25-year-old United States Army officer will be tried by general court martial for premeditated murder in the slaying of civilians in South Vietnam, the Army announced today.

The decision to try Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., was made by Maj.-Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commanding general here, the announcement said.

The case will be tried as a capital offence. No date has been set for the trial.

. . . And Then There Are the Bed-Pushers

There's Cheese, Cheese And More Cheese At the Dairy Show

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

Judging for the British Empire Dairy Show being held in Belleville this week was launched this morning by three federal dairy graders.

The show, being held in conjunction with the annual Central Ontario Cheese Makers' convention will be open Wednesday and Thursday at the former Lakeland Gas offices on Lower Front Street.

The convention sessions will be held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn also on Wednesday and Thursday with a closing cheesemakers' banquet and dance Thursday evening at the Club Canara.

A total of 168 cheese including 128 large blocks and square cheese are on display at the show display rooms. Eight exhibitors are showing in the stilton class.

In addition to entrants in the regular cheese classes, five distinct factories, Foxboro, Empire, Black River, Eldorado and Beulah, have attractive dairy displays featuring block and packaged cheese.

As has been the custom in recent years, prize cheese will be offered for sale to the general public in any quantity.

Judging of the exhibition cheese is expected to be completed by Tuesday noon in readiness for the show opening on Wednesday.

Area milk committee fieldman Tom Heath of Picton and Bill Moore of Campbellford, were in charge of setting up the cheese show. Judges are dairy graders J. MacMillan of Belleville, Thomas Aiken of London, and Maurice Martin of Kemptville.

Trenton Pilot Killed In Tanzania Crash

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department identified Capt. Gerald J. Carscadden, 36, of Trenton, Ont., as the Canadian instructor killed in the crash of a Tanzanian government aircraft at Dar es Salaam early today.

The accident also took the lives of two Tanzanian student pilots when the plane, a twin-engine Piper Apache, crashed into a bridge.

Capt. Carscadden is survived by his wife Edythe, and two daughters, also of Trenton.

Pushathon

'Dead' Bed Lugged 24 Bleary, Weary Miles

By LENOX WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The bed broke down, but the walkers pushed on . . . to complete a 27-mile tramp from Tweed to Belleville.

At 9 o'clock, they now have about $350 as a start toward The Living Room . . . Especially for Peoples, a new concept in youth centres for young people and adults.

Saturday's pushathon ended at City Hall about 8 p.m. — 12 hours after the group left Belleville by bus for Tweed. There they pot the bedstead together and began the trek that ended 24½ hours later.

The bed gave up the ghost after about three miles, when the bearings in the wheels seized up. So the pushers turned porters and carried the bed for the remaining 24 miles.

They received moral support during their freezing walk from 12 members of the organization, who accompanied the walkers in cars, and dispensed the refreshments donated by city firms.

"I'm impressed with young people who want to do something for themselves," he told them. "If this pushathon is indicative of your interests, you deserve the support of adults. It's time young people did something for themselves, rather than ask for handouts from the community."

With initial funds in hand, and plans under way for future money-raising activities, the group is beginning to look around for accommodation for the centre.

They envision a centre where youth and concerned adults can meet together to bridge the communication gap and find mutual understanding.

Further donations and pledges have been coming in for the Saturday sint.

Anyone wishing to help can do so by contacting members of the group at 962-3615 or 968-5297.

Everybody Loves A Winner

Mrs. Carman Nobes re-arranges some of her husband's many racing trophies at the Auto-Rama Show Saturday and Sunday at Ben Bleecker Auditorium. Several car enthusiasts entered their favorites, hoping to take home the "most popular car" trophy offered as part of the competition.

Auto-Rama Spotlights Custom Car Craftsmen

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

It was a car buff's dream come true.

The scene was the Auto-Rama Show at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium Saturday and Sunday — a close-up study of enthusiasm.

This was Belleville's first big auto show, which offered a trophy for the car voted "most popular" by the visiting public.

Promoter Bert Amyot explained that in addition to the trophy offered for the most popular car, each of the cars entered would be able to claim a trophy as well.

"You can't do more than offer one competition trophy for the most popular car simply because there aren't enough cars to make a "class" competition possible", he added.

One of the local car clubs, the Belleville Road Angels, is hoping to put on the show next year.

"We are hoping to make it an annual event. We have been thinking about doing something like this for a long time, and we think that next year the time will be right," remarked a club spokesman.

Response to the show was quite good — and by the looks of things, next year will be bigger and better.

Trenton Welcomes Santa; 12,000 See Parade

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The annual Santa Claus parade, aimed at drumming up Christmas trade for local retail merchants, scored its biggest success here Saturday.

The procession comprising a variety of 37 colorful entries, including Old St. Nick bringing up the rear, attracted a crowd estimated at 12,000. The turnout, according to veteran observers, was doubled that of previous years.

For the first time the parade followed a different route from the staging area beside the Community Gardens to cross over the new James MacDonald bridge on the way to the downtown shopping section on the west side of the Trent river. The distance the marchers covered was more than twice as far as the direct approach over the Highway 2 span.

But the longer route was needed to accommodate the many additional visitors who swarmed in from nearby centres. The line-ups on both Dundas Street East and Marmora Street even impressed the sponsors.

The youngsters with the grown-ups showed their delight for item after item as they moved along in a carnival atmosphere. No less than six bands provided the music to keep the tempo lively.

Of course, the prize - winning entries received favorable expressions from children before the judges made their decisions. Western horses, ponies and well-groomed dogs, walked by members of the Belleville and District Kennel Club, registered high appeal on the sidelines.

Both were judged as the winning entries and sponsors, Trenton Kiwanis and Trenton Rotary clubs, share first prize for the club class. The Sing Out group and Town of Trenton took first place honors in the respective youth and industrial classes. Hollanddale Nursery received special mention for its effort.

The judges were Jack Goldberg, Phil Pandelas, Ed Sinclair, Col. H. A. Carswell, Mike Mason, Cliff Baker and Eileen Forchuk.

Art Duncan Addresses Rotarians

CAMPBELLFORD — Art Duncan, public relations officer of the Bata Shoe Company Ltd. at Batawa was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon at Riviera Inn. Mr. Duncan has been employed by the Bata Shoe Company for 27 years.

He is well known in the area as a public speaker. He was also president of the Trent Valley hockey league for 12 years and noted he would like to see the league revived.

Mr. Duncan began his address by emphasizing the importance of humor in all walks of life and gave examples of native humor in Canadian and English dialects.

In a more serious vein he spoke of what he termed "undue" criticism of today's youth. "If we are honest we must admit the youth of today are bigger, brighter and stronger. This is what we destined for our children!" he said.

"Youth today has a higher academic standing, a brighter and more healthy outlook of life, and in most cases it is the parents who planned this way of life for them." In time as youthful exuberance mellows the generation gap will have closed to the degree that appreciation of maturity and youth will be recognized by both generations.

Mr. Duncan spoke of democracy in Canada "where if we don't like what is going on we can do something about it" and said, "we get out of life what we put into it."

In relation to Rotarian work Mr. Duncan spoke of a visit to Prague just prior to the Russian invasion and to Vienna where in the surrounding hills they came upon an orphan village efficiently operated for war orphans. The village was built and operated by Rotary International as an example of what Rotary does in a quiet efficient way.

Mr. Duncan was introduced by Rotarian Carman Westlake, manager of the subsidiary branch of Bata Shoe Co. located in Campbellford.

City's Future

The period ahead is a vital one for the people of Belleville as the city accepts the responsibility of steady industrial growth and faces the problems associated with urban renewal, expansion of city services and utilities, its relationship with surrounding townships and communities, and the trend toward regional government.

It is a time for progressive thinking tempered by the kind of experience that will ensure the community remains financially able to meet its commitments. Certainly it is a time for fresh thinking on the community's needs. Prominent among these are the interests of our young people whom council concurs should have the vote at 18.

Not everyone will agree to this (the resolution seeking a lowering of the voting age originated in Owen Sound), but on balance it has many advantages. It could inject new life into an apathetic electorate while at the same time giving the young people a new sense of responsibility. The young today are more involved than any previous generation and their inclusion in the electorate would be recognition of this fact.

The city goes to the polls December 1 and if there is one primary requirement other than what has been touched on above it is the general need to maintain the current rate of progress. Belleville increasingly must become a more attractive place in which to live, for the young whom we know too often find it the opposite — and leave — as well as for those of more mature years resident here most of their lives.

Those offering themselves for council are a blend of youth and experience. Of the current members, some are not seeking re-election and with several freshmen in the running the new administration may well differ markedly from what went before.

There is a contest for the mayoralty between incumbent Dr. J. Russell Scott and Alderman Richard Ellis and of 14 candidates seeking the ten places on Council two are women. It should make for an interesting election and the duty of the public as ever is to show a proper concern for the city's future by their presence at the polls on December 1.

A Sad Affair

If the allegation that United States soldiers massacred 300 Vietnam villagers — most of them old men, women and children — is true, it sounds more as if they were acting under blind obedience of their "search and destroy" orders than out of murderous intent.

The Americans argue that Viet Cong are to be found in all such villages, that leaflets (as in this case) warn the villagers in advance to get out, and that the soldiers have no time to spend searching. Those who are Viet Cong from those who are not.

But if any of the officers involved had used their heads they would have seen that far from harboring Viet Cong these villagers were, as already stated, mostly old men, women and children. That is the word of a young U.S. army sergeant who was with the unit but with five other men refused to take part in the killings.

It is well known that numerous atrocities have been performed by the Communist enemy in Vietnam too, but somehow we do not expect it of the Americans. This is a sad episode in a sad conflict and one which, more than any moratorium or other public demonstration at home, serves to undermine the U.S. presence in Vietnam.

The Work Habit

Dr. Richard Potter's plan to try and encourage work habits among welfare recipients — the "marginally employable" as he terms them — deserves a try.

The scheme, which he outlined in the Ontario legislature last week, would involve both practical counselling and on-the-job activity with employed persons setting an example.

The Quinte member admits it will be an uphill task, encouraging men unaccustomed to work to change their attitudes; but he feels the effort is worthwhile. Such programs have been introduced in Britain and the United States and are getting under way in this country.

Inevitably there will be an element of failure, but among those eligible for such training there must be many who will respond, who need only encouragement to become more useful members of society. Instead of being a charge on the community they will learn to stand on their own feet, while at the same time achieving a new sense of self-respect.

The Generation Gap or...

How Parents Have Lost Control of Their Children

Flora Lewis, in an Article from New York for The Winnipeg Free Press

Putting one and one together (inflation and the phenomenal success of a group of newspapermen who decided to get rich by writing a pornographic best seller), a friend of mine made up her mind to try for big stakes in the literary lottery.

Pornography isn't her cup of tea. She has never been an insider in politics. So she chose the third sure winner as her subject — the generation problem. The field has been flooded with advice to parents, she reasoned, and children everywhere are complaining about their elders. Advice to children on how to deal with parents was bound to be a big hit.

After a great deal of research, she put together an outline and some samples to show a publisher.

1. Parents may be confused, but they are people with their own sensitivities. Yet many children are too busy to give them time and understanding.

Says Marvina, age 15: "I go to school and have to worry about dates and knowing all the latest pop albums and keeping an eye on my jeans before my absent-minded mother tries to put them in the laundry. It's exhausting. When I come home, you'd think my mother would have the fudge cake and cokes ready in my room so I can relax with my friends a little. But instead she grumbles because I couldn't make it to the table for dinner ready and says my records give her migraine."

Adalbert, age 16, is more thoughtful He says: "Mother, I'm sorry you have a headache. I know you feel we are noisy. I have put a camp chair in the garage for you, and as soon as you have served us all, I want you to feel perfectly free to go and sit there in quiet."

Adalbert has no friction. He realizes that parents also need some privacy.

2. Parents need to feel that their children are really concerned about their problems, too. Make an effort to learn something about their interests.

Myron, age 18, has found the way to avoid such damaging upsets. Myron says: "Dad, I accept your right to dress the way you choose, but I just can't take it on an empty stomach. Would you mind having breakfast in your room? By the way, I can't say I really appreciate 'Kiss Me Kate,' but some of these Louis Armstrong records you have are pretty good, and you know, I thought 'Oh What a Lovely War' was great. It had some goodlookers. Now about the car, I realize you need it sometimes. If you will do your share of keeping it washed and let me know your plans, I'm sure we can work out a mutually acceptable schedule."

3. Parents really require support from their children. They don't like to be ordered around, but they will respond in firm rules gently explained.

At a recent PTA meeting, this exchange took place in a way they feel about it, even if they find it hard to say it when their children ask.

Mrs. A.: "My bridge club got hung up planning a trip to Miami Beach. I don't like Miami Beach and I didn't want to go, but everybody said I was a spoilsport. I asked my children what they thought, and they said 'Do what you like, Ma, we're not going to impose our standards on you.' I don't think they care what I do. They're always preoccupied and never pay any attention to me."

Mrs. B.: "My children explained that I had to think ahead and do my own thing, so I went with the pack. They said they wouldn't try to prevent me from going, but then it would be up to me to figure out how to pay for next month's groceries. When they're my age, I realize they won't be going to Miami Beach and I have to admit they're right. They suggested I take paint lessons instead, and all they asked was that I let them know so they wouldn't worry if I didn't get the beds made."

My friend also planned chapters on marital sex, parental attitudes to family budgets, social success, and work habits. But she gave up the project. Every publisher she went to turned her down flat. There's no market, they told her. Who wants to know how to get along with his parents?

A PAIR OF WHITE ELEPHANTS

The Province and Assessment Services

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

It is hardly surprising that the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves is concerned about the scheduled provincial takeover of assessment services. On January 1, it is one more instance of the erosion of municipal authority taking place today.

For far too long it has been obvious that every municipality has its own yardstick for property assessment. In some, assessment seems to have been based on one-third of market value, on others one half or two-thirds. Aware of the lack of a standard, the Ontario department of municipal affairs has been pressing municipalities to change to the new manual which calls for assessment at market value. But few municipalities — Cornwall is in this bracket — have complied to date.

However it is unlikely that this tardiness alone was the basis for the Ontario government's decision. Regionalization is a more likely answer. But what is confusing to us and must also be confusing to municipal governments is the fact there seems to be no real guidelines on the size of regional units.

For instance the region of school boards are the first step in the switch. But in the case of this area, the region involved is the Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. Logically one would think the regional assessment office would be set up on the same basis. But it is larger, containing Prescott and Russell Counties as well. And the health unit for the area also follows the latter format.

Another possible reason for the change is government dissatisfaction with the performance of municipal governments in general. It is no secret that most councils have been carrying their wailing towels to Toronto quite regularly, demanding larger grants, increased welfare subsidies, relief from education costs and the like.

They have been told bluntly on more than one occasion that they must live within their means. But how do you do this? The provincial and federal governments haven't made a very good stab at it either.

What seems to be happening is that the Ontario government on the one hand is giving lip service to the concept that autonomy or freedom of action be encouraged at the municipal level, and on the other is taking away this municipal autonomy as fast as it can.

Firm Plans Homes For Low-Income Families

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — And now, instant housing, inexpensive too...

So suggests Truscan Custom Homes Ltd., which says its types of factory - built houses are practical for northern areas and comes as low as $4,000 a year.

Carl W. Johnson, Truscan president, says the new concept will provide complete, systems-engineered homes for as little as $8,000. They could be erected in any serviced lot by four qualified men in three days.

Displaying models of the houses here, he said they were developed for families who want to own their own homes but are unable to do so because of the high cost of conventional private housing. His idea is designed to appeal to families with annual incomes of between $4,000 and $10,000.

Mr. Johnson says one feature enabling the houses to be assembled quickly is a locking device joining the component parts. The device also permits flexibility, with the result that the building may be enlarged by simply adding extensions.

Although Truscan is operating now on a pilot - program basis, it says its decision to enter into large - scale production and distribution from a plant here hinges on a hoped - for industrial incentive grant from the federal government.

Mr. Johnson says the building system and components developed for the houses permit a wide range of one- and two-storey structures for any area, including major urban centres and for shipment overseas.

Some of the components include reinforced plastic exterior siding and wood panelling interior finish.

Now—Freight Too!

From HANSARD

(Parliamentary Debates)

Hon. George Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings): Mr Speaker, in view of the fact that the volume of railway freight traffic, which is an accurate indicator of the state of the economy, is running 10 per cent below what it was a year ago and steadily declining, I should like to ask the Prime Minister whether, since he learned of this fact a week ago from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics report of October 28, he has instructed the Minister of Finance and the Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce to prepare measures to stimulate the economy so we do not gradually head into a recession from which it may be very difficult to extricate ourselves?

Right Hon. P. E. Trudeau (Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, I have not been briefed about this matter since last week; perhaps I should seek to inform my staff so as to be better briefed.

Mr. Hees: Mr. Speaker, in order to bring the Prime Minister up to date on matters with which he should be familiar, perhaps I might suggest that his staff is the only one exempt from cut-backs on expenditures.

Opposition No Threat

Drop in PM's Popularity Fails to Upset Supporters

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — There was more relief than anything else professed among Prime Minister Trudeau's aides at the latest public opinion poll showing some disenchantment with the prime minister.

A continuation of Mr. Trudeau's high 1968 popularity would have meant the survival of false hopes that the prime minister is some kind of saviour one aide said.

"If the poll hadn't shown a drop, we'd be worried," he added.

This is a rather novel attitude to political polls. Prime ministers Diefenbaker and Pearson used to wax ecstatic over favorable polls but dismiss the unfavorable ones as wildly inaccurate.

The Conservatives today are also pretty frank about what the polls show or don't show.

Frank Moores, president of the national Progressive Conservative association and MP for Bonavista-Trinity-Conception, says Canadians are disastisfied with Mr. Trudeau but that they haven't become enthusiastic about the Conservatives or any other opposition group.

Mr. Moores says it is only natural that Mr. Trudeau's "personal popularity" is wearing off after 18 months in office.

The Conservatives have been casting about for means of picking up the political slack left dangling by the Liberals.

Some say they believe their leader, Robert Stanfield, should stay away from impromptu television interviews and instead concentrate on a series of small, private meetings across the country.

Mr. Stanfield, like Mr. Pearson, shines in such small gatherings.

The Conservatives are looking for a public relations man who can give Mr. Stanfield a leg up toward the prime ministership.

Two men they have approached so far are Tom Sloan, professor of journalism at Laval University and former reporter for the Globe and Mail of Toronto, and Bernard Ostry, a member of the government task force on information and a former CBC producer.

Model Car Racers Zoomed While Chessmen Locked Wits

Racing Buffs Ready Their Cars

A Little Different Action

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Despite the modern day emphasis on physical fitness and participation in sports events, action sports are just not everyone's cup of tea.

It was just for such children that a special tournament for model auto racing and chess enthusiasts was held Saturday at Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School in Belleville.

More than 120 boys and girls from elementary schools in the county, some from as far away as Bancroft, took part in the all day tournament, which saw winners decided late in the afternoon.

Sponsoring the tournament was El. Palmateer, principal of Sir MacKenzie school and the school's slot car club.

"We hope eventually to make it an inter-school event" commented Mr. Palmateer. "Not all school children are the athletic type who enjoy action sports".

Saturday's tournament saw 78 boys and girls enter the model auto racing events, while 42 competed in the chess tournament.

The event was also successful from the financial standpoint. The youthful participants devoured a total of 320 hot dogs and drank more than 200 pints of milk.

Prizes for the top 30 contestants in the auto racing included custom - built racer models, tickets for the sports auto show at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium, and ballpoint pens.

The top three chess players received chess sets.

Oval track racing attracted its fair percentage of enthusiasts but the big interest of the youthful model racers was in drag racing.

Winners in class "A" drag racing were: (1 with Ken Whiteman of Sir Mackenzie Bowell School, (12 volt) Graham Vader also of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and oval track Kenneth Wooton.

Nick Barrett of Queen Alexandra school was winner of the class "A" chess event. Tom Wilkinson of the same school won the class "B" event, while Wayne Bates of King George school had most points in the "C" event.

It's Your Move ...

Youtheatre Counting Down For Its Own Moon Shot

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

With only two days remaining before opening night of Belleville's first youtheatre production, Dark of the Moon, activity is becoming hectic at the Theatre Guild's Pinnacle Playhouse.

But the show is ready for performance on Wednesday. Curtain rises at 8:15 p.m., culminating months of hard work for approximately 50 city young people.

Every phase of the show, from production to design to technical arrangement to music to acting, has been co-ordinated and completed by members of youtheatre.

And it has been quite a chore. The set for the play was designed by Lindsey Hallam as were the costumes for the large cast that appears in Dark of the Moon.

Even the production staff has been formed by young theatre buffs, Jo - Ann Wiwczaruk, a student at Moira Secondary School, is producer of Dark of the Moon.

A highlight of the play could be the visual and sound effects worked out by resident director Roy Higgins and his youtheatre technicians, led by Dave Fisher and Chris Steenburg.

Thunder and lightning are examples of the affects that have been worked out for the production.

So successful is Dark of the Moon that each performance of the play is well on its way to being sold out.

Wednesday night will see theatrical people from Kingston and Toronto in attendance, Representatives from the department of education in Toronto will be watching the production with interest.

Dark of the Moon is based on a folksong recorded by Joan Baez — The Ballad of Barbara Allen.

The story surrounds a disastrous, romantic entanglement between a witch-boy and a human girl, played by Robert Dafoe and Sheila Jourard.

The play is set in the hill country of the United States and the characters are those of that country — complete with homebrew and footstompin' music.

The production will run for two weeks and if it retains its successful trend, may go on for a third week.

Kinsmen Walkathon Raises $1600

PICTON (Staff) — A walkathon organized by the Picton Kinsmen Club raised more than $1,600 last weekend for donation to the Salvation Army summer camp at Roblin Lake.

Leaving Prince Edward Collegiate Institute at 9 a.m., about 115 walkers, most of them elementary school students, marched up Main Street on the first lap of their hike. After passing the town limits the walkers continued to Waring's Corners, followed the Scoharie Road to Highway 14, then proceeded in Bloomfield. From Bloomfield village participants in the walkathon returned to Picton, tramping down Highway 33.

The first walker to arrive in Picton was Paul Cory, a student of PECI. He clocked in at 11:35 and was followed by fellow workers who continued to straggle into town until 5 p.m.

Only eight of the original starters failed to finish.

The credit for this record according to Kinsmen Leon McQuaid, goes mostly to Fred Connors, an enthusiastic Kinsman who walked back and forth from checkpoint to checkpoint gathering up stragglers and cheering them on. Supervising the walkers were 15 members of the Kinsmen Club, two of them sponsored walkers. Also assisting in the walkathon were two members of the Picton detachment of the OPP who patrolled the route most of the day.

Summing up, Mr. McQuaid felt that despite the chilly day it had been a success.

$10,000 in 'Smokes' Stolen

According to Police Chief Doug Crosbie, the break-in occurred sometime between 5:30 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. Saturday.

He said that 55 cases of cigarettes valued at approximately $10,000, were reported missing.

Entry was gained by forcing an unused door and by kicking open a storeroom door. The only damage was to the doors.

Chief Crosbie said a fairly large truck was probably used to carry away the cigarettes.

"It sounds very professional" he said, stating that police were still investigating the incident.

A second break-in and theft over the weekend resulted in the loss of four rifles, valued at $452., and a bottle of champagne.

The entry occurred at the residence of F. R. Huff, at 6 Lee Avenue sometime between 6:30 p.m. Saturday and 1:40 a.m. Sunday.

Police suspect that entry was gained through some unlocked windows at the residence as there were no signs of forced entry.

She's A Bookworm's Best Friend

PICTON (Staff) — One little, two little, three little bookworms sat at Janet Lunn's feet in Wellington Public Library Saturday morning. The semi-circle of boys and girls grew until approximately 15 children gathered to listen to their brand new "story-teller."

Mrs. Lunn, for many years a reviewer of children's books and more recently an author, was conducting her first story hour at the village library. From 10:30 a.m. until 11 a.m. she reads stories and rhymes to entertain very young listeners. She uses attractive picture books to show the side she has chosen to read. Beginning at 11 a.m. is a half-hour of fun with fact and fiction for older members of the children's library.

Mrs. Lunn wrote the children's book, Double Spell, which has been well received by her young readers. With her husband, Richard, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, she co-authored The County, a historical background of Prince Edward. Mrs. Lunn seemed to score a hit with her listeners last Saturday. She will return to the Wellington library next week for another hour of tale spinning.

Car Thieves Swap Autos

Body shop operator, Douglas DeMille of Bloomfield Road, however, gained a 1963 Chevrolet, stolen from Toronto last weekend.

The Volkswagen, stolen from the Bowerman and Chantz carlot on Nov. 21 was recovered yesterday in Toronto by the Metropolitan Police Force.

The car was found abandoned in Toronto's Parkland Cemetery. Picton police say the car thief of thieves probably arrived here driving the stolen Chevrolet abandoned it, then took the Volkswagen for the return drive to Toronto.

Police are still investigating.

Travelogue Films Viewed By B and P Women's Club

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville recently held its monthly meeting at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel. The guest of the evening, representing a local travel centre was Frank Gooch. He showed two travelogue movies on Hong Kong and Japan and the coming Expo'70 in Osaka.

Mr. Gooch explained how East Asia was changing constantly. He had lived there for a few years and stated on each returning visit he finds these changes taking place rapidly. He believes with so many people travelling these days it helps to bring people of all nations together.

The population of East Asia earns a bare minimum to survive in contrast to North America's affluent society. These nations must work so hard for a mere existance.

In Hong Kong; family life is very strict and father is the head of the family in every sense of the word; as in other Asian cities.

In Japan, marriages are still arranged by the families, even the poorest girls save for a big wedding such as renting their national costumes. Every branch of the family attends the wedding, making the event a large family reunion.

Tokyo is a city of crowds; it even has an employed person called a pusher to push the rush hour subway commuters into the trains.

The Japanese person is very industrious, working for a low income but still feels a personal obligation to his firm, family and country.

The country itself is the largest producer of steel and owns the world's largest tankers on behalf of nations shipping firms.

Mr. Gooch was thanked by Mrs. Brown.

A collection was taken up for a needy family for the Christmas basket.

Colombe Both and Jeane Stephenson will attend the People's Forum on Federalism in Toronto on behalf of the club. Fred Davis is to be the moderator on the afternoon panel.

The club's Christmas meeting will be held December 8 at the Sun Valley. Members are asked to remember the Touch and Take Table and will also exchange gifts at this time.

GUEST ARTIST — Lynn Seymour, making her fourth guest appearance with the National Ballet of Canada, will be dancing in the ultra-modern Kraanerg. A native of Leamington, Miss Seymour describes herself as a free-lance dancer. She says dancing in a ballet such as Kraanerg is quite different than a traditional one because there is no rhythm you can hang on to in a percussive way. (CP Photo)

Two Types of Ballet

Ballerina Guest of National Group

TORONTO (CP) — Ballerina Lynn Seymour is making her fourth guest appearance with the National Ballet of Canada in two sharply contrasting types of ballet.

She has come to her native Canada from Berlin to appear during the company's fall season in Toronto in La Sylphide and the ultra-modern Kraanerg. She and Georges Piletta of the Paris Opera Ballet will be repeating the lead roles in Kraanerg as they created them at the ballet's world premiere at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa in June.

Miss Seymour says she believes ballet needs more modern work.

"I think it has to change—I don't think it changes enough. The public has to be educated to accept it and like it. People do get the classics rammed down their throats, and they think that is ballet, but every other art form is going ahead, and ballet will be left behind if it does not change."

Miss Seymour is a native of Vancouver who left her parents still live. She joined the London Royal Ballet School in 1954 and became a member of the company in 1956. In 1966 she joined the Berlin Opera Ballet. Now she describes herself as a free-lance dancer.

After her Toronto appearance ends Nov. 29, she will work with the Berlin company for a month. Then she goes for a month with a company in Marseille. After that her plans are indefinite, though she says she hopes to appear in Vancouver in April with a new company.

She lives in Berlin with her husband, Eike Waltz, and their 14-month-old twin sons.

She says she finds the National company a good one to work with, and that moving from company to company exposes no special problems.

"They've improved enormously. Every time I'm back I'm astounded. It's a marvelous company to work with. The atmosphere is good.

"Productions vary in different companies, but dancers are a huge family, and they seem to be the same all over the world."

Miss Seymour says she has no definite plans for after her dancing days.

"I'd like to have more family, add in the population explosion. And I'd like to teach because I find it fascinating to analyse dance. The thing that separates dance from a sports form is that people have analyzed movement and broken it down. A teacher has to do that and then demonstrate what she means."

Cunard Cookbook Written

LONDON (CP) — High among the pleasures of a transatlantic ocean crossing are the opulent meals of shipboard life and the leisured anticipation which precedes them.

Every steamship prides itself on its food—few more than Cunard, which has been pampering passengers' tastebuds since Sam Cunard of Halifax pioneered the Atlantic liner in 1840. Now the seagoing chefs unveil their secrets for the landbound housewife in Cunard Cook Book-Blue Riband Cookery, published by J. M. Dent of London.

Author Carol Wright had an enviable research job researching the Atlantic on the old Queen Elizabeth and making two cruises on the Carmania and Franconia to sample dishes in their sea setting. Many of the dishes she interviewed have spent half a lifetime on Cunard liners from the four-hundred-guinea menus to the modernistic Queen Elizabeth 2.

Miss Wright, daughter of a liner captain and wife of a London publisher, also hunted old menus out of the dusty Cunard archives and tried out a few recipes herself.

"I figured that if the rest had been tested by the chefs, that was good enough for me," she said at the book's publication party.

The 200 recipes range from tips on how to cut decorative potato flowers and prepare professional sauces and glazes to echoes of a luxurious past —roast turkey with truffles as served on the Berengaria at Christmas, 1923, or chicken stuffed with foie gras and served with a curry cream sauce, a favorite of King Edward VII.

At this opulent end of the scale, Miss Wright notes that the Cunard Line still is the world's largest single buyer of caviar.

"Strangely enough, many of the celebrities who graced the old Queens preferred plain British cooking to the most elaborate Escoffier-inspired items od the five-page menus.

Lord Beaverbrook loved steak and kidney pie, as do Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton. Noel Coward, who in pre-war days would turn up in lunch wearing a different-colored blazer each day, invariably ordered "bangers and mash"—sausages and creamed potatoes.

Sophie Tucker filled her big frame with that staple of the English nursery, rice pudding, while the beautiful Kay Kendall had a yen for roast pie, the British housewife's standby for using up the cold roast.

Some passengers, however, liked to indulge in the jibi. Husky movie star Victor Mature could put away an entire 10-pound turkey at a sitting and shortly afterwards order cold meat and salad in his cabin. He once signed an autograph for chef Bill Ransom, now on the Franconia: "As I've said before, your cooking is almost as great as sex."

Eating on the Atlantic has become a long way since the 1840s when salt pork was a staple and fresh milk—for women and children only—came from a cow tethered in a padded cell in the hold. The cow was frequently seasick.

The heyday of fine eating belonged to the white-tie-and-tails era between the two world wars, when a first-class passenger on the Aquitania could choose from a dinner menu containing all three hors d'oeuvres; six soups; four kinds of fish; six entrees; four grills; two potato; six roasts; nine vegetables; eight salads; 11 desserts and ices; five savories.

Today, in keeping with modern economy and smaller appetites, dinner menus on the QE2 have shrunk to one-third that size.

The book conveys its transatlantic flavor with North American favorites like clam chowder as well as French and English classic dishes. One recipe of interest to Canadians is Escalope de Veau Carmania, served at a centennial dinner aboard that ship in Montreal in 1867.

Another consistently successful dish on Cunard menus, and extremely easy to prepare, is Gazpacho, the cold salad soup invented in Spain. The recipes for both are given below:

Escalope de Veau Carmania: Flatten and season with salt and pepper. Allow escalopes of veal. Dip in flour and fry in hot butter until cooked and lightly browned on each side. Arrange on a serving dish and coat with the sauce below:

Sauce: Finely chop a shallot and fry with one ounce butter until lightly browned. Add half a clove of finely chopped garlic. Cook together for 30 seconds. Add one pound or a pound of mushrooms thinly sliced, one green pepper cut in quarter-inch dice, four ounces lean fresh ham cut in dice, a half-teaspoon chopped parsley and a half-teaspoon chopped tarragon and chervil mixed. Cook together for two to three minutes then add one gill sherry. Boil until liquor content is reduced by half then add one gill meat stock to simmer for 15-20 minutes to reduce. Thicken as required with a little cornstarch diluted in water. Serves four.

Gazpacho (serves four to six): Ingredients: 2 cans tomato juice; 2 cans V8 juice; one pound peeled, seeded and finely chopped tomatoes; half-pound finely cut cucumber; two ounces finely cut green peppers; two ounces finely cut red peppers; four ounces finely chopped onions; one ounce finely chopped beetroot; half-ounce finely chopped parsley; lemon juice; pinch tarragon; chopped chives; salt and pepper; quarter-pint olive oil; two tablespoons white wine vinegar; one minced clove garlic.

Well mix all ingredients together in a large bowl—glass, not metal—leaving out the cucumber. Chill for at least two hours. Add cucumber before serving.

Church Groups

MARYSVILLE CWL

The November meeting of the Marysville CWL was held in the church following Mass November 18.

It was decided that the Christmas meeting will be held December 9 in the school with gifts not to exceed $1 to be exchanged.

An invitation was extended to all mothers and interested women to attend the afternoon session on Achievement Day in Gilead Hall November 22, as it is an opportunity to see what the girls have accomplished in 4-H work.

On Sunday evening a delicious potluck supper was held in the hall under the convenorship of Mrs. Fred Farrell. Prizes were given to the youngest child present, to two celebrating birthdays and also a door prize.

Father W. A. Dwyre thanked all of those responsible for the excellent meal. Guest speaker Father Jim Farrell S. J. a native of Marysville had come to stimulate interest in mission work as part of the program on concern. He showed slides of missions in India, Africa and Northern Ontario. The audience had a chance to see how Canadian funds had helped in the building of schools, roads, wells and in the purchasing of farm equipment.

The priests and sisters teach the natives to read, write, learn a trade and in some cases handle machinery. So much more help is needed as evident by the primitive equipment, poor housing and living conditions of millions of the people.

Mrs. Don McLaren thanked Father Farrell for his most interesting commentary and presented a cheque from the CWL to assist him in his work in the missions.

University Club Hears Talk by Dr. E. Peterkin

"What is Woman?" queried Dr. Edith Peterkin, Chief of Paediatrics at Belleville General Hospital as she addressed the Belleville and District University Women's Club at a regular meeting held at Corby Public Library.

She further questioned, "Is she Indira Gandhi Prime Minister of India, concerned about the unequal distribution of wealth? Is she a middle-class woman caring for home, baking and sewing for her group's teas and bazaars? Is she Mother Theresa, now in India, who spends her days helping to gather and bury the bodies of those who died on the streets in the night? Is she Lady Barbara Ward Jackson, advisor to Popes, who has spoken to councils of churches? Is she Carolina Jesu who lives in the slums? Or is she a graduate nurse, a Sister in Brazil, one of the girls in the James Bond world, a fashion plate or one of those in world gossip news?"

In answering these questions the speaker stated that it is dangerous to generalize; cliches about woman in particular or anything illustrate the prejudices of the speaker.

She went on to say that the modern woman depicted by "I want to me; I want to be fulfilled" is often pursuing personal goals ayond from and possibly detrimental to her family. This woman is envious and resentful of the man's world and his achievements.

Simone de Beauvoir, one of the many authors to whom Dr. Peterkin referred deplores that women seriously is either a pedestal of virtue or cast down with all evil at her feet.

She continued "One needs a sense of history and humor when referring to woman as often described in the Bible. Though St. Paul is often maligned for his supposed anti-feminist attitude, yet in early Christian church there was a place for the widow, for the deaconess. Men tend to fill the world with labor whereas women fill it with caring. Any person with a soul and body can have courage, show heroic strength or be humble and lowly. "Woman's feelings and anonymity are vital.

"Though there are fewer women of genius, yet human relationships are not an engineering process. Is Infant deprived of mother love, mourns more at the loss than at any other age. There is a creative process transmitted by the mother to the child that being a more important than doing." said Dr. Peterkin.

"Christendom as Christendom was in no more. Theology on the campus has been dethroned. The world community is waiting for theologically enlightened women; not secularly learned but religiously illiterate. We need the woman poet, musician, artist and those who know the value of a sprig of lilac, those who dare to deepen the questions before us, who live at the cutting edge of life at the point of breakthrough. In this age of conformity we must hold fast to our own convictions.

A Sister in New France who devoted her life to caring for others said on her deathbed, I have nothing left, it has all been given away. Such is the ultimate of feminine existence", the speaker concluded.

Following her talk Dr. Peterkin answered a number of questions and invited the group to view the books on which she had based her address.

The speaker who was introduced by Mrs. W. A. Thomas was thanked by Mrs. N. J. Johnston.

Happy Diversions for Increased Leisure Time

By DORIS CLARK

Man's leisure is not to be confused with time on one's hands, the product of unemployment or adversity. Now travel, sport, study, even such everyday pleasures as dining out, are enjoyed by the masses in many countries.

Social scientists are inquiring into what man does with his free time and come up with such choices as:

1. The arts of solitude: reading, going places, seeing things, meditation;

2. The arts of social life: manners, being sociable, letter writing, playing with children, courtship and loving;

3. The arts of civilization: song, exercise, self-improvement, conversation, making believe, making things, growing things, doing good.

In the more merchandized civilizations (with their increased stresses), choices are being made with greater frequency in favor of returning to nature, to the physical and mental relaxation of outdoor games, to do-it-yourself activities, and to the vicarious conflict, victory and defeat of spectator sports, which bring excitement and emotional release to millions — ILO Panorama.

What we do with our increasing leisure time has a heap to do with the kind of people we become. We need happy diversions: the kind that intrigue and absorb us.

If you haven't got a do-it-yourself hobby, or a game to play, or even a regular walk to take, get one!

Dear Doris: I would like a copy of Mother Shipton's prophecies. All I know I heard from my mother-in-law. She prophesied things like "chariots without horses", and "ships in the sky will fly".

I never miss your column. Folks write in with problems like mine and get the answers which are very helpful to me. — Hoping

Dear Hoping: Mother Shipton, believed to be a prophetess, was born near Knaresborough, Yorkshire, England, in 1488. Her predictions appeared in a pamphlet in 1641, and "The Life and Deathed Mother Shipton" was published by Richard Head in 1667.

Among other things, she foresaw the English Civil War of the mid 17th century, the Great London Fire of 1666, and the end of the world (which was supposed to happen in 1881).

If there are still any copies of the pamphlet or the book, they are probably in the British Museum.

* * *

Dear Doris: If I did not sew, I wouldn't be able to manage on the money my husband gives me. At Christmas I am proud when I am able to get something nice for all my children. Then my husband looks at the presents and says "That is why I am not very fat! You are throwing all my money away." He says, "You always get new clothes for the children. Nobody buys something for me."

If I say I would do it if he gave me some money, his answer is, "If I had the money I'd buy it myself."

This goes on and on. I know I can't change him. Nobody ever could, but how can I live with him to the end of my time? — Trouble Over Money.

Dear Trouble: Money may not be the root of all evil, but it is certainly the villain in many a domestic melodrama. Sometimes I wonder whether there wouldn't be something else to quarrel about, if the money worries were wiped out. In Barrie's play, "Dear Brutus", the idea is expressed that one need not blame his poor behavior on his bad luck; and that even the millionaire will pilfer pennies if he's that kind of a person.

I'd say you manage pretty well; but try not to make money the most important consideration in your household. If you can't change the man you live with, try making him see a sunny side of life that has nothing to do with dollars and cents.

Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Scottish Tea Cakes Easy to Make

By MARY MOORE

This recipe is more than five years late. A Scottish reader wrote to me in the early sixties asking me to reproduce a sample sqkare she had enclosed in her envelope. She had bought it at a bakery operated by a Scottish gentleman in Canada and said you could buy them in any bakeshop in Scotland. I sent her a recipe for fruit squares but not until now did it dawn on me that today's recipe is what she was after.

I hope she is still one of our readers.

DUNDEE TEA CAKES
(9 x 9" pan)

NOTE: These are easy to make.

½ cup margarine or butter (room temperature)
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
2 eggs
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour (I used "instant" and sifting was not necessary)
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. nutmeg
¾ cup fruit-cake-fruits (alternatives see below)
¼ cup raisins

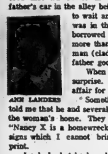
GLAZE

Into beater bowl measure margarine (or butter), sugar, vanilla and eggs and beat until light. Then add flour, baking powder, salt, nutmeg and fruits (see below) and beat until blended. Line bottom of a 9 x 9" square pan with buttered wax paper and pour in batter and smooth top, pushing it into corners. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 25-30 min. or until pale gold. Turn out on rack and peel off wax paper. Cool. Turn right side up and spread with GLAZE made with mixture of ¼ cup icing sugar, 2 tsps. water and ¼ tsp. lemon extract or ½ tsp. lemon juice. Let set. Cut into squares or bars.

NOTES: 1) Instead of fruit-cake-fruits you may use ¼ cup each of candied cherries, candied pineapple and citron peel. 2) Dundee Tea Cakes freeze well uncut and freezer-wrapped. They travel perfectly.

Ann Landers

Son Plans Revenge For Dad's Infidelity



ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our teen-age son recently discovered that his father is having an affair. Barry spotted his father's car in the alley behind Mrs. X's residence. He decided to wait and make certain it was his dad who was in the house and not someone who had borrowed the car. Unfortunately, Barry got more than he bargained for. He saw the woman (clad in a transparent negligee) kiss his father good-by in the doorway.

When Barry told me about it, I feigned surprise. Actually, I had been aware of the affair for several months.

Something shocking has occurred. Barry told me that he and several of his friends are planning to picket the woman's house. They are preparing signs which read: "Secretary X is a homewrecker and a tramp," plus a few other signs which I cannot bring myself to write and you couldn't print.

I asked what he hoped to accomplish. He replied, "I want to get even with Dad and teach him a lesson." I'm sick about this and I hope you will side with me and persuade the boy to forget it. — HEADACHE.

* * *

DEAR H.: "Getting even" is the poorest motive I know of. Remind your son that he who throws dirt loses ground.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently someone asked you to repeat your definition of success. He said the clipping he had carried in his wallet had turned yellow with age. He promised to encase the reprint in plastic.

And now will you do me a favor? Your definition for maturity is one of the best things I've ever read. My copy is dog-eared and smudgy illegible. If you will reprint it, I, too, promise to have it encased in plastic. How about it, Ann?

S. F. ADMIRER.

DEAR S.F.: That definition for success was written by Ralph Waldo Emerson. Here is my definition for maturity:

Maturity is the ability to control anger and settle differences without violence or destruction.

Maturity is patience, the willingness to pass up immediate pleasure in favor of the long-term gain.

Maturity is perseverance, the ability to sweat out a project or a situation in spite of opposition and discouraging setbacks.

Maturity is unselfishness — responding to the needs of others, often at the expense of one's own desires or wishes.

Maturity is the capacity to face unpleasantness and frustration, discomfort and defeat, without complaint or collapse.

Maturity is humility. It is being big enough to say, "I was wrong." And, when right, the mature person need not say, "I told you so."

Maturity is the ability to make a decision and stand by it. The immature spend their lives exploring endless possibilities, then do nothing.

Maturity means dependability, keeping one's word, coming through in the crisis. The immature are masters of the alibi — confused and disorganized. Their lives are a maze of broken promises, former friends, unfinished business and good intentions which never materialize.

Maturity is the art of living in peace with that which we cannot change — ANN LANDERS.

Points for Parents

By MARY SKYSON

Mother: "Janie has always been so extravagant. I don't suppose she'll ever learn to manage her money. She makes me think of her Aunt Mary. She was the same way all her life. Money seemed to burn a hole in her pocket."

Mother: "Lots of young people get carried away and buy things they should do without, but they learn by their mistakes. I'm sorry you will have to wear your blue dress to the party but I really can't give you any more clothes allowance this month."

Children tend to live up to the roles cast for them by their parents. Janie is more likely to learn about budgeting if she doesn't grow up thinking of herself as a "natural born extravagant person."

WEAVERS' GUILD

The November meeting of the Weavers' Guild met at the home of Mrs. McAuley, 344 Victoria Avenue last Wednesday evening. In the absence of the president, Mrs. C. Hayes chaired the meeting.

There was an excellent turn out of members at the several visitors. After the usual reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report the business was transacted, Re a project on the loom, and the forthcoming Christmas party was discussed. Mrs. R. Godden and Mrs. A. Gilroy took over the program. The former dealt with many of the aspects of basic weaving and the latter the various terms. The working of the loom was explained.

Mrs. Godden displayed several pieces of weaving.

Votes of thanks were tendered the hostess and the speakers by Mrs Hayes and Miss Helen Gordon. A lunch served by the hostess brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

Mo-Hawk Success Costly to Crescents

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

OWEN SOUND — This OHA Senior A hockey weekend was strictly a case of Belleville Mo-Hawks adding insult to injury.

A 6-4 road win over Owen Sound here Sunday night, together with a home 4-1 verdict over the slipping Crescents Friday jammed the Mo-Hawks into a third - place tie in the eight - team loop with Barrie Flyers and Oakville Oaks.

But the results were more demoralizing for the Crescents than the loss of four points could ever accomplish.

A third - period collision with Ralph Plaxe sent forward star Dave McComb off the ice in a stretcher with a painful leg injury. Friday night, a rechecked shot off Davey Jones' stick with only two minutes remaining had sent Crescents' goaltending stalwart Chuck Jewell to hospital with his second concussion in two weeks.

"Chuck is done for the season — on doctor's orders," Crescents' manager Jack Stoddard lamented last night. Saturday x-rays in Belleville General Hospital revealed Jewell — one of the few bright spots in the relocated Collingwood entry — suffered broken bones in his forehead and nose.

Last year's Barrie backup goalkeeper Bob Saunders was between the pipes last night as the Crescents skated to a 2-1 first - period lead. Owen Sound goalies changed in the second period and so did the team's fortunes.

* * *

Rexe had to be sharp in the opening 20 minutes while his mates were getting the bus fume cobwebs cleared out.

The first Owen Sound goal by Hamley came after Rexe had stopped four goalmouth shots. Later in the period, he dealt Bill Abbott a blank on a clean - cut breakaway and then stopped Dave McComb's rebound before his defencemen arrived on the scene.

Some plain and fancy linejuggling paid handsome dividends for playing-coach Davey Jones, who spotted himself after the early part of the first period.

Armour coolnbaited, the eventual winning tally on a perfect sharp - angle tip - in of "Weiner" Brown's point blast near the end of the second period.

The Godson - O'Donnell - Ferguson "breeze - and - bat-ter" line accounted for a pair of goals. Rugged forechecking by Lorne O'Donnell in the Owen Sound end while penalty - killing with George Godson accounted for the most - deserved tally.

O'Donnell battled the puck away from two Crescents and slid it out in the slot to Godson, who rapped a low 10-footer past Becker despite being partially blocked out by an Owen Sound defender.

O'Donnell's unassisted empty net goal came after Becker was pulled for an extra attacker with 40 seconds remaining, and clinched the Mo-Hawks seven - game unbeaten string.

Four minutes earlier, Ralph Plaxe won the Sunday night middleweight championship of Owen Sound by splitting Wes Rydal's brash young lip after the two came out of a corner entanglement scrapping.

A sore shoulder plaguing him since the second week of the schedule didn't have any apparent effect on the Mo - Hawk captain's roundhouse right.

Rydal's eagerness to come back for more earned him a misconduct penalty in addition to the five - minute fighting majors he and Plaxe drew. Both benches emptied but no other bouts resulted.

A Friday night home win over Oakville Oaks would extend the Mo - Hawks' undefeated skein to eight games and keep them in third-place contention.

ICE CHIPS — Utility man Jack Wilson was given his release by Jones over the weekend . . . . Sunday's "third line" saw Gary Dalliday centering Ralph Plaxe and "Weiner" Brown's point blast near the end of the second period.

The Godson - O'Donnell - Ferguson "breeze - and - bat-ter" line accounted for a pair of goals. Rugged forechecking by Lorne O'Donnell in the Owen Sound end while penalty - killing with George Godson accounted for the most - deserved tally.

O'Donnell battled the puck away from two Crescents and slid it out in the slot to Godson, who rapped a low 10-footer past Becker despite being partially blocked out by an Owen Sound defender.

Lou is expected to join former "MAC" teammates Floyd Crawford, goalie Gordie Bell and Jean-Paul Lamirande in Thursday night's game against the famous team of Catholic priests who have raised over $150,000 for charitable causes.

Mo-Hawk Success Costly to Crescents

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

OWEN SOUND — This OHA Senior A hockey weekend was strictly a case of Belleville Mo-Hawks adding insult to injury.

A 6-4 road win over Owen Sound here Sunday night, together with a home 4-1 verdict over the slipping Crescents Friday jammed the Mo-Hawks into a third - place tie in the eight - team loop with Barrie Flyers and Oakville Oaks.

But the results were more demoralizing for the Crescents than the loss of four points could ever accomplish.

A third - period collision with Ralph Plane sent forward star Dave McComb off the ice in a stretcher with a painful leg injury. Friday night, a ricocheted shot off Davey Jones' stick with only two minutes remaining had sent Crescents' goaltending stalwart Chuck Jewell to hospital with his second concussion in two weeks.

"Chuck is done for the season — on doctor's orders," Crescents' manager - coach Jack Stoddard lamented last night. Saturday x-rays in Belleville General Hospital revealed Jewell — one of the few bright spots in the relocated Collingwood entry — suffered broken bones in his forehead and nose.

Last year's Barrie backup goalkeeper Bob Saunders was between the pipes last night as the Crescents skated to a 2-1 first - period lead. Owen Sound goalies changed in the second period and at the end of the team's fortunes.

Four goals poured by intermediate backstop Gord Becker as the Mo-Hawks shook the 2 - mile bus trip out of their systems.

* * *

Rexe had to be sharp in the opening 20 minutes while his mates were getting the bus fume cobwebs cleared out.

The first Owen Sound goal by Hamley came after Rexe had stopped four goalmouth shots. Later in the period, he dealt Bill Abbott a blank on a clean - cut breakaway and then stopped Dave McComb's rebound before his defencemen arrived on the scene.

Some plain and fancy linejuggling paid handsome dividends for playing-coach Davey Jones, who spotted himself after the early part of the first period.

Armour contributed the eventual winning tally on a perfect play - angle lip - in of "Weiner" Brown's point blast near the end of the second period.

The Godess - O'Donnell - Ferguson "head - and - shoulder" line accounted for a pair of goals. Rugged forechecking by Lorne O'Donnell in the Owen Sound end while penalty - killing with George Godson accounted for the most - deserved tally.

O'Donnell battled the puck away from two Crescents and slid it out in the slot to Godson, who rapped a low 10-footer past Becker despite being partially blocked out by an Owen Sound defender.

O'Donnell's unassisted empty net goal came after Becker was pulled for an extra attacker with 40 seconds remaining, and clinched the Mo-Hawks seven - game unbeaten string.

Four minutes earlier, Ralph Plane won the Sunday night middleweight championship of Owen Sound by splitting Wes Rydals brash young lip after the two came out of a corner entanglement swinging.

A sore shoulder plaguing him since the second week of the schedule didn't have any apparent effect on the Mo - Hawk captain's roundhouse right.

Rydal's eagerness to come back for more earned him a misconduct penalty in addition to the five - minute fighting majors he and Plane drew. Both benches emptied but no other bouts resulted.

A Friday night home win over Oakville Oaks would extend the Mo - Hawks' undefeated skein to eight games and keep them in third-place contention.

ICE CHIPS — Untilly man Jack Wilson was given his release by Jones over the weekend . . . . Sunday's "third line" saw Gary Dalliday centring Ralph Plane and "Shaker" Baker . . . . Sandy Procter's refereeing was unabashedly "homer" — Lionel Bolly got a second - period minor when as Owen Sound player tripped over his stick on a point shot follow - through . . . . Lionel says he's good for at least two more goals this season.

Ottawa: 46-25

Jackson Makes Final Home Game Memorable

OTTAWA (CP) — Quarterback Russ Jackson made his final appearance before a home crowd Saturday one that neither fans nor Toronto Argonauts are likely to forget in a hurry.

Retiring this season, Jackson called one of his finest games in a 12-year career as the Riders humiliated the Argos 32-3. The victory gave Ottawa a 46-25 win In the two-game, total-points series for the Eastern Football Conference championship.

The Riders now go to Montreal next weekend to meet Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Grey Cup game. Ottawa is defending the national title.

Jackson, using the short pass to devastating effect, completed 14 of 23 pass attempts for 260 yards. The Riders also rushed for 177 yards, good for 25 first downs and a net offence of 422 yards.

And while the Ottawa offence was enjoying one of its finest hours, its defence also was having an outstanding day. It held the Argos to a net offence of 28 yards.

Argo quarterback Tom Wilkinson was dumped for losses time and again. He managed to complete 10 of 24 attempts for 102 yards.

Toronto's ground attack also was never a threat. Wilkinson managed 26 yards on three carries but halfback Bill Symons had a miserable day, getting only seven yards in six carries.

Wayne Giardino, playing both ways, was the scoring hero with three Ottawa touchdowns. Halfback Ron Stewart got the other Rider major. Don Sutherin added a field goal, three converts and a single Billy Van Burkleo got the other Ottawa point on a single off a third-down punt.

The Argos had to wait until the third quarter for their initial first down of the game. It helped produce their only points, a 46-yard field goal by Tom Johansen.

The Argos carried an eight-point lead in the final game of the series by virtue of their 22-14 win in the opener. But they were never a threat Saturday.

Ottawa coach Frank Clair said Riders played much the same game Saturday as last week.

"Only we did everything better," said Clair.

Toronto players suffered the defeat behind closed doors. Coach Leo Cahill barred the Argo room to reporters.

Honored with gifts by civic and other groups prior to the game, Jackson said he hoped there would be reason to celebrate when the game was over.

Johansen raised Toronto hopes early in the third quarter with his field goal, drawing the Argos to within a converted touchdown of the round.

But the Riders applied the crusher with two majors before the quarter ended.

The Ottawa defensive unit seemed able to pour it on Wilkinson at will and it forced the first break of the game. Wilkinson was forced to throw early and defensive halfback Joe Poirier intercepted the ball at the Ottawa 50.

Four plays later the Riders went on the scoreboard with Giardino going over from the seven. Sutherin converted and added a field goal later in the quarter to put Ottawa ahead in the series.

Giardino scored again in the second quarter from close in and a Sutherin single had the Riders ahead 18-8 at the half.

Giardino got his third touchdown in the third quarter after Johansen's field goal. It came on a third-down play from the two.

Stewart's major, off a Jackson lateral in the closing minutes of the third period, left the Argos for dead.

They were forced into taking desperate chances in the final period. None of them paid off.

Giardino, in addition to leading the Ottawa scoring, was the rushing leader. He carried the ball 19 times for 62 yards and caught a 16-yard pass.

Fullback Jim Mankins carried 13 times for 58 yards.

Flanker Whit Tucker, whose fumble in the opener seemed to spark the Argos to their win, was the top receiver for Ottawa with five catches for 117 yards.

End Mel Profit got 30 yards on three catches for the best Toronto effort. Wilkinson rushed three times for 26 yards.

Ottawa Has Fuel For Argument

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday were provided with more fuel for their argument against allowing cable television to pick up telecasts of their home games free of charge.

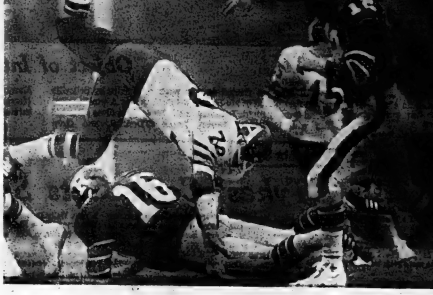
Only 24,354 fans bought tickets to watch Riders demolish Toronto Argonauts and win the Eastern Football Conference title. The park holds in excess of 27,000.

Last season's final against the same two clubs drew 25,080.

General manager Red O'Quinn feels cable TV is the reason some fans don't come to the games. Fans can tune in to Kingston, Montreal and other stations to pick up the telecasts when the local Ottawa stations are blacked out.

Local stations carried the last half of Saturday's game.

In two exhibition and seven regular-season games this year Riders drew 182,127 fans compared with 187,439 in 1968.



Rams Still Undefeated

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's a simple reason why Los Angeles Rams are enjoying astonishing success this season, says George Allen, coach of the National Football League's only unbeaten club.

"The story of our football team in 1969 is simply this: We come up with the big plays when we have to," said Allen.

The Rams came up with big plays all over the place Sunday in turning back Dallas Cowboys 24-23 for their 10th straight victory—the longest winning streak in the NFL since Green Bay Packers did it in 1962.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel accounted for three of the plays —firing two touchdown tosses and running for another.

Dallas now has an 8-2 record.

In other games, Minnesota Vikings hindered pace Pittsburgh Steelers 52-14, Baltimore Colts squeezed past Chicago Bears 24-21 on some late heroics by veteran Johnny Unitas, Cleveland Browns clipped New York Giants 28-17, Washington Redskins topped Atlanta Falcons 27-20, Detroit Lions beat Green Bay 16-10, Philadelphia Eagles whipped St. Louis Cardinals 34-30 and New Orleans Saints subdued San Francisco 49ers 43-38.

Gary Cuozzo fired two touchdown passes and set up two more scoring plays as Minnesota ran its record to 9-1 and maintained its two-game edge over Detroit in the Central Division.

Cuozzo, who passed for 130 yards, hit John Henderson with a 28-yarder and tossed a six-yarder to Oscar Reed.

With just 7:40 left and the Colts trailing 21-14, Unitas got into the game—and promptly directed a 67-yard touchdown drive, in which he connected on all three of the passes he threw in the game, to tie it.

Then, after an interception, Unitas drove the Colts on the ground to set up Lou Michael's 17-yard winning field goal with just 12 seconds left.

Leroy Kelly flashed for three touchdowns and picked up 124 yards as Cleveland shackled the Giants and all but sewed up the Century Division championship.

Charlie Harraway ran 68 yards for the only touchdown of the second half to lift Washington from behind.

Place kicker Errol Mann, who was dropped by Green Bay, turned on his old mates with three field goals—of 22, 21 and 31 yards—that made the difference in Detroit's victory.

Norm Snead hit Gary Hallman with a 23-yard touchdown pass with just 22 seconds left to give Philadelphia victory over St. Louis.

Ernie Wheelwright bucked over from the three-yard line with just 25 seconds left to enable New Orleans to pull it out against the 49ers.

Interceptions Key Note in AFL

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Quarterback Len Dawson has seen his mates on the Kansas City Chiefs defensive team make as many as five interceptions in a game. But this time it was Oakland Raiders who stole that many passes — passes thrown by Dawson.

Two of the interceptions Sunday were returned for touchdowns as the Raiders edged the Chiefs 27-24 and moved back into first place in the American Football League's Western Division with a 9-1 record compared with Kansas City's 9-2.

In other AFL action, the Eastern Division-leading New York Jets drubbed Cincinnati Bengals 40-7, Boston Patriots topped Buffalo Bills 33-21, San Diego Chargers outlasted Denver Broncos 45-24 and Houston Oilers trounced Miami Dolphins 32-7.

One of Oakland's interceptions was returned 75 yards by linebacker Don Connors for a touchdown that gave the Raiders a 27-17 lead at Kansas City. The Chiefs closed to within 27-24 in the fourth quarter on Dawson's 42-yard scoring strike to Frank Pitts, but Dawson had two more passes picked off in the final two minutes, one on the Oakland eight-yard line.

Jan Stenerud's field goal put Kansas City in front 17-10, but Oakland tied it at the half on Daryle Lamonica's 22-yard scoring pass to Warren Wells. George Blanda's second field goal of the game put the Raiders ahead and then Conners clinched it.

Joe Namath threw two touchdown passes to George Sauer. Babe Parilli hit Pete Lammons with a scoring strike. Bill Mathis ran 11 yards for a touchdown and Jim Turner kicked four field goals, one of 50 yards, for the Jets.

Jim Nance scored from two yards out to snap a 21-21 tie for Boston and Mike Taliaferro threw three touchdown passes for the Patriots. Jack Kemp connected on two scoring tosses for Buffalo.

San Diego got by Denver as rookie quarterback Marty Domres passed for one touchdown; his first in the AFL, and ran for two more and Dick Post ran for three. Steve Tensi passed for three Denver touchdowns.

Canada Approves World Lacrosse Games

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — A five-year program, culminating in a world field lacrosse championship in Australia, was approved Sunday by the Canadian Lacrosse Association.

Jack Fulton of New Westminster, re-elected Sunday as an association vice president, said a committee will be set up soon to begin planning for the event tentatively set for July, 1974.

After the 1973 season, the two top teams in Canada, bolstered by a few players from other teams, will form a 30-man unit which will play either field or box lacrosse.

The championship in Australia would be in field lacrosse but the Canadians could play box lacrosse among themselves to promote interest in it.

Fulton said the CLA feels box lacrosse is a better spectator sport.

There are tentative plans for a world tour by the Canadians either before or after the Australian games.

Fred Conradi of St. Catharines, Ont., was re-elected national president of the CLA while Don Benson of Vancouver was re-elected as vice-president along with Fulton.

The Lords took a 16-1 lead in last Sunday's first game and won the second game 34-6.

Dave Fahner, Terry Johnston, Barry McCurdy and Martin Fabi each scored one touchdown for the winners. Fabi converted all touchdowns and kicked 29- and 34-yard field goals.

Bramalea's points came from an unconverted touchdown by Benny McCusker in the last quarter.

Toronto's Four Points Not Enough, Leafs Still Occupy Cellar in East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs each emerged with four points in National Hockey League action during the weekend, while Chicago's Bobby Hull, top goal scorer last season, got his first goal.

The Rangers won twice, 5-0 over the Blues at St. Louis Saturday and 5-2 against Oakland Seals on home ice Sunday night to widen their East-Division lead over Montreal Canadiens to two points.

The Canadiens, defending Stanley Cup champions, were held to a 2-2 tie by the Bruins in Boston Sunday night and won 4-2 from Oakland in Montreal Saturday.

Toronto, despite a 4-0 trouncing of Detroit Red Wings Saturday and a 3-2 decision over the Flyers in Philadelphia Sunday night, remained in the East-Division cellar.

Chicago Black Hawks nipped Pittsburgh Penguins' 3-2 in the other Sunday game to complete a sweep of five wins for the East-Division teams over their West Division rivals.

In two other Saturday contests, Pittsburgh overcame Philadelphia 5-3 and Minnesota North Stars downed Los Angeles Kings 4-1.

The Rangers ran their unbeaten season record against expansion teams to seven wins and a tie in St. Louis Saturday as Ed Giacomin faced only 20 Blues shots for his second shutout.

Dan Marshall scored the winning New York goal in the final minute of the opening period when he caught St. Louis netminder Jacques Plante wandering out of his goal crease. Jean Ratelle, Arnie Brown, Dave Balon and Real Lemieux added single goals for the winners.

Bill Hicke shot the Seals in front 1-0 in the first period, but Widing, Rod Gilbert and Vic Hadfield scored for New York in the three-second-period flurry for a 4-1 lead. Brian Perry added the second Oakland goal with New York's fifth in the final period.

Paul Henderson's two goals against his former Detroit team-mates Saturday sparked the Maple Leafs to their 4-0 shutout of the Red Wings. Defenceman Tim Horton fired the winner early in the second period and Norm Ullman finished the scoring with 15 seconds to spare in the game. Bruce Gamble, 31, blocked 30 Detroit shots for his first shutout of the season.

The Leafs collected their seventh win of the season in Philadelphia Sunday when Bob Pulford scored twice on the power play with the game less than eight minutes old.

The 33-year-old right winger banked a clearing pass off the foot of Flyers' defenceman Wayne Hillman and through goalie Doug Favell's legs at 2:17 and added his fourth of the season from close range at 7:29 of the first period.

Defenceman Joe Watson cut the gap to one goal with a 50-foot drive, the only scoring play of the second period. Dave Keon, on a pass from Pulford, collected the winner at 8:31 of the final period and defenceman Larry Hillman gained the final goal for the Flyers with a 40-foot shot. Lew Morrison beat Gamble later in the period, but the tying score was called back for offside.

Netminder Rogatien Vachon had a strong night for Montreal Sunday, facing 49 Boston shots. The Canadiens drew first blood on a power play at 4:39 of the opening period when John Ferguson converted a pass from Jean Beliveau.

John McKenzie found himself uncovered down the right wing a few minutes later and he took a pass from John Bucyk for the tying goal.

Derek Sanderson shot the Bruins in front early in the second period.

Yan Cournoyer tied the score for Montreal late in the middle period, taking a pass from Ralph Backstrom who had outstrugged Bobby Orr for a loose puck. When the Bruins dominated most of the second period, Vachon came through with big saves. He blocked Fred Stanfield on a clean break and kicked out labelled shots from Wayne Cashman, Phil Esposito and Sanderson.

Boston netminder Gerry Cheevers had less work than Vachon, but he made two key stops to preserve the tie. Cheevers outguessed Henri Richard on a second period breakaway and Cournoyer's clean break in the final minute.

The Canadiens were forced to rally from behind against Oakland on home ice Saturday. Jacques Lemaire, with his 18th tally of the season, erased a 2-1 Seals' lead at 8:15 of the second period and Ferguson fired the winner four minutes later.

Bobby Rousseau scored the first Montreal goal and set up the fourth for defenceman Serge Savard in the third period while Montreal was killing a Ferguson penalty. Defenceman Carol Vadnais and Brian Perry gave Oakland their early lead.

The Penguins used a spectacular five-goal surge in the third period to overcome a 3-0 Philadelphia lead at Pittsburgh Saturday.

The win advanced the Penguins to third place in the West Division, three points back of Minnesota.

Val Fonteyne, Dean Prentice and Keith McCreary brought Pittsburgh back on even terms before the third period was six minutes old. Rookie defenceman Terry Ball, with two goals, and Gary Dornhoefer had scored for Philadelphia.

Ken Schinkel scored the winner at 11:42 with Flyers' captain Ed Van Impe in the penalty box and 18-year-old rookie Michel Briere added the fifth goal at 19:25.

Teddy Green's Optimistic

Teddy Green, Boston Bruin defenceman, demonstrates the use of his left arm that had been partially paralyzed after he suffered skull fracture in stick swinging duel Sept. 21. Green, Maki Charged For Stick Swinging Duel

OTTAWA (CP) — Hockey players Ted Green and Wayne Maki have been charged with assault causing bodily harm as a result of a stick duel in a National Hockey League exhibition game here Sept. 21.

The charges against Maki, now a forward with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, and Green, Boston Bruins defenceman whose skull was fractured in the duel, may be unprecedented.

An NHL spokesman in Montreal said a check of records turned up no previous case of charges against players for an incident on the ice.

The charges were sworn out Friday by Ottawa city police before Justice of the Peace D. J. Mologushey. Summonses were mailed to the players, but there was no indication when the case would get to court.

Conviction on the charges carries a two-year maximum jail sentence.

A crowd of 10,000 at the Ottawa Civic Centre saw the first-period incident in the game here between Boston and St. Louis Blues.

Green, struck on the right side of the head, sank to the ice and was carried out on a stretcher.

His hockey future is uncertain after operations that will leave him with a plate in the skull. Green said Friday he hopes to play this season.

Both he and Maki, then trying out for St. Louis, were given match penalties, carrying automatic fine of $200. Maki was suspended by the NHL for one month and Green suspended for 13 games after he is fit to play again.

Maki joined Buffalo last Sunday after his suspension was up.

Buffalo general manager Fred Hunt was surprised by the charges.

"I don't know why they are harassing him," said Hunt. "I don't think either player would intentionally hurt somebody.

"I honestly think that when an incident doesn't involve spectators we are adequately supplied with rules and regulations to handle it."

Stan Obodiac, public relations man at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, said action on the ice should be "under the jurisdiction of the referees and the NHL rules committee."

General Manager Milt Schmidt of Boston had no comment.

St. Catharines Allotted 81 Penalty Minutes Before Customary Capacity Crowd

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's something about the hometown band that keeps fans piling into the arena at St. Catharines and brings out the worst in hockey players.

The band—St. Catharines Black Hawks—played before their customary capacity crowd of 3,449 Sunday night and took 81 minutes in penalties while literally fighting to a 3-3 tie with London Knights in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action.

The Black Hawks have been piling fans into their arena for the last two seasons and a few weeks ago a Toronto Marlboro player was questioned by police after being ejected from the game.

In other games Sunday, Montreal Canadiens defeated Peterborough Petes 5-3, Toronto downed Guelph Mets 6-5, Hamilton Red Wings and Oshawa Generals deadlocked 3-3 and Kitchener Rangers shutout Niagara Falls Flyers 3-0.

The fighting started in the third period at St. Catharines Sunday. A total of 109 minutes in penalties were assessed as the result of a single fight.

In the end, London took 78 minutes in penalties and St. Catharines 81.

Dan Maloney, Pat Boutette and Darryl Sittler scored for London, while Doug Rombouq paced the Black Hawks with two goals and team-mate Mike Bloom added the other.

Cam Newton, a veteran of four seasons in junior hockey, was credited with the first shutout of the season when he held off Niagara Falls for the 3-0 victory.

He blocked 30 shots, although several were from long range.

Dave Cressman, Jim Nahrgang and Gerry Byers scored for the Rangers.

Gavin Kirk and Bill Harris scored two goals each to take the Marlboros into first place in the 10-team series.

John French and Dale Tallon also scored for Toronto. Blake Dunlop led Ottawa with two goals, while Connie Forey, Brian McSheffrey and Denis Potvin added the others.

Ron Climie scored with 12 seconds remaining to give Hamilton the 3-3 tie. Team-mates Gord Brooks and Ray Meyers had scored earlier after Oshawa had taken a 3-0 lead on goals by Terry O'Reilly, Pete Sullivan and Gerry Methe. .

Massacre Worries Britain

LONDON - (Reuters) — John Freeman, British ambassador to the United States, arrived home Sunday amid growing concern in Britain about the alleged massacre of South Vietnamese civilians by U.S. troops last year.

Officially, Freeman is in London to discuss Prime Minister Wilson's planned visit to Washington in January. But most political commentators, noting that the visit is still two months away, think he was really summoned to discuss the massacre reports and brief Wilson on what the Americans are doing about them.

Future Moon Visitors May Escape Quarantine

HOUSTON (AP) — If the Apollo 12 astronauts are found to be free of alien organisms, future moon explorers may be excused from the three-week quarantine now in force.

No lunar bugs cropped up in the men of Apollo 11 or the material they brought back from the Sea of Tranquility.

The Apollo 12 moon landers set down 800 miles away, in the Ocean of Storms, and space scientists say there is a farfetched possibility a weird form of life might exist in the different environment.

"With identical negative information from two missions, we might propose relieving the crew quarantine after Apollo 12," Dr. A. D. Catterson, a Manned Spaceflight Centre surgeon, said in an interview.

"But it depends how things go on 12."

This flight's 21-day quarantine began last Thursday when Charles Conrad and Alan Bean blasted away from the moon's Ocean of Storms and joined Richard Gordon in the command ship Yankee Clipper.

Like Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins, the Apollo 12 crew will go directly from the splashdown to a quarantine trailer on the aircraft carrier Hornet.

The trailer will be flown to Houston, where the astronauts will enter the Space Centre's Lunar Receiving Laboratory and continue their isolation until Dec. 11.

This time there will be no "isolation garment"—the head-to-toe coveralls Apollo 11 astronauts wore to prevent release of any possible lunar organisms into the air. The men complained that the suits were uncomfortably warm and the face plates fogged over.

This second moon landing crew will wear only breathing filters and fresh flight suits, which officials feel will be sufficient.

"From a practical standpoint, as soon as we feel that there is scientifically valid evidence that you don't have contamination—something coming back from the moon's surface that could prove any kind of a threat to life here on earth—we want to relieve the crew quarantine requirements as a first order of business," said Catterson.

Hornet Awaits 'Three More Like Before'

ABOARD HORNET (AP) — When the three Apollo 12 astronauts board their prime recovery ship after splash down today they will be greeted by a big banner reading: "Three More Like Before."

And many of the 2,200-man crew of the carrier Hornet are wearing buttons bearing the same slogan.

The Apollo 12 slogan is a followup to the Hornet's recovery of the Apollo 11 crew last July 24 and their return to Honolulu with the ship proudly wearing a big banner: "Hornet Plus Three."

This apparently will be the last Apollo recovery for the Hornet since the craft is destined to be pulled out of active duty next March and placed in the mothball fleet.

The Hornet refuelled Sunday, taking on 900,000 gallons of oil, then returned to the splashdown area, 405 miles southeast of Pago Pago.

"We're home free now," the Hornet's weatherman, Lt.-Cmdr. William G. Tasker, reported Sunday.

He said there would be partly cloudy skies, widely scattered rain showers, south-southeast winds of 10 to 15 knots and moderate seas. He predicted air temperature of about 84 degrees at splashdown time and water temperature about the same.

In addition to the Hornet with its fleet of rescue helicopters, two big cargo transports equipped for aerospace rescue and recovery service take off this morning from Pago Pago to take up stations about 195 miles upranga and downranga from the Hornet. Each has three paraescuemen in diving gear who will parachute to the spacecraft if it lands too far away from the Hornet for normal recovery.

Tense Days Nearly Over

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 12 streaked today toward a Pacific splashdown, ending 10 tense days for the wives of the moon adventurers.

"I was thinking how thankful I'll be when Al gets home again," Sue Bean, the pert blonde wife of moonwalker Alan Bean, said after church Sunday.

For Mrs. Bean, Barbara Gordon and Jane Conrad, the flight of Apollo 12 has been a mixture of apprehension, exhilaration and sleepless nights.

Two Congo Republics on Verge of War

KINSHASA, The Congo (Reuters) — The Congo River frontier between Congo-Kinshasa and Congo-Brazzaville was shut today as frequently strained relations between the two equatorial African republics suddenly took an ominous downward turn.

The frontier was closed for the fourth time in five years after Congo-Kinshasa President Joseph Mobutu Sunday night threatened that his troops could cross the river and take over his neighbour if he wished it. Troops were reported put on alert on the Brazzaville side.

Mobutu made the statement after saying he was "fed up," with continuing charges from across the river that Congo-Kinshasa was plotting against Congo-Brazzaville.

Congo-Brazzaville radio retorted that while the country did not want war "if some rash person wants to cover himself with glory, Congo-Brazzaville will make war to defend its legitimate rights and its ideals."

Mobutu, a paratrooper-general who took power four years ago today, expressed his fury at Congo-Brazzaville's plot allegations during celebrations marking his fourth year in office.

Congo-Kinshasa, the former Belgian Congo, has a population of 18,500,000 and easily outnumbers the Congolese of Brazzaville.

Congo-Brazzaville, a former French colony now known as the Congo Republic, has a population of only 960,000 people.

There was a bloody war in the region after both countries were granted independence. Mutinous troops rose up in Congo-Kinshasa and virtually all whites fled the country.

The latest closing of the frontier was ordered by Congo-Brazzaville after Mobutu's speech Sunday. Mobutu in turn banned all foreign aircraft from flying over his territory without giving notice 48 hours in advance. He warned planes breaking the rule might be shot down. Mobutu also ordered all traffic on the Congo River should cease after nightfall.

Mobutu, after expressing annoyance at the latest plot allegation from across the river, said: "I am fed up with it and I swear to you that if we really wanted, it would only take us a couple of hours to silence those people over there.

"If I decided to put on my red beret (paratroopers' headdress), two hours would suffice to occupy most of their territory and all they could do would be to ask the (United Nations) Security Council to order a withdrawal.

"If it wasn't all over in a couple of hours, I would resign."

From across the river, Congo-Brazzaville radio said simply: "Brazzaville will never be taken."

My Own Idea Says Agnew

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew has denied that his recent criticism of peace demonstrators and the news media was prompted by President Nixon.

In a copyright guest column in this week's issue of Life magazine, Agnew says he decided to speak out because "I had had enough."

"Before the media granted valuable advertisement to the antic arts, people were more inclined to debate their points of disagreement than make spectacles of themselves."

Referring to his controversial description of peace demonstrators as "an effete corps of impudent snobs," Agnew said:

"I did not make my speech at New Orleans to accommodate the president or even the American people. I made it to fulfil my own conviction that a political leader should lead, should point out problems where problems exist and dangers where dangers exist."

The vice-president added: "Perpetual street and campus demonstrations can erode the fabric of American democracy."

Majority of Accidents Result of Driver Error

By RAY STAPLEY

Last year 3,375 people died as a result of traffic accidents in Canada. From September of this year to September 1970 it is estimated that 65,000 traffic fatalities will be recorded in Canada and the U.S. As well, five million others will be injured, many permanently. In the past 69 years motor vehicles have slaughtered 1,700,000 Americans, and it is claimed that by 1972 this figure will climb to 2,000,000.

While these grim figures should alarm us, they seldom do. Most of us are weary of hearing about the highway carnage. We have more or less become seasoned to it and accept it as part of driving. Highway fatalities are recorded in much the same way as baseball and hockey scores, and unless one of the victims is a friend or relative we read on — what else is new?

Safety officials have concluded that safer cars, better highways, driver training programs and stricter law enforcement are the answers. My accident investigation files prove conclusively that driver error is responsible for most accidents. Mechanical failure, which in most cases stems from neglected brake and steering systems, is the next likely culprit. Since proper maintenance of a vehicle is the driver's responsibility, then accidents caused by mechanical failure are simply another form of driver error.

But how do we convince the average driver that he is responsible for most of the highway carnage? Most of them claim that the other guy is invariably the villian — whether it's another driver, the auto manufacturer or the government, or the weather.

When a group of drivers was questioned as to their ability to handle a vehicle, about 62 per cent rated themselves as average, 36 per cent thought they were above average, and only 2 per cent judged themselves as perhaps a little below par.

Since most of us have had little or no professional driver training this inflated impression of personal skill at the wheel amounts to mass delusion. How can we minimize the possibility of becoming involved in a minor or fatal car accident?

The first step is to forget our ego and accept the fact that few of us could find the time it would take or the money it would cost to become professional drivers.

While all of us would benefit by taking instructions from such drivers as Sterling Moss, such a suggestion is not practical. A more realistic approach is to know and accept our limitations and drive accordingly. Concentrate and improve on our every day driving habits, and, most important of all, drive defensively.

Keep in mind that piloting a vehicle, even under the best of conditions, is a demanding full time job. Pre-occupation, alcohol, drugs, excessive speed, temper tantrums and physical and mental exhaustion make poor co-pilots.

Tweed Curling Club Almost Completed

TWEED — The compressors of the ice plant at the Land O'Lakes curling rink in Tweed were started at noon November 18 in preparation for the laying of the ice sheet and the start of curling in about one week's time.

The new curling club building is nearing completion.

The pipes for the artificial ice plant have been laid and covered with sand. The lighting in the ice area has also been completed, and the electric heating units are now being installed in the lounge and basement areas. The kitchen cupboards and sinks have been installed, and all that remains to be done in this section of the rink is a general clean-up, according to Kenneth Thompson and Robert Sullivan.

Plans are now being discussed regarding a grand opening for the new curling rink with the public invited to attend and see the facilities this splendid new building has to offer the community.

The rink is located immediately east of the present Tweed-Hungerford Community Centre, with parking for an estimated 200 motored cars along the south wall of the Community Centre and the north wall of the Tweed Fair Grounds grandstand.

Prince Edward Clergy Plan Operation Manna

PICTON — Operation Manna, a program for Biafran relief now being organized in Prince Edward County by Rev. Robert Jones of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and Rev. Peter Breedveld of the Christian Reform Church was discussed yesterday at a special meeting of the Prince Edward County Ministerial Association.

During the meeting, a motion was carried to invite a Visit Picton and address a public meeting.

The association also endorsed a national day of mourning through action for peace in Biafra to be held Nov. 27. The purpose is to invite Canadians to seek and to find ways "to break through the callous indifference which allows this intolerable situation to continue, by urging their government to take diplomatic initiative toward a cease fire."

Capt. Ray Pierosy, president of the ministerial association, stated: "The Ministerial Association is of the opinion that the Nigerian-Biafran tragedy is of a continuing moral and spiritual concern affecting us as a commonwealth country, and the minds and sympathies of Canadians need to be aroused."

Toy Bulldog Tackled Anything with Gloves On

By GEORGE H. CARVER
MUSHMOUTH REPORTS
Dear Bon:
Unk McGlug from Flatnose, New Mexico was the guest speaker at the monthly e-l-and - clambake of the local as his topic Mickey Walker the famous Toy Bulldog whom he knew when a boy.

The "Mick," he said, would tackle anything that w-o-r-e gloves regardless of weight. He was middleweight champion from 1926 to 1931 and when he couldn't get in the weight any more he took on the bigger boys.

After he retired from the ring he took up painting. His oils went on exhibition and he once owned a Broadway bar he called the "Glove and Palette".

After he relinquished the middle crown he challenged Tommy Loughran for the light-heavy title, and although many thought he had won.

In 1931, he fought a 15-round draw with Jack Sharkey. That was the year Sharkey had lost, on a foul in a heavyweight title fight with Max Schmelling. Later he took on Johnny Risko, K. O. Christner, King Levinsky and others.

After 16 years Mickey found himself in trouble with an awkward newcomer and was stopped in seven rounds. "This is it," he said — and meant it.

"I guess I made a million and spent it" he told a New York sportswriter. "Lets find out." They dug out the old trunk of Mickey's and found tax returns and cancelled cheques which accounted for more than a million.

Perhaps his most famous fight was the one with the late Harry Greb "The Human Windmill" who was often accused of sticking a thumb in an opponent's eye.

As middleweight Greb beat back the challenge of Walker in 15 rounds at the Polo Grounds on July 12, 1925. However their legendary meeting on the street became more memorable than the r-i-n-g brawl.

A few hours after the fight Greb went in a taxi-cab between a few and retracing the fight. Eventually it was suggested they adjourn to a night club. "The Silver Slipper".

The ribbing continued as they sauntered into Churley's club. In fact it got to the point where tempers began to flare.

As they opened the door Walker said, "if you hadn't thumbed me I would have knocked you out." That fired Greb's flame.

Greb emarked "Come on back into the alley and we'll s-e-e who'll knock who out."

For a non-spectator b-r-a-w-l the alley scrap was said to be a dandy. The cop who eventually broke it up stood by and saw, he claimed, the Bulldog give Greb a faster pasting.

At 21 Mickey fought J-a-c-k Britton for the welter title at old Madison Square Garden. Jack Kearns, famous manager - adviser of Dempsey took the Bulldog to Britain for a little defence against Englander Tommy Milligan.

"Whaddya say, Mick," asked the canny Kearns, "I c-a-n get a helluva price if I bet your entire purse." "Whatever you say" replied the Mick.

With everything but their ocean tickets riding on the results, Walker knocked out Milligan in the first round and Kearns reached their hotel with $300,000 in their suitcases.

Staid old Lunnon never saw such a spree. With their camp followers they disgorged theirselves of $100,000 before Mickey recalled he had promised his family he would visit Ireland and kiss the blarney stone. The trip did not disturb the sentimental gaiety.

An hour later when their plane fosed into a pre-landing turn, Mickey woke up. He couldn't believe his eyes. He nudged Kearns.

"Look" he shouted, "You'll never believe it. They've moved the Eiffel Tower to Dublin."

They had taken the wrong plane and had been poured on a Paris flight. Kearns had a day with a French beauty 30 it didn't make too much difference.

Back to Harry Greb. "The Human Windmill" was stricken with a heart attack in Akron City at the age of 32. He died during an operation. Four days later his attending physician revealed that Greb had fought for five years with a glass eye in the right socket.

Clay Goes Against Ex-Sparring Partner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cassius Clay, dethroned heavyweight boxing champion, and Jimmy Ellis, his one-time sparring partner who now holds the World Boxing Association title, will meet in Miami the first week in March, the Washington Star reported.

The fight will be staged in a television studio and shown on closed-circuit TV to theatres and hotel ballrooms throughout the United States, reports Star columnist Morris Siegel.

Clay, who prefers the name Muhammad Ali, was dethroned by the WBA and most other boxing organizations when he refused to be inducted into the United States Army.

Siegel says the promoter does not believe the bout will require sanction from the Florida or Miami Boxing Commissions because attendance will be by invitation only.

Nothing Went Right For Golden Hawks

OSHAWA (Special) — Nothing seems to be going right for Red Gravelle and his Trenton Golden Hawks.

Oshawa Generals blasted the Trenton club 13-2 in an Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey league game Saturday in Oshawa.

"Our goaltending collapsed completely," said Gravelle. "Let's just say it was a lost weekend for the Golden Hawks." Friday night Trenton dropped an 8-5 home decision to Kingston Frontenacs.

"I'm not going to give myself an ulcer or anything because of the way the boys are playing now," added Gravelle. "Like I said before, we are still in our building stage. I expect great things by Christmas."

Bob Hutton had four goals for the Crushmen. Other Oshawa scorers were Bob Watson with three while Jim Robertson and Wayne Blanchard had two goals each. Dirk Gamble and Lee Paradise tallied once each to round out the Oshawa offensive.

Craig Bennett and Mike Hall scored Trenton's goals.

Andy Cwerklenko and Randy Castellarin — both second year boys — were missing from the Trenton line up due to injuries.

Trenton Golden Hawks next skate is against Cobourg Cougars in a 9 p.m. game this Friday at Trenton's Community Gardens.

Oaks Survive O'Brien's Loss

Oakville Oaks survived the loss of Jim O'Brien Sunday night but Oshawa Generals scorer had provided one goal.

O'Brien, who leads the Oaks with 18 goals, was taken to hospital for tests after suffering what was believed to be a spearing injury to the stomach in Oakville's 4-2 victory over Barrie Flyers in Ontario Hockey Association senior action.

In other Sunday games, Kingston Aces downed Woodstock Athletics 4-1 and Belleville Mohawks defeated Owen Sound 6-4. Galt Hornets and Orillia Terriers battled to a 2-2 tie Saturday night.

Frank Hincks, Terry Holmes and Mike Webb scored the other goals for Oakville, while Joe Weeks and Neil Clairmont replied for Barrie.

Bob Rawson, Doug Senior, Tom Smallman and Charlie Convery were the Kingston marksmen. Al Blair and Terry Harrigan scored for Woodstock.

Al Osborne and Clare Alexander scored for the Terriers. Howie Dietrich and Bob Wall were the Hornets' marksmen.

U.S. Cities Face Nightmare Unless Crime Causes Erased

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — American cities could become nightmares of rape, robbery and murder unless conditions that lead to crime are checked soon, a presidential commission warned Sunday.

If this happened, a report released by the national commission on the causes and prevention of violence said, the cities would soon degenerate into "defensive, fearful societies."

It said violent crime in the cities is greatest among youths aged 15 to 24 and stemmed disproportionately from the black ghetto slums.

But commission chairman Milton Eisenhower said this does not mean there is a correlation between race and crime.

"The correlation," he said, "is poverty with crime."

The report painted the following grim picture, already largely true, of how big cities might look in a few more years:

—Central business districts in the heart of the city, surrounded by areas of accelerating deterioration, will be partially protected by large numbers of people shopping or working in commercial buildings during daytime hours, plus a substantial police presence, and will be largely deserted except for police patrols during night hours.

—High-rise apartment - buildings and residential compounds, protected by private guards and security devices, will be fortified cells for upper middle- and high-income populations living at prime locations in the city.

—Lacking a sharp change in federal and state policies, ownership of guns will be almost universal in the suburbs. Homes will be fortified by an array of devices from window grills to electronic surveillance equipment, armed citizen volunteers in cars will supplement inadequate police patrols and extreme left-wing and right-wing groups will have tremendous armories of weapons.

—High-speed, patrolled highways will be sanitized corridors connecting safe areas, and private cars, taxis and commercial vehicles will be routinely equipped with unbreakable glass, light armor and other security features.

—Streets and residential neighborhoods in the central city will be unsafe in differing degrees; and the ghetto slum areas will be places of terror with widespread crime, perhaps entirely out of police control during night hours.

—Between the unsafe, deteriorating central city on the one hand and the network of safe, prosperous areas and sanitized corridors on the other, there will be an intensifying hatred and deepening division among residents. Violence will increase,

Motivation Needed To Quit Smoking

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In a recent column I read that one of your readers figured that after 20 years of smoking the damage was already done, why stop now? And you explained that any time is a good time to quit.

I have unstable bronchitis which developed two years ago. I've smoked over 25 years. I coughed and coughed and worried about my allergies, lung cancer, TB, but kept right on smoking.

One day while I was in a bad coughing spell my 15-year-old son said, "Mother, if you really wanted to quit smoking, you would quit." (In other words, mother, you keep telling me you hope I never start to smoke, so put up or shut up.)

I took a good long look at myself and my four young sons, and so I quit right then and there. I admit I became crabby and irritated for a few weeks, but I'd chew gum and be thankful that my cough was much better and my kids were happy. (So would my husband be if he were alive.)

Even today, months later, it would be nice to relax with a cigarette; but my mind hauls out the scales and balances the good against the bad, and I put smoking right out of my mind.

You might say that takes quite a bit of will power for a gal who has been smoking over two packs a day for so many years. Not at all. If every smoker could find an honest - to - goodness reason for quitting, not a cigarette or pipe or cigar would be lit in this entire country.

What I'm saying is that finding a "reason" is more important than just making "resolutions" to quit. — Mrs. V.

Comment: Honest motivation — that is the secret. It is the key that locks the door against tobacco. In the case of Mrs. V., I believe her motivation was the mother instinct to protect her young, for she ends her letter with this postscript: "And for anyone this letter encourages — when the temptation comes to keep on smoking — think about a boy who cared about his mother, and count me in as caring, too, about you."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I understand some forms of epilepsy are caused by injury to the head, others not. If mine was a result of a bump on the head — I was a paratrooper — would another bump cure it? I fell down a flight of stairs the other day and have two or three more lumps now. I guess the only way to find out is to stop taking my pills. — Mr. F.

Comment: Try not to get any more bumps. I know of no scientific reason to suspect that bumps on the head will cure epilepsy. But pills prescribed by your doctor undoubtedly will help in lessening the frequency and severity of attacks. So better not stop taking your pills unless your doctor says so.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Here's a tip for your readers who complain of brittle fingernails. After all other treatments failed, I got the idea that perhaps detergents damaged my nails. I now wear rubber gloves. I wore them for cleaning and washing dishes and clothes. After a few weeks my fingernails got strong and healthy again. I'll never be without rubber gloves! — Mrs. B.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: After my attack of mononucleosis, I've felt tired and sleepy. Even after 10 hours sleep I have no pep. I am only 17. Our family doctor says this isn't uncommon and will go away. He tells me to get rest, eat a full diet with vitamins, and in a few weeks or months I'll probably feel like myself again. Do you agree? — Miss D.

Comment: Doctors sometimes disagree; not this time. I agree.

Strictly Personal

Swifter Law Needed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

To the people who mindlessly shout the slogan, "Law and order!," the obvious retort is that if we had better law, we would have more order.

By "better" law I do not mean more law or harsher law, but swifter and more equitable law. It is unfairness and delay that frustrate and exasperate people to the point that the whole structure of law in the U.S. falls prey to cynicism and disgust.

This is not just the view of an impatient and ignorant layman who may be suspected of "liberal" sympathies, whatever they may be. It is an accurate reflection of the attitude of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger of the Supreme Court, a hardheaded but not hardhearted conservative.

In a talk to the American Bar Association this summer, Chief Justice Burger repeated the criticism that baffles and troubles millions of Americans: "Why does American justice take so long?" And he answered, in brief, that our trial procedures are antiquated, and our courts lack modern standards of management, as well as the trained managers to apply them.

He pointed out sharply that in medicine, except for anatomy, almost all basic medical knowledge of 25 years ago is obsolete; that business techniques and industrial production have changed drastically in that period; and that air transport and the space program have altered even more radically, not in 25, but in the last 10 years.

But, except in details, "a civil or criminal trial today is essentially the same as in Daniel Webster's time." Citizens called for jury service find 80 per cent of their time is spent "just waiting." Witnesses called for a precise day and hour also find themselves spending most of their time waiting.

And, of course, the defendant himself may spend months or years in litigation, before the appeals and other processes are concluded. One of the oldest legal dictums is that "Justice delayed is justice denied" — and our chronic long-term delays are a blanket denial of justice in our courts, at every level.

It is not law-breakers, or anarchists, who erode public faith and confidence in our legal and judicial system. It is the system itself, which refuses to change with the times and adapt itself to the modern problems of a huge, complex, and urbanized population. When the law is so dilatory, order can be imposed only by force, and not by the weight of public opinion, as it rightfully should be.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 25

Your birthday today: Your coming year is full of increased mental activity, although draw a firmer line between your own concerns and those of others. New contacts are more impersonal than has been the case in the past. Research activities are strongly favored now and for the next three years.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Consolidate yesterday's initiative, but avoid jumping to unrelated new starts. Get detailed precision operations down pat now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Go after newer methods today. Figure out what you must do, and persevere. In the evening, consider further progress.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Unsolicited help may arrive from a mystifying source. Explore commitments in making use of it. Extra consideration is due family and friends.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): While relatives pose temporary problems, other matters thrive. Travels bring educational opportunity. Stick to established personal plans.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Attend to everything except financial policy changes, investment portfolios. The affairs of brethren and fellow workers can be advanced but should be attended by groups working together.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Little gems of ideas come to you in every pause. Plan future financial moves, travel, personal projects. Include some new health care practices.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Friends seem determined to have rambling debates from shifting points of view. Hold fast to your original resolution and go ahead with the day's plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friends in other places have found bright new concepts in your field. Trading know-how, exchanging theories is very helpful to all. Partnership operations prosper.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Tact with in-laws and those outside your immediate circle is only essential which does not come spontaneously today. Conferences and travel produce excellent results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Sentimental gestures can be expensive. Aside from this detail, the day is successful. Creative projects thrive in the later hours.

Rich Lands' Science Is Harmful to Poor

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The advancement of science in the rich countries has become harmful to poor countries, says a report submitted to Secretary-General U Thant.

It calls for advanced nations to devote five per cent of their research budgets to developing countries.

The report of six scholars at the University of Sussex in England says developed countries spend about $1,000,000,000 a year on research and development of synthetic plastics, fibres and rubbers in chemical industries and almost as much as goes for all research in developing countries.

The resultant synthetics, the statement goes on, drive natural commodities like rubber, cotton, tin and vegetable oils out of the market "with harmful effect on the producers and exporters" in the developing countries.

Asks Citizens' Right To Charge Polluters

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyer James Karfilis, counsel for Pollution Probe, called Sunday for federal legislation that would permit citizens to bring pollution to court.

Mr. Karfilis told the Canadian Federation of Jewish Men's Clubs that such a federal law would establish "once and for all that we, the citizens, have a right to a clean environment."

Pollution Probe is an organization of the University of Toronto.

"The ecological interests of the community can best be protected in the courts, where those actions which can cause serious, permanent and irreparable harm to our ecological system can be attacked on basic, common-law grounds."

Decisions Come Later

Liberals Are Bombarded with Dozens of Ideas

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — Liberal brainstrusters are heading for home with dozens of fresh ideas and new insights into directions the party will take in the 1970s following a three-day think session here.

The Liberal policy conference, which ended at noon Sunday, included presentation of 61 papers through nine task forces on matters ranging from the economy to electronic journalism.

There was plenty of spirited debate and lots of articulate but often contradictory ideas on how to solve the major problems facing the nation.

The 400 delegates left the conference without reaching any policy decisions. But, as organizers explained, the Harrison conference was only to do the preliminary spadework for a major national policy convention late next year.

Most of the hard news came from outside the conference session at the Harrison Hot Springs Hotel in this isolated mountain resort town 80 miles northeast of Vancouver.

Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey sounded an ominous warning to West Coast stevedoring companies about possible nationalization if they don't settle their wage feud with union longshoremen.

But the biggest fuss of all was kicked up by two undercover RCMP officers who questioned a long-haired student radical the party had invited to address a plenary session on student unrest.

The incident came to light during the session Saturday when Jim Harding, 28, a student at Simon Fraser University, told a surprised audience the officers stopped him and checked his credentials in a hotel washroom.

The officers, he said, were wearing press badges similar to those issued at the start of the conference to legitimate reporters from the news media.

Conference officials confirmed the incident had occurred and were apologetic. The two undercover men disappeared shortly after checking out Mr. Harding and showing him their credentials.

The government apparently knew nothing of the presence of the RCMP.

"I think it is as phoney as hell," replied Justice Minister John Turner when asked what he thought about RCMP officers masquerading as reporters.

Inside the sessions, delegates Saturday heard a proposal for a system of balanced regional and provincially-sponsored economic policies to tackle the conflict between inflation and unemployment.

The plan, suggested by economist Andre Raynauld of the University of Montreal, flies in the face of traditional assumptions that government fiscal policies must be nationally oriented.

It proposes establishment of a regional stabilization bank that would help provinces and regions through economic troubles.

The conference closed with a vigorous foreign affairs debate during which External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp favored Canadian aid to "promote revolution which is very much needed."

Mr. Sharp coupled his remarks on foreign aid with a stern defence of Canada's military commitments in NATO and NORAD, under attack from a number of party people and non-partisan experts during the plenary session on foreign affairs.

In the only other Sunday session, CTV President Murray Chercover predicted wide-scale use of cable television as an alternative to extremely costly satellites.

Saturday night the Liberals' central policy committee accepted a number of briefs from major national organizations, including one from the Canadian Association of Broadcasters. The association criticized what it called frequent government investigation of the industry.

"Broadcasting in Canada will continue to be uncertain if it is subjected to incessant investigations," said the brief. "It breeds dissension and distrust."

How to Make Better People Concerns Liberals

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — The Liberal think-in, a policy planning conference subtitled Canada-1970s, was to be a supermarket of ideas.

About 400 Liberals and party advisers walked in the rain, dined in sumptuous surroundings, soaked in the 101-degree hot baths, contemplated the fog shrouded mountains and lake—and thought.

For three days they discussed the present and future of Canada, and the party. But few really fresh thoughts came out of it all.

Here are some of the more striking thoughts—not necessarily new, but different:

Prime Minister Trudeau talked about genetic engineering and asked what will be society's view and the state's responsibility when marvels already achieved in improving plant and animal breeds are applied to humans.

Mr. Trudeau also talked about the need to strengthen Canadian society for the day when satellites beam radio and television programs directly into people's homes, not only leaping over oceans and national boundaries but across the gulf between East and West.

Tim Reid, teacher and a member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough East, advocated a program of special teaching for children in under-privileged families, while they are three, four and five years old, so they can get the full value of early primary schools. Children of the poor were handicapped by inadequate vocabularies and stunted learning ability when they are thrown into middle class public schools with middle class teachers.

Andre Raynauld, University of Montreal economist, produced a plan to break away from Ottawa's accustomed role of trying to manage the economy on a national scale with its central fiscal and monetary policies. He would have the Bank of Canada support a regional stabilization bank, financing deficits in those provinces that need pump-priming expenditures while other provinces fight inflation with restraints.

Phil Givens, former Toronto mayor and now York West MP, called for more direct federal aid to solve urban problems. He ran head-on into Mr. Trudeau's view that the provinces have primary responsibility for urban problems. Mr. Givens said he would continue his crusade.

From these, and more accustomed wares on the shelves of the supermarket of ideas, the Liberals will shop for new party policy at a full-scale convention of party delegates next November.

Scientists Say Achievement Frightening

Gene Which Determines Heredity Is Isolated

BOSTON (AP) — The gene which transmits hereditary characteristics has been isolated for the first time—and two scientists who helped do it have voiced fears of possible manipulation of human traits.

"I feel the bad far outweighs the good in this particular work," said Dr. Jonathan Beckwith, 33. "I feel this is more frightening than hopeful. It is obvious that it raises the possibility of genetic engineering."

Also expressing apprehension that the discovery may have harmful applications, Dr. James Shapiro, 26, head of the Harvard Medical School research team which isolated the gene, said: "We don't necessarily have the right to put ourselves on the back."

The discovery was announced to reporters Wednesday but publication of the story was delayed until Saturday to coincide with publication in the British magazine Nature, of a paper outlining the technique.

The gene was separated from a bacteria called Escherichia coli, widely found in the intestine of man and other animals. The researchers used an enzyme to dissolve away material they did not want.

The scientists said that a bacteria may contain as many as 1,000 genes, which have specific individual functions, while a human body may contain 1,000,000 genes.

Genes are gathered into groups called chromosomes which carry the entire code of heredity.

Beckwith, a molecular geneticist, said the means for manipulating genes in humans do not exist at present, but that it was conceivable such techniques could be developed in the future.

Before the work by the Harvard group, genes had been separated in groups but not individually.

Fight for Wheat Markets Is Easing

LONDON (CP) — The 49-country International Wheat Council today opened a week-long session to review the world wheat situation amid growing confidence among some delegates that an intense, bitter struggle among exporters for markets is generally easing.

Council sessions are closed to the press but Canadian delegates William Miner, a Canadian trade department official, said in an interview that the wheat situation "appears to be stabilized."

Similar views were expressed by some other council members. One noted that he had made a prediction some months ago, that price-cutting would soon end and this, he said, has taken place.

It may take a long time before the major exporters are able to return to agreed minimum prices but at least the price slashing has ended, he said.

Spacemen Well In Quarantine

ABOARD HORNET (AP) — Healthy and relaxed in their quarantine trailer, the three Apollo 12 astronauts sailed toward Hawaii today while eager scientists prepared to open their moon-rock treasure chests.

Charles Conrad, Richard Gordon and Alan Bean showed no ill effects from their 10-day lunar expedition — except for a knot on Bean's head.

Bean suffered a half inch laceration when he was struck by a movie camera which was not tied down when the spacecraft hit the water. Several stitches were required to close the cut.

Otherwise the three were declared sound after initial physical examinations.

They arrive at Pearl Harbor about 5:30 p.m. EST Friday, then fly non-stop to the Manned Spacecraft Centre at Houston, Tex.

They will be slightly behind their two boxes of moon rocks, brought back from the Ocean of Storms. The treasure chests arrive today at Ellington Air Force Base near the space centre.

Officials said a C-141 carrying the first box arrives at Ellington about 2:45 p.m., with the second due about 10:05 p.m.

The schedule calls for both boxes to be put in a vacuum chamber at the space centre's Lunar Receiving Laboratory, the first box to be opened Wednesday morning and the second later the same day.

Taking all precautions against losing the entire load of geologic gems, officials split the valuable cargo into two lots and put them aboard separate aircraft to be flown first to Pago Pago in American Samoa, then non-stop to Ellington. Each plane also carried a share of mission films and tapes.

Promoted by President Nixon from navy commanders to captains after their bull's-eye splashdown Monday, Conrad, Gordon and Bean had a relatively easy schedule today. Medical checkups—including blood tests—and telling highlights of their mission into tape recorders were the only events planned.

The three are untouchables to the outside world until their quarantine period ends at 2:44 a.m. Dec. 11. Taking precautions against the remote possibility that they brought back lunar organisms which could harm life on earth, the space heroes are isolated in the trailer.

The only people with them are a physician, Dr. Clarence Jernigan, and a technician, Brock R. Stone, who keeps systems operating.

Obstacles Still Remain To Control of A-Arms

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Despite U.S. and Soviet ratification of the treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons, there are other obstacles to overcome before it can become fully effective.

The least, perhaps, is getting 19 additional nations to ratify the pact, thereby fulfilling requirements for bringing it into force.

The action Monday by Washington and Moscow is expected to give the necessary push to countries that have been holding back until they made sure the two leading nuclear powers would adhere to the treaty.

The pact could not have entered into force anyway until it was ratified by the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain. Britain gave its final approval some time ago.

It now has 24 of the 43 ratifications needed and probably will get the others within months. Some like the Soviet Ukraine and Byelo-Russia are expected to act quickly.

The big problems are the fact that Communist China and France—each with nuclear weapons—remain outside the pact and that a dozen nations with nuclear potential are delaying ratification.

If this situation continues, it could seriously impair the effectiveness of the treaty by permitting additional countries to acquire nuclear weapons.

So far Canada is the only one of the nations with nuclear potential to ratify the treaty. Sweden may follow soon and West Germany is committed in principle to ratification, but has to work out some problems with its allies in Western Europe.

Japan has an election coming up and public opinion is divided, which may cause an indefinite delay. India and Pakistan are not happy about the guarantees promised by the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain for help in the event of a nuclear attack.

There is another difficulty in the Middle East. With tensions at a high pitch between Israel and its Arab neighbors, most countries in that area are sitting tight. An Israeli spokesman said, "we are still studying the problem." Arab diplomats say no additional ratifications by their governments can be expected under present circumstances.

U.S. Won't Use Germ Warfare

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon announced today that the United States is joining Canada in unilaterally dealing with the principles and objectives of a British sponsored proposed convention to ban the use of biological methods of warfare.

Nixon renounced any resort to chemical or germ warfare and promised to destroy existing stockpiles of bacteriological weapons.

Nixon told reporters the U.S. would never employ germ warfare even if an enemy were to do so.

He also announced that future U.S. government research in the biological field will be limited to defensive measures such as a search for immunization serums against germ weapons others might use.

The president, in a formal statement, said he is taking a series of moves in the chemical, bacteriological area as "an initiative toward peace."

Talking briefly to reporters, he said he believes his actions will sharply reduce the possibility that any chemical or germ weapons ever will be used by any country.

Municipal Utilities Back Hydro Action

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Electric Association has sent a letter to the legislature's committee on government commissions, siding with Ontario Hydro in its plan to increase rates by six per cent.

In a letter to the commission, which is holding hearings today on the rate increase, association Chairman Robert Hay said his group would prefer to pay more for wholesale electricity than see a deficit in Hydro's $183,000,000 stabilization fund.

Some critics have said the fund, used to balance month-to-month cost fluctuations without changing rates, should be used to offset the six per-cent increase.

The association comprises municipal electrical utilities that buy power from Hydro.

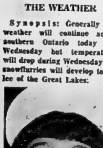
Buses Will Feed Toronto Commuter Trains

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts announced Monday that Ontario will extend express bus and train services north, east and west of Toronto—and promised provincial help to other cities with commuter problems.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Generally fair weather will continue across southern Ontario today and Wednesday but temperatures will drop during Wednesday and snowflurries will develop in the lee of the Great Lakes.



MARY PACKARD

"The major conjestion problem is here in Toronto but that doesn't mean Ottawa, London, Windsor and Kitchener don't need better transportation services too," the premier told a news conference after announcing three new services for Toronto.

"We would give these smaller cities the same measure of support that we give Toronto."

The premier told the legislature that the province is not going into the transit business itself but will provide financial help for the Gray Coach lines and Canadian National Railway to extend Toronto commuter services north in Barrie, west to Hamilton and east to Oshawa.

The province would help finance new rolling stock, build new stations and parking lots and perhaps provide the land needed for these facilities.

The east and west commuter services will be extended by use of fleets of "mini-buses" that may gather commuters from their doorsteps, delivering them to express bus lines which, in turn, will deposit passengers at the nearest points on the Go-Transit train service.

Passengers will be able to buy single fares valid on mini-buses, express buses and trains, with the cost depending on the distance travelled.

Mr. Robarts told the news conference that this system of mini-buses, which will hold about 20 passengers, and express buses might well be adopted by smaller Ontario cities.

Marijuana Garden Brings Jail Term

KINGSTON (CP) — A 20-year-old Ryerson Polytechnical Institute English teacher, Brian B. Humphries of Toronto, was sentenced Monday to three months in jail and placed on probation for two years when convicted of cultivation and possession of marijuana.

Linda Wilson, 22, also of Toronto, was placed on probation for two years for possession of marijuana. The two were charged Sept. 13 when RCMP and provincial police raided a cottage north of here.

RCMP Constable Leonard Dean testified he found about 200 marijuana plants varying in height from two to 10 feet growing in a patch 27 feet by 17 feet. Partly smoked marijuana cigarettes were found in the cabin.

Belleville's Miss Hope Wins Regional Competition

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Miss Hope for 1970 will contest the provincial title in Toronto in January.

Miss Mary Packard, 19, a student at the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing here defeated two other contestants — Miss Janet McDonald of Kingston General Hospital and Miss Shiela Slack of the Brockville Psychiatric Hospital, in a divisional competition at Kingston last night.

Miss Packard had lots of loyal support from her fellow student nurses here. Two busloads, 72 girls, made the trip to Kingston to support her.

Miss Packard was selected as Belleville's Miss Hope one week ago after competing against two of her fellow students.

The girls were judged on four categories: appearance in uniform, intelligence, personality, and a short address concerning cancer nursing and the Cancer Society.

The competition is open to all unmarried students in recognized schools of nursing and training centres throughout Ontario.

District finalists will be judged in Toronto on Jan. 24. Miss Packard will be one of 14 candidates in the Toronto finals.

Expenses of the 14 finalists competing in Toronto in January will be borne by the Ontario Division of the Cancer Society. A prize of $200 will be awarded to the winner, $100 to the first runner up, and $75 to the second runner up.

The winner will travel widely around the province, with appearances on radio and television.

West Germany Seeks Talks With Poland

WARSAW (Reuters) — West Germany today formally presented Poland with a note proposing talks on improving relations embittered by the horrors of the Second World War.

The nine was a reply to a Polish proposal for a treaty recognizing as final Poland's post-war western frontier, which put large areas of former German territory inside Poland.

It is an important step in the new Bonn government's peace offensive toward Eastern Europe. It comes about two weeks after Bonn's ambassador in Moscow delivered a note accepting the Soviet offer to negotiate a mutual non-aggression pact.

Rush, Rush

Mayoralty Duo 'Double Teams' Voters

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Probably expecting a bout of hard, tough questions, mayoralty candidates Richard Ellis and incumbent J. Russell Scott drummed up votes at an open meeting last night, only to face a small handful of smiling, easy-to-get-along-with voters.

No more than 20 people filed into the Kiwanis Club hall to hear and question the two mayoralty hopefuls — a disappointment to the Women's Liberal Minister organizers who were looking for a good crowd.

Perhaps it was just a case of being in too many places all in one night that slashed the turn-out down to the minimum.

Both candidates appeared at two other functions that same evening — one at the East Hill Ratepayers' Association and the other fi the Hillcrest Ratepayers' Association.

Mayor Scott and Mr. Ellis arrived together, the mayor explaining that since they both had to be in all the same places at the same time, it was simpler to travel in one car.

Both candidates poured forth their views simply with a straight forward appeal for support. Each recalled his past record of achievement as the prime example what his accomplishments were and could be.

In a short speech before answering questions from the floor, the mayor talked about taxes and Belleville's traffic problem.

"There is so much to be done and that is the main reason why taxes can't be lowered. They have to go up, but at the same time, have to be watched closely."

He said that while 50 per cent of city taxes went for education, this money has to be collected for the school boards and the rest of any proposed projects must be carried out.

Referring to the traffic tangle in the city, Mayor Scott emphasized the need for computer synchronization of traffic lights, at a minimal cost of $25,000, terming the project "one that could serve our community for future expansion."

"I don't know if we have to raise taxes, but we must hold them as much as we can," Mr. Ellis asserted.

Agreeing on the gravity of the traffic problem, he called it "one of the biggest problems we face. We will get the chance for some positive action on it when the synchronization motion comes before council in January."

Asked what his policy was on annexation to the west of Belleville, the Mayor said flatly he was "opposed to it as such," — calling the idea "expensive" and adding that usually what did happen was that "people just get worked up."

Emphasizing his opposition to regional government as one of the planning solutions, the mayor told his audience he was more in favor of "metro government for urban problems."

Mr. Ellis concurred with Mayor Scott, citing the city's projected debt of $22 million in 1972 as a good reason against annexation. "We have to be more business-like," he said.

One questioner asked Mr. Ellis if he would go ahead with proposed sports complex.

"Yes," he would, said Mr. Ellis.

"There is no ice time for public skating. Surely all of our tax dollar doesn't have to go for sewers," he remarked.

Mayor Scott agreed with him, saying "I do think we need an ice surface for the community."

Should the current urban renewal study be continued? they were asked.

Mr. Ellis replied that since the $5,000 was offered by the Downtown Merchants to continue the study, he felt it should be completed.

Mayor Scott, however, did not think so.

"I see $5,000 as a drop in the bucket," he said as he terminated the meeting, "but whether the Downtown Merchants Association got public spirited on subsidies."

"I was talking to the chief planner of Central Mortgage and Housing recently," recalled the Mayor, "and he said to me, 'since when does downtown urban renewal necessarily mean downtown commercial urban renewal?'"

"I would have more answers than $5,000 and more study of the whole situation."

The mayor pointed to the attitude of chief study consultant — who felt that no other project in the city could be started until the renewal study was finished.

"If we would have kept on going with the study, we would have lost the Four Seasons complex," he said simply.

Replying to a question about the housing problem in the city, the mayor challenged his audience, "did you know at the end of December we will be short 1,000 housing units?"

He told his listeners about the new units presently under construction in Belleville, stressing the urgent needs of the growing population.

It's That Time Again

Mayoralty opponents Richard Ellis and Mayor Russell Scott faced time-burning election campaign schedule — as community organizations called on civic candidates for public appearances last night. Men covered four meetings — saving time by sharing same automobile — to arrive lastly at East Hill Ratepayers' Association debate at 10:30 p.m. by Mr. Ellis' watch.

Candidates' Itinerary

Belleville is an election platform this week .

And last night the platform began publicly pulsing with what its candidates hope are sympathetic vibrations.

A mass pitch for the municipal vote marked the first night in a week of public campaigning building to the crucial Dec. 1 election deadline.

Last night bidders for civic office scattered across Belleville to verbalize their qualifications for running tidy.

The game continues tomorrow night with the annual meeting of the Wharf Street Ratepayers' Assn. — a 40-year-old ritual of Belleville electionis of fiery cross - talk that combines the hot seat with a verbal hot -foot.

Thursday comes a key event — be candidates night sponsored by the city's Chamber of Commerce. This year, following fewer public interest, the session has been moved from Corby public library auditorium to Nicholson College's small gymnasium.

Last night's events was an active initiation for the campaign.

The candidates first trooped out to north Belleville for a meeting of the Hillcrest Ratepayers.

The confrontation accomplished they moved downtown to the library auditorium to address the East Hill Ratepayers' Association.

Mayor Russell Scott and mayoralty contender Richard Ellis had an added challenge — the need to be three places almost at once.

Both men also had to address a meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Women's Association at the Kiwanis Centre.

They solved the situation by scheming fellow travellers for the night.

The opponents shared the same automobile to make the three engagements — completing the schedule in the nick of time.

It was almost 10.30 p.m. when they hurriedly drove up to the East Hill meeting place.

Front-Bridge Street Crash Hospitalizes 2 Pedestrians

Two Belleville pedestrians are in fair condition at General Hospital this morning after being injured in a two-vehicle collision yesterday afternoon at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets.

In hospital are Mrs. Marie Connie LaPain of 41 Everett Street and Donald Johnson of 27 Everett Street.

Mrs. PaPain suffered head injuries, fractured ribs and a factured left arm. Mr. Johnson sustained facial cuts, a fractured shoulder and possible spine injuries.

Both people were pedestrians in the area of Tip Top Tailors when the accident occurred at 3.30 p.m.

A Harry Smith Fuels Ltd. truck driven by Ray Vernon Bathven, of 177 Dundas St., and a car driven by Dennis Carl Malcolm, 25, of 98 College Street West, collided in the middle of the intersection.

The truck was eastbound on Bridge Street and the car was southbound on Front Street when they came into collision.

The truck then struck a traffic light post adjacent to Tip Top Tailors and the pole fell and struck Mrs. LaPaine and Mr. Johnson.

Damages to the truck amounted to $1,000 and to the car — $400. There were also damages to the light post and the awning of Tip Top Tailors.

Hit by Car, Lad, 6, Fair

TRENTON (Staff) — A Carrying Place child remains in fair condition in Kingston General Hospital today after being struck by a car Monday afternoon.

Six-year-old John Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Campbell, suffered head injuries and internal injuries when he stepped into the path of a car on Highway 33 in front of the Carrying Place Public School.

The driver of the car was John Conrad Miller, 33, of RR 2, Carrying Place.

The Brighton Detachment of the OPP reported that the child was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital, then rushed by ambulance to Kingston General Hospital following the 4 p.m. mishap.

Police are still investigating the incident.

New Science Teaching Methods to Be Outlined

The discovery method on science teaching will be on display Nov. 26 at Madoc Public School.

Teachers attending the department of education winter course in science are holding open house at the school in the evening to explain the new methods to the public.

The winter credit course for 85 teachers from Hastings county emphasizes activities in all phases of the science program. Four instructors are in charge.

The teachers have already taken part on one overnight outdoor workshop and plan another in January.

The open house Wednesday night is designed to give parents and administrators an idea of the new concepts in science teaching and what the teachers are doing in the classroom. The public is invited to attend.

3 Reeves Acclaimed

Hastings County Council will see at least three new faces next year as result of acclamations throughout the county.

In Madoc Township, Reeve Allen Ketcheson has resigned. The new reeve is Cecil Woods, a member of this year's council.

Other new reeves already acclaimed are George Lyons of Deseronto, who takes over the position resigned by Donald Armitage, and Jack MacKenzie of Faraday Township, who succeeds Floyd Rowe.

There will be an election in Madoc Township this year. Council positions were filled by acclamation. Two of this year's council members, Don Miller and Christie Bailey, were returned with new members being John Irwin and Harold Harris.

School Buses Soup Lines Cause Concern

PICTON (Staff) — Wellington home and school will hold a meeting Nov. 27 to discuss the number of pupils carried on school buses.

Another question to be raised is the taboo recently placed on the "soup line." Wellington Consolidated school students are not allowed to have soup at school.

Public members of the Wellington Home and School Association Ellen Stewart said last night that this is the first time in 47 years that there has been a restriction on soup. Prince Edward County Director of Education John Mc-Neil and several members of the county school board are expected to attend the meeting.

Santa Claus Parade May Never Again Come to Belleville

By BARRY MILBALL
Staff Reporter

Downtown Belleville will turn into a ghost town Saturday - morning shopping Dec. 6.

The usual end - of - the - week bustle will be that much busier as the Christmas consumer spree gathers momentum.

But, for thousands of Quinte-district youngsters — and likely as many adults — the scene may be disappointingly silent.

For this is the year — the first since 1954 — that Belleville will not host Santa Claus with a parade that once outclassed any Christmas gala between Toronto and Montreal.

The spirit of the event still carries on — thanks to a skeleton citizens' group — now is the bare bones of the 15 - year - old tradition.

The group — a small board of directors and a team of trustees — will provide the city that hopefully will see the parade reinstated in 1970.

To that end the directors met last night — to tie up loose ends left over from the Nov. 4 session which decided the event was an impossibility in 1969.

Unavoidably, the meeting also was something of a post mortem on the demise of the parade this year.

No one cause was pinpointed for the fatality "outside of a lack of community willingness for the labor basic to the parade.

By contrast, it comes at a time when Belleville is undergoing unprecedented community expansion, noted Angus Duffy, Quinte Emergency Measures director and the parade's marshal since its inception.

"Commercially, culturally, industrially — in every way — you'd think Belleville is going ahead," said Mr. Duffy. "And here we come along with one of the city's oldest traditions, that's always been maintained no matter what and it doesn't go on.

"It's a nice thing, a human thing, a Christian thing," added Mr. Duffy, "What's happening? Are we so commercialized we're forgetting the normal humanities?"

Mr. Duffy also admitted he was probably more pessimistic than his fellow directors.

But, he said, the fact the tradition had now been broken, might reader its re-assembling that more difficult.

The organization's new chairman, Bert Redditt, was more hopeful about the parade's future.

"I really think it's a shame it's not going to happen," he believed. "But I think it'll be back for next year."

The likelihood was that the community, after realizing the loss in 1969, would rally around to guarantee next year's parade.

Former fire chief Gerald Vance agreed.

"They'll be sorry they let it drop," he said.

Mr. Vance was the key figure in sparking Belleville's parade tradition — leading the founding effort for the event.

Ironically, the Belleville organizers this year can only sit and watch the parades of other communities — notably Kingston — believed to have been inspired by the Quinte city's success.

Mr. Vance now is forcefully back on the organizational scene. Last night he was named chairman of the parade's trustees — the standing group responsible for caretaking the costumes, floats, and other events assets. These include forms of parade gear now in storage.

It was the former fire chief who early this month moved the motion that clinched the 1969 parade dec... e. He did it, he says, because community response had been so impoverished the preparation deadline was disastrously shortened.

Mr. Redditt indicated his determination to keep the parade organization together for Christmas 1970.

He told last night's meeting "I never was one who liked to take a beating over the head — I didn't like it this year."

Among the necessities needed is accommodation to build parade floats and mobile exhibits.

Most of all the group looks to community response — in the form of willing workers.

These, Mr. Duffy believed, should increasingly come from the ranks of the city's younger citizens.

For this year's parade attempt "not enough young people came forward," he told the meeting.

Emphasized Mr. Vance: "If the citizens as a whole would make up their minds to lend a hand with this big project we can put it on next year. It needs support from workers to help build these floats. They just don't build themselves."

Trenton's public works department "slaved" for hours to build this authentic-looking Viking ship, manned by Norse oarsmen. The float was one of the highlights of Trenton's Santa Claus parade on the weekend, which drew 12,000 spectators.

'Watchdogs of Public Purse' Role Concerns School Board Trustees

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A move to have trustees scrutinize all accounts before they are paid was thwarted at a Hastings County Board of Education meeting last night when only four trustees voted in favor of the action.

The debate on trustees' responsibility as watchdogs of the public purse was sparked by the payment of architects' fees for the proposed composite school on the Bayside school farm.

Macdonald Smith, Belleville objected to payment of $26,661 to Bolgoo and Hetcopen for sketch plans for the school.

"We've invested $26,000 before we have had a say in what's going on", he protested.

The sum represents 12 per cent of the total architects' fee for the $2,000,000 school. The architects' total bill, when tenders are let, is expected to be about $225,000. The fees and the time of payment are set by law, Director of Education Eric Runacres told the trustees.

"If you don't accept the sketch plans at the meeting with the architects Nov. 26, they will have to make revisions at no extra expense", Mr. Runacres added.

However, Mr. Smith moved that the payment be deferred until next week, after the meeting with the architects.

But Robertson Collins noted the account had already been paid.

"We are approving the accounts already paid," he said. "Why don't we approve them before they are paid?"

"If a purchase has been made, you are committed to pay the bill," explained Paul Fleming.

F. John Fallis, Bancroft, put a motion on the floor that all accounts, other than fixed salaries and transportation costs, be received by the board before payment.

The motion was contested by Mrs. Miriam Graham, Belleville.

"We have hired people to do certain jobs," she said. "Now you are saying they don't know how to do their jobs."

"We are elected to do a job, too," rejoined Mr. Smith. Milford Waller, Thurlow, suggested that only accounts over $10,000 should be brought to the board for scrutiny before payment.

But Mr. Smith was opposed to the over $10,000 limit. "It's those little ones you have to watch," he said.

Chairman James Clarke told the trustees they would have to approve every committment made by the board before the work was done if they wanted to exercise complete control over expenditures.

"Your approval of the annual budget is your approval of the commitments made by the administrators," he said.

"And we approved the budget in May," noted Mrs. Graham.

The motion to have accounts approved before payment was defeated when only Trustees Fallis, Smith, Collins and Emerson Robinson of Maynooth voted in favor.

Board Appoints Superintendent

A part-time area superintendent has been appointed for general consultation work with the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board.

Joseph C. Doyle of Toronto will spend one or two weeks a month in district separate schools, assisting teachers.

Mr. Doyle, is a retired superintendent with the Metro Toronto Separate School Board.

Donald Rodgers Acclaimed Reeve

STIRLING (Staff) — Donald Rodgers, Hastings County Warden, was returned to the office of reeve of Stirling by acclamation last night.

Robert Anderson, also nominated for the position, withdrew to qualify for a council post.

Nominated for the four council seats were incumbents Robert Anderson, Maurice Faulkner, Claude Trumble and Robert Hulin. All except Mr. Hulin, who is retiring from municipal politics, qualified.

Also nominated were newcomers Fred Brandt and Arthur Louchs. They have until tonight to qualify.

Public Utilities Commissioners Robert Hanton and Harold Bird were returned to office by acclamation.

The reeve and councillors will serve a one-year term to bring municipal election in line with school board elections in 1970.

Cancer Campaign Collected $24,477

The Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society and the Belleville and District Unit are already preparing for the 1970 campaign in the wake of a most successful campaign in 1969.

Leslie Lennox, president of the local Cancer Society, said that campaign receipts for 1969 amounted to $24,477, meeting the local unit's goal.

Campaign chairman Dr. R. Brain attributed this year's success to the many volunteer workers and canvassers who gave their time and effort during the campaign.

Receipts gained in this unit's campaign included money collected from Belleville, Point Anne, Thurlow, Deseronto, Stirling, Madoc, Marmora and Tweed.

Frank F. McEachran, retiring president of the Ontario Division of the Cancer Society, reported at that meeting that Ontario reached 110.8 per cent of its 1969 campaign objective.

He told the delegates that the $3,547,569 in receipts represents a 17 per cent increase over last year. He added that over 100,000 volunteers made the campaign successful provincially.

Mr. McEachren also noted the efforts of the society's change in theme to the hopeful approach. "cancer can be beaten", calling it a complete change in attitude.

No longer are we warning the public," he said, "but rather we are encouraging and stimulating their interest in the cancer problem."

No Price Control

In a system of free enterprise such as our own it is understandable that the Ontario government has come out against establishment of a commission to require companies to justify price increases.

Premier Robarts touched on the issue recently while answering a question on the need to control inflation. "It is politically popular," he said, "to take up the posture that you will not allow the price of bread to go up — but the Government is not going to follow that path."

The premier conceded there has been a great deal of pressure to create a wages and prices tribunal. However, if the Government looked at petroleum prices, for example, it should also look at the prices of such items as milk and bread. It would not be fair, he said, to separate commodities and single some out for different treatment.

The point is a valid one. In any event controls are not only alien to the spirit of competition, but any such system would only tend to compound the bureaucracy of government to the extent that it does exist. It would involve hiring of additional civil servants, inspectors and all the other paraphernalia of "Big Brother."

For all that, the problem of inflation remains and it would be interesting to know what the price of bread and gas will be say in 1976. By that time the population of Ontario will have risen to 8.6 million from its present total of 7.5 million. Retail sales in 1976, moreover, have been forecast at $43.1 billion compared with an estimated $27.4 billion by the end of this year.

According to the Maclean-Hunter research bureau, another increase will result from the high birthrate in the years before and immediately after 1959 — the pre-university age group of 1976 will be almost a million higher than in 1961.

Thus seven years hence, not only will the population be higher, but prices inevitably will have risen substantially. And wages too, although we can be certain that they will lag behind costs — thus perpetuating the inflation which is already such a bogey of our day.

Out of Place

Parks board officials are reported to be conferring with the Canadian National Railway regarding further work on the steam locomotive and caboose at Zwick's Island.

There is talk of putting up fencing and restoring the engine's cab but the parks board has no money for this item in its current budget.

There is no thought presumably of some more suitable location for the engine and caboose, Zwick's Island, we suggested some time ago, is going to look less and less like a park if it is to be the repository for this kind of hardware.

Better, we suggested further, that some part of the area around the railway station be set aside for a transport museum.

Both engine and caboose look out of place, even if they get more than a second glance. The garish colors of the caboose in particular may have been all right for the United Appeal display car, but they clash with their new surroundings.

Perhaps if some government ever gets around to replacing the Bay Bridge the whole lot could be moved lock stock and barrel to some other place where they can be viewed as interesting relics of the city's past.

Traffic Lights

While traffic movement in Belleville may be slow, as we suggested last week, it must be said that traffic lights, numerous as they are in the downtown area, are there not only to save drivers from themselves but to facilitate pedestrians.

The new lights being introduced at Church and Victoria are a case in point. This has been the scene of accidents and near-accidents in the past; it is also a busy corner for school and general traffic, as well as for churchgoers on Sunday.

With the new lights Belleville should be that much safer a place for both drivers and pedestrians. At the same time the need for synchronization of the lights is long since apparent.

Mellow November!

We are sure we have already heard the old chestnut this year about it going to be a "long, hard winter." If it is not from the Old Farmer's Almanack, we invariably hear it from some sage among our Indian friends. But whatever the prospects, here we are in a November of unusual charm. The sun has been shining and the temperature has been even mild enough to permit some golf. Winter is still at bay.

P.M., Davis, Civil Service Feel Lash of His Tongue

Douglas Hogarth Typical of New Breed of Backbencher

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is a new, independent-minded type of MP in this Parliament, daring enough to do some of his own thinking.

He possesses what in other Parliaments, under other more orthodox prime ministers, would have been regarded as the temerity to question the governmental and parliamentary status quo.

They are not exactly revolutionaries nor even protesters, but they do challenge often with wry wit, some cynicism and casual flippancy what has been the iron rule of precedent.

Just because Parliament has done things for 102 years a certain way, they question the wisdom of continuing blindly on with it.

More surprising, they even question some of the traditional — or, more accurately, the long - accepted — political "truths" as told by their successful party leaders.

Look for these "original thinkers" on the Liberal and Conservative backbenches.

Do not expect to find them among the New Democrats who are still too tightly disciplined to permit any questioning of old socialist ritualistic thinking.

This new breed of MP disdains the warning of old parliamentary hands that their political lectern much prefer the buttoned - up lip to the free - open mouth in the rear ranks.

If they feel like saying something that contradicts established articles of party and political faith, they go ahead and say it.

Like freshman Liberal MP Douglas Aird Hogarth who just the other day let both Fisheries Minister Jack Davis and Prime Minister Trudeau have it.

The prime minister, he told the startled Commons, would not make a move in defence of Canadian sovereignty in the Arctic until he and the troops on the backbenches did "a little dynamiting and shotgunning" of their Glorious Leader.

If the staking of Canadian claims to the Canadian Arctic was "ultra-nationalism," then Douglas Hogarth was proud to take a salute as an "ultra-nationalist," as shouldn't everyone? And where did that leave the timid Trudeau?

Then he took a dig at all the "experts" who have been putting themselves on the back for "reforming" the rules of Parliament.

out look at Rule No. 28, he instructed them. "It says that any MP wishing to speak in this House shall rise uncovered. Do they not know hats have not been worn here for years and years?"

Some of the things you find interred in the rules of Parliament were cited as up to date as something out of the pages of "Treasure Island."

At this point, he turned to skewer Mr. Davis for the fisheries minister's announcement of cancellation, recently, of the seal hunt.

It had been a decision, he cracked in scorn, based on "distorted facts, false and fraudulent, and was so sentimental I was astounded it was not announced by Mickey Mouse or Smokey the Bear."

It has not been recorded whether "Smokey" Davis, the "mousey" fisheries minister, found this at all funny.

But Douglas Hogarth went his best lick when he took out after just-look at Rule No. 28, especially catered to be coddled by all Liberal governments from away back as the best of all possible incentive plans.

You would never guess that federal civil servants, like the armed forces, traditionally vote Liberal the way he cut them up.

It was beautiful, and in case you missed it the first time around here is how Douglas Hogarth broke all the standing rules of the Liberal establishment and laced it to the bureaucrats:

He called them "fantastic" as obstructionists, innocent of an original thought since Confederation, and made it clear he just did not believe the prime minister was going to be able to lay off a single one of them in the name of economy or anything else.

"They never get fired," he related, "A rolling head in the civil service just never happens. They are promoted, transferred or banished to some post where nobody ever sees them again, but they still get paid and they never get sacked."

They did have talent, though, of a sort, he conceded grudgingly, a genius for "snowing" any MP.

"A civil servant, knowing he is going to get into a little hot water, and knowing that an MP in a committee has only 10 minutes to question him, can take 10 minutes to give you his first two names — and you never do really find out who he is."

He had a word, too, for the government's beatification of the old rebel, Louis Riel.

"If he were here now he would say 'Today the scaffold, tomorrow the monument, day after tomorrow the postage stamp.'"

"We're prepared to limit our overkill to 3,000 per cent if you'll cut back to . . ."

Recreation and the Age of Leisure

Ottawa Journal

The leisure problems of the more than three quarters of Canadians who now live in urban areas become similar to the over-all problems of the people of crowded England and Wales.

Leisure a problem?

In Canada in September the average weekly work hours in manufacturing ranged from 37.4 in British Columbia to 41.5 in Quebec.

There is talk of the four-day work week when the computers take over a little more. The middle-aged, who remember how improbable it seemed that public employees, banks and mailmen would ever have a five-day week, would not be surprised by another reduction.

More public holidays are predicted. And longer annual holidays in offices and industries.

If everyone on holiday was prepared only to read, watch television or go for little walks, leisure would be left among the worries of public authorities. But people, thank heaven, are more energetic than that.

A recent survey in England and Wales enabled authorities to find out what demand there would be for sports facilities and urban open spaces, aiding setting of priorities for urban planning for days of increased leisure.

Watching television was, of course, the most popular pas time among city residents. But the survey also revealed an eagerness for sports and other recreational facilities. It was found that men between 46 and 60 tended to spend less time watching television and more time on gardening. They, not just the middle-aged, became a little keener on such active pastimes as dancing, table tennis, tenpin bowls, swimming, and naturally, cricket.

The commonest demand in all areas was for more space for private gardens. A look around our bulging Canadian cities, houses close together and soaring apartment blocks, suggests that we too should be planning gardens of leisure.

English Remains Essential As Language of Business

Granby La Voix de l'Est:

The Quebec businessman who wants to sell his products in the rest of Canada or abroad cannot be a man who speaks French only. The president of one of French Canada's largest companies (Bombardier Ltd. of Valcourt) admits this frankly and without hesitation.

According to Mr. Laurent Beaudoin, a French-Canadian business does not have to renounce its identity to sell its products on the international market. In the case of Bombardier, for example, its employees are mainly French-Canadian and the working language in the plant is French.

"But since the international business language is English," he says, "reality obliges us to recognize the importance of a knowledge of English for our management personnel."

This statement from the president of a company whose extraordinary success has rightly astonished many Quebecers proves once again, it appears, that even if it is essential to guarantee the primacy of French in Quebec, those who aspire to management posts in a company or positions of trust in industry and commerce must always, whatever happens, know the two official languages of the country.

Pure unilingualism will always be a utopia, an unrealizable dream. This is because the refusal to recognize the need for a second language is dangerous, for it limit the chances of Quebecers in the economic field and hinder the advancement of young people in the industrial society of tomorrow. . . .

We can be sure that our young people, being perfectly bilingual, will be much better equipped to succeed in life, even if in Quebec the French language gains more prestige in the future."

As Paris Negotiators Resign...

Allegation of U.S. Atrocities New Headache for Nixon

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A new stage in the Vietnam situation has been reached with the top-rank resignations from the United States peace-talks team and allegations of American atrocities in South Vietnam.

European reaction to Henry Cabot Lodge's action in quitting as chief U.S. delegate to the Paris peace talks was that Lodge would have stayed on if President Nixon really had want ed him too.

Thus observers were inclined to play down the "personal matters" Lodge gave as his reason for leaving.

And the departure was quickly interpreted as reflecting a deeply pessimistic attitude on the part of Washington towards the talks.

The American view came through with considerably greater clarity in the explanation by Canadian-born Lawrence Walsh for his resignation as deputy leader of the U.S. delegation.

A close friend of State Secretary William Rogers, Walsh cited "the manner in which these (Paris) meetings are now being conducted by the other side."

This, he said, led him to conclude that "no purpose could be served by my continuing to hold this office."

Washington says the resignations do not mean the Paris peace effort is being downgraded.

But the official silence about any immediate replacements for Lodge and Walsh could indicate that, at the very least, Nixon plans to use the issue of new appointments as itself a bargaining levy.

In that case, the American posts would be filled only if the Communists gave Washington reason for believing in their readiness to make full-scale negotiations once more worthwhile.

If the Lodge-Walsh departures do reflect a deliberate toughening of Washington's viewpoint, Nixon must at the same time face up to increasing peace pressures at home as a result of the allegations that U.S. troops massacred South Vietnamese civilians in March, 1968.

The charges are being given wide circulation in pro-American countries as well as in the U.S. and the opinion of U.S. allies is not to be ignored by the hard-pressed Nixon.

British Prime Minister Wilson, traditionally allow to criticize U.S. policy on Vietnam, responded to backbench pressure in his Labor party with the Commons remark that even if the allegations proved no more than one quarter true they would indicate very grave atrocities.

From other quarters have come calls for a thorough investigation. And Wilson was not one of those American allies to argue that atrocities have occurred on the Communist side in Vietnam, too.

The new charges already are giving U.S. doves extra ammunition for their peace offensive.

They could undermine the basis for Nixon's public assumption that a quiet majority of Americans are behind him and his call for a stalemate to achievement of a Vietnam peace.

At the Hastings County junior farmers' public speaking contest in Canniffon Orange Hall, three winners for the county were declared. There was a good attendance at the meeting. Douglas Harry of Trenton took first prize in the contest, his subject being "How to Improve the Local Junior Farmer Club".

Motorized traffic was slowed perceptibly on the hills, and early morning pedestrians found the going a bit tough as a result of the eight inches of heavy snow which fell over the district early Thursday night.

Officials said they had been unsuccessful in bringing it to the surface for inspection, one of Germany's "magnetic" mines and until they do they are seriously handicapped. Meanwhile, explosive experts, all sorts of scientists and electrical experts are at top speed busy trying to find a counter-weapon for Germany's latest underwater menace.

Women Candidates

Brighton Nominations 'Most Unusual'

BRIGHTON (Staff)—Things were generally quiet and peaceful here until Monday night's nomination meeting for the Dec. 1 election. Then everything broke loose.

Archie Edwards, clerk - treasurer, said the nomination meeting was easily the most unusual in his 13 years as clerk - treasurer of Brighton.

He said that two precedents were set last night: the largest number of nominations in recent village history and the first nomination of members of the fairer sex.

In all, 18 candidates were nominated for six positions, including two women nominated for council.

A breakdown shows that four candidates were nominated for reeve, three for deputy-reeve, seven for three council positions and two for a single Public Utilities Commission vacancy.

Incumbents Reeve Howard Sharp, Deputy-Reeve Frank Pearsall, Councillor Norman Roberts and former reeve Gerald Ross were nominated for the position of reeve. However, Mr. Sharp has announced he will not run again after serving two years as reeve and Mr. Pearsall has declined his nomination because of ill health.

Councillor Lysle Pownall was acclaimed deputy-reeve after two other candidates were nominated for different positions.

Former reeve Gerald Ross was first nominated for reeve and was automatically considered to be running for reeve rather than deputy - reeve.

Highlight of the council nominations was the appearance of two women, Mrs. Gerald Simpson and Mrs. Dorothy Brintnell — who are believed to be the first female council hopefuls in Brighton's history.

Only one of the seven council nominees, incumbent James Simpson, has any previous council experience.

The other council hopefuls are: Robert Bailey, William Dunk, Ralph Tippett and Kenneth Hutton and the nominations of incumbent Terry McIntosh and Harold McColl for the loan PUC post rounded out the nomination slate.

Nominees have until 8 p.m. tonight to qualify for the municipal election. All offices will carry one - year terms this time to allow them to coincide with school board elections to be held next year. After that all terms will be two years.

Rebates Claimed by 295

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Almost 75 per cent of Trenton's taxpayers who were assessed under an incorrect sewer rate levy have applied to collect rebates. It was reported at Trenton's town council meeting last night.

Finance committee chairman Ted Parker said that 295 claims were received prior to the Oct. 31 deadline. These claims totalled $17,822.

Claims from two industries accounted for $10,082 more than half of the total amount.

Mr. Parker asked council to set aside $18,500 to cover all the claims because 82 claims have not yet been researched. He also noted that research had turned up some residents who were recently added to the sewage assessment, but had not yet been charged.

This added revenue is expected to offset to some degree the incorrect sewer rate levy.

With regard to tax collection, council agreed to accept taxes on properties owned by the Retarded Adults Workshop and return the tax money back to the charity in the form of a grant.

This method was used because council was not able to ascertain if they had the legal right to exempt the retarded workshop from paying taxes.

In other council action, Mayor James MacDonald officially welcomed Trenton's new engineer, Arthur Campbell, formerly of Elgin County, to the Town of Trenton's staff.

Council also passed a by-law officially naming Arden Royce, formerly of London, Ontario, as Trenton's new deputy-clerk and urban renewal officer. He will commence his duties Dec. 8 at a salary of $8,400 annually.

The hiring of the new employees was the prime recommendation of the Hardy Report on Trenton's affairs.

Blood Donors Give 275 Pints

TRENTON (Staff) — Two thirds stirred the blood of Trenton and district residents Monday afternoon — the Apollo 12 splashdown and the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic.

There has been no actual count on the effect of the Apollo 12 splashdown, but 275 blood donors — the exact quota for the year's third and final blood donor clinic — turned out at the Legion Hall.

A total of 253 units of blood were collected because 22 donors were temporarily rejected for medical reasons.

"I can't thank the donors enough — if I could I would thank each one individually," said Mrs. Marg Berry, chairman of the Trenton Red Cross Blood Donor Service.

Mrs. Berry also had a kind word for the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of Trenton Memorial Hospital, the group which sponsors the tri - annual blood donor clinics in Trenton.

"Tremendous thanks should go to the members of the ladies' hospital auxiliary for their help and co-operation in making these clinics possible," Mrs. Berry noted.

A Red Cross mobile unit consisting of two registered nurses, eight clinical assistants and two drivers ran Monday's clinic.

One driver returned the blood to Trenton in a refrigerated truck after the clinic.

Radio Auction Has Over 320 Items

Plans are almost completely ready for the 21st annual edition of the Belleville Y's Men's Club radio auction to be held Tuesday at 6.30 p.m.

According to Vernon Weir, auction canvasser with the project, there are approximately 320 items, donated by local merchants and industries ready to be auctioned.

In exchange for donations of merchandise or service, the club gives commerce and industry the opportunity to present their sales message throughout Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland Counties.

Any items to be auctioned on the program have a retail value of at least $5.

The Bell Telephone Company building on Pinnacle Street will be set up as headquarters with 10 telephones in use to take bids from purchasers phoning in.

Of the 30 people involved in the project, six will serve as auctioneers, pairing up for three two - man shifts.

A list of products to be auctioned off will appear in The Intelligencer Saturday and Monday.

Funds gained from auction will assist the service work of the Y's Men's Club through the Belleville Family YMCA.

Congressional Probe of Vietnam Massacre Is Urged

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The uproar over the reported 1968 massacre of South Vietnamese civilians by U.S. soldiers continued to grow today as more former soldiers came forward with grisly details of the killings and the army announced the general court martial of one of the officers involved.

Members of the U.S. Congress began moving toward their own investigation of the slayings at the tiny hamlet of My Lai in March, 1968, and Senator Stephen Young, Ohio Democrat, urged an immediate investigation "of this sordid affair."

But Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, agreeing that there must be a government investigation, said any Senate investigation must await the outcome of the court martial of Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., accused of premeditated murder of 109 South Vietnamese, including a two-year-old child.

The court martial will be held at Fort Benning, Ga., around Jan. 1. Army officers said they could recall no previous trial where an American soldier was accused of killing so many civilians.

If convicted, Calley faces the death penalty or life imprisonment.

In the British Parliament, about 25 left-wing Labor members began a campaign to end the Labor government's role as one of the strong supporters of U.S. policy in Vietnam.

A debate on Vietnam policy is expected to be held in the Commons, and wide support was building up for a motion calling on the government to express concern about the reported U.S. killing of civilians in Vietnam.

U.S. Army spokesmen said regulations prevent them from clarifying whether Lieut. Calley is accused of pulling the trigger or issuing the orders in the 109 South Vietnamese murders.

But while the U.S. defence department was being vague on specifics of its case, a 22-year-old soldier said in a CBS television interview Monday that he killed "10 or 15" South Vietnamese civilians on orders from Lieut. Calley in the My Lai massacre.

The area, where the American Division had been operating, was a Viet Cong stronghold given the code-name Pinkville by the Americans.

"Why did you do it?" the former soldier, Paul Meadlo of Terre Haute, Ind., father of two children, was asked by Mike Wallace on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite.

Meadlo replied:

"Why did I do it? Because I felt like I was ordered to do it.

"And it seemed like I realized—at the time I felt like I was doing the right thing.

"Because like I said, I lost buddies, I lost a damn good buddy, Bobby Wilson, and it was on my conscience. So after I done it I felt good, but later on that day, it was getting to me."

Meadlo said in the interview that he estimated "just by looking" that 370 men, women, children and babies were killed that day in My Lai.

Meadlo said Capt. Ernest Medina, the company commander, "was right there."

Meadlo asked: "Why didn't he put a stop to it?"

"He knew what was going on. . . . He could of put a stop to it anytime he wanted to," Meadlo said.

Capt. Medina was Lieut. Calley's immediate superior.

Lieut. Calley's lawyer, George Latimer, said in Salt Lake City:

"I'm not sure why he (Meadlo) is talking. I don't know anything about his credibility or the circumstances of the interview. I think it's not good ethics for a witness to be telling things in the press before a trial."

Meadlo said that the day after the My Lai incident he stepped on a land mine and lost a foot. Y Meadlo said the reported massacre will always remain on his conscience. "but like I said, God punished me the very next morning."

The South Vietnamese defence ministry issued a statement last Saturday saying there had been no massacre in the raid.

At Tempe, Ariz., a former army officer said he saw South Vietnamese national police kill 10 persons in My Lai and observed with an artillery battalion near the hamlet on March 16, 1968, the date of the reported massacre.

The former officer, Roger Alton, is a student at Arizona State University. He declined, however, to say if he saw U.S. troops shooting villagers until he consulted a lawyer. He said he did not fire his rifle while in the village.

The defence department, announcing Monday the court martial of Calley, said in effect that the officer could be tried for premeditated murder whether he actually pulled the trigger or issued orders to men of his platoon to slay the South Vietnamese villagers.

The defence department would not take a public stand on the specifics. Defence sources said it was part of the army's legal strategy to give the prosecution "flexibility."

The specifications were explicit in saying that Calley did "with premeditation murder . . . Oriental human beings . . . by means of shooting them with a rifle." The six specifications listed a total of 109 victims including a two-year-old child.

Canadian Doctor Thinks Massacre Reports True

LONDON (CP) — Dr. Alje Vennema, former head of Canadian medical services in Vietnam, says he is convinced that reports of American military atrocities in South Vietnam are true.

The Dutch-born Canadian, who is taking an advanced course in medicine in London, said he was given a summary of American killings of civilians in the Quang Ngai district by two well-placed Vietnamese when he was in that area in 1968.

Vennema, who says his sympathies are not with the Saigon government but with the South Vietnamese masses, made clear in an interview Monday that he did not personally witness any killings of civilians but he was given a report by two anguished Vietnamese, one of whom he identified as a high-placed provincial official.

Noting the Washington announcement that the U.S. Army has decided to try Lieut. William Caley by court martial on a charge of murdering 100 South Vietnamese civilians, Vennema said: "It is no use making one man a scapegoat. The activities of the senior American officials in the area should also be investigated."

Vennema, 37, is a graduate of McGill University who became a Canadian citizen in 1956.

He makes his home in Burlington, Ont. during the 1964-68 period he was director of a Canadian medical team sent to Vietnam to make a survey of medical needs and to assist in easing the intense suffering of the people.

He spoke the language and said he became close friends with a number of Vietnamese. The sympathies of the bulk of the people in the Quang Ngai district were with the Viet Cong, he said. In that period he never saw a North Vietnamese.

"I can tell the difference by the physical stature and the language. There were many guerrillas but none from North Vietnam."

The people were friendly and welcomed the Canadian team, Vennema, who says he is a social democrat in politics, did not fear the Viet Cong.

He said hamlets were entered by members of an American division, who subsequently "wiped out these hamlets, deliberately killing civilians."

Vennema ran into difficulties with the South Vietnamese government and in the fall of 1967 he charged that the Americans were using poison gas in the war. He said that after his public charge, Saigon sent out instructions to all provinces that Vennema should be denied transportation and assistance.

Vennema said he is convinced that the Viet Cong also committed atrocities, such as the killing of village chiefs and teachers.

Future Events Planned By Bemersyde Chapter

CAMPBELLFORD — Bemersyde Chapter IODE held its regular November meeting in the library of Kent Public School and made plans for the December meeting to be a Christmas party at the home of 2nd Vice Regent Mrs. Don Bennett.

Correspondence consisted of an application for a loan from a student attending college, a request from the Santa Claus parade committee to assist in the parade, and a thank you letter from a student who had received a loan and now at university, as well as letters of appreciation from some who had attended the district dinner in October.

It was decided to give the Santa Claus parade committee $25 to be used exclusively for candy for the children.

Regent Mrs. F. M. Rutherford thanked the dinner committee and all who had contributed to the success of the event.

Chapter members had taken charge of a bake table at the Memorial Hospital bazaar and had turned in a total of $78.

As part of the new project "Mend" which deals with emotionally distrebed children, two small boys have been taken to Peterborough for psychiatric analysis and will be taken again for further observation in the near future.

Group 3 under the convenership of Mrs. William Peeling will be the committee for the Christmas party with Group 2 under the convenership of Mrs. R. J. Lodge assisting with the program.

Some discussion took place regarding rental of the school library for meetings.

Crafts, Music and Camping Featured in Workshop

KINGSTON — La Salle Park Baptist Church in Kingston was host to approximately 40 women on Saturday, November 15 when Pioneer Girls leaders and committee members met for a workshop. Twelve women from Belleville attended, six from Parkdale Baptist Church and six from the Alliance Church.

Leaders were able to attend two out of three sessions held simultaneously morning and afternoon. They received much helpful instruction in crafts, music and camping. These are three of the many activities covered in weekly Pioneer Girls meetings. Others are leadership responsibility, service projects, games and vocational and homemaking preparations. Earned achievements - badges and ranks - encourage the development of skill in various fields.

A unique aspect of the meetings for Pilgrims (grade 3-6 girls); Colonists (grade 7-9 girls) and Explorers (grades 10-12 girls is the Bible exploration time. It is here that the girls are taught to search the Bible and find God's answers to life's problems — discovering the thrill of exploring God's word for themselves and establishing habits of personal Bible study.

Pioneer Girls was incorporated as a non-profit service organization in 1943. It has no organic connection with any political, social or religious group. The program is in use by churches of more than 20 evangelical denominations as well as by scores of independent churches across the USA and Canada. Clubs provide a vital weekday contact with girls for Christ and the church.

On England's South Coast

Historic Georgian House Restored by Navy Captain

WEYMOUTH, England (CP) — An historic Georgian house on England's south Dorset coast is blooming again under a restoration plan undertaken by a retired Royal Navy captain and his wife.

The house, long associated with royalty and with the social reformers of the 18th century—notably Elizabeth Fry —has a Canadian connection through a recent chatelaine who once taught music at a boys' private school in Vancouver.

Belfield House, a mile and a bit outside Weymouth, was described in 1780 as "commanding a most extensive prospect of the Channel, the Isle of Portland and the Dorset coast . . . an emblem of the mind of its liberal owner, elegance without ostentation being its leading feature."

The house was completed that year for a wealthy London merchant named Isaac Buxton, and King George III discovered its charms during visits to the seaside resort of Weymouth.

The King, Queen Henrietta and their five daughters including the pretty Princess Sophia stayed here a bit at about the gardens and orchards of the 15-acre estate.

There is a legend that George III, exploring the house's upper chambers, opened a door on a housemaid in the midst of brooms and dusters. The frightened maid fell to her knees exclaiming, "Now I must die, for I have seen the King." The monarch, however, reassured her by expressing the hope that a long life lay before her.

Eight years ago John P. Wright, retired from the navy, bought the old house at auction for a sum equivalent to $17,500—a fantastically low figure in a country where housing is a major problem and small cottages of almost equal antiquity but no splendor sell for about $10,000 in the Thames-side areas.

The high-ceilinged dining room, with an iron-fronted fireplace and panelling and tapestry-panelled walls and high Venetian windows, echoed through the years not only to conversations with royalty, but with some of the leading social reformers of the Victorian era.

Thomas Powell Buxton, a grandson of the original owner, married a sister of Elizabeth Fry, the early leader in prison reform. Buxton himself was one of the parliamentary leaders in the fight for the abolition of slavery, and the famed abolitionist William Wilberforce often dined at Belfield's dark, polished table.

A painter, writer and lover of creative music, Mrs. Wright says she often wishes for some sort of magic radio which could tune into some of the conversations that took place here.

Although thoroughly modern, Mrs. Wright says that the shade of John Cruden, the 18th century Sussex architect, stays her hand when she is tempted to add or subtract furnishings or decorations at variance with the Georgian qualities of the house.

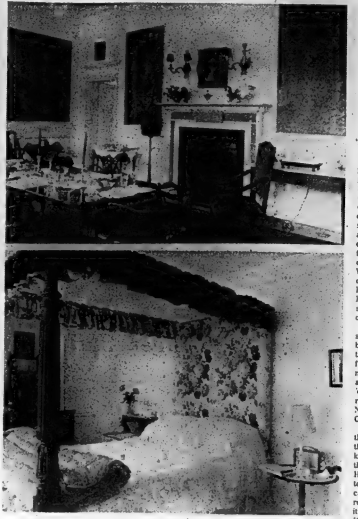
The Wrights' outlay for the restoration now exceeds $4,000, despite the fact that they brought to Belfield fine collections of Georgian furnishings from their previous London home and have done a lot of the work themselves.

For example, they decided that contemporary linens would not do for the bedrooms with their four-poster beds and antique armoires, or clothes-presses. They advertised in The Times for heirloom linens, finally achieving possession of quantities of pale pink linen for a chest whose bride's hopes died in the charge of the Light Brigade.

The facade of Belfield House impresses with its Ionic pedimented portico of four pillars of Portland stone. The front door opens on the typical Georgian hall—a circular entrance hall and the swirl of open, airy staircase recently set off with pure white walls and scarlet carpeting. A circular library directly beyond the hall is filled from floor to ceiling with the books of the Wrights' favorite readings, including the works of Thomas Hardy whose birthplace at Egdon Heath and the countryside of his novels lie a scant dozen miles away.

The conservatory, an extensive glass world across the back of the mansion, leads to the side garden and to a Trafalgar veranda, a narrow metal construction fashionable at the time of the Napoleonic wars and Nelson's victory, a structure rarely seen in North America except in New Orleans.

Successive generations of the Buxton family occupied the house until 1860. Little is known about its ownership thereafter until 1932 when Henrietta Steiner, music teacher from Scotland who came to England after her career in Vancouver, purchased it. She held possession until 1960.



BELFIELD HOUSE RESTORATION — The Georgian dining room at Belfield House on England's Dorset Coast, a marine residence dating back to 1780, was recently restored by Capt. and Mrs. John Wright. The Adams fireplace is iron with scallop-shell design and mantel objects are a silver cup and an Adams' fondant bowl. The ancestral portrait is of Thomas Bell of Norfolk. The walls are panelled in leaf-design tapestries. The Georgian bedroom is complete with wig cupboard (centre left), four-poster bed and a hollow wall that once gave access for royalty to adjoining rooms. The bed spread, rescued from the attics of Belfield, is heavy crochet work.

The secret behind this "quick weight loss diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a catalyst (the "fire-part"), to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet sheet, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. A copy of this startlingly improved diet including suggested menus can be obtained by sending $2 in currency AWAY. Dept. 54-25, 1138 Main St., Winnipeg 4, Manitoba.

Handicapped Brother Makes Life Unbearable

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem is a 30-year-old brother who has been confined to a wheelchair for three years. The doctors say Lee has a paralysis which appears to be permanent.

I am 17 and have two sisters also in their teens. We have tried to be kind and considerate, but the more we do, the more demanding Lee becomes. He is driving all of us crazy, and this includes Mom and Dad. His demands are unreasonable. He orders us around as if we were slaves . . . "Get me the newspaper . . . I have to have a cold drink . . . a cup of coffee . . . a piece of candy...If there's none in the house, go to the store. Get off the telephone, I want it. Find my shoe, tweezer, Polish my shoes. I need a cushion. Get me a pencil." There's never a "please" or a "thank you."

Lee criticizes Mom's cooking and insults our friends. He has no friends of his own because he argues with everybody. My sisters are getting ulcers from him and I'm suffering from terrific headaches. My mother shakes like a leaf every time she hears dinner for fear Lee won't like it. What can we do? — PITTSBURGH PROBLEM.

* * *

DEAR P.P.: Handicapped people should not be permitted to use their incapacitation as a club. Your brother needs professional counseling. First, as an outlet for his frustrations and anxieties, and second because someone with whom he is not emotionally involved should give him insight into how his tyrannical behavior affects himself as well as others.

Of course it is irritating to be ordered around and run ragged, but it might help if you and your sisters could say to yourselves, "Thank God we can run. Lee can't."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For 25 years I have been married to a handsome man. He makes an excellent living, is a dedicated father, popular man in the community, and has yet to eat a meal without saying grace. I love him very much and he says he loves me. So what's the problem? His eyes nearly fall out of his head when an attractive girl walks by. Correction: she doesn't even need to be attractive. If she has a big front porch or a broad beam, that's enough. In fact, I've seen him ogle some real dogs and ill drives me wild.

I've told him how I feel dozens of times and he insists he has no problem. He says I'm the one who needs help. He claims I don't have enough to think about and I should be glad he still "notices."

If the man were starved for sex at home it would be a different story. The truth is, he has more than he can handle. Yet he leers at every waitress, elevator operator — anything female. My mother, who adores him, says I should accept this "small flaw" and stop talking about it. A close friend suggested that I throw a drink in his face and cost him off once and for all. What do you say? — DILLY IN DALLAS.

* * *

DEAR DILLY: I say your mother gave you excellent advice. Take it. And stop that "friend," Toots — she's got oatmeal where her brains belong.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Three Items Make One Excellent Menu

By MARY MOORE

Today I have three recipes for you and since space is always at a premium the talk session is cut short. The three items would make one good dinner menu.

BEEF HASH
(using leftover roast with some fat on)

Put through grinder enough cut-up leftover roast beef to make approximately two cups along with 1 cut-up small onion, 1 cut-up medium carrot, 1 cut-up stalk celery and 1 cut-up medium potato. Let ground food drop directly into medium-large frypan. Stir in 1 tbsp. bovril. Stir well. Smooth top. Pour over evenly ½ cup to ¾ cup 10 percent or 18 percent cream and cook over low heat until bottom is gold.

CREAMED MUSHROOMS
1 lb. mushrooms (preferably small)
¼ cup butter (OR margarine)
¼ cup flour
2 cups milk
½ tsp. salt

Wash mushrooms thoroughly in running water. Drain. Cut any large ones into quarters. Melt butter (or margarine) in large frypan. Add mushrooms and coat them with butter over low heat. Sprinkle over flour and salt and stir in. Add milk, stirring until thickened. Cover and SIMMER five minute only.

I served these with individual meat pies. (See tomorrow.)

ATHOLSTAN APPLE CRUST
NOTE: This dish was designed to have an apple dish to go under ice cream.

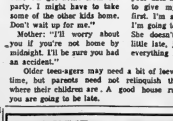
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups pared, thinly sliced tender apples (I used Melbas)
½ cup broken walnuts or pecans
¼ cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
Into beater bowl measure

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Chili con Carne; Hot Buttered French Stick; Shredded Raw Cauliflower, Spinach and Chinese Lettuce Salad with French Dressing; Citrus Fruit Cup; Cheese and Crackers; Tea.

Points for Parents
By MARY BRYSON



Jim: "I don't know what time I'll get home from the party. I might have to take some of the other kids home. Don't wait up for me."

Mother: "I'll worry about you if you're not home by midnight. I'll be sure you had an accident."

Older teen-agers may need a bit of leeway on the curfew time, but parents need not relinquish their right to know where their children are. A good house rule: Always call if you are going to be late.

Fellow-McMaster-ite Commends Doris

By DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:
About Long Time Reader's letter, suggesting you mail your introductory comments: I have lived in various communities in three provinces and have read many women's columns. Yours is the best.

This is because your fine introductory comments are of interest to all and stay with us long after the answers to a specific question have left our minds. Your column is warm and friendly and reveals your personality in a way that a straight household hint or question and answer column cannot.

My vote — stay as you are!

A Fellow McMaster-ite.

P.S. I have your recent article on table manners: "Confucius says . . ." tacked up on my kitchen wall for the benefit of my teen-age sons.

DEAR FELLOW McMASTER-ITE:

Then I'll keep them coming. Thank you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:
I don't want to be a social recluse but I am one. At 53 years of age what can one do? When I am criticized I respond with a nasty remark and make myself disliked, then I feel guilty and so tired I can't do the things I know I should.

My husband works every evening and Sunday, and I have no friends and no companionship from him. Now I feel so guilty that I haven't been able to teach my children how to make friends, and I hate to think of them suffering the agonies I have. One doctor said if one doesn't talk one is no more than animal.

I quit teaching music because my sister-in-law teaches it and she managed to make me feel as if I have no ability for it. She comes out with remarks about "having no color", and her nephew would have "nothing in common with my son", so I gave up trying.

The neighbors are all friendly to one another but I feel so left out (through my own fault, I know). Is there any hope after all these years? — Alone.

DEAR ALONE: Of course there's hope. That sister-in-law has sold you on your own worthlessness. Don't buy it. You are YOU, a separate person quite different from anyone else on earth, with your own unique talents and charm.

Make a friendly gesture to one lonely person. Is there a neighbor you can call on at a time when she would otherwise be feeling lonely?

Read; develop some skill in conversation. Go where people are; do volunteer work. Put an ad in the paper and start teaching music again.

Confidential to M.R.D.: Time and time again elderly persons hanker to get back home. Then when they do get moved out of their comfortable nursing home, they discover how inadequate they are to managing alone.

Better level with your mother. Remind her of the energy it takes to carry a bag of groceries, to mop a floor; to keep a house or even a small apartment going.

Far better for you to be a faithful visitor to her where she is, than to sponsor say more which will make her feel more frustrated and inadequate than ever.

Safety Man Blames Politics for Firing

TORONTO (CP) — A safety inspector whose reports have twice been quoted in the legislature in attacks on the department of public works was fired Monday and blamed his dismissal on "political hassling."

S. W. Greenslade, 42, said in an interview Monday night he was fired over a "phoney charge" that he had not properly itemized purchases made with a department gasoline credit card. He accused the government of deliberately making him a political scapegoat.

E. G. Pinder, director of the safety branch of the department, said Mr. Greenslade had been dismissed but added he was not aware of the circumstances of the firing.

Mr. Pinder also said he has submitted his own resignation because government austerity made it impossible for him or his branch to do their job properly. The branch is responsible for safety inspections in 6,650 provincial government buildings across Ontario.

Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) twice used reports signed by Mr. Greenslade to mount attacks against the Ontario public works minister, John Simonett.

They tried to make out that I have been supplying information to that man—what's his name?—Shulman," said Mr. Greenslade.

"That is not the case."

Dr. Shulman denied receiving any information from Mr. Greenslade, who is responsible for fire inspections of 280 provincial buildings in Metropolitan Toronto.

Mr. Simonett Monday night said he had spoken to Mr. Greenslade "but I didn't agree with him." Asked whether he thought Mr. Greenslade was Dr. Shulman's secret informant, the works minister replied: "I can't prove anything, but his name was mentioned."

Mr. Greenslade has retained as his lawyer Liberal Deputy Leader Vernon Singer (Downsview) if he decides to fight the dismissal.

American Falls Will Flow Again

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP — The American Falls, silent for almost six months, were to spring to life again today as workers removed a cofferdam that had held back the waters of the Niagara River.

The United States Army Engineer would be roaring over the falls at full force again by the weekend.

The cofferdam was built last spring, shutting off the flow of water over the rocky riverbed and the precipice of the falls itself, so that geologists could make erosion studies.

The engineers studied the rock strata, cracks, and a mound of rock debris that has piled up at the base of the falls over the years. The results of the studies won't be made known until later.

The earth coffer dam stretched from the American side of the Niagara River 600 feet to Goat Island. It diverted the full flow of the river over Falls.

Robarts Defends Inco Move

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Monday International Nickel Co. of Canada "can't continue to pay wage increases without an increase in the price of the product."

He told the legislature that a 25-cent-a-pound increase for nickel by the company is no more inflationary than any other recent increases in prices and wages.

He was asked by Donald MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, whether Inco could not meet its wage increases "by reducing the $140,000,000 in profits after taxes they piled up in 1968."

The premier replied inflation can be controlled in a number of ways and he was not going to select one and "chip away at the profit motive."

"The profit motive is a good one; dispose of it and our expansion comes to an end."

Stapley Family In Christmas Wonderland

Winner of The Intelligencer's first trip to Toronto's Christmas Wonderland was Teana Stapley, Teana and her whole family, Connie, 8, Sharlene, 7, and Marlene, 2, along with their mom and dad, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stapley, visited Christmas Wonderland on opening day.

The family were met by Snoopy of Peanuts fame and Frosty The Snowman and were given the royal red carpet treatment all day long.

"FREE" was the magic word of the day — free rides, free food and free treats. Yes, everything was free — compliments of The Intelligencer.

The happy Stapley family ate lunch at Alice's Restaurant, went sliding on The Blue Imp and Oasis slides, rode in mini cars, raced at the Grand Prix race track, talked with "Blinky," the talking Police Car, rode the CN's Mini Rapids 6501 through the Enchanted Mountain and watched "Uncle Bobby" of TV fame in his Showboat.

Also a feature of the day was a first look at a moon rock and some moon dust brought back earlier this year by the Apollo 11 moon crew.

Yes, it was a full day of fun and excitement for Teana Stapley and her whole family, highlighted by visits to the Fairy Princess and that Jolly old fellow, Santa Claus.

Will you and your family be the next excited winners to visit with Snoopy at Christmas Wonderland? Only your letter to Santa will tell.

Frosty the Snowman Welcomes Teana

Teana's Letter To Santa Claus

Dear Santa

My dad read us the story in the paper about Christmas Wonderland in Toronto. He said we should try to win so I am writing like the paper said. I would like to win so we could see everything there and take my three sisters and mom and dad. Because after Santa came last year all our toys and new things we got burned up in our house.

Everybody was nice to us and gave us more toys. But they wasn't like what Santa brought so we would wish we could go to Toronto and see him and tell him to bring the same things again. I will put down my sisters names with mine. Teana Stapley — Connie Stapley — Sharlene Stapley and Marlene Stapley.

I would also like to see all the lovely things I have heard about Christmas wonderland. I would like to see and have lunch with Snoopy. And then I would like to see your Ice palace. Then I would like to tell you what I want for Christmas. And then I would like to see the toys.

Saskatchewan Took One On Chin in Last Montreal Grey Cup

MONTREAL (CP) — The only other time the Canadian professional football championship was played in Montreal was Dec. 5, 1931, when Montreal Winged Wheelers defeated Regina Rough Riders 22-0.

Regina's descendants, Saskatchewan Roughriders, are here Sunday for the 1969 Grey Cup battle against Ottawa Rough Riders, 60th anniversary of the inauguration of the classic.

But that Grey Cup game 38 years ago, was memorable.

It was the first Canadian final to feature the forward pass, legalized by the Canadian Rugby Union for the 1931 season.

Although some Western teams had employed the forward pass as early as 1929, Warren Stevens's touchdown threw to Ernie Grant in the 1931 championship is recognized as the first of 61 touchdown passes completed so far in the history of Grey Cup competition.

The 5,112 persons who braved freezing temperatures to watch the game at Molson Stadium, were treated to a powerful exhibition of kicking and running by the Winged Wheelers who capped an undefeated season with their victory over Regina.

The Montreal team, coached by Clarry Foran, boasted such stars as Stevens, in the flying wing or flanker position, and Grant at outside or end as it now is called.

Other prominent Winged Wheelers were halfbacks Wally Whitty, Huck Welch and Gordon Perry.

Coach Al Ritchie's Regina team, unbeaten in 1931 until the Grey Cup game, had powerful running halfback Eddie (Dynamite) James, the only Rider consistently able to move the ball against Montreal.

A middle, oc guard, for Regina was Albert Urness, father of Ted Urness, centre with Saskatchewan against Ottawa Sunday.

The 1931 game was played on an icy field—as "hard as cement," said one reporter.

The Winged Wheelers struck quickly and led Regina 7-0 at the end of the first quarter. Welch kicked a single and converted Pete Jotkus's five-point touchdown.

One post-game account described Welch's kicking prowess as being such that punts of 65 yards were "the rule rather than the exception."

Six-point touchdowns were not adopted in Canadian football until 1956.

Following a scoreless second quarter, Montreal extended its lead to 13-0 by three-quarter time on another single by Welch and the historic touchdown pass from Stevens to Grant.

Grant said in an interview Monday he thinks the pass was thrown 10 to 25 yards and he ran it into the end zone.

Regina mounted its only threat of the game in the third quarter, advancing the ball to the Montreal five-yard line only to lose possession on a fumble by James.

The Wheelers rounded out the scoring with a field goal by Welch and Wirig's touchdown on an end run. Stevens ran the ball over the goal line for the convert and the 22-0 triumph.

Mixed Feelings

No Western Doubt On Eastern Result

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders felt all along that their Grey Cup opponents would be Ottawa Rough Riders, coach Eagle Keys said Monday.

"There was no doubt about that and on Saturday they proved it."

Saskatchewan watched with mixed feelings televised broadcast of Ottawa's 32-3 win over Toronto Argonauts. The victory gave Frank Clair's charges the two-game total-point Eastern Football Conference series by a 21-point margin.

The Roughriders, Western Football Conference champions in regular season play three times in the last four years, would have preferred a chance to avenge a 34-15 loss to the Argos Sept. 7 in Toronto.

But, Keys said, "we knew that Ottawa was the better ball club."

The Canadian Football League season-ending tilt, due to start at 1 p.m. EST Sunday in Montreal, will be a rubber match between the like-named clubs. In two previous Grey Cup battles, Saskatchewan beat Ottawa 29-14 in Vancouver in 1966 and lost 21-14 in Toronto in 1951.

This year, in their only regular-season encounter, Saskatchewan downed Ottawa 30-21 in Regina Oct. 12.

Saskatchewan, gunning for the club's second Grey Cup win, will go with the same personnel that beat Calgary Stampeders 36-13 last Wednesday to take the WFC final in two straight games. But there may be some modifications.

FRANK CLAIR
No Surprise

Steve Molnar, the Saskatoon-born rookie halfback who turned three pass catches into 54 yards gained in the second playoff game against Calgary, may see more duty at half, Keys said.

That would free Al Ford, Roughriders' punter who has done service this season at four positions, to move into the split end spot that Gord Barwell had to vacate due to a shoulder separation in the first playoff game against Calgary.

Halfback Ron Atchison, with a leg injury, and third-down snap specialist Bruce Gainer, with a fractured wrist, are the only other Saskatchewan players who won't be dressed for action.

Ford has jumped from offensive half to defensive half to tight end to cornerback, patching leaks in the lineup wherever they appeared.

Saskatchewan plans to fly from Regina to Montreal Friday, arriving in time for an afternoon workout. The team will rest Saturday.

Keys declined to predict the outcome of the game.

Canadian Loopholes?

Soviet Press Hits Pro Plan

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda today called on the International Ice Hockey Federation to settle the dispute over Canadian plans to field a professional national team.

The newspaper, published by the ruling Communist party and the foremost daily in the country, reported from Ottawa that Canadian hockey officials are using loopholes in international regulations to put as many professionals as they want on the Canadian team which will play in the world championships next March.

A special committee known as Hockey Canada has been set up in Winnipeg to supervise Canada's efforts to regain the championship title it lost in 1962, Pravda reported.

Here hockey strategists have found the loopholes for professionals, it said, and are planning to take advantage of them.

"In other words, the Hockey Canada headquarters apparently feels that any means for achieving the desired goal are good," Pravda reported.

It is high time for the International Ice Hockey Federation to express itself on this matter and draw a clear distinction between amateurs and professionals."

Cullen Won't Play

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Brian Cullen, a former National Hockey League player with Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers, said Monday he would not play with Canada's national team for the world championship tournament.

Cullen said in an interview he was asked to play with the team in Montreal and Winnipeg during the tournament next February, but declined because daily workouts in Toronto will interfere too much with his business.

30 Points Each

Goyette, Orr Still Play See-saw

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues and all-star defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins continue their see-saw battle for leadership in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Statistics released by the NHL today show the pair locked atop the pile with 30 points each. Goyette has 10 goals and 20 assists while Orr has four goals and 26 assists.

Led by Goyette, Ab McDonald and Red Berenson, the St. Louis power-play has scored 25 goals on 82 opportunities and that is the reason the threesome is in the thick of the scoring race.

Sixteen of Goyette's 30 points — five goals and 11 assists — have been scored with the opposition shorthanded. Berenson, tied for sixth on the scoring list with Dave Balon of New York, each with 22 points, has 13 power-play points on four goals and nine assists.

McDonald, who is third with 25 points, has 12 power-play points on six goals and six assists. He leads in goals with 12.

Orr's 30 points include one power-play goal and 11 power-play assists.

Together, the three St. Louis players have a power-play point total of 41.

Walt Tkaczuk and Jean Ratelle, both New York centres, are tied for fourth in the scoring parade with 24 points each. Ranger Vic Hadfield and Bruins John Bucyk and Fred Stanfield are tied for eighth place with 20 points each.

Ottawa Sells 5,800

OTTAWA (CP) — Every Grey Cup football ticket allotted to Ottawa Rough Riders has been snapped up by season ticket holders, the football club announced Monday.

The allotment for Ottawa was 5,800 tickets for the game next Sunday with Saskatchewan Roughriders, western representative in the Grey Cup in Montreal.

Starr's Shoulder Could End Season

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Quarterback Bart Starr may be out for the National Football League season, coach Phil Bengtson of Green Bay Packers said Monday.

"He has a shoulder separation on his throwing side," Bengtson said. "Even for someone who doesn't throw, it takes a long time to heal."

Starr was injured in the first quarter of Sunday's 16-10 loss to Detroit Lions when he was tackled after running for a six-yard gain.

Krouse Loses

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court Justice Monday refused to grant football player Bob Krouse an injunction to stop Chrysler Canada Ltd. from issuing pictures of Krouse without his permission.

Krouse, a linebacker with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference, claimed the auto company was issuing promotion cards through its dealers which showed his picture. Krouse said he had not given the company permission to use his picture nor was he being paid for its use.

The Canadian Football League Players' Association supported Krouse in his attempt to stop distribution of the cards, which also contained the rosters of Canadian Football League and National Football League teams.

Mr. Justice G. A. Addy ruled that Krouse could not prevent use of his photograph unless it was defamatory or involved breach of contract or copyright. He said the picture was not an invasion of privacy, nor was it implicit that the football player pictured was endorsing the company's products.

Other teams already qualified are West Germany, Belgium, Sweden, Russia, Romania, El Salvador, Brazil, Morocco, Uruguay and Peru. Ellis Juniors Collapse in Third

KINGSTON — Eastern Ontario Junior B league leaders, Kingston Frontenacs showed Belleville Ellis Juniors that you have to play more than 40 minutes of hockey to win a hockey game.

The Kingston club downed the locals 8 - 2 in a game at last night.

"I haven't got a thing to say," commented Belleville coach Floyd Crawford. "I am just in the thinking stage. Crawford was definitely in a "there'll - be - some - changes-made" frame of mind.

The Belleville club fell apart in the final 20 minutes of hockey after having the Kingston squad on the run for the first two periods.

"They showed excellent positional hockey in the first two periods, said Kingston coach Bob Senior. "When I took my boys in the dressing room between the second and third periods I was not sure just exactly what I was going to tell them. I thought the Belleville Boys were going to come out in the third hustling.

The locals stayed on top of the Frontenac forwards for the first 40 minutes and broke up play after play. With the defencemen standing their ground and the forwards hustling back to check, the Kingston club couldnt get any real attacking threat going. Then in the third period Kingston starting to beat the locals to the puck and the goals starting coming.

Belleville, generally a hard-hitting club, allowed the Frontenac attackers to skate wide and break towards the net. Every Kingston rush in the third period saw two or three black and gold receivers in front of Belleville goalie Paul Hopkins waiting for the pass or rebound.

Goal - scorers for Belleville were John McConnell and Terry Meagher.

Kingston goal getters were Frank Coffey, Mike Lynch and Larry Brooks with two each. Bob Murray and Rick Plumb scored the other Frontenac goals.

Belleville's John McConnell and Terry Meagher dropped one more point behind Kingston's Colin Loudon in the scoring race despite a goal and an assist each for the locals. Loudon extended his total to 22 points with three assists last night. Meagher and McConnell have 19 points each.

The loss left the Ellis Juniors still occupying the cellar of the league with three points, one behind fifth place Trenton Golden Hawks while Kingston now has 20 points eight ahead of second place Peterborough Don Byes.

Kingston outshot Belleville 41-31 while the locals got 14 of the 38 minutes in penalties.

Ellis Juniors next team up with Belleville McFarlands for a Thursday night exhibition game against the Flying Fathers.

Next Eastern Ontario Junior B action for the locals comes next Sunday with a 7.30 p.m. game against Peterborough Don Byes at the Memorial Arena.

Central Whips Belvedere To Keep Quinte Race Close

The race in the Quinte Hockey League tightened up even more after action last night in Memorial Arena.

Belvedere Hotel lost their first game of the season to the Aluminum stars, 3 - 1 while Central Taxi moved closer to the league leaders with a 3 - 1 victory over Simson Construction.

Cup Week On

MONTREAL (CP) — The pre-arranged spontaniety of another Grey Cup Week started to gather momentum here Monday with the reason for it all still a week away.

After Mayor Jean Drapeau gave his personal guarantee of peace for the week in a Sunday statement, the nine Miss Grey Cup contestants embarked on a tour of provincial centres to help drum up interest.

Nurse Goes to Track For Off-duty Hobby

HALIFAX (CP) — Helen MacRae, 25, of suburban Bedford spends a lot of time looking after living things.

She is a nurse by profession and her hobby is horses—a hobby that seems almost as important to her as her job. Horses enticed her to buy a bigger car and to accept permanent night working hours at the Victoria General Hospital here.

horses goes back a long way. When she was 12 years old she started riding on her uncle's farm at Enniville, N.S. She liked horses as a child and rode "whenever I could," but it was not until recent years that she began to devote so much of her time to her hooted friends.

Now, she owns her own horse, a 10-year-old mare boarded at nearby Sackville, and is a regular volunteer trainer for harness animals at Sackville Downs Raceway.

She leaves for the Downs most days after her shift ends at 7 a.m.

"I try to get out most mornings, six days a week, but I usually only average four or five," she says.

She helps with grooming and exercising, and does some training. And while training horses, she has picked up a few skills herself.

The young nurse entered a powder puff derby last year and drove to a second-place finish. But despite her driving success, she has no ambitions to rival male drivers for their jobs in regular racing.

"I'm not really interested in competing. I've got too much to learn first."

Perhaps she also has too much to do. She also tries to get out to see her own horse each day and keep the mare well exercised. And at home she has a dog, a two-year-old black Labrador.

Flying Fathers to Face Experienced 'Old-Timers'

The Ellis All stars will have an array of hockey talent to put to use against the Flying Fathers come Thursday night's Memorial Arena exhibition.

Joining famed ex McFarlands Floyd Crawford, Lou Smrke, Jean-Paul Lamirande and Gordie Bell will be Fiori Goegan and Ed Marineau. Goegan and Marineau both played with the "Macs" when they won the 1959 world championship.

Also in the lineup will be Bob Taylor, Jim Muirhead, Doug Murray, and Gary Geyer all with experience with the Senior A McHawks.

Junior and intermediate experienced Carl Boomhower along with former Junior B's Duke Doran and Lee Goyer round out the "oldtimers" on the team. Defenceman Ellis Junior B's will join the "oldtimers" to make what they hope will be effective offensive and defensive attacking unit.

Mo Hawk playing coach Davey Jones is expected to officiate in the game with team mates "Weiner" Brown and Lionel Boily leaking after the linesmen chores.

All three played for the "Macs" in its days of Allan Cup and world tourney triumph.

Game time is 8 p.m. Thursday and advance tickets may be obtained from McKnight's Variety on Front Street or any Alhambra 109 member. Proceeds go towards equipment for the new Belleville Retarded Workshop.

New Course Underway

The Most Enthusiastic Duffer

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

There aren't many 90 - shooters with Earl Johnson's golfing enthusiasm.

It fairly bubbles out of him as he careens guests over the raw site of his Belleville Golf and Country Club in a jolting Jeep ride.

"Can't you just feel it," the 52 year-old landscape architect exudes, standing on what will, in two summers, be a 100 - foot-long tee, pointing towards what, in two summers will be a 7,000-square-foot green.

What do guests "feel" as they take the Cook's tour of the 106 acres of Highway 2 property destined to become 18 holes of championship golf?

Well, obviously, not as much enthusiasm for the project as its prime mover. But some of it can't help but rub off on Earl Johnson rattles his jeep through mired passages no self-respecting 4-wheel would attempt to negotiate.

"How about this, hey?" he beams, pointing ahead to a third of a mile of frozen furrows bordered on one side by a meandering stream and a hedgerow of slim saplings.

This is one of his favorites. By the end of next summer's seeding it will begin to look like the finished product — a 320-yard par-five dog-leg that, flirts with water all along the right - hand - golfer's slice side.

"Remember, you have to have some imagination," your host reminds you, as he steps briskly over the frosty terrain, stilted more like a construction foreman than a landscape architect.

Earl Johnson had on - the - job training in imagining golf courses. He designed and operates 18-hole championship layouts in Don Mills (Flemingdon Park G.C.) and Durham, Ont. (Homestead G. and C.C.).

The Johnson philosophy is simple: give the golfer a challenge, but don't make things so tough he won't want to play your course.

The parallel 8th and 17th, for example, are par-five monsters well into the 550 - yard range. But Johnson's design gives the golfer enough fairway elbow-room to sail an armada through.

Water comes into play on eight holes, but there's always the opportunity for the not - so talented to play short and then over the liquid hazards.

The parallel - fairways concept is unique among Quinte area courses, and is consistent throughout Johnson's layout. The 1st and 10th fairways are adjacent and point in the same direction, for example, ditto the 6th and 15th, etc. etc.

"This way, there's no danger of a golfer walking into somebody's drive to a neighboring fairway," the designer says.

One place a minimum of imagination is required is the 12th hole, a par-three by the tee. The impressive 200 - yard - plus finishing hole has an elevated tee and calls for a healthy carry over an imposing pond.

It, and the similar par - three ninth green lie within putting distance of the proposed pro shop site along Highway 2.

Despite its 10 - mile distance from the city, ohnson preferred to dub his latest brain - child the "Belleville Golf and Country Club."

"It's certainly no handicap to be located outside the city," he has said. "There isn't a golf course in the city right now."

"We expect to draw many members from Belleville, and we're also going to make a real effort to make green - fee golfers feel at home."

"Feeling at home" in the Johnson scheme of things will involve the use of such planned facilities as a plush chalet clubhouse and nearby swimming pool.

Right now, the chalet is a red barn with a gaggle of ducks quacking by, the husk trees and greens are roughed - up piles of dirt marked by green and red flagged stakes, and the swimming pool is an expanse of frozen barnyard.

But in 1971 is two summers off and, as Earl Johnson says, "you've got to have some imagination."

On the Tee?

Not yet, but in two years. Landscape architect Earl Johnson surveys his Belleville Golf and Country Club site which he expects to have open to the area golfing public by the summer of 1971.

Pro Boxing's Supporters Lead Detractors On Points

LONDON (CP) — Critics and supporters of pro boxing came out slugging when the Royal College of Physicians reported on brain damage caused in the ring. So far the supporters seem ahead on points.

Their Sunday punch against the report was the fact that in e rchelons about brain injuries are based on the examination of 224 boxers who all retired 14 years ago or more.

Boxing authorities and sports writers contend that the results, though they allow that under past conditions boxers were liable to mental and physical damage resulting from the lack of medical supervision, have little relevance to today's strictly controlled fight game.

When the Royal College was commissioned by the government to make the study in 1952, it made a random selection of 250 fighters who had been registered with the British Boxing Board of Control between 1929 and 1955.

The experts found that 16 had died since then, nine had left the country and one refused to take part. Of the remaining boxers, 37 were found to be punch drunk, showing some signs of permanent damage to their nervous systems. Thirteen of these were seriously disabled.

Although it established there was a high risk of mental injury following a long boxing career in the past, the report says: "It is not possible to draw any conclusion about the risk of brain damage in professional boxing today."

Professional boxing has altered in many ways since the Depression of the 1930s.

Many of the subjects questioned and examined had their heaviest fighting experience during that period.

Predictably, boxing's expert advocates aimed a few uppercuts at the critics who greeted the publication of the college's findings as a condemnation of boxing as brutal and dangerous.

"The report itself may be all right," said Dr. Adrian Whitson, senior medical officer at the BBBC. "The trouble is many of the conclusions are drawn from pre-war days and many people believe this is boxing as it is today."

Peter Wilson, Daily Mirror sports columnist, said: "You can no more compare modern-day boxing—and its end products—than you can try to equate James Figg, the first heavyweight champion of England with bare knuckles, in 1719, with Henry Cooper 250 years later."

History or not, Baroness Edith Summerskill, colorful campaigner against amateur and professional boxing, eagerly accepted the report as fresh ammunition for her crusade to ban the sport.

Canadian Tour's Hottest

Cox Spent $8,000 to Make $6,000 Golfing

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — For two years, Bob Cox, Canada's hottest golfer since George Knudson, spent about $8,000 to make $6,000— trying to prove to himself he was a pro.

It was the kind of deficit financing that forced him to feed his family and his sagging bank account with part-time jobs as a steel worker, insurance salesman and taxi driver.

"Now you'd think I was Arnold Palmer," says the soft-spoken 29-year-old who won more than $19,000 on the Canadian tour this year.

"Everybody wants to jump on the bandwagon."

Cox, a product of Vancouver's public courses who did not break 80 until he was 18, admit he feels a little out of place as the darling of the country club set, Canadian Professional Golfers Association champion and winner of four provincial open titles.

He still remembers the year he left high school, determined to become a chartered accountant because he thought he could make more money with an adding machine than a driver.

"One year as a junior clerk in the bank was enough for me," Cox said over dinner at the Shaughnessy Golf and Country Club. "I always wanted to sneak out and play golf."

He started working in the pro shop at Langara golf links in Vancouver when he was 20, but it wasn't until 1967 that he decided to try the Canadian tour.

And it wasn't what you would call an auspicious debut.

"At the Ontario Open, I played like a bum and made $185."

By January of this year, Cox and his sponsors had fatened his tour bankroll for another crack at the rich United States golf trail. Without the pressure of worrying about where the money was going to come from for next week's entry fee, he qualified in eight of the first 10 tournaments he played.

Cox was the story of the Canadian tour this summer with his fantastic string of titles and money winnings, but his success in this country hasn't changed anything for him in the U.S.

He still has to qualify for those fat American tournaments where a rookie with a branding iron and a hot putter can make $20,000 in four days.

The USPGA was scheduled to review his card in December, but he was given a reprieve until next spring and he plans to be there when the 1970 U.S. tour opens in January in Los Angeles.

"When I got there last January, I didn't know anyone and I was scared stiff," said Cox.

"Now I've proved to myself that I can win. I know now I wasn't kidding myself into thinking I'm a pro golfer.

"If I can keep my card, I'm going to get a sponsorship for a whole year or two years.

"When I tee it up in Los Angeles in January, I want to know I'll stay on the tour regardless of where I finish. No more three months on a shoestring."

Bower Becomes First NHL Player To Qualify for Pension in Uniform

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"You are old, John William," the young man said.

"And your hair has become very white;

"And yet you incessantly stand on your head—

"Do you think at your age, it is right?"

Lewis Carroll would probably agree to the word change if he knew John William Bower.

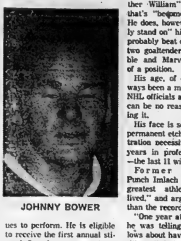
Bower has become the first National Hockey League player to qualify for a retirement pension while still active.

Bower, one of three goaltenders with Toronto Maple Leafs, is 45 years old Nov. 8 according to league records, he could be older—and he'll be ready to face Montreal Canadiens on his birthday.

Whether he gets the call from coach John McLellan to take his first starting assignment of the season will depend on whether he has had sufficient practice before the Saturday night game in Montreal.

Bower, who attributes his schoolboy agility to hard work, has not played since the beginning of the regular-season schedule. But he is part of the Leafs' regular team and would have played earlier this week if limited time had not curtailed practice.

He has always boasted that he would become the first active player to qualify for the pension, although he cannot collect on it while he continues to perform. He is eligible to receive the first annual stipend Oct. 1 next year, however, if he decides to retire before that time.



JOHNNY BOWER

He can also allow his accumulated pension to earn more money until he reaches 65, or he can start drawing it any time during the next 20 years. At 65, his pension would be worth 3.29 times more than it was at age 45.

Currently, his pension would be worth about $3,000 annually.

But Bower scarcely fits into the category of Carroll's "Father William" or with hair that's "bepzone very white." He does, however, "incessantly stand on" his head and will probably beat one of the other two goaltenders—Bruce Gamble and Marv Edwards—out of a position.

His age, of course, has always been a mystery although NHL officials argue that there can be no reason for concealing it.

His face is seamed with the permanent etchings of concentration necessitated by his 24 years in professional hockey —the last 11 with the Leafs.

Former manager-coach Punch Imlach calls him "the greatest athlete that ever lived," and argues he is older than the records show.

"One year at training camp he was telling the other fellows about having a birth certificate," Imlach says. "So I just laughed and told them, 'You just tell him I don't want to see it.'

"You see, I knew the guy had been overseas in 1939 with the army. That would have meant he was 15 at the time if he was born in 1924 as the NHL guide shows."

Perhaps Bower was able to lie successfully about his age and get into military service at the age of 14 or 15.

The fact remains that he is old, and his professional career stretches back to 1945—before the current crop of young stars like Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins and Walt Tkaczuk of New York Rangers were born.

His lifetime record takes up half a page in the players' guide. The footnotes, outlining special achievements such as twice winner of the Vezina Trophy as the leading NHL goaltender, stretch it another quarter-page.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"He said my raise would become effective as soon as I do."

Write-off of Expo Debt to Ottawa Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Expo 67 ran a last gauntlet through the Commons Monday, took its final whacks from such long-time critics as former prime minister John Diefenbaker and came to within a step or two of ending as a $127,900,000 write-off in a finance department ledger.

The Expo winding-up act, as the government bill is called, was given third reading on a voice vote and now goes to the Senate.

Before that, however, it served as the occasion for Mr. Diefenbaker to denounce the Liberal government for permitting "the greatest orgy of expenditure that has ever taken place in this country."

It also led Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary Centre) to accuse Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin of stealing Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson in a "cavalier fashion." He said the bill needed the government majority to protect it from an amendment that would have changed its whole intent.

The bill will write off the debt owed to the federal government by the corporation set up in 1963 by federal statute to manage the 1967 world's fair.

It also permits Quebec to defer until 1972, without interest, payment on $5,500,000—part of the money it owes Ottawa as its share of Expo's total deficit of $285,000,000. Another clause gives the government power to dispose of remaining Expo assets with the concurrence of Quebec and Montreal.

During the report stage of the bill—the step before third reading—an amendment was proposed by John Burton (NDP—Regina East) which would have removed the write-off clause from the bill. Mr. Burton felt the $122,900,000 should be covered by a supplementary appropriation.

The move would have had the effect of turning the write-off into a grant, in the same class as the $20,000,000 given by Ottawa to get the corporation started. But it was defeated 89 to 50 with seven Creditistes joining 73 Liberals to vote down 19 NDP members and 21 Conservatives.

Farmers' Troubles Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — Economists, farmers and government officials attending the 1969 agricultural outlook conference here agreed Monday that the Canadian farm economy is in trouble.

But their approach to a solution varied from retirement schemes for aging farmers, through reduced acreages and increased food aid, to freer trade and lower prices.

The extent of adjustment necessary to make farming a paying proposition was outlined in one of the background papers prepared for study by the more than 300 federal and provincial government representatives and farm organization delegates attending the two-day conference.

To make the $4,300,000,000 farm cash receipts pay $4,000 a year for farm labor plus 5-per-cent return on capital investment, the agricultural plant would have to be reduced to 174,000 farms from the present 430,000.

Farm rationalization has been going on for years, the paper states, but even allowing for an accelerated rate of change, the best prediction for 1980 is still 315,000 farms of which 50,000 will be operating below the poverty line.

A. G. Knlewasser, assistant deputy minister for industry, trade and commerce, said Japan is one of the fastest-growing economies and holds the best hope for expanded trade.

Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union, asked what will happen to Canadian agriculture if other countries violate what Canada considers proper trade ethics.

Mr. Knlewasser said "the consequences would be disastrous."

Canada's stake in working towards international co-operation in trade policies was greater than most other countries.

Pinecrest Home, School Sees Film on Mott Plan

By MARG HAYLOCK
(Staff Reporter)

BLOOMFIELD — The film, To Touch a Child, premiered here last night at Pinecrest School during a meeting of the Prince Edward County Home and School Council.

The informative film dealing with the origins and the functions of the Mott Program in Flint, Michigan, was introduced by Mr. Lee Jourard, guest speaker from Belleville. Mr. Jourard was one of 95 persons from Belleville to visit Flint last spring viewing the Mott Foundation and learning the implications of full involvement.

Before the film was shown introductory remarks were made to those attending the meeting by Mr. Christian Kristalyn, president of the Prince Edward County Home and School Council.

"Perhaps the question foremost in your mind is this: Now that you have a home and school council, what are you going to do with it? The answer to that is up to you. For a council to be effective, it needs the local associations to work with it and through it.

At this time there are three active home and school associations in Prince Edward County. This raises more questions," remarked the speaker. "What is home and school and what do I get out of it? The first question — What is home and school? While I was visiting a village some time ago the talk turned to home and school. When I asked if they belonged to it the answer I got was 'Oh them, no, we don't belong, for they are just a bunch of card-playing, money-grabbing old women. Now, if any home and school association projects this sort of image to the community, this organization has ceased to be home and school. Home and school's first interest is education for parents and children," observed Mr. Kristalyn.

He referred to the vital importance of parent education saying, "If we do not keep up with education and make it our business to keep informed we'll soon be living on an island, the island of ignorance. The world will be going on all around us be we won't be part of it and we'll only improve conditions for the frequently spoken of generation gap or communication breakdown."

In closing Mr. Kristalyn reminded parents that when young people 'kick over the traces' occasionally, it could be because they are being stifled with an outdated system or an outdated set of rules.

"Let's use the home and school to look into this and find out what gives," he urged. It is the ultimate hope of the home and school council, according to its president Jo have two teen agers sitting on its executive to present the views of the younger generation.

Following Mr. Kristalyn's remarks, guest speaker Lee Jourard was introduced by Mr. Douglas Trumble, a vice-principal at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Mr. Jourard referred to the Mott Foundation in Flint as a laboratory case. "The fruits of its experiment are ours to enjoy," he added.

To Touch a Child is a documentary film demonstrating what can happen in a community where citizens band together to achieve maximum use of their schools. It is the story of a school in Flint where pupils entered and left the building only when the bell rang. Their parents had never given much thought to using the school after classes or hours.

Then things changed. Gradually the school was opened to the public for evening classes. Sports programs were carried on extensively and health tests conducted to determine the physical fitness of each child. Studies were made of the home life of the pupil. Teachers could gear treatment of a student to problems that influenced his life from the home scene.

In the community of Flint, almost every o n e enthusiastically supported use of the schools for recreation and education on a full time, no bells necessary basis.

The Mott Foundation owes a great part of its success to philanthropist C. S. Mott, who donated generously to initiate and expand the program.

Mr. Jourard assured last night's gathering, how e v e r, that a financial "Big Daddy" is not essential to the possibility of the type of program being conducted in Flint.

He explained that some risk capital is involved but the real emphasis is on the number of people concerned with the project.

Said Mr. Girard, "There is a slogan for Mott workers — You are either fired with enthusiasm or fired, with enthusiasm."

In a question and answer period following the film he discussed points raised by several members in the gathering. Our teacher thought the film seemed "too goody goody, too pat." She did not feel that a community would agree so wholeheartedly on a project and support it unanimously.

A second woman applauded the plan as the answer for persons over 40 who are just in a rut. Mr. Jourard explained that he was not an expert on the Mott plan but he would endeavour to discuss any question.

During the meeting Mr. Jourard played a tape recording of a speech made by Mr. Mott, now 94 years old, at a weekend workshop in Michigan. In the recording Mr. Mott stated, "All of our schools are community schools and we have more people using the school after hours than during hours. In the past six or seven years we have had about 70,000 visitors who left saying if we had not seen it we would not have believed it. The only way to get it across to other communities is to have workshops and let others see it."

Said Mr. Jourard, "In two days I came back from Flint, firmly convinced that there is no reason we can't plant a few of their seeds here." He added that by here he referred to Belleville but could see no reason why the same plan would not work in Prince Edward County schools.

Prince Edward County Board of Education was represented at the meeting by chairman, Hutton Martin, M. T. Rutter and county education director John McNeil.

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market advanced fractionally in light mid-morning trading today after six consecutive downward sessions.

On index, industrials were up .38 to 184.60 and golds .14 to 161.85. Western oils slipped 1.26 to 197.85 and base metals .15 to 114.93.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 551,000 shares compared with 596,000 at the same time Monday.

Inco rose 1 to 64¼ and Sherritt was unchanged at 18½. Both nickel producers raised their prices by about 24 per cent Monday.

Falconbridge, another nickel producer, said today it has also raised its prices. Falconbridge gained ¼ to 15¾.

Trading in shares of Revenue was suspended by the exchange. Revenue's senior officials resigned at the company's annual meeting Monday and the meeting was adjourned. Trading was halted Monday at the company's request.

The exchange said resumption in trading will only be considered after an annual meeting at which "suitable" audited financial statements have been presented. The stock closed last Friday at $2.70, up 5 cents.

The market reversed its opening direction Monday and declined for the sixth consecutive session.

Reports that nickel prices were increased started the market off on a weakness in New York dragged it down.

Inco, the world's largest nickel producer, said that effective immediately it is increasing its price for nickel 25 cents a pound to $1.38 in Canada and to $1.28 in the United States.

Falconbridge, the second-largest producer, said it will study Inco's move. Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers at Falconbridge ratified a 33-month contract Saturday, ending a three-month strike.

Falconbridge rose 3 to 158 and Inco ¼ to 43¾. Sherritt slipped ¼ to 18½.

Trading in Revenue was halted at the opening at the company's request. The stock closed Friday at $2.70, up five cents.

At its annual meeting Monday, Revenue's senior officials resigned and the meeting was adjourned to a later date.

Trans-Prairie reported nine-month earnings of $1.26 a share compared with $7 cents in the similar 1968 period.

Walker-Gooderham was up ¼ to 45¼. The company plans capital expenditures of more than $20,000,000 over the next three years.

Gulf Canada slipped ¼ to 18½. The company said it will increase its prices of gasoline and diesel fuel following similar moves by other companies.

Canadian Jamieson was up eight cents to $1.70 on six-month earnings of 66 cents a share compared with 16 cents in the similar 1968 period.

On index, industrials were down .43 to 194.22, base metals 1.42 to 115.08 and western oils 1.19 to 199.19. Golds gained .50 to 181.71.

Issues outnumbered gains 355 to 169 with 246 issues unchanged.

No Election Will Be Held in Deseronto

NAPANEE — There will be no election in Deseronto in 1976, Reeve, mayor, four councillors, and a member of the Public Utilities Commission were all given acclamation.

The nomination meeting Thursday night was quiet. A fifth man, Maurice Kimmett, was nominated for council, but was not present, and said he sent a letter to signify his willingness to stand for election.

He is one of two years in George Lyons a merchant, who resigned as councillor after one year in order to run as reeve.

James W. Sharpe will be mayor for a second two-year term. He is a security officer with the Collins Bay Penitentiary.

Percy Brooks, a veteran councillor, is returning after a two-year holiday in private life. He is retired. Edgar Gordanier, a paint instructor in the Joyceville Penitentiary, is beginning his third term in council.

Peter Dickenson and J. C. (Jack) Hamilton are newcomers, both active in community affairs. Mr. Dickinson is the commercial director in the Napanee District Secondary School, the treasurer of the Macpherson House Board in Napanee, treasurer for the Deseronto United Church, a member of the Deseronto Lions Club, and a member of the group committee for the Sea Scouts.

Mr. Hamilton is an auto mechanic with a Napanee service station; first-president of the Lions Club, and a Cub Scout leader.

One of these four councillors will serve out George Lyons' term. The issue will probably be decided at the first meeting in January.

Frank Topping was nominated to be returned to the Public Utilities commission.

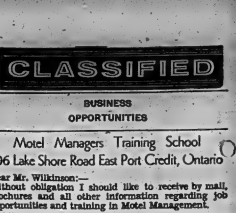
Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:



Indians Occupying Alcatraz Are Short of Water and Food

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 189 American Indians occupying Alcatraz have risked drowning, shivered from the cold, suffered shortages of food and fresh water.

When boats get close, they shout: "What have you got?"

But the Indians, including women and infants, vow to remain on Alcatraz Island until federal or state officials meet their demands.

They want help in reconstructing a burned out San Francisco Indian centre and increased aid to 100,000 Indians in California.

So far, the landlord of the former federal prison, the General Services Administration, has given them no deadline in which to get off. Interior Secretary Walter Hickel has agreed to meet with them, but no arrangements for the talks have been made.

Today, the sixth day of their occupation, the Indians appealed for money and U.S. Thanksgiving Day provisions through their "Alcatraz relief fund."

Fresh water, food, blankets and medicine come by boat. A call went out Monday for tetanus vaccine after several youngsters cut their feet on rusty nails.

Temperatures on the 21-acre rock have dipped to the low 30s at night.

There is no heat except from firewood ripped off the ramshackle cellblocks, and dozens of Indians have colds and sore throats.

They have no refrigeration for food.

Occasionally they have waded and swum out to help pull in small supply boats.

The Indians are serious about claiming the island. As a precedent they cite an 1868 treaty that returned abandoned federal property to the Sioux nation.

Why take Alcatraz, which is hardly habitable?

"When you see most of the reservations in this country, Alcatraz looks pretty good," says Adam Nordwall, 49, a Chippewa who heads the Indians' United Bay Area Council.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P., Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I don't understand all the fuss some people make about shingles. I guess they just like to complain and want sympathy.

I speak from experience. I had an attack of shingles. It bothered me a little for about three weeks and then was gone. I am a 23-year old secretary and I did not lose a day's work. Will you please comment? — Miss G.

Comment: The magic number "23" in your letter explains it: herpes zoster (shingles) is usually a mild infection in the young; a stubborn, painful involvement in the elderly. As in your case, Miss G., it is over in a few weeks. In teenagers and young adults, and may persist for months or years in older persons. We don't know why.

It is a viral infection that attacks the nerves in the spinal cord and causes the skin to break out on one side of the body. About the only treatment for it — although scores of medicines have been tried — is directed towards making the patient as comfortable as possible with pain killers.

In reading the following letter, Miss O., I think you will agree that elderly people with shingles, aren't "fussing" — they're suffering.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: About 15 months ago I came down with shingles. The entire right front and back of my chest was covered with scabs and inflammation. I did not get to a doctor until the pain was so severe I could not shave me.

First I thought it was an infection from a bra hook and I could clear it myself. By the time I decided to get going, I felt like I was on fire. After my doctor gave me a series of shots, sedation for pain and sleep, I was so much more comfortable. But it took over seven months to clear up most of my trouble.

What after all this time, I still get some terrible jolts, not of a clear sky. It seems as if someone has stabbed me between the ribs with a blade. And the burning sensation under the skin is still there. My doctor tells me this may occur for some time, and has something to do with the nerve infection.

I am 59 years old and have had some traumatic experiences in the last few years, but nothing has shaken me up so badly as this darn attack of shingles. I feel so silly to be around people and being struck with these stabs which cause me to jump suddenly with a half-scream.

They must be thinking I've gone off my rocker. If I explain it is only an aftermath of the shingles, they cannot believe it. To some people shingles must seem like a mere nothing, but I wouldn't wish an attack on my worst enemy. — Mrs. M.

Comment: Catch on, Miss O? I've seen many a Mrs. M. in my lifetime. Take my word for it — they're not "just fussin'."

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In a few words will you please talk about stomach cancer? — Mr. R.

Comment: Treatment, of course, is early operation. But how early depends upon early diagnosis. There are no specific symptoms. Perhaps "indigestion" that hangs on for weeks and months. The earlier investigated, the better.

Sometimes X rays show what appears to be a stomach ulcer, not duodenal. To make sure it isn't an ulcer, repeated X-rays are necessary within weeks or months.

If "ulcer treatment" doesn't diminish the size of the suspected ulcer, then surgery may be necessary early — not to take the chance that it may be stomach cancer. I could go on, but perhaps these "few words" will answer your ques-

Thanksgiving Best Holiday

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Of all the holidays we celebrate, Thanksgiving is by far my favorite. It is, in fact, the only one I wholeheartedly subscribe to, in spirit as well as in body.

Christmas, of course, is a mess, and has been for as long as I can remember. It has turned into a hectic, anxious, overspending, show-off holiday that has no more in common with the preachments of Jesus than a hog has with a hymnal.

And New Year's Eve is the end. The squares and clods have utterly taken over that day, and night, for mindless reiistering that mistakes bellowing for boisonnie and driveling drunkenness for jollity.

What do we have left? The Fourth of July should be a time to take stock of our national inheritance, and what we have made, or failed to make, of it; instead, it means fire-crackers to the kids, and long, insincere political orations to the adults — most of whom wouldn't sign the Declaration of Independence today even under an assumed name.

But Thanksgiving is different. It has not been commercialized. It is a quiet time. No one has tried to make it over for self serving purposes, except perhaps the cranberry sauce people. And, most of all, it is unique among the world's holidays.

It was first begun, as you learned in school, in 1621, to commemorate the harvest reaped by the Plymouth Colony, after a winter of great starvation. In that autumn, Gov. William Bradford proclaimed a day of thanksgiving — in a feast shared not only by all the colonists, but by the Indians as well.

No other country has a day set aside for this purpose: a day that is non-political, non-denominational, non-patriotic, but simply one in which all the people recall the privation and suffering of their forebears, and give thanks for the bounty provided them, and us.

Nor has any other country so much to give thanks for. We forget, in our pride of accomplishment, that the New World was naturally blessed with many advantages Europe lacked: not only physically, in terms of vast land and resources, but also with freedom from ancient grudges, from old class structures, and from crippling authority.

Thanksgiving celebrates the personal spirit and the family unity of our people. It evokes humility, gratitude, warmth, and an exchange of sentiments or salutes. In being the most distinctively American holiday it approaches being the most universal.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For November 26

Your birthday today: Your coming year quite likely will be taken up with improving the eahings'and economics of your career. Material concerns must toward better conditions as the year progresses. Emotional interests are less active in the early months but come on stronger and more intensely later.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Impulsive moves do not yield the results you expect. Consult mate or partner first. Family disagreements produce unwelcome, long-term results if permitted to go too far.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Interruptions occur, mainly in transit. Hasty reactions to passing comments cause trouble; think before you blurt an answer to an opinion. Relatives are a subject for concern.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Daily routines are the most promising pattern of performance. A chance to consult and find out all that is going on. Listen without critical comment.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Many things must be done soon if you are ever going to do them. However, stay with existing personal plans; make no special changes regarding your home arrangements.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Today you must endure various distractions, nevertheless a great deal can be done. Postpone impetuous changes or drastic decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Financial contacts with friends become complex; go it alone in money matters. Let friends help older persons without intervention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Care in the use of appliances should be matched with equal caution in money deals. Unsettled conditions do not affect your earnings, merely exhaust your patience.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): You can resolve personal anxieties readily. Routines are broken up here and there. Make notes to avoid trying to hold details in your memory. Meditate tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Marital situations improve swiftly if you will only express your real feelings, more so where money is to be shared.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Matters involving associates come under stress. Your steadiness during unexpected events will be appreciated. Just now originality is your forte.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your work runs into conditions where you have no precedent. Use intuition and plunge ahead. Take action rather than following the first glib suggestion.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Early activities go best. The day dawdles in its usefulness for personal projects, romantic interests, hobbies. Retire early for needed rest.

Moon Rocks Arrive Safely

HOUSTON (AP) — Scientists open the first treasure chest of Apollo 12 moon rocks today as the quarantined astronauts who collected them head for Hawaii aboard their recovery ship.

Working with gloves that extend into a vacuum chamber, technicians at the Lunar Receiving Laboratory here planned to lift a lid on the first of two rock boxes filled on the moon's Ocean of Storms.

Opening was expected sometime before noon EST.

The two containers were flown to the Manned Spacecraft Centre Tuesday from American Samoa where they had been taken from Apollo 12's recovery ship, the Hornet.

The first box, with about 28 pounds of lunar material inside, was bathed with acrid to wash off any earthy contaminant, then moved into the vacuum chamber.

The second box, containing the most carefully selected samples and the core tubes drived into the moon to tell scientists how lunar soil is formed, was to be opened Thursday or Friday.

Meanwhile, Navy Capts. Charles Conrad, Alan Bean and Richard Gordon continued their schedule with a doctor and engineer inside a silver quarantine trailer aboard the Hornet.

'Sin Industry' Loses Again

TORONTO (CP) — A 150-per-cent assessment for distilleries "is apparently related to the idea that we are a sin industry," lawyer Joseph Sedgwick told an Ontario legislature committee Tuesday.

He was representing distilling companies in Ontario as the standing legal and municipal committee began detailed examination of legislation under which the province will take over the assessment function starting Jan. 1.

Mr. Sedgwick said the 150-per-cent assessment is unfair when other companies, including Bell Canada, are assessed at only 30 per cent.

Mr. Sedgwick asked that the business taxation base be reduced to 100 per cent, which would still be 25 per cent above the beer industry's taxation level.

The committee voted down the request.

Decision Expected Within Few Days

BERN (Reuters) — Biafra has asked Switzerland to mediate in the Nigerian conflict and a decision will be made in the next two or three days, a Swiss foreign ministry spokesman said here today.

The spokesman added it appeared there is a genuine chance of success in such a mission.

He was answering questions following a revelation by a Swiss legislator on television that Biafran leader Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu wrote to Swiss President Ludwig von Moos asking Switzerland to mediate.

The spokesman said the foreign ministry is holding consultations with other neutral countries—Austria, Sweden and Yugoslavia — as well as some other powers which he did not name.

He declined to elaborate on the exact nature the mediation would take, but observers here thought a joint action by neutral European countries was the most likely outcome.

The other non-neutral powers being consulted were thought to include Britain, these observers added.

The purpose of Swiss consultations was to find out whether the other countries favored Swiss mediation, the spokesman said.

The observers stressed the highly delicate nature of any mediation. They pointed out that the country or countries involved would have to strike an almost impossible balance acceptable to both Nigeria and Biafra.

The International Committee for The Red Cross said it knew nothing of any mediation plans but that it was all in favor of a solution to the conflict.

101-Year Case Makes 240 Millionaires

REGGIO CALABRIA (Reuters) — About 240 persons have suddenly found themselves millionaires after an inheritance battle which lasted 101 years.

They are heirs of Baron Francesco Trombetta who died in 1868, leaving more than 100 feudal fiefs in Sicily and southern Italy currently estimated to be worth $630,000,000.

But after he died it was confiscated by the newly created Italian state along with church property.

For more than a century his daughter, grandchildren and numerous great grandchildren have fought to have the confiscation declared illegal on the ground that the land was not church but private property.

Their case was finally upheld this week by the Supreme Court.

Disarming Difficult

Getting Rid of Germs Will Be Tricky Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence officials say President Nixon's order junking U.S. military germ stocks will require elaborate safety precautions that may stretch the disposal operation over several months.

The defence department expressed hope Tuesday that elimination of germ warfare components can be completed "well within a year." The department of health, education and welfare will assist in the disposal.

The highly poisonous nature, rather than a huge volume, of the biological stocks is the main problem, officials said.

The defence department has not yet stripped the secret label from documents showing how much bacteria there is to destroy, but sources speak in terms of "buckets full" and pounds, rather than tons.

However, as little as a thimbleful of such lethal bacteria as anthrax or plague is capable of killing thousands of persons over a wide area.

The president's announcement of the planned disposal Tuesday climaxed a six-month review of the American chemical and biological warfare—CBW—program.

Nixon's reference to eliminating "existing stocks of bacteriological weapons" made information officers at the defence department squirm since the department has repeatedly told reporters that the United States does not stock germ weapons.

"We have no biological weapons as such," the defence department asserted after the president had spoken. "We do have certain biological agents in storage containers."

Angry Woman Sparked Drive on Germ Weapons

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A woman's indignation started the ball rolling that ended in President Nixon's orders to the U.S. military to destroy its stockpiles of plague-bearing germ warfare weapons.

On the night of last Feb. 6, Mrs. Richard D. McCarthy, wife of the New York congressman and mother of five children, turned angrily from a documentary being shown on television about gas and germ warfare and asked her husband what he knew about the U.S. program.

McCarthy, a former journalist now in his third two-year term in the House of Representatives, said he knew almost nothing but he promised to find out.

Since then, the lid has been pried off the U.S. gas and germ warfare program and McCarthy has been one of the toughest campaigners against it.

Thieu's Foe Plans Probe of Massacre

SAIGON (CP) — Senator Tran Van Don, a leading opponent of President Nguyen Van Thieu and the chairman of the South Vietnamese Senate's defence committee, said today he may investigate the alleged My Lai massacre. The former general said he had called a special meeting of his committee Thursday to decide.

Thieu's regime has denied that any massacre occurred. The government version of the incident is that about 20 civilians were killed by air strikes and artillery during an attack on Viet Cong forces.

A U.S. officer, however, has been charged at Fort Benning, Ga., with killing 109 North Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.
